A fine leader, who has taken part in numerous bombing raids, many at very low altitudes. He has done valuable service in reconnaissance duty, his reports being invariably accurate and informing. During the recent operations his squadron has suffered severe casualties, and it is due in no small measure to his personal influence that the fighting spirit of the squadron has been maintained at a high level

Sec. Lt. (Temp. Lt.) William Benson Craig, Sea Patrol, C.F.A.

Whilst acting temporarily as flight leader on one day last month he personally destroyed three enemy machines, and the remainder of his flight accounted for three more. Lt. Craig has been engaged in numerous air battles, and always displays fine spirit, ability and determination in carrying out his duties. He has personally brought down two enemy machines completely out of control, in addition to those referred to above

Lt. James Eric Croden (London, Ont.)

During recent operations this officer has displayed conspicuous courage and devotion to duty in attacking from low altitudes enemy troops and transport with machine-gun fire. He has also rendered valuable service on reconnaissance duty.

Lt. (Temp. Capt.) Michael Lawrence Doyle, Quebec R. (Jacquet River, N.B.)

This officer has completed 40 bomb raids, 20 low bomb and ground raids and six photographic reconnaissances, making 66 distinct flights, 29 of which he has led with conspicuous success. His gallantry, judgment, and foresight are marked, and furnish a fine example to all.

AN AIRMAN'S WONDERFUL ESCAPE.

When he landed the ground was held by the enemy, but he ran for our lines and escaped, although shot at.

Canadian War Records Photograph.

Lt. (Temp. Capt.) Carl Frederick Falkenberg, Quebec R. (Quebec).

A bold and skilful airman, who has destroyed four enemy machines and driven down four out of control. In addition, he has performed many gallant deeds in attacking troops, transport, etc., on the ground.

Lt. Gordon Aird Flavelle (Lindsay).

On the night before one of our attacks this officer was detailed for a special and most important duty, which necessitated patrolling our advance lines. He attempted to leave the ground at 10 p.m., but was forced to return owing to low clouds and driving rain. Two hours later he made a second attempt in what appeared almost impossible weather conditions; he, however, persevered. Flying on a compass course, and judging the time necessary for the flight, he reached his objective and patrolled the lines for two hours and fifty minutes, returning to his aerodrome in a state of complete exhaustion after a flight of three and a half hours. The courage, skill, and determination exhibited by this officer cannot be too highly commended.

Lt. George Buchanan Foster (Knowlton, P.Q.)

This officer has destroyed four enemy machines and driven a fifth down out of control. He is an intrepid fighter, who on one occasion, in company with another pilot, attacked two kite balloons, shooting down one in flames and driving down the second in a deflated condition.

Lt. Charles Franklin Galbraith (Winnipeg) died.

Throughout the recent operations this officer has carried out work of outstanding merit in attacking enemy troops on the ground and in obtaining information as to the position of our infantry and cavalry and those of the enemy. He has also taken photographs from very low altitudes, and which were urgently required.

Lt. (Temp. Capt.) John Gordon Gillanders, 18th Sqn. (Highgate, Ont.)

This officer has carried out 29 successful bombing raids, 16 photographic flights, and 36 reconnaissances, and his work has been admirable, characterised by marked ability. In the course of these numerous flights he has never hesitated to engage enemy aircraft, thereby on many occasions materially assisting his formation.

Sec. Lt. (Hon. Lt.) Norman William Helwig, C. Ont. Regt. (Hanover, Ont.)—prisoner.

This officer has taken part in 38 bomb raids, 12 photographic flights, and 19 reconnaissances. In all these his success has been marked, due to his keen power of observation and intense devotion to duty. He has on several occasions been specially commended by the Army Intelligence Staff for his good photographic work and useful reconnaissance reports.

Lt. (Temp. Capt.) Harold Mervyn Ireland (Toronto).

On August 29 this officer was leader of a large formation detailed for a long distance bombing raid on certain enemy docks. A strong and adverse wind was blowing and thick clouds almost obscured the ground, rendering the task of reaching such a distant objective one of great difficulty. Carefully studying the compass and making what he considered due allowance for the wind he led his formation to a point which he judged would be in the vicinity of the objective. A break in the clouds showed that he was correct, and the docks were effectually bombed. During the five months Captain Ireland has been with his present squadron he has led 43 long-distance raids, and the foregoing is only one instance of many in which he has shown judgment, skill and determination of a very exceptional nature.

Lt. Arthur Eyguem de Montaingne Jarvis, E. Ont. R. (Toronto).

A bold and determined fighter. On July 26 he engaged and shot down an enemy machine, which was seen to crash. Later on the same date he attacked a hostile two-seater and forced it to land near our lines; both occupants were taken prisoners

Lt. Emile John Lussier (Medicine Hat).

During recent operations this officer has driven down out of control or destroyed seven enemy machines, and, with the aid of two other pilots, has accounted for a further two. Three of these he destroyed in one day. In these combats he has proved himself an officer of very high courage, eager to attack without regard to the enemy's superiority in numbers.

Lt. William John Pace (Edmonton).

Since this officer joined his squadron in March last he has carried out five photographic reconnaissances and taken part in 32 bombing raids. His work has been distinguished throughout by keenness, efficiency and determination. When attacked by hostile 'planes he has invariably shown coolness and initiative, never hesitating to assist weaker pilots in critical situations. On photographic reconnaissances he has rendered most valuable service.

Temp. Capt.George Thomas Reid, Forestry Corps (Toronto).

A very competent and gallant observer in long-distance bombing raids, in 13 of which he has been successfully engaged. Capt. Reid displays great skill in selecting the correct altitude for unloading his bombs, and his determination is most marked in all his work.

Lt (Temp. Capt.) William Gordon Stevenson (Toronto).

A fine leader, who has taken part in 26 successful raids, displaying marked skill and gallantry, notably on July 7, when with five other machines he carried out a successful raid. On the return journey the formation was engaged by ten hostile aircraft, who made repeated and determined attacks; that these attacks were repulsed without loss was largely due to the cool judgment and strong initiative shown by this officer.

Lt. James Alexander Stewart (Montreal).

A gallant and very capable pilot, who has been engaged in 13 successful night bombing long-distance raids. He has never failed to achieve his object under the most trying weather conditions. He displays excellent judgment as to correct altitude from which bombs should be dropped, and consequently has invariably hit his objectives.

Lt. Alan Victor Stupart (Toronto).

A courageous and resolute officer who displayed great gallantry on a recent patrol when he was attacked by seven hostile aircraft; with skill and courage he drove these off and continued his patrol. Later on he was again attacked by a large formation; in this engagement both he and his observer were wounded, but they continued the combat until they eventually drove off the enemy. Having brought back his machine Lt. Stupart fainted from loss of blood.

Capt. Edmund Roger Tempest, M.C. (Perdue, Sask.)

Since March last this office. has destroyed nine enemy machines. A daring and most capable officer, who never hesitates to engage the enemy. By brilliant leadership he achieves success with the minimum of loss. (M.C. gazetted May 13, 1918.)

Lt. William McKenzie Thomson, M.C. (Toronto).

This officer has destroyed 13 enemy machines, invariably displaying courage, determination and skill. Disparity in numbers never daunts him. On a recent occasion, in company with eight other machines, his formation was attacked by 25 scouts; he shot one down. On another occasion his formation of ten machines engaged between 20 and 30 Fokkers; in the combat that ensued this officer shot down one out of the four that were destroyed. (M.C. gazetted September 16, 1918.)

Lt. (Temp. Capt.) Hazel Le Roy Wallace (Lethbridge).

A gallant and most capable leader, who in many engagements has displayed marked ability and courage, notably in a recent attack on an aerodrome when he led his flight against the group of hangars allotted to him at an altitude of between 100 to 200 feet. By direct hits he destroyed three enemy aeroplanes and set fire to a hangar by machine-gun fire. In addition to above this officer has destroyed four aeroplanes and driven three down out of control.

AIR FORCE CROSS.

THE BRITISH LEAVEN.

(To the Editor of CANADA.)

DEAR SIR,- Referring to your editorial in the issue of August 31, entitled "The British Leaven," in speaking about the Englishman not assimilating, I think this is a mistaken idea generally.

For instance, in Canada you seldom hear the Englishman who has been here for any length of time spoken of as an English-Canadian; he is usually known simply as a Canadian. You hear of Scottish-Canadians, Irish-Canadians, French-Canadians, Scandinavian-Canadians, American-Canadians, and all kinds of Canadians, but you seldom here of English-Canadians.

When the great British war-drum beat through Canada on August 5, 1914, and the men began to walk up to enlist of their own free will and accord, what did we find? We found that the Scots, Irish, Welsh, Americans, Scandinavians, Poles, Russians, Jews, all wanted their own battalions, to be designated as such before they would join up; but the Englishman did not ask for any battalion to be known as an English battalion, but just walked up and enlisted anywhere so long as he was given a chance to take up the Sword of Justice in the great Crusade for Christianity and Humanity.

We find from the figures of enlistments issued by the Department of Militia and Defence up to March 31, of all the men who had gone overseas up to that date that:—

		Per Cent.
English born represented		33.3
Scottish born represented		10.2
Irish born represented		3.4
Welsh born represented		.9
Other British possessions		1
United States born		3.3
From other countries		[illegible]
Canadians of French descent	4.45	44.90
Canadians of British descent	40.45

I think this goes to show quite clearly and conclusively that the Englishman assimilates fairly well.

In knocking around the United States one finds hordes of German-American, Scandinavian-American, Irish-American societies, banks, insurance companies, etc., and publications without number. One also finds a great many Scottish societies and publications, but I have never yet run across any English-American bank, trust company, etc., or newspaper. Here, too, if one can judge from all one has seen, the Englishman assimilates, and it is difficult to find a St. George's Society or Sons of England Society anywhere, unless one goes around with a fine-tooth comb to look for it.—Yours, etc.,

Winnipeg. CANADIAN.

OUR LIBRARY TABLE.

We are asked to mention that "The Rough Road," by W. J. Locke, is published by Mr. John Lane at 6s. 6d. net.

An appendix to "The Flags of our Fighting Army," by Stanley C. Johnson, contains a record of the colours of 83 Canadian battalions. (London: A. & C. Black.)

"The Assembly," by Lord Frederic Hamilton, is a striking story of South America and the Great War, the profits of which are to go to the Harrow School War Memorial Fund. (London: Hurst and Blackett; 6s. 9d.)

Messrs. Hutchinson are about to publish the "Reminiscences of Ambassador Morgentharen," the American diplomat, who was in Constantinople during the years 1913-16. Among other revelations, he tells the recent history of the Gallipoli expedition.

"On the Fringe of the Great Fight" is the appropriate title of a book by Col. George G. Nasmith, C.M.G., of Ottawa, who rendered such valuable service when in France with the Canadians in respect of sanitation and hygiene, to say nothing of inventing gas masks. It is a highly interesting and racily-written account of the Colonel's personal experiences, from the time he left Canada with the First Contingent. Particularly vivid are the chapters describing the gas at the Second Battle of Ypres. There are some good stories, too, among the "Sketches from a Laboratory Window," and some striking photographs. The book is dedicated "To my war bride." (Toronto: McClelland, Goodchild & Stewart, Ltd. 263 pages; $1.50.)

"Whatsoever a Man Soweth" is the title of a remarkable film which has been prepared with a view to showing in direct and simple story form the terribly serious personal and hereditary results which permanently attend venereal disease. The evidence of scientific tests is shown in some of the pictures, while the story of the individuals concerned is a thrilling and pathetic tragedy. The film has been copyrighted by Lt.-Col. Seymour Bullock, O.M.F.C., and was first shown in the Little Theatre attached to the Canadian Y.M.C.A. Beaver Hut in the Strand. Mr. Joseph Best, B.Sc., of Pathé Freres, is responsible for the pictures.

THE LATE PTE. W. H. LAUNCHBURY.

It is with the deepest regret that his colleagues on the staff of Canada have heard of the death of Pte. William Henry Launchbury, who was killed in action in France on October 3. He had been a member of the business staff of Canada since September, 1911, and volunteered for military service in September, 1914, when he joined the 2nd Middlesex Hussars. He went to Salonika in the autumn of 1916, and there was transferred to the King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry. In the early summer of 1918 he was transferred to France with his battalion, and in August came home on his first leave since going over-seas. Private Launchbury was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Launchbury, of Westmead Road, Sutton, and leaves a widow, to whom he was married on September 3, 1918, just before he returned to France.

Western Canadian milling companies announce a reduction of 5d. per barrel in flour to the trade and 10d. per barrel to bakers, in car lots.

The Canadian Patriotic Society have shown a praiseworthy policy of broadmindedness in modifying their policy in regard to post-enlistment marriages and authorising local committees to grant assistance to women who, having married Canadian soldiers in Great Britain, are now coming to Canada.

Weekly Reports from Our Own Correspondents.

THE LONDON MARKET.

Stock Exchange Settling Days :—

Consols Pay Day, Monday, Dec. 2.

Ticket Day.	Pay Day.
Wed., Nov. 13.	Thurs., Nov. 14.

London, Tuesday.

The Stock Exchange is in the highest spirits, and business so far this week has been on the largest scale experienced for some time past. The gilt-edged group has displayed strength under the lead of Consols, and home and foreign rails record some substantial gains.

In the Canadian department the general tone has been very cheerful, with dealings on a moderately brisk scale. Among the gilt-edged issues, the 3½ per cents. and the Fours are unchanged, but the 4½ per cents., after making allowance for the half-yearly interest deduction, are ¼ better at 94. Canadian corporation stocks have usually been firm at previous levels, but Vancouver 4½ per cents. have advanced a point to 77.

Canadian Pacifics, in the railroad group, marked time around 181. Grand Trunk junior stocks and the Guaranteed Fours are about the same, but the 1st and 2nd Preferences are a point better.

Hudson's Bays have been in demand with other leading land shares, and have risen to over 9. Lower priced issues have also displayed a disposition to level up.

As regards industrials, Canadian Cars and Canada Cements have been firm at last week's quotations. Canadian General Electrics hold at 113½, and Dominion Steels at 65. Spanish River Pulp Pref. has risen 2 to 59½, and Cities Services Common has been marked forward 2 to 329. Brazilian Tractions have scored a further improvement to 58, and Mexican utility issues still tend forward.

Quotations in the Canadian silver mining group have see-sawed narrowly, but record no material net change.

OUR TORONTO LETTER.

Toronto, October 16.

Markets were quiet last week and were characterised by irregular fluctuations. A noteworthy feature was the turning of attention towards stocks which are expected to benefit from peace conditions, among which Brazilian Traction has been conspicuous. On the other hand, the steel stocks were weaker, Steel of Canada and Dominion Steel closing the week with declines of 3 points and 1¼ points respectively as compared with their prices when the week began. Yesterday markets continued quiet, though fairly firm. In both Toronto and Montreal Brazilian was the most active stock, rising to over 50, but reacting at the close to just under that figure. The principal steel stocks, Steel of Canada and Dominion Steel, advanced slightly, as also did Forgings, Montreal Power, Ames-Holden Pref., and Wabasso Cotton. A small lot of Ogilvie Milling shares changed hands in Montreal at 195, which is only 2½ points below the high price which the shares reached just before the big dividend was paid towards the end of September. The rise of 10 points since the dividend was paid is probably largely due to the publication of so strong an annual statement.

Current comment on the industrial outlook in Canada lays stress upon the low stocks held by manufacturers, merchants, and retailers. The high prices and scarcity of raw materials have, it is pointed out, militated against that over-trading which is ordinarily a danger which arises during a period of great industrial activity. It is believed that when the military demand slackens and finally ceases, manufacturers in many lines will be kept very busy with domestic orders for the replenishment of stocks throughout the country.

Among bonds, those of the 1937 War Loan were active at 94¼, the quotations for the others being 1931, 96; 1925, 96½. Wayagamack 6 per cent. bonds were also notably active, but at 81 the price showed no change. In Toronto some bonds of the Electrical Development Company changed hands at 85.

In the mining market, transactions in low-priced shares gave an aspect of breadth to yesterday's trading; otherwise there is little of interest to report. Among the gold stocks, Hollinger at $5.10 and McIntyre at $1.54 show little change since I last wrote you, but Big Dome at $10.90 is somewhat higher. Porcupine Imperial at .01, Dome Extension at .18, and Porcupine Crown at .15 were the most active gold stocks yesterday. Among the silver group activity was also mainly in the low-priced shares. La Rose was steady at .51, Temiskaming sold at .29½, Great Northern at .03, Adanac at .11, and Peterson Lake at .09½ were the most active in the list. A small lot of Hudson Bays changed hands at $18.

FROM EAST TO WEST

ONTARIO PROVINCE.

OTTAWA.—A conference has taken place here between representatives of the Dominion Government, of Canadian manufacturers, and of industrial reconstruction committees for the purpose of considering the opening of new fields to industry and the development of export trade. It is proposed to appoint a Commission to co-operate with the Government on these questions after the war.

——Conferences are being held by the Canadian War Trade Board with manufacturers of various commodities for men with a view to standardising certain necessaries, such as boots and clothing, along the lines already adopted in Great Britain.

——" Daylight saving " has been so successful in Canada that Sir George Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, announces that it will be reintroduced next year.

Subscriptions throughout Canada for the Knights of Columbus Army Huts total over $1,000,000.

The British Cellulose Co., whose operations are being investigated by a committee of the British Parliament as a result of charges made by certain London papers, is planning to branch out into Canada. The necessary capital, it is said, is available.

——The Bureau of Statistics census of the Dominion pulp and paper industry shows the total capital invested by 80 firms at $186,374,905; employees, 20,685 males and 671 females. Total wages in 1917, $20,344,286, and total value of production, $96,248,834.

——The Minister of Agriculture announces the appointment of Mr. C. W. Baxter to fill the vacancy created two months ago by the death of Mr. Donald Johnson, Fruit Commissioner.

——Representatives of the Dominion Trades and Labour Congress have interviewed Sir R. Borden and protested against the recent Order in Council making strikes illegal. The Prime Minister promised to reply shortly.

TORONTO.—The new Union Depôt, which has been erected at a cost of $3,500,000, will, it is officially stated, be opened next April or May.

Ontario soldiers will receive a Christmas parcel from the Prime Minister and Provincial Government. Arrangements are also being made for the despatch of 25,000 boxes of Ontario apples to the Canadian Red Cross Society for distribution amongst Canadian wounded.

BROCKVILLE.—Fire has destroyed the Canadian Carriage Works, with a loss of £100,000.

KINGSTON.—The late Mr. Henry Horsey, of Ottawa, provided funds to found a scholarship of $100 per annum, in memory of the late Mr. Eric Horsey, an undergraduate of the University, who died of wounds.

——The city assessment is $13,780,245, an increase of $285,920 over last year. The population is 23,737, an increase of 714.

-Lt. H. C. Walkem, M.C., has been appointed resident engineer at Petewawa Camp.

——The trustees of Queen's University are endeavouring to raise $375,000 for endowment purposes, in order to secure a similar amount offered the University by the late Dr. James Douglas, the former Chancellor, who also left $100,000 to the General Hospital here, and $50,000 to McGill University.

BRANTFORD. The annual assessment roll shows an increase of $1,973,690 in general assessment to $24,377,285, and the taxable assessment has increased by $1,021,860 to $20,337,[illegible]85. During the past twelve months the population has increased by 1,061 to 28,725. New factories erected during the year are valued at $620,000. At present there is hardly a vacant house in the city and the shortage is keenly felt.

COBALT. Teck Township is now an incorporated municipality, with Mr. William McLeod, of Kirkland Lake, as the first reeve.

LEFROY. Mr. J. G. Doutie, of this village, has had three sons killed in action within six weeks. His fourth son was previously wounded, and his fifth has been invalided home.

SAULT STE. MARIE. The fourth great Government lock, connecting the upper and lower levels of Lakes Superior and Huron, has been completed

QUEBEC PROVINCE.

QUEBEC.—One hundred and twenty-five people have been thrown out of work by a fire at the premises of the J. M. Stobo shoe firm. Damage estimated $100,000.

MONTREAL.—Mr. F. J. Bisaillon, K.C., has been recommended to the British authorities for appointment on the International Waterways Commission in succession to Mr. P. B. Mignault, elevated to the Supreme Court Bench.

—Of 16,000 bachelors in the city whose names have been registered at the City Hall, only 3,837 have yet paid their head tax of $10. Of the 15,000 dogs that are said to be in the city, a tax of $3 has been paid on about 5,000 of them.

——The corner of St. Catherine and Peel Streets, formerly the site of Erskine Church, has been sold by auction, realising about $32 per square foot. On the last assessment the property, 19,269½ square feet in area, was valued at $790,400, or approximately $41 a square foot. The present assessment value is $714,000, or $37 a square foot. A few years ago the corner changed hands at $60 a square foot, and $70, and even more, was asserted to be its value.

——The annual inspection, which was made last month by the Harbour Commissioners, included the dry dock of Canadian Vickers, Ltd., the Imperial Oil Company's wharf, the Harbour Commissioners' railway, and the elevators. On every side there was evidence of much activity, and of a readiness to cope with the great traffic which is expected when peace comes.

LENNOXVILLE.—Mr. J. N. Greenshields, K.C., has given $22,000 to found three scholarships of $400 per annum each, a gift to Bishop's College School, Lennoxville, in memory of his son, the late Capt. Melville Greenshields, an old Lennoxville boy, who was killed at the Front.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

FREDERICTON.—New Brunswick, like the other Provinces, has answered the call for increased production, as will be seen by the following figures showing acreage in different crops for 1913 and 1918, respectively:—1913—Oats, 185,432 acres, compared with 224,442 in 1918. 1913—Wheat, 12,389 acres, compared with 49,453 in 1918. The acreage to turnips has more than doubled, and that of potatoes risen from 47,702 to 57,272.

—Le Moniteur Acadien, published at Shediac, for 50 years the French organ of the Conservative Party, has suspended publication.

-Many settlers have taken up lands and built homes along the line of the Canadian Government Railway between Campbellton and St. Leonard.

NOVA SCOTIA.

HALIFAX.—The Hon. G. H. Murray, the Premier, states that he is advised by the Attorney-General's Department that as there is no quorum of the City Council no election could legally be held to fill the ten vacancies created by the resignation of ten out of the twelve Aldermen. The Premier adds that if an election is desired, the Provincial Government is prepared to introduce legislation next session making such an election valid.

SYDNEY.—The average daily wage of the employees at the steel works is now nearly double that of pre-war days, while the minimum rate for unskilled labour has increased 114 per cent. since January, 1916.

When peace returns "Canada" will require to increase its staff. There will be openings which offer good opportunities to initiative and ability. The General Manager will be very glad to discuss the matter either personally (by appointment), or by letter with anyone interested.

Ontario after the War—TIMBER.

Ontario has 202,000 square miles of forests, which yield timber to the value of $26,775,000 per annum.

After the war, vast quantities of timber will be required for rebuilding purposes in the ravaged cities, towns and villages of Europe.

Ontario, with its vast forests of pine, birch, maple, beech, and other valuable hardwoods, can, with the aid of British capital, supply the timber demand of the world.

There is also a great future in store for the wood pulp and paper industry. Huge plant already exists, but new factories are needed to cope with the inevitable demand for paper that will arise immediately after the war.

"CANADA" is the only newspaper which has always published each week since the outbreak of war the full official lists of rank and file casualties, without any mutilation or curtailment.

"CANADA'S" biographical notes on officers are by far the most complete that are published, and its records of Canadians serving in Imperial units are a unique feature.

FROM EAST TO WEST.

MANITOBA PROVINCE.

WINNIPEG.- Mr. W. P. Hinton, vice-president and general manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific, has been elected Chairman of the Administrative Sub-Committee of the Canadian Railway Board, succeeding Mr. Grant Hall.

——At the first annual meeting of the United Scottish Society officers were elected as follows:—President, Mr. R. D. Waugh; vice-presidents, Messrs. G. A. Berry and J. Manson; secretary, Mr. J. Bews.

——Mr. N. H. Bacon, Fur Trade Commissioner of the Hudson's Bay Co., having resigned, the Governor and Committee have appointed Chief Factor James Thomson to that office, in addition to the Commissionership of the Land Department, which he has held since 1911. Mr. Thomson is a native of the Orkney Islands, but came to Fort Garry in 1880.

DAUPHIN. Farm lands in this district are in demand, owing to the succession of good crops in the northern section of the Province. One sale reported is that of a farm owned by Mr. Chas. McLaughlin, which has been purchased by Mr. Ernest A. Martin for $40,000. The half-section is improved and has modern buildings.

SASKAT- CHEWAN.

REGINA.—A shipment of Saskatchewan butter is on its way to Siberia for the use of the Canadian Force. The consignment consists of 57,700 pounds.

——A $500,000 apartment block is to be erected here by parties living in Ontario. It will be six storeys high and will cover a site 160 by 120 feet.

——A petition signed by 625 farmers has been forwarded to the Government, asking for the extension of the C.N.R. line running northward from North Battleford.

SASKATOON.—Harvest help in this district has been very scarce, with the result that the average rate of wages paid was $7.00 a day, and in some cases as much as $8.00.

ALBERTA PROVINCE.

EDMONTON.—The Provincial Medical Association has elected the following officers:—President, Dr. G. A. Anderson, Calgary; vice-president, Dr. G. W. Greishaw, Medicine Hat; Dr. G. H. Ingraham, Delia; secretary, Dr. A. Fisher, Calgary. Next year the Convention will be held in Calgary.

CALGARY.—An idea of the importance of the cattle industry to the districts around here may be gathered from the fact that during the last 18 months 100,000,000 pounds of beef have been shipped Overseas by the local packing plant.

-The Canadian West last month made its first shipment of breeding stock to Great Britain, when 26 beautiful Percheron fillies and one fine Percheron stallion, the property of Mr. Geo. Lane, of the famous Bar U ranch and farm at Namaka, were shipped to the Hon. Alexander Parker, of Norton Curlieu, Warwickshire.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

VICTORIA.—Five thousand cases of tinned whale meat were delivered here in one week recently from a northern cannery. Large quantities of whale oil were also received, and will be used for the manufacture of soap.

A contract has been entered into by the Government with the Victoria Machinery Depôt for the construction of two steamships of 8,100 tons each.

The suggestion that Vancouver Island should be called Quadra Island was advanced at a meeting of the Board of Trade, the members desiring to prevent Vancouver Island being confounded with Vancouver.

—Thousands of prairie and Eastern Canadian residents are going to spend this winter in Vancouver and Victoria instead of going to California as in other years, says Mr. John Hooper, secretary of the Canadian Tourist Association. The reasons for the increased winter tourist traffic this year, Mr. Hooper says, is on account of war restrictions.

VANCOUVER.—The total contributions to the Canadian Patriotic Fund for British Columbia, to September 30, are about $3,065,000, and disbursements to the same date are about $4,817,000, the excess of disbursements over contributions, amounting to $1,752,000, being supplied by the Central Fund at Ottawa. The number of families receiving grants at August 31 was 6,299, with 9,837 children.

BANKING AND FINANCE.

Canadian Railway's Mixed Showing for September.

Moderate as it is in amount, Grand Trunk Railway stockholders will welcome the increase in net revenue on the main line of £55,550 for the month of September as a beginning of better things. The gross receipts for the period under review were £387,100 higher than in the corresponding month of last year, but as the expenditure rose to the extent of £331,550, the net is only £55,550 more than in September, 1917, reducing the total net decline for the nine months to £720,750 a sufficiently formidable figure in view of the fact that there are only three months left in which to redress this serious shrinkage. For the nine months the gross receipts were £9,118,600, against £7,821,350 for the corresponding period of 1917, an increase of £1,297,250. Expenses, which have, of course, only latterly benefited from the additional increase in rates, expanded £720,750 more than this aggregate, viz., £2,018,000, the net result being as above stated. The experience of the Canadian Pacific Railway has been less happy, an increase in gross revenue of $1,341,000 in September being accompanied by an expansion in expenditure of $1,967,000, thus converting the gross gain into a decline in net revenue for the month of $626,000. The aggregate gross revenue for the nine months showed an increase of only $1,687,000, and as expenditure went up in the nine months no less than $10,802,000, this was wiped out and converted into a net decline of as much as $9,115,000. The Canadian Northern also did relatively badly compared with the Grand Trunk, for a gross increase of $709,200 was, owing to a rise in working expenses of $1,193,200, converted into a net decline of $484,000, bringing up its total adverse balance for the three months of the new fiscal year to $1,205,800. The mileage in operation in September was the same as in the corresponding period of 1917, viz., 9,434.

Canada's War Bill for Four Years.

The latest Commercial Letter to hand of the Canadian Bank of Commerce affords some interesting information as to the financial aspect of the Dominion's great effort in the titanic conflict which is now drawing to a close. To March 31 last Canada had established credits for the Mother Country to the tune of $532,816,397, a sum practically balanced by the amounts advanced by Great Britain for the maintenance of Canadian troops Overseas—$534,450,826. In addition to the Imperial credits above-mentioned, the Canadian banks, through the Minister of Finance, had advanced to the Mother Country $200,000,000. To the end of the last financial year the Dominion's total outlay on the war was approximately $875,000,000. The Canadian people from the beginning of the war had provided $756,000,000—which they are now about to supplement by a new loan which we may confidently hope will be the last financial effort the Dominion will have to make in the great struggle. The Government also borrowed $307,000,000 from the Mother Country and the United States, the amount obtained from the Republic having been partly repaid. As a result of the stupendous part she has played in Armageddon, Canada's debt, which immediately before the outbreak of war stood at $336,000,000, amounted at the end of the last fiscal year to no less than $1,200,000,000.

Well Prepared for the Last Victory War Loan.

The writer points out that during the past two fiscal years a surplus of revenue over ordinary and capital outlays amounting to $113,000,000 has been applied to war account. The revenue for the first year of the war amounted to $133,000,000, and for the fourth to practically double, viz., $261,125,459. After making provision for interest on the war debt and pensions, the surplus for 1917-18 amounted to $81,400,000. The Dominion is well prepared to cope with the demands made upon it by the latest appeal for the funds required to administer the last crushing blow to the unspeakable Boche. The letter from which we quoted points out that at July 31 Canadian public deposits were $160,792,000 greater than a year ago.

It cannot be too clearly remembered by all ranks of the O.M.F. of C. that the Victory Loan to which they now have an opportunity of subscribing through the Canadian Pay Office is for a minimum of $300,000,000, and that the greater the over-subscription of the loan, the more the prosperity of the Dominion will be assured. Since the United States entered the war Canada has had to finance from domestic loans the purchase of her products by the Allies. This was assured last year by the great over-subscription of the 1917 Victory Loan. The 1918 Victory Loan should be just as largely over-subscribed, and, through the privilege of encroaching upon their deferred pay for the purpose of subscriptions to the loan, even those soldiers who would not otherwise have the necessary capital have the chance of making the best investment they are ever likely to be offered.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

N.B.—All letters asking for information or advice must contain an enquiry coupon from the current issue of "Canada," except when the enquirer is an annual subscriber.

Detailed replies by letter are not made except to annual subscribers. Non-subscribers desiring detailed or exhaustive replies by letter must enclose a P.O. for 5s., which will cover three questions.

Copies should be kept of questions, and these should be numbered when more than one is asked.

Enquiries regarding investment matters should be marked "Financial" on the left-hand top corner of envelope.

The fullest particulars of special investment opportunities in Canada mentioned from time to time in the column headed "Investment Notes and Opportunities" are supplied on request to readers who are annual subscribers.

H. L. (Calgary).—We have replied by letter.

J. C. P. (Ayrshire).—The order in question was a ruling applying only to Canadian Cadet Schools.

T. W. L. (Egypt).—(1) In the R.A.F. (2) There are no flight cadets in the C.A.F.; they belong to the R.A.F., and are paid at their rates.

G. A. McL. (Seaford).—You appear to be under a misconception as to our idea. It was that Canadian soldiers should be given an opportunity of speaking to the shipyard, etc., workers on the war.

Canadian Captain, attd. R.A.F.—The only gratuity to Canadian officers that we know of is the three months' pay on discharge, and, in case of married men, three months' separation allowance.

J. H. Y. (Carlisle).—Both the Royal Bank of Canada and the Merchants Bank of Canada have established branches at Castor, Alberta. Barristers and solicitors located there are Mr. G. F. Anxier and Mr. R. C. Murphy.

A. R. J. (Oxford).—An officer cannot return direct from hospital in England to his unit in France. He must first pass through his reserve depôt. Every effort, however, is made to return such officers to France within the time specified (i.e., four months).

S. H. (C.C.D., Seaford).—The Government offers to returned soldiers desiring to settle on the land a quarter-section and, if necessary, a loan to work same. The maximum amount of the loan is $2,500, repayable at 5 per cent. over a period of 15 years. The land can only be secured after a soldier has received his discharge in Canada.

G. S. F.—(1) Interest is only payable to the extent that earnings permit, viz., it depends upon the sufficiency or otherwise of surplus earnings after prior charges have been met. The stock ranks after the 4 per cent. Perpetual Cons. Deb. Stock. (2) Impossible to foretell under present conditions. (3) No, we should not advise selling at present, as the situation contains possibilities. There is a feeling that the Government, as owner of the road, will treat the holders of securities fairly, and though this stock does not rank as bonds it has certain rights which entitle it to some consideration. It is repayable at par in May, 1930, or before, and this, presuming that "repayable" means "will be repaid," indicates an increment of about 100 per cent. on the present price in about 11½ years. There is also the right of conversion, which, though not attractive at the moment, might conceivably be turned to advantage.

MR. SALTER'S TOUR.

Mr. Fred C. Salter, European manager of the Grand Trunk Railway, was in Montreal recently after an extended tour through all the Provinces as far as Northern British Columbia, and then through the southern section of Canada and some of the northern States over the line. He declared that the pessimism of 1913 with which he was afflicted had been turned into optimism, and that he had found farmers in a condition of happy contentment. Mr. Salter wished to steer clear of politics, but he emphasised the fact that in his opinion the future of the West of Canada hinges on markets, markets, markets, and that, with these assured, the agriculturist could safely engage in greater variety of farming.

SMALLER COAL PRODUCTION.

Coal production in the Atlantic Provinces of Canada has decreased by 450,000 tons this year, and it is understood (says the Toronto correspondent of the Times) that the Fuel Controller is not disposed to allow any company to hold indefinitely under leases in coal areas which are not mined, but which could and should be mined in view of the coal shortage throughout the Dominion.

REID NEWFOUNDLAND COMPANY

The New President and his Policy.

Mr. Henry Duff Reid, who recently succeeded his brother, Sir William Reid, as President of the Reid Newfoundland Railway Company, has been described as of the newer order of railway presidents "he would pass as the general manager of a bank in his quiet deportment and unostentatious appearance." The younger son of the late Sir Robert Reid, the founder of the company, he was born at Sydney, Australia, in 1869, and was taken to Canada in 1873. He was educated in Galt and Guelph, Ontario, and after farming for three years with his father in Northern Minnesota, and then assisting his father and brother in building railways in Nova Scotia, he went to Newfoundland in 1890, when his firm undertook railway building there. He became secretary and assistant general manager of the Reid Newfoundland Company when it was formed in 1901, becoming vice-president and treasurer on Sir R. G. Reid's death in 1908. Mr. Reid is described as a thorough believer in Newfoundland, and he has recently established a Natural Resources Department in connection with his company, for development work. He has also built, at St. John's, one of the largest and best equipped cold storages for fish in America, with a view to developing the frozen fish trade with Great Britain.

The New Department.

For the company's Natural Resources Department the services of several eminent men have been engaged. Mr. J. W. Forbes, of Bonavista, a graduate of the McGill School of Mining and a specialist in hydraulic engineering, is head of the department. His associates are Prof. Hamlin Brook Hatch and Dr. Mook, both graduates of the Columbus University, New York, the former with many years' experience in Cobalt, and the latter in the United States. Attached to the staff are a number of miners and prospectors.

The idea is to survey and explore thoroughly and systematically the land owned by the company along the line of railway and ascertain its mineral, timber, agricultural and water resources, with a view to development. Particular attention will be given to the locating of agricultural land.

CANADIAN PULP AND PAPER INDUSTRY

According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, in the Canadian pulp and paper industry last year there were 31 concerns employed in the manufacture of pulp only, 26 producing paper only, and 23 turning out both pulp and paper. The total capital invested in the plant was $186,375,000, and over 22,000 employees were engaged in the industry, their wages aggregating more than $20,000,000 a year.

Ground wood pulp was produced during the year to the total of over 921,000 tons, whilst the output of newsprint paper for the twelve months was approximately 690,000 tons, valued at $39,000,000.

ANNUAL REPORTS.

The annual statement of the Quebec Railway, Light, Heat and Power Co. for the year to June 30 last shows decreases of $34,951 in total revenue and of $114,697 in net earnings, as compared with the previous year. Gross and net earnings for the year were $2,027,941 and $792,216 respectively, the surplus after payment of charges being $95,306. The total surplus now carried forward is $753,091. The president states that $243,225 was expended on maintenance account and charged against the year's earnings.

MR. GRANT HALL.

The new Vice-President of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The annual report of the Spanish River Pulp and Paper Mills shows that this company did fairly well last year, as, although the net revenue for the year was $388,503 less than that for 1917, which is attributed by the president largely to the fixed price for newsprint, the company has considerably strengthened its position during the year. Net revenue was $1,729,231, and after setting aside $344,137 for depreciation and paying $807,519 interest charges, the surplus $577,575 was equal to about 10 per cent. on the Preferred stock. This is considerably below the record of the previous year, but, on the other hand, there is an increase of nearly $960,000 in property account, and as against an increase of $1,446,215 in current liabilities—due to the funds secured for the enlargement and improvement of plants and the increase of working capital—there has been an increase of $1,877,562 in current assets. The surplus carried forward is now $1,071,301. The daily output of pulp, boards and paper is now 570 tons and will shortly be increased to 600 tons.

7 o'clock Safety Razor.

The only Safety Razor at less than one guinea that can be stropped without removing blade.

A really dependable razor at a popular price. It opens flat, and can be stropped without removing the blade. This construction also overcomes the difficulty of cleaning, which is the bugbear of so many safety razors.

Strongly made, heavily silvered, and with blades that cannot be surpassed, it is used by many men who could afford a far more expensive razor, but prefer the simple efficiency of the "7 o'clock." The Standard Set consists of heavily silver-plated stropping razor, six finest lancet steel blades, the whole in handsome case, with strop in hinged partition, and the price is 10/6.

Of all high-class dealers throughout the world.

VICTORY.

THE victory for which we have been striving and praying for over four years has come to us. By the signing of the armistice on Monday morning fighting has been brought to a close. The terms are such as to ensure that even should the Germans refuse to accept our peace terms, it will be impossible for them to renew hostilities with the faintest hope of even a momentary success. They will be completely hemmed in and dominated. So rapidly have events moved to their climax that it is difficult to realise that at last the guns are silent and the terrible days of strife, of bitter sorrow, and of weary suspense are ended. One by one our arch-enemy's supporters and dupes have been detached until at last, in danger not only from without, but from within as well, she has been forced to confess that she has been beaten.

There are doubtless many who are disappointed that our triumphant advance, rapidly turning the enemy's retreat into a rout, should have been checked by an armistice at this time. The horrors of the war in general, and the barbarities of the Hun in particular, have made many feel that it would only be a just dispensation were the Germans to experience something of what they have made Belgium and France suffer during these last four years. But the Allies' victory has been as decisive as could be wished. France has been liberated by the heroism of our troops, Belgium will be freed by the operation of the armistice, and throughout the world the cause of Right has been vindicated against that of Might. The wheel has, indeed, come full circle. The megalomaniac who sat upon the German throne is a fugitive, and his dynasty has been deposed, his creed of autocracy by Divine right has been shattered, and his Empire, which was to have ruled the world, is in the throes of revolution.

There have been years of trial as well as of struggle. It has been a testing time for nations and for individuals alike. For our nation and our Allies no praise can be too great. They have done wonders—accomplished apparent impossibilities. Their faith in their cause has enabled them to remove veritable mountains. There have been days of darkness, when the horizon was shut out, but our pertinacity and determination have helped us through, until now we have emerged into the sunshine of victory. The armistice is, of course, only the preliminary step towards a peace which we must make enduring. There are still problems to be faced and dangers to be surmounted, but the qualities of endurance and statesmanship which have carried us through will surely suffice to bring us to the end. Our present experience is a sufficient inspiration for the future. Meantime we can but give thanks to the Great Giver of Victory for the triumph we have been enabled to achieve, and join with our King in thanking those brave men through whose heroism and self-sacrifice we have won through.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

The Canadians in Mons. The 11th of November, 1918, is a date doubly memorable to Canadians. It is the happiest of coincidences that the conclusion of the armistice should have found the Canadians in Mons, the scene of the first stand of the British Army when it went to the aid of the French and Belgians. Its capture that morning was a fitting crown to the splendid record of General Currie and his troops. Since their great attack in the beginning of August, our men have been in the forefront of the fray, and have had the honour of freeing several important towns from German occupation. On the battle scroll of Canada, Mons is a worthy successor to Amiens, Arras, Cambrai, Denain and Valenciennes.

* * *

The Roll of Sacrifice. "The fires of hell have been put out, and I have written my last message as war correspondent. Thank God!" wrote Mr. Philip Gibbs, the most brilliant of a distinguished band, on Monday night. We wish we could use the same expression with regard to the publication of the casualty lists. For some time Canada has been the only journal in this country giving the Canadian lists in full. It has been a severe tax on our space, but our record of the war would have been very incomplete had they been either omitted or curtailed. Our readers could not have fully realised Canada's title to say—to use Mr. Beck's amplification of Kipling—

> If blood be the price of civilisation,
> My God, we have had it in full!

Unhappily the reporting of casualties cannot cease with the conclusion of hostilities. The work of recording them requires time. It is likely to be nearly another month before we can say that we have published our last casualty list. And while the thought of every one of those "unreturning brave" will bring sadness at a time like this—though sorrow cannot but be tempered by pride—especially poignant must be the loss of those brave men who have fallen just before the hour of victory struck.

* * *

"Home." To every soldier the end of the fighting spells "Home." What has been for long a far-off dream is now within sight. With the Canadians, the question on every tongue is how soon they will be able to return to Canada. Demobilisation is a big question, with many issues bound up in it. Not only Canadian, but Imperial interests, of course, have to be consulted. But it will not be long before an announcement of the Government's plans is possible. We hope the First Contingent will be given priority. Whether all the Canadians should be sent home without delay is one of the questions to be decided. An army of occupation will probably be required for a considerable time. It would be well, with a view to future trade developments, if an opportunity were to be given to Canadians with business interests to study the German language and commerce on the spot.

The transportation situation is a ruling factor, of course, and it is worth considering whether the Canadian authorities should not arrange for the starting of immigration before many desirable settlers are snapped up by other competitors. Incidentally, one interesting suggestion is made by a Canadian officer. It is that Overseas officers and soldiers, instead of being concentrated in London, or in the usual Canadian camps, should in the interval before they can get back, be distributed over England, Scotland, Wales, and Ireland. The idea has much to commend it, though organisation and discipline would be somewhat difficult.

A Word in Season. The transition period will be one which will demand the best organisation and co-operation alike from officers and men. The magnificent work of the Canadian Corps in the field is, to all intents and purposes, finished. The heaviest responsibility will lie here in England, in the big training camps and other centres where our troops are concentrated. The men will naturally chafe under discipline if the latter is unwisely and tactlessly administered, and the situation will call for firm and delicate handling.

For one thing, better facilities than at present exist in the training camps must be given the men for study. Such facilities are at present entirely lacking, excepting in the branches of the Khaki College. Huts are not only overcrowded, but lighting arrangements are very poor. The former, in fairness to the authorities, may be said to be largely due to the epidemic of sickness to which all three camps, in common with the rest of the country, have been and still are subject. The retention of the fish diet is also another matter regarding which there are many complaints. Although excellent on the inauguration of the scheme, it is alleged to have greatly deteriorated in quality. These may seem minor grievances, but, by keeping them in view, the co-operation of the rank and file, so necessary at this important juncture, will be offered willingly and without stint.

Dominions and Peace Terms.

Mr. Hughes, the Prime Minister of Australia, caused not a little surprise the other day, in a speech in the City, by a reference to the coming of peace. The terms of peace, he declared, had been definitely settled, and he complained that in the settlement the Dominions had not been consulted, in spite of definite pledges. If Germany accepted the terms of the armistice—as she has since done—the Dominions, like every one of the Allies, would be limited in the Peace Conference to the application of those terms, and, perhaps, of their interpretation.

This complaint was replied to by the issue of a detailed statement by the Press Bureau, describing in detail the extent to which the representatives of the Overseas Dominions and India had been consulted at the War Conferences, and declaring that their position had not been in any way prejudiced by what had taken place at Versailles. And Mr. Lloyd George, in his speech at the Lord Mayor's banquet last Saturday, in paying a tribute to the conspicuous share of the Dominions in the victory, said they must have a voice in the determination of the terms of peace equal to their sacrifice :—

> Last year we consulted them fully as to the conditions which this country should impose if it came to a Peace Conference. This year we reconsidered those terms with the representatives of the Dominions and of India at the Imperial War Cabinet, and again arrived at a perfectly unanimous conclusion. And at Versailles my colleagues and I agreed to nothing which would preclude us from pressing at the Peace Conference, as we intend to do, all the conditions which the Dominions, India and ourselves determined upon at those conferences which we held.

That is satisfactory enough, so far as it goes, and Sir Robert Borden's arrival next week should ensure that due weight is given to the views of the Dominions in the further negotiations. But surely, when Mr. Hughes was on the spot, any misunderstanding on the subject could easily have been avoided by personal consultation.

* * *

German Atrocities.

There will be general satisfaction at the appointment by the Government of a Committee to enquire and report upon German atrocities, as affecting the British. Too many of these are already well established, but for the punishment of those responsible—which is universally demanded—everything must be drawn up in proper legal form. France has already a similar Committee at work.

The British Committee, which has Sir John Macdonell as Chairman, and Professor J. H. Morgan as Vice-Chairman, is strong as regards both personnel and purpose. In addition to the facts as to breaches of the laws and customs of war, it is charged with enquiring into the degree of responsibility for these offences attaching to particular members of the German or other enemy Forces, including the German or other enemy General Staff, or other highly placed individuals; and the constitution and procedure of a Tribunal appropriate to the trial of these offences. We sincerely hope that its labours will bear full fruits, and that, in the words of the Attorney-General, the authority of international law will be established, and our children and our grandchildren, and those even who come after them, will be spared what this generation has gone through.

The Spirit of Britain.

Numerous visitors to the Mother Country from both the Overseas Dominions and the United States have been impressed by the fine spirit shown by the people at Home. One of the latest and most interesting testimonies comes from Mr. J. M. Beck, the distinguished American, who is author of "The Evidence in the Case. At a British Pilgrims' luncheon last week he told how greatly he had been impressed with the impassive stoicism of the British character. Speaking of the events of that historic week, he said it was amazing to a stranger how those who had come out of the depths showed not a single sign of boastfulness or undue self-glorification : "England was nobly great in the hour of blackest disaster. She is supremely great in the hour of victory." The ebullition of spirit which was everywhere evident this week was the natural expression of relief and satisfaction ; but underneath the surface was a deep and devout feeling of thankfulness.

Britain's stoicism in those trying days Mr. Beck attributed to the fact that Britain was thinking, in its hour of triumph, not of its stupendous achievements on land and sea and in the air, but of its million dead. That thought, too, he said, was in the minds of the American people, and next month, in a hundred cities of the United States, gatherings of men will meet to pay simple tribute to Britain's sacrifices in the war—a touching and eloquent testimony to the closeness of Anglo-Saxon unity.

Post-War Reconstruction.

As will be realised by the perusal of a despatch from Ottawa which appeared in the Times, the work of post-war reconstruction throughout the Dominion will be no slight task. The immense geographical area of Canada and the great distances between the sources of raw material and many of the large manufacturing plants and factories accentuate the difficulties. To appreciate what Canada's industrial effort has accomplished towards winning the war, we need to remember that out of its total population nearly 400,000 persons have been employed in munition works alone, while over another 500,000 have actually donned khaki.

Sir Thomas White, whose able handling of the Dominion's finances is widely recognised, is amply justified in his claim that "by reason of the part she has played in the war Canada is entitled, as of right, to share in the reconstruction business." Col. Lloyd Harris, of Brantford, the head of the Trade Commission which is coming over to Europe to seek some of this business, will, we do not doubt, have little difficulty in obtaining orders which will keep Canadian industries busy for years. The real problem there, as in Britain, will be the difficulty of obtaining supplies of many of those raw materials which are essential to keep factories on full time.

Ocean Passenger Travel.

One of the certainties of the future is that there will be an enormous increase in ocean passenger travel. From the Seven Seas, fathers, sons, brothers, widows, and sweethearts of the men who have made the supreme sacrifice will hasten as speedily as individual circumstances may permit to make a pilgrimage to the scenes where their dear ones laid down their lives in the interests of the Empire and humanity. Geographical propinquity and the lesser cost and time occupied will naturally operate to make the greatest strain upon the transatlantic route. This factor must inevitably affect the construction programme of great shipping companies, such as the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, Cunard, and White Star Dominion Lines. The certainty of a steady and greatly increased stable revenue from passengers seems likely to justify a more extensive building of the swiftest type of steamship specially designed to rely upon passenger, mail, parcel, and traffic receipts rather than upon the class of heavy freight which can be carried more economically in slower vessels, specially equipped to load and discharge such cargo expeditiously.

Irish Development. It is for this reason that we note with interest that, in the first report of the Select Committee on Transport, issued last Saturday, "A matter considered worthy of consideration is the desirability of establishing a trans-atlantic terminal port in Ireland for the purpose of accelerating the transport of passengers, mails, and express consignments of merchandise between the United Kingdom and North America." The idea of establishing a port on the west coast of Ireland which would enable 25-knot steamships to make the passage to a Canadian port easily within four days is no new one. The late Lord Strathcona was one of its strongest supporters, and some preliminary negotiations took place to that end long before the war.

The industrial development of Ireland might do much to restore peace and harmony among its rival political factions. Perhaps the construction of a tunnel under the Irish Sea will no longer be regarded as the dream of visionaries, but naturally one across the Straits of Dover must come first. The improvement in railway and harbour facilities necessary to bring a first-class port and harbour on the west coast of Ireland within a few hours' reach of the great English trunk railways might, however, well form part of the immediate reconstruction work to be undertaken by the Imperial Government, and prove to be of the greatest benefit, not solely from the point of view of rapid transit between Britain and her greatest Overseas Dominion and with their neighbouring Ally, the United States.

"After this war there will be less need than at any time to worry about the patriotism of the people of this young country. Its symbols must receive attention in the schools, but more potent in its preservation and growth than any display of flags or singing of anthems will be the eloquent silences of those graves in Flanders' fields where lie the sons of Canada."—Manitoba Free Press.

THE KAISER.

Kaiser, were you human, four long years ago,
When you turned your country to a world of woe?
Didn't then the devil lead you to a peak,
Show you world dominion, bid you but to speak,
Barter soul for glory, play with loaded dice?
Then you staked your honour, now you pay the price.

WAR RECORDS PUBLICATIONS

In order that even the very latest recruit may at once know and take a pride in the achievements of his unit, the Canadian War Records Office is issuing in brief and handy form (6d.) the stories of the Overseas Battalions. The first of the series include the histories of the P.P.C.L.I. and the 10th, 18th and 28th Battalions.

Under the title Canada's Triumph, the War Records Office has issued a little book (1s. 1½d. and 1s. 9d.), from the pen of Mr. Fred James, which relates the history of the two months' continuous and bitter fighting during which the Canadian Corps won to Amiens, Arras and Cambrai.

At the headquarters of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, which almost adjoins the Mansion House, Mr. C. Cambie, the manager, entertained on Lord Mayor's Day a party of about sixty wounded officers, who had a splendid opportunity of viewing the especially stirring features of the day.

Pte. Robin Charles Caryle Morland, M.M., King's Liverpool Regt., T.F. (killed on September 1), joined the C.P.R. Company on April 15, 1907, and served with them until the inauguration of the C.P.O.S. He enlisted on February 8, 1916, and was three times mentioned in despatches, being awarded the Military Medal. He was twenty-six.

HOSTILITIES ENDED: ARMISTICE SIGNED.

Canadians Capture Mons on Last Day of Fighting.

An armistice between Germany and the Allies and United States was signed at 5 o'clock on Monday morning, and hostilities ceased on all fronts at 11 a.m., Marshal Foch's instructions being that the Allied troops should not, until a further notice, go beyond the line reached at that hour.

In his evening communiqué of Monday Sir Douglas Haig reported:—"Hostilities were suspended at 11 o'clock this morning. At that hour our troops had reached the following general line: Franco-Belgian frontier east of Avesnes-Jeumont-Givry—four miles east of Mons-Chievres-Lessines-Grammont."

The Canadians had the honour of being the last troops whose achievements were reported by the Field-Marshal in the ordinary way, Monday morning's communiqué stating:—"Shortly before dawn this morning Canadian troops of the First Army (General Horne) captured Mons."

On the previous Wednesday night it was reported:—"Canadian troops are continuing their progress east of the Scheldt, and have captured Baisieux and Quiévrechain."

On Thursday of last week the citizens of Valenciennes thanked the British First Army for its deliverance. There was a march past of English, Scottish, and Canadian troops, General Horne, General Currie, and a number of Divisional Generals being present.

CANADIANS' LAST FIGHTING.

A Wonderful Day in Mons.

The record of the Canadians' last days of warfare, as well as of the scene in Mons on Monday, is given in the following despatches from Mr. J. F. B. Livesay, the Canadian Press correspondent at the Front:—

Wednesday, November 6, Midnight.

The Canadian Forces to-day crossed over the Belgian frontier, and are now established at the greatest point of penetration, 2,500 yards within Belgian territory. The feature of to-day's advance was the brilliant passage of the Grand Honnelle. The Canadian Third Division on our left, after fighting its way over the only practical causeways through swampy lands, captured Crespin, just within French territory, and then passed over the border with the Canadian Mounted Rifle battalions in the lead. This evening we held the western outskirts of Quiévrain, and also the village of Boisieux, both being Belgian.

The Fourth Canadian Division participated in the attack in the centre and on the right, and altogether we captured 500 prisoners during the day. Our troops have thus fought their way 12,000 yards east of Valenciennes, and with their left flank resting on the flooded area to the north they have successfully traversed the last formidable obstacle that lies between them and Mons. From now on they enter the thickly populated Belgian coal mining country, where villages practically join up one with the other.

Thoughts of Home.

Thursday, November 7, Midnight.

Great things are in the air. There is a tense feeling in all ranks of an armistice and home—not, of course, immediately, but within a few months. Pessimists say it will take eight or nine months to get the Canadian forces back. Others talk of Easter. But the tired faces of the weary, mud-splashed men, who all day have followed after the retreating Boche, light up at the news that comes over the wireless that German envoys are on French soil, suppliant for peace. Men who wear the honourable chevrons of four years' service, and have seen war in its bitterest, dreariest form, say it cannot come too soon. They are ready to march across the Rhine if that had been necessary. Now they await the hour when their feet turn homewards.

This morning we discovered the Boche had pulled out in the night, and it was only late in the afternoon that our outposts again got in touch with his rearguard but a very few miles west of Mons. Historic Mons, the revered shrine of Britain's gallant little army of August, 1914, may be in Canadian hands before this despatch is published.

In the Suburbs of Mons.

Sunday, November 10.

Early this morning our troops were in the suburbs of Mons. and with them, by a very happy arrangement, were a famous Lancer regiment representing the old Army who here so bravely fought and died. Among the first Canadian troops to enter were a Light Infantry battalion and a Northern Alberta battalion, both belonging to the 7th Infantry Brigade, the former advancing on the right south of the canal and the latter north of the canal. Further to the right troops of the Canadian Second Division were working their way in from the south-west.

All along a densely populated route enthusiastic Belgian people cheered and saluted the troops. A Canadian General Officer who was among the first on the scene was officially welcomed in the Hotel de Ville of Jemappe by the Mayor. "We witnessed," he said, "the wonderful retreat of the British Army from Mons. We knew they would return. On their behalf we welcome the Canadians." Except that at one point the tricolour gives place to the national flag of Belgium, the crossing of the international boundary is almost imperceptible, for the Belgians here speak excellent French, and in manners are hardly to be distinguished from their neighbours.

From Valenciennes to Mons the entire road is a succession of populous industrial villages merging one into another. Some of these on the western end have been knocked about, but proceeding their condition improves. In the neighbourhood of Mons the population has not been evacuated, nor have their homes been pillaged. Even cattle, horses, and sheep have been left on the land, furnishing a spectacle quite unique in the entire advance from Arras. But around Valenciennes the sad sight everywhere is to be seen of little knots of expatriated villagers making their way on foot back to their villages, pushing before them trucks containing all that is left of their household goods. They travel in all directions, for the enemy systematically transplanted communities in order that among strange surroundings the people would be more tractable.

The Canadian Second Division met with strong opposition on Friday east of Elouges, where enemy machine-gunners were entrenched on the heights behind the river. Eventually they were driven out, and the advance was continued through Wasmes and Frameries, and then, swinging north-east, to Mons, which they are penetrating from the south.

There are indications that the enemy designs to make a stand from the neighbourhood of Mons south to Civry in order to give his armies further time to withdraw. According to information received from the territory recently evacuated, political events in Germany had destroyed the fighting spirit of the army.

During his retreat of the past week the enemy has been favoured with suitable weather, heavy rains and poor visibility adding greatly to the task of the pursuing forces. Yesterday it turned fine, and our airmen had the first real chance to attack his retreating columns.

Warm Reception in Mons.

Monday, November 11, Midnight.

This has been a wonderful day.

At eleven o'clock, the hour of "cease fire," in the Great Square of Mons the Mayor presented the commanding officer of the Canadian 7th Infantry Brigade with the keys of the city in honour of its recapture this morning by units from that brigade. There was a formal march past, with pipers of a Montreal Highland Battalion leading, because it was that battalion which had the good fortune to enter the city first. Massed bands played the Belgian and British National Anthems.

Mons has been kindly treated. Germany, evidently hoping to incorporate Southern Belgium in her Empire, has almost petted its people as compared with the rigors inflicted on French captured territory. Shops are well stocked with all manner of provisions and commodities, and the people look well fed. Yet Mons was the focus of refugees from Cambrai and Arras, and it is said that fifty evacuated persons died here daily. Too late they entered the land of plenty.

In the afternoon the city tendered a formal reception to Sir Arthur Currie, the Canadian Corps Commander. The streets were gay with bunting, black, yellow and red predominating, though there was a fair sprinkling of the tricolour, for these people are French in sympathies as well as appearance, and all joined fervently in the "Marseillaise." Representative Canadian troops lined the Great Square, and a guard of honour was furnished by the 5th Lancers, the celebrated regiment which fought through Mons in August, 1914.

In replying to the address of welcome, General Currie said that the Canadian Corps regarded that occasion as a great honour. On Belgian soil they had first fought in the Second Battle of Ypres, and it was fitting that they should there conclude their victorious campaign. He presented to the city of Mons the Canadian Corps flag, which the Mayor informed him would ever be gratefully treasured among their archives.

President's Tribute to Canadians.

Yesterday, while the guns still thundered before Mons, the President of the French Republic made his official entry into Valenciennes, and in an address congratulated the Canadian Corps on their successful efforts, resulting in the capture of the city. It was with special pleasure, he said, that he had heard that Valenciennes had been delivered from the enemy by the Canadians. They were very close to France. Formerly a French Colony, Canada had become one of the British Dominions, but she had preserved ideals dear to both, had never forgotten France, and to-day formed a link to bind France and the British Empire together. When the war began, the President pointed out, Canada was the first of the Dominions to offer her aid, and ever since Canadians had shed their blood freely for freedom and for France. To-day the mothers of Canada must be proud of the share of their sons in bringing the enemy to defeat and disaster. When the war was over, and France was restored to prosperity and happiness, she would never forget Canada. He concluded by announcing a gift of money from the Canadian Red Cross to the people of Valenciennes.

The front line is as silent as the grave. Our outposts stand chatting, boldly silhouetted against the skyline. No longer death screams overhead or speeds its whistling shot. Field gun batteries remain hooded, stricken dumb, as it were, and the attendant crews move about mechanically, or sit and smoke their pipes neglectful of their target. It all seems unnatural, so entirely has the war become second nature.

At night in the streets of Valenciennes electric lights are lit, for by some chance the retreating Boche failed to wreck the civic plant.

FRENCH TRIBUTE TO CANADIANS.

Le Petit Parisien publishes a fine tribute to the Canadians under the title, "The Canadians in the Great War." After quoting the recent messages exchanged between Sir Robert Borden and Sir Arthur Currie on the occasion of the anniversary of the arrival of the First Canadian Contingent, the article proceeds as follows:—

"The message from General Currie goes a great way beyond the usual scope of such manifestoes, and one cannot read it without profound emotions, so sternly grand are the sentiments he expresses in the midst of the confused rumours and agitations created by the enemy's peace offensive. The authoritative voice of the great Canadian General is lifted clear, vigorous, and sincere. . . . The generous and sublime prayer of those who are perhaps to die in the battle of to-morrow has been widely heard. Our own armies, bound to silence, will read with gratitude this message of General Currie's, for it reflects most admirably all that lies repressed in the souls of our own heroic soldiers."

IN THE EVACUATED TOWNS.

A Canadian writes to Lt.-Col. J. Obed-Smith:

"We are just billeted in the last town we chased the Hun out of, or, rather, that he evacuated before our division was pinched out by the two divisions on either flank. The civilians, a very few old men, with women and children, are beginning to stray back here. They are a very pitiful sight. Dressed in rags, though fat, they are all very unhealthy-looking just like people who have been in close confinement for a long period. They have absolutely no food. The first two days after the 4th Division took Denain, the Canadian Corps fed 30,000 French civilians. All these towns where we are are in fair repair. Any big factory, though, is absolutely wrecked. All the water supplies have been blown up."

THE KING'S MESSAGES

To His Overseas People and Forces.

The King on Monday issued, through the Secretary of State for the Colonies, the following message:—

At the moment when the armistice is signed, bringing, I trust, a final end to the hostilities which have convulsed the whole world for more than four years, I desire to send a message of greeting and heartfelt gratitude to my overseas peoples, whose wonderful efforts and sacrifices have contributed so greatly to secure the victory which now is won.

Together we have borne this tremendous burden in the fight for justice and liberty. Together we can now rejoice at the realisation of those great aims for which we entered the struggle.

The whole Empire pledged its word not to sheathe the sword until our end was achieved. That pledge is now redeemed.

The outbreak of war found the whole Empire one. I rejoice to think that the end of the struggle finds the Empire still more closely united by the common resolve held firm through all vicissitudes, by the community of suffering and sacrifice, by the dangers and triumphs shared together.

The hour is one of solemn thanksgiving and of gratitude to God, whose Divine Providence has preserved us through all perils and crowned our arms with victory

Let us bear our triumph in the same spirit of fortitude and self-control with which we have borne our dangers.

Thanks to Sailors and Soldiers.

His Majesty also issued messages to the Navy, Army, and Air Force. In the first he said:—

Never in its history has the Royal Navy, with God's help, done greater things for us, nor better sustained its old glories and the chivalry of the seas.

With full and grateful hearts the peoples of the British Empire salute the White, the Red, and the Blue Ensigns, and those who have given their lives for the Flag.

In the second he said:—

Soldiers of the British Empire! In France and Belgium the prowess of your arms, as great in retreat as in victory, has won the admiration alike of friend and foe, and has now, by a happy historic fate, enabled you to conclude the campaign by capturing Mons, where your predecessors of 1914 shed the first British blood. Between that date and this you have traversed a long and weary road; defeat has more than once stared you in the face; your ranks have been thinned again and again by wounds, sickness, and death; but your faith has never faltered, your courage has never failed, your hearts have never known defeat.

With your Allied Comrades, you have won the day. . . .

I desire to thank every Officer, Soldier, and Woman of our Army for services nobly rendered, for sacrifices cheerfully given; and I pray that God, Who has been pleased to grant a victorious end to this great crusade for Justice and Right, will prosper and bless our efforts in the immediate future to secure for generations to come the hard-won blessings of Freedom and Peace.

In the third His Majesty said:—

Our aircraft have been ever in the forefront of the battle; pilots and observers have consistently maintained the offensive throughout the ever-changing fortunes of the day, and in the war zones our gallant dead have lain always beyond the enemies' lines or far out to sea. . . .

The birth of the Royal Air Force, with its wonderful expansion and development, will ever remain one of the most remarkable achievements of the great war.

CANADIAN MESSAGES.

On the announcement of the news of the signing of the armistice Sir Thomas White, Acting Prime Minister, made the following declaration:—

Now that the armistice has been signed, historic wrongs should be righted and the great criminals should be called to account. . . . If those who have conspired against the peace of the world and brought unspeakable woes and calamities upon mankind are not punished for their monstrous crimes, it will be the greatest failure of retributive justice in the annals of history

Sir George Perley, High Commissioner, has sent the following message to Canada:—

During the last few weeks the fighting has been going so mu in our favour on all fronts that we had grown hopeful and expectan of early victory. There were, however, no public signs of this feeling, and everyone kept working and carrying on as though we stil had a long war in front of us. The conclusion of the armistice o Monday gave us all a chance to show our feelings of joy, and righ well did London make use of the occasion. Almost our most serio danger came last spring and early summer, so that the reli brought by the last hundred days is all the greater. It is rath hard for us to realise in a day that our severe stru years and more is over, and that we have destroyed tarism, and won for all democratic communities the right to lib and self-Government. The meaning of this blessing will come to more clearly after a little, but in the meantime we remember wi intense gratitude all those who have died and suffered for the g cause, and we are humbly thankful that victory has been vou safed to us.

Sir Edward Kemp, Overseas Minister of Militia, has cable to General Currie his warm congratulations on the su that has finally crowned the heroic efforts of the Corps, and h regrets that, on account of illness, he is unable to offer th personally.

REPATRIATED OFFICERS.

Canadian Forces.—Capt. E. O. Bath, C. Ont. (Toronto), Capt. C. B. Gadd, Sask., Capt. J. Walker, Que.

Imperial Forces.—Capt. H. Crasweller, R.A.M.C., attd. R. Sussex Regt. (London, Ont.); Lt. A. M. McCormick, R.A.M.C., attd. Lincs. Regt. Lt. McCormick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McCormick, of 209, Patterson Avenue, Ottawa, and was taken prisoner last May. Capt. Crasweller had been in captivity since April.

On Thursday, November 7, the funeral took place at Mickelham Church, near Boxhill, of acting Bombardier Percy Bodman, R.G.A., age 33. The deceased entered the service of the Canadian Pacific Railway in 1900, and was attached to the Passenger Department of the City Office. He joined the Colours in September, 1916, and shortly afterwards proceeded to France, where he was gassed in August, 1917. Mr. S. L. Furniss, Mr. H. C. Dring, and Mr. W. E. Chudley attended the funeral on behalf of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Cpl. Michael Clark, the eldest son of Dr. Michael Clark, M.P., of Red Deer, Alta., has been killed in action.

Pte. Thomas Clunie (killed) was engaged in the Bank of Montreal, and came overseas in 1915. He was wounded in March, 1916.

By a new regulation, members of the North-West Mounted Police and the Dominion Police are not allowed to join Labour Unions.

The British News, printed in Amsterdam, on behalf of the British prisoners interned in Holland, is edited by Lt. H. Guy Rawlins, R.N., of Vancouver, and Lt. Victor McLean, also of Vancouver, is his assistant

INCREASE IN PRICE OF "CANADA."

On and after November 23 it will be necessary to increase the price of "Canada" from 8d. to 9d.

For some time past it has been necessary to increase the size of "Canada" in order to include full official and other announcements. This has added considerably to the heavy cost of production, and it is considered better to make a slight increase in the price than to curtail the full and complete service which has been maintained by "Canada" ever since the outbreak of war.

FOUGHT SIXTY HUN MACHINES.

Amazing Exploits of Major W. G. Barker, of Rathwell, Man.

The last and most glorious epic of the war in the air had as its central figure a Canadian, who, when war broke out, was still at his high school studies. This magnetic figure is Major William George Barker, 23 years of age, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. J. Barker, prior to moving to Warren, Man., lived at Rathwell.

Major Barker was educated at Dauphin High School, and enlisted in the 1st C.M.R., coming overseas in 1915. He spent eight months in the trenches, and specialised in machine-gunnery, which was later to prove so useful to him in his career as an airman. In March, 1916, he was gazetted a Second Lieutenant and Observer in the R.F.C. His first decoration, the Military Cross, was gazetted on January 10, 1917, and the same month he secured his pilot's "wings." In June the same year he was promoted Captain, and given charge of a flight, and his continued good work earned him a Bar to his M.C.

At this time Major Barker was ordered with his flight to the Italian Front, and so rapidly did he consolidate an already fine reputation that he became renowned throughout the whole Italian Army, and was known throughout Italy as "Balilla"—a name given by Italy to one of its greatest national heroes. "Balilla" means to the Italians what Nelson does to Englishmen.

MAJOR W. G. BARKER, D.S.O. (AND BAR), M.C. (AND TWO BARS). CROIX DE GUERRE, AND ITALIAN SILVER MEDAL FOR VALOUR.
Exclusive "Canada" Photograph.

An Unerring Shot.

His early training as a machine gunner had made him an unerring shot. "He never wastes a round," one of his flight officers wrote recently, "but waits until well under the Hun's tail, and then lets him have it. On one occasion Major Barker escorted a Hun over the lines, intending to force him to land on our side, but at a low altitude the victim decided to make a bid for liberty, and turned towards Hunland in a dive. He was overtaken by the inevitable Barker, and crashed on our side with a damaged leg and a much perforated gasoline tank."

Major Barker (who was first wounded in August, 1917) received the Italian Silver Medal for Valour, and his D.S.O. followed early this year. He was mentioned in despatches last May, given his majority in July, and awarded the French Croix de Guerre. This was followed by a Second Bar to his M.C. and a Bar to his D.S.O. All told, the intrepid young pilot has officially destroyed 57 enemy machines.

His Last Day in France.

When last month he performed the deed which thrilled the whole army, Major Barker was on a month's tour of the Western Front; and, indeed, was to return to England the following day. Leaving his own squadron in Italy, possibly because there was a dearth of Huns on that front, he was given a machine and a roving commission. And a "Rover" he became, dreaded by every Hun airman from the Piave to Dixmude.

KHAKI UNIVERSITY OF CANADA.

Huge Educational Movement Developing.

In view of the signing of the armistice, the Khaki University of Canada is now in the position to enlarge its activities. Col. Tory and his staff—the latter has been augmented by the addition of several experts in various branches of education are hard at work developing the organisation. So well advanced are the preparations that the University is sending out for use by the troops in France and Great Britain no fewer than 200 libraries, covering all the requirements of the men.

Among the educational experts now attached to the Khaki University teaching staff are Major A. H. S. Adams, of the Toronto Technical School, who will act in the capacity of a specialist in technical education; Major L. W. Gill, Canadian Engineers, formerly Professor of Engineering at Queen's University, Kingston; Mr. J. A. Clarke, a graduate of Guelph Agricultural College, and latterly head of the Department of Agriculture for Prince Edward Island, who has been lent to the Khaki University for a year, and is organising agricultural education; and Mr. Alexander Maclaren, of Guelph, a specialist in dairying.

OUR LIBRARY TABLE.

Canadian Reference Books.

Such a Canadian publication as "Who's Who and Why" is of especial value in days when so many sons and daughters of the Dominion are achieving distinction. The latest issue (1917-18) contains 1,427 pages, many more than in the previous issue. The concise biographical notes are in many cases accompanied by excellent photographs, and altogether an invaluable reference book is provided by the publishers. Some notable names are conspicuous by their absence, e.g., that of Major Sir Andrew Macphail, and we notice that though the names of some prominent men now dead are included, there are others, like Lord Strathcona, for instance, omitted. Considering the exceptional difficulty of obtaining facts and records at a time when so many Canadians are rendering distinguished service Overseas, the editor is to be congratulated upon the measure of success he has already attained in making the book comprehensive and reliable. (Toronto: International Press, Ltd. 1,427 pages; $8.25.)

The 17th issue of the Canadian Annual Review of Public Affairs (950 pp.), just published, is dedicated by the Editor, Mr. J. Castell Hopkins, "to the sincere and affectionate memory of Brig.-General the Hon. James Mason." As usual, it contains a concise historical record of the public affairs of the Dominion and each of the nine Provinces during the last year. The part played by the Dominion Government and people and by the individual Provinces is also set forth. Considerable space is given to the events which led up to the formation of the Union Government and to the issue placed before the country at the General Election. In a series of interesting special articles, Mr. Castell Hopkins deals with the war in its relation to (1) World affairs: (2) the British Empire; (3) the United States. No such complete summary, based on official records, is readily available showing what the Government and people of each Province of Canada has contributed. The standard features of the book are on the same lines of excellence, and the illustrations include portraits of a number of Canadians who have received the V.C. or other honours. The financial supplement, which gives the annual addresses of leading bankers and financiers, is of great interest to those interested in Canadian finance, trade and commerce. OBITUARY

At Fredericton, Mr. H. B. Ramsford (83), Clerk of the Legislature. At Campbellton, Mr. John McAllister, formerly M.P. for Restigouche. At Ottawa, Mr. Bertram S. Hastey (34), ex-Alderman of Toronto. Mr. George O'Keefe (69), formerly police magistrate. At Montreal, Professor Francis Joseph Cronk (31), of McGill University.

The funeral of Mrs. J. M. Wallis, of Peterborough, Ont., took place in London on Wednesday of last week, Col. (Rev. Canon) Almond, Director of Canadian Chaplain Services, conducting the service. Mrs. Wallis' father, the late Mr. S. S. Macdonell, Q.C., LL.D., D.C.L., of Windsor, Ont., was for many years Lt.-Col. of the 2nd Essex Regt. of Canadian Militia, and served through the Fenian raids.

This issue of "Canada" is increased by 8 pages in order to enable us to give the full and complete casualty lists, our biographical notes on officers and all the regular military news of the week. This is the only newspaper providing this service for Canadians in khaki. The postage on this issue to addresses in the United Kingdom is ½d.; Canada, 1d.; Abroad, 1½d.

An Army Order, just issued, fixes, from the 1st inst., the rate of exchange for payments to soldiers in France and for pay and allowances to officers drawn locally at 5 francs =8s. 10d. Until further orders, French money brought home by soldiers or forwarded by them to their relatives in England will be changed at post offices at this rate. Amounts under five francs will be changed at the approximate rate of 9d. per franc.

Under the editorship of Mr. John Galsworthy, Recalled to Life, the quarterly devoted to the disabled sailor and soldier, has been remodelled and renamed Reveille. Its contents are interesting and attractive from both a literary and a practical point of view. The articles include "The Gist of the Matter," the Editor; "The First News," Joseph Conrad; "Barbara's Wedding" (a dramatic sketch), Sir J. M. Barrie; "Bellona and the Gentle Art," E. V. Lucas; "Pensions Administration," the Rt. Hon. John Hodge, M.P.; "Restorative Treatment under the Ministry of Pensions," Sir John Collie; "For Our Disabled," May R. Mitchell; "The Romance of Surgery," Col. Sir R. Jones, "Curative Workshops," King Manoel; "The Return of the Officer." We hope that future numbers of the magazine will devote more attention to the work in Canada.

PELMANISM AND THE SILVER BADGE.

By GEORGE HENRY.

If it were within my power I would so order it that every Silver Badge issued to a discharged soldier would be accompanied by a free enrolment for a course of Pelmanism.

For Pelmanism is of the greatest import to the discharged soldier, and I am putting my views in regard to it upon record because I believe that the lessons to be learned from my own case may be of some service to many thousands of my comrades in the great Brotherhood of the Silver Badge.

It is just a year since the day when I cast aside khaki, consigned my tin of "Soldier's Friend" to oblivion, and feverishly arrayed myself in the most flamboyant clothes that my tailor and hosier could provide.

It is twelve months since the day I realised that, after nearly three years' service, I had become a free man—free to order my comings and goings as I listed—free from the tyranny of the bugle call; free to follow the dictates of my own will in everything, unhedged by restriction or prohibition.

And I was eager to burst upon a civilian world with all the theatrical flaire of a newly-discovered prima donna. In my innocence I thought that this same civilian world was waiting to lay bare its rewards before the sword of my wits.

But I was soon to discover that this view-point savoured of the unsophisticated. It had not occurred to me that the battle for a living was quite as strenuous as ever—indeed, had intensified during war-time—and that in going "over the top" in business or professional life one must still be equipped with the most effective mental munitions.

In my pre-war days I had gained a comfortable income in the practice of my profession. My mind had enjoyed ample exercise, and was always (if I may be forgiven the simile) at "concert pitch." And so I thought that, with a world teeming with new topics, ideas, and ideals, I could not fail to produce of my best and rebuild my shattered fortunes.

I took a holiday, and returning, came to my desk filled with a resolve to work as never I had worked before.

It was just there that I came down to earth, and the bubbles of my child-like faith bespattered themselves on the stones of reality.

One morning of fruitless, futile scribbling showed me that nearly three years' service as a soldier had had its inevitable effect on my mental processes.

That nimble wit I had been so proud to possess positively would not be stimulated; that ability to analyse a subject and classify its components that had made my previous work clear and forceful had fled; that ease in the choice of the right word that had made work a recreation had taken a fancy for aviation and winged away.

And it was not just a matter of mood, for this inability to work persisted. In a week or two there came the realisation that it was a chronic state. The reason was not far to seek. For nearly three years my every day's activities had been planned ahead for me. Almost my every action had been governed by the decisions of my superior officers. Day and night, week in, week out, I had, and rightly so, surrendered myself to the mechanical will of the military machine. My thinking had been done for me. I had no reason to think for myself. Indeed, I soon learned that "thinking for oneself" was a short path to the pleasures of "pack drill."

All of which resulted in a brain lying fallow. Its functions had not been properly exercised—it was a great obese brain, over-fed with facts and impressions, suffering from a species of mental indigestion, torpid and unresponsive to my will.

I had indeed come to a pretty pass! It was necessary for me to earn at least double as much as in pre-war days merely to provide the bread and butter of respectability. How was I to make provision for this—much less for the occasional jam that makes life livable—with my mind rusted, faculties blunted, and thinking powers to a great extent atrophied by disuse?

Obsessed by this sort of query, little wonder that that sneaking little traitor, the Imp of Introspection, came upon the scene. I gave way to depression and doubt, and feared for my future. I began to think that I was going to be one of life's "wash-outs," and in the light of later learning I really think I did for a time belong to that peculiar species of humanity—until Pelmanism came to me!

Until Pelmanism came to me—by the prosaic path of a daily paper announcement, and the subsequent clipping of a coupon. Many thousands of Silver Badge men have hesitated over that same coupon. I wish I could make them realise to the full the import of it. For Pelmanism gave me what it has given many a thousand men and women. It gave me courage first of all. The first "Little Grey Book" refreshed and stung my mind into activity, just as a plunge into a cold bath reinvigorates a tired body.

The Imp of Introspection and the legions of other mental devils who are his co-mates fled from my ken. I had no further use for them, and as "Grey Book" followed "Grey Book," and the fascinating exercises of Pelmanism unfolded their interest and charm, my mind began to bestir itself and throw off the shackles of its hibernation.

Pelmanism changed my whole outlook on life, gave me new interests, and made me THINK.

My mind began to function more speedily and easily. I found that I could collect my thoughts, concentrate on a subject, analyse and classify possibilities, and, finally, express myself without the hair-tearing and other temperamental performances which are popularly supposed to be the accompaniment of creative work. The upshot is that to-day my work is accomplished with ease, and I am never tired of reiterating the fact that Pelmanism pays for itself a thousandfold.

So much for my personal experiences of Pelmanism. I have dealt with my own case at length because it is typical of thousands of others. I have lately had an opportunity of investigating the work of Pelmanism, and found that the register of the Pelman Institute teems with cases of students who at their introduction to the Course had suffered from the same mental "dry rot" that was once my portion. I found, too, that among my brothers of the Silver Badge there is a great army of Pelmanists equipping itself for the stern struggle for a living that follows the laying down of the weapons of war.

The Pelman Institute publishes a book "Mind and Memory," in which Pelmanism is fully explained and illustrated; and a supplement treating of "Pelmanism as an Intellectual and Social Factor." These two publications, together with a reprint of "Truth's" Report on the Pelman Institute and its work, will be sent, gratis and post free, to any reader of CANADA who addresses a postcard to the Pelman Institute, 21, Pelman House, Bloomsbury Street, London, W.C.1. All correspondence is confidential.

THE "CENSOR"

I suppose I'm the only one "doing his bit" who hasn't shared in the joy of receiving letters "from the Front" or from "Blighty." You see, I had too many of them through my hands. One can learn a lot from letters, too, and between ——— it was the frequent mention of "Army Club" that led ——— to the discovery of that best of all Cigarettes.

GALLANTRY IN THE GREAT DRIVE.

Awards of Honours to 71 Canadians for Courage, Leadership, and Initiative.

("London Gazette" Supplement, November 7.)

BAR TO D.S.O.

Lt.-Col. Alfred Blake Carey, D.S.O., Central Ont. R. (Victoria, B.C.)
When his battalion was held up by intense machine gun fire in front of a village, he organised a party from his reserve company and, under cover of the smoke from a derelict tank that was on fire, he personally led the party and rushed a wood, capturing sixteen machine guns, and routed the enemy, who retired on a broad front. He then pushed on his battalion and took the village with a rush. His example of personal gallantry, and his quick appreciation of the situation and rapid action, enabled this important result to be so successfully obtained. (D.S.O. gazetted August 16, 1917.)

Maj. Ian Laurie Crawford, D.S.O., Infy. (Quebec).
He personally reconnoitred the whole area the battalion was taking up before launching the attack, making his dispositions most skilfully. In the attack he led his battalion with great gallantry, and his fine example of courage and cheerfulness did much to ensure the success of the operation. (D.S.O. gazetted January 1, 1918.)

Lt.-Col. William Forbes Gilson, D.S.O., Infy. (Vancouver).
He was in command of his battalion in an attack, during which he pushed forward with great determination, though the situation with regard to support was somewhat involved. His skill in directing the operations, and his fine example of courage and resource largely contributed to the success with which the battalion reached the objective. (D.S.O. gazetted October 18, 1917.)

When the advance of the battalion was held up by heavy machine-gun fire, he went to the front at once, and, working forward himself, carried on some of his flank company with him. Eventually these were forced to the ground by the intense fire of the enemy, but he continued to gain ground, by rolling forward, his men following his example till they got sufficiently close to rush the guns. On his signal this was accomplished with complete success, and the enemy wavered, and our advance continued along the whole line. The fine example of personal gallantry and determination displayed by Lt.-Col. Harbottle at a critical time enabled this most successful result to be obtained. (D.S.O. gazetted June 3, 1918.)

LT.-COL. G. E. MCCUAIG, C.M.G., D.S.O.

LT.-COL. ERIC W. MACDONALD D.S.O., M.C.

Awarded Bar to D.S.O.

Maj. (Actg. Lt.-Col.) Eric Whidden MacDonald, D.S.O., M.C., Infy. (Calgary).
He commanded his battalion in an advance, pressing his attack with skill and determination over a considerable amount of open ground, to the capture of isolated woods, the edges of which were full of concealed machine guns. The ability with which he made his dispositions undoubtedly saved many casualties. He set a very fine example to his men which greatly helped in the success obtained. (D.S.O. gazetted January 1, 1917.)

Lt.-Col. George Eric McCuaig, C.M.G., D.S.O., Infy. (Montreal).
Through heavy mist he led his battalion nearly three miles to the final objective. He showed great courage and ability, personally leading and directing the assault and capturing a large number of prisoners and guns. He did splendid work. (D.S.O. gazetted January 1, 1917.)

Lt.-Col. William Keating Walker, D.S.O., M.C., M.G.C. (Victoria, B.C.).
He commanded a mixed force composed of motor machine guns, a company of cyclists and a trench mortar detachment, which he handled with boldness and ability, destroying several machine-gun nests and capturing strong points. He inspired his men by his example of personal courage and daring, and contributed to the success of the advance. (D.S.O. gazetted January 18, 1918.)

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE ORDER.

Lt. William Davidson Cairns Christie, Infy. (Hamilton).
When his company was held up by machine-gun fire he got a Lewis gun and some fifteen men from company headquarters, and led a charge, resulting in the capture of two machine guns and forty prisoners. Again, later, he twice cleared machine-gun posts, capturing as many as seven guns. His dash and courage were splendid, and the brilliant service rendered by his small party was due to his magnificent example.

Maj. Douglas Cecil Jennings, Infy. (Quebec).
He accompanied the leading Tank of a section to guide the section to its final objective. Later, he went forward and located the positions of enemy machine guns which were causing heavy casualties. Throughout the battle he displayed great courage and devotion to duty.

Capt. (Actg. Maj.) Alec Lawrence Saunders, M.C., Infy., Manitoba R. (Kamloops B.C.)
He assumed command of the battalion under difficult circumstances, the commanding officer being killed and the battalion having suffered heavy casualties in officers and men. In spite of adverse conditions he pushed forward, in the face of heavy machine-gun and rifle fire, and captured and consolidated the objective. His personal courage and cheerful determination were splendid examples to his men, and largely contributed to the success of the operation.

Rev. Canon (Hon. Lt.-Col.) Frederick George Scott, C.M.G., Can. Chapln. Servs. (Quebec).
He attended to the wounded under heavy fire, and by his cool and confident manner was a source of encouragement to the men when they were suffering heavy casualties. He behaved nobly, and helped to save many lives

BAR TO M.C.

Lt. (Temp. Capt.) William Duncan Herridge, M.C., Cyc. Co. (Ottawa).
He repeatedly visited his advanced positions under heavy fire, keeping in full touch with the situation. He remained on duty for two days and two nights practically without sleep. His courage and endurance under trying conditions were of a high order, and greatly contributed to the success of the operations. (M.C. gazetted January 1, 1918.)

Capt. John Broughton Mitchell, M.C. (Winnipeg)—died of wounds.
During an attack he led his company with great courage and dash, being easily the first to reach the final objective. He consolidated his position, and then helped the advance of the unit on his left. It was thanks to his most gallant and able leadership that his company gained their objective in such a splendid manner. (M.C. gazetted June 3, 1918.)

Capt. Arthur Cecil Ross, M.C. (Lotbiniere County, P.Q.)
During an attack he led his company magnificently, and after the battalion had reached the final objective he reconnoitred forward to locate enemy machine guns which were harassing consolidation, successfully locating two. He displayed great skill and judgment, and greatly inspired his men by his courage and determination. (M.C. gazetted October 18, 1917.)

Capt. John Stanley Woods, M.C., R. Can. R. (Edmonton).
He led a section of whippet Tanks in broad daylight to its objective, under heavy fire. Later, when the infantry advance was checked, he pushed forward over ground that was continually swept by machine-gun and rifle fire, to reconnoitre the position held by the enemy. He displayed great courage and initiative under difficult circumstances, and set a very fine example to the men. (M.C. gazetted September 22, 1916.)

Lt. John Albert Young, M.C.
He superintended the laying and maintenance of wires over a considerable distance, to the advanced positions, under heavy fire, and performed the duties of Brigade Signalling Officer with great ability. The courage and coolness with which he kept up communications during the battle contributed in no small degree to the success of the operation. (M.C gazetted June 3, 1918.)

MILITARY CROSS.

Lt. John Roland Traver Barlow, Infy.
He led his company with great dash and ability to their final objective. He was personally engaged many times in close fighting, and showed great determination and fine leadership.

Capt. (Actg. Maj.) William John Bingham, Alberta R. (Altamont, Man)
Finding his flank unprotected, he went back to where the furthest advanced troops were and led them forward, thus preventing a serious break in the line. This he did with the greatest coolness and skill. Throughout the operation this officer's work did a great deal towards making the attack the success it was.

Capt. Daniel Arthur Bissett, Saskatchewan R.
He led his company splendidly against machine-gun nests, and reached the final objective. He did the same again the next day, and was of the greatest assistance in consolidating the position after all the battalion officers had become casualties. His courage and fine leadership inspired all under his command.

Lt. Kenneth Gault Blackader, Quebec R. (Montreal).
He led his platoon with great skill and determination in face of heavy fire, and when held up by a machine-gun post he and a sergeant most gallantly rushed it. Later, when his platoon was held up, he made use of Lewis guns that had no crews and cleared the enemy posts. Throughout the attack he showed marked courage and fine leadership.

Lt. Michael Louis Brady, Quebec R.
Though early wounded he continued to lead his men most gallantly, and was again wounded while rushing an enemy machine gun single-handed. Still he continued forward, bombing the enemy trench and killing many with his revolver, until again wounded and unable to continue. His courage, determination and grit were admirable, and he set a splendid example to his men.

Capt. Robert Louis Calder, Quebec R. (Montreal).
During an attack he was early wounded, but refused to leave his platoon. Later, he led five men against an enemy machine-gun nest, and put the entire crew out of action. He showed marked courage and ability throughout, and his example had a great deal to do with the success of the attack.

Lt. Samuel George Carson, Saskatchewan R. (Regina).
He organised a small party and led them forward against a machine-gun emplacement, putting it out of action and killing the crew. He then organised all available stragglers, and with them and another platoon overcame numerous machine guns. His determined gallantry and splendid example inspired all under his command.

Lt. Thomas Frederick Carter, Saskatchewan R.
With a Lewis gun section he dashed forward through heavy fire, and with enfilade fire and bombs drove the enemy out of a trench from which they were checking his company's advance with machine guns. His great gallantry and resource cleared the way for his company.

Lt. Harold Churchill, M.M., Manitoba R. (Winnipeg).
He made a daring reconnaissance of the situation, bringing back accurate and valuable information. Later, after the final objective had been gained and an enemy counter-attack beaten off, he led a patrol forward to make sure of the situation, and during the night established advanced posts Throughout the operation his gallantry and devotion to duty were most marked.

Capt. Roy Cameron Clark, M.G. Corps.
He handled his detachment of armoured cars with the greatest boldness, and destroyed many enemy machine-gun groups, until he was severely wounded. It was chiefly owing to his determined conduct that the cavalry were so well supported and enabled to accomplish their extensive operations.

Capt. Reginald Hyland Dean, Fd. Arty. (Montreal).
Being unable to obtain ammunition for his trench mortars to advance in close support, he left his own guns, and, leading his men forward with our infantry, he manned the enemy guns as they were captured. He was able to fire some 500 rounds on the retreating enemy from their own 5-9 in. and 77 m.m. guns, and very greatly assisted our advance. His prompt decision and spirit of practical expediency were productive of most excellent results.

Messrs. Thomas Cook and Son already have their arrangements in a practically complete form for visits to the various battlefields by those who have lost relatives and friends in the war.

Capt. G. S. Thorneville, of East End, Sask., who has been serving in France with the Army Veterinary Corps since May, 1915, was on leave this week. Capt. Thorneville is well-known also in Manitoba, having lived for some time at Waskada in that Province.

Capt. (Rev.) G. A. Edmison, who is serving at Carlisle with a Forestry battalion, had accepted a call to become pastor of the Orange Grove Presbyterian Church, New York City. Capt. Edmison was formerly minister of Knox Church, Brandon, and later assistant to the Rev. Dr. Sinclair, of St. Andrew's Church, Winnipeg. He served ten months in France.

Capt. Elmer John Dickinson, A.M.C.

He attended to the wounded, both our own and those of our Allies, in a first-aid post close to the enemy lines under heavy fire and aircraft attacks. On two occasions enemy aircraft flying very low fired into the post, breaking the medicine bottles and causing casualties. He behaved with great coolness and courage, inspiring the men around him and keeping up the spirits of the wounded by his example.

Lt. Albert William Dodd, Manitoba R.

When his company commander was wounded during an attack, he led the company most gallantly against very strong resistance to the final objective, where, finding the battalion badly depleted, he took command of the front line. His example of courage and untiring energy inspired all ranks.

Lt. Louis Chetlain Drummond, Quebec R. (Montreal).

He led his platoon with splendid dash, and with a section rushed an enemy machine-gun post and cleared the way for his platoon. He showed marked courage and devotion to duty, and his fine leadership had a lot to do with the success of the operation.

Capt. Horace Durling, Ord. Corps (Permanent Force).

He worked with great presence of mind and determination in removing the petrol and workshop store lorry to a place of safety when they were in danger of catching fire from the burning store tent and ammunition dump that were set alight by bombs from enemy aircraft. He was in full view from the glare of the conflagration, and was bombed by the enemy aeroplanes the whole time, as well as being in great danger from the bursting shells of the ammunition dump. Through his efforts valuable property was rescued, and it was possible to carry on repairs to guns the next morning. He set a splendid example.

Lt. Charles Ottly Fellowes, Engrs.

During an attack he worked unceasingly under fire in his endeavours to establish communication, and followed with his wires close behind the leading waves. He showed great determination and coolness under most difficult circumstances.

CAPT. D. MACANDIE, D.C.M., M.M. (Killed)

CAPT. E. R. MILNE, D.C.M. (Killed at sea).

Awarded the Military Cross.

Capt. Basil George, Saskatchewan R.

He led his company splendidly, bombing out machine-gun emplacements and enabling the advance to continue. With three men he crawled up to a machine-gun emplacement and killed the crew. By his fine courage and determination he set a brilliant example to his men.

Lt. George Alexander Jackson, M.M., Br. Col. R. (New Westminster).

As battalion scout officer he displayed much skill in the way he directed the leading waves of an attack, and he rendered valuable services in reorganising the captured positions for defence, working with the greatest coolness and courage and under very heavy fire until he was seriously wounded in the abdomen. His example was of the utmost value.

Capt. Llewellyn Arthur Jenkins, Manitoba R. (Winnipeg).

He led his company forward over ground heavily swept by machine-gun fire, with great determination and skill. The comparatively few casualties with which the advance was made were chiefly due to the ability and coolness with which he handled his men. He set an admirable example to all ranks.

Lt. (Actg. Capt.) Hugh Alston Johnston, Quebec R. (Montreal).

Finding himself held up by a strong enemy machine-gun nest, he exposed himself recklessly while disposing of his men with such skill that the position was quickly rushed. Thanks to his fine leadership and courage his company arrived at the final objective before the scheduled time.

Lt. Robert Kent, F.A. (Quebec).

In order to reach his targets he several times took his mortar into "No Man's Land," firing a large number of rounds and cutting enemy wires. He repeatedly exposed himself in order to obtain direct view. He showed great courage and initiative.

Lt. (Actg. Capt.) William Henry Leishman, Fd. Arty.

He took a party of twenty men forward on his own initiative, with the attacking infantry, and, keeping close to the leading waves, he manned the enemy guns immediately they were captured and fired them on the retreating enemy. He set a fine example of courage and dash, and he greatly assisted the advance of our infantry.

Lt. John Lothian, Quebec R.

His example of courage and fine leadership was responsible for his platoon capturing three strong enemy machine-gun points, and his work on consolidation of the final objective was most valuable.

Lt. Gosford Heaslip Martin, Infy.

After making several previous reconnaissances of the ground, he led his platoon with the greatest dash to the assault. He mopped up the area and secured valuable identification, and then skilfully withdrew his men. The success of the raid was largely due to his organisation and gallant leadership.

Lt. (Actg. Capt.) David McAndie, D.C.M., M.M., Alberta R.—Killed.

He led his company splendidly, capturing and consolidating the position. He then rapidly pushed his men forward, and filled an important gap in the line. Later, he captured and held a strongly garrisoned position in front of the final objective. He did very fine work.

Capt. John Clark McCullough, C.A.M.C.

Under heavy shell fire, and at great personal risk, this officer continued to attend to the wounded of his own and other units until he himself was seriously wounded. On previous occasions his fine work has resulted in the saving of many lives.

Lt. James McDonald, Br. Columbia R.

During a daylight raid he led his party through two strong belts of wire and up a steep embankment, and entered the enemy's lines, obtaining a valuable identification before withdrawing his men without casualties He showed splendid leadership and rendered valuable service.

Capt. James Stanley McGlashan, D.C.M., Saskatchewan R. (Vancouver).

He took his Lewis gun and followed a tank to the enemy's lines, firing from the top into the enemy. He located enemy machine-gun emplacements, against which he was able to direct the advance. His courage, coolness and initiative greatly contributed to the success of the advance

Capt. Malcolm Archibald McKechnie, A.M.C. (Winnipeg).

He worked with untiring perseverance in evacuating the wounded from the field of action, under heavy fire, until he was seriously wounded himself. It was largely due to his efforts and self-sacrifice that the casualties were so successfully and rapidly evacuated from the area.

Lt. (Actg. Capt.) Alexander Duncan McRae, Manitoba R. (Winnipeg).

He led his company forward in face of heavy machine-gun fire to cover an exposed flank. Though seriously wounded in the face, he declined to retire until the position had been captured and the situation cleared up. His courage and endurance were fine examples to the men, and his action largely contributed to the success of the operation.

Lt. Frank Stuart Merry, Engrs.

He has always shown the utmost energy and resource in performing his duties as signal officer. He personally carried out a valuable reconnaissance under heavy fire to obtain information as to the situation, when, owing to circumstances, visual and telegraphic communication was imsible. He set a very fine example to his men.

Capt. Edward Ramsay Milne, D.C.M., Alberta R. (Wadena, Sask.)—Drowned at sea.

He led his company to the final objective with the greatest skill and determination, being severely wounded soon afterwards. He would not, however, leave the trench until he had done everything possible to ensure the consolidation of the line. He displayed marked courage and devotion to duty.

Lt. Mortimer Arnold Neelon, Infy. (Toronto)—Killed.

During a raid he led his party forward with the greatest dash and jumped into a trench on the top of three enemy, two of whom he made prisoners while the other was shot. He then searched a hundred yards of trench, and, after sending back his prisoners, withdrew his party. Ten of the enemy were killed, and the success of the raid was mainly due to clever organisation and daring leadership.

Lt William Gladstone Oliver, Alberta R. (Swift Current, Sask.)

When his company was checked by machine-gun from a wood he sent a section round each side and led a frontal attack with the remainder of his platoon, clearing the wood and capturing sixty prisoners and five machine guns. He displayed fine courage and leadership.

Capt. (Actg. Maj.) (now Maj.) Henry Robert Phipps, Rly. Trps. (Winnipeg).

He made a difficult reconnaissance of the forward railway line, and supervised the repairing of breaks in the line under heavy shell fire. He, later, salved a Tank with a party of men under heavy fire. Throughout the operations he set a splendid example to his company.

Lt. Rolland Scott Pone, Manitoba R.

When his battalion was seriously held up by machine-gune fire he handled his command splendidly and reorganised men from other units, and carried them forward with him to the final objective. He showed marked courage and ability to command.

Lt. Edward Frederick Roberts, Rly. Trps.

While the track was repeatedly being blown up by shell fire, this officer, by his courage and untiring efforts, succeeded in repairing the breaks and in evacuating a large quantity of valuable rolling stock, which the enemy was endeavouring to destroy. His skill and daring were entirely responsible for the work being completed.

Lt. William Henry Roberts, M.G. Corps (Tamworth, Ont.)

He handled his section of motor machine guns with great courage and remarkable skill under heavy fire, enabling them to select positions of the utmost value, whence they were able to inflict heavy casualties on the enemy, as well as to neutralise his fire and permit our troops to advance.

Temp. Capt. Claude Henry Rogers, A.S.C.

He carried out the construction of a light railway that was very urgently required to assist our offensive operations in a remarkably short time, and, in spite of heavy shelling and gas attacks, kept it in operation, largely through his own personal efforts, as he was very short of men. His energy and determination were splendid examples to the men working under him, and materially contributed to the success of our operations

Lt Frank Mackenzie Ross, Manitoba R. (Toronto).

When his commanding officer was killed and the second-in-command was forward he handled a difficult situation with splendid ability. Whilst assuming various duties he exposed himself to severe fire, and his fine example of coolness and resource did much to ensure the success of the operation.

Lt. John Douglas Seton, M.G. Corps (Toronto).

He was severely wounded and burnt by a shell, which struck one of the two armoured cars of which he was in charge. In spite of his injuries he helped to turn the car round, under heavy machine-gun fire, and led it on his motor cycle back to our lines. He set a fine example of determination and endurance to his men.

Capt. George Lister Thornton Sharp, Infy. (Vancouver).

He kept his brigade closely in touch with the situation, and sent back information which materially assisted them to advance through the leading brigade to the final objective. Later, he went over with the leading waves of the attack, and carried forward a telephone line, and under very heavy fine kept up information throughout the operation. He showed great coolness and courage.

Lt Arthur William Hood Smith, Rly. Trps.

He worked with his party for half an hour under heavy machine-gun fire repairing a break on the line of his light railway, enabling the gas trains to reach their destinations and make the attack a complete success.

Lt Harold Smith, M.M., M.G. Corps.

He was in command of a motor machine-gun battery and a cyclist battalion, and with this small force he captured and held a very important enemy strong point that constituted a gap between our troops and those of our Allies. The success of the operation was due to his coolness and courage, which were fine examples to his men.

Lt Harry Gardner Brough Templeman, M.M., Alberta R.

He personally supervised the supply and transport of bombs and ammunition to our most advanced positions during an enemy attack. He was untiring in his efforts under heavy fire and exposed himself with complete disregard of danger to ensure the efficiency of the service. He set a very fine example to his men.

Capt. Waldo Talbot Trench, M.G.C. (Elbow River, Alta.)

His battery fought most keenly to keep in touch with troops on the right, and throughout the whole action this officer showed great coolness, determination and ability to command. On several occasions he made bold reconnaissances which materially assisted in the success of the operation

Lt. Frank Waghorn, D.C.M., M.M., M.G. Corps.

He was in charge of part of a motor machine-gun battery and took a leading part in the capture of an important enemy strong point, which constituted a serious gap between our Allies and ourselves. He set a very fine example of coolness and courage to his men, whom he handled in a manner that was much admired by an Allied commander.

Lt. Edward Wallace Waits Watling, Alberta R. (Newcastle, N.B.)

After the final objective had been reached he led a small party and rushed a material and munition dump beyond, capturing sixteen prisoners and a large quantity of stores and munitions. Throughout the operation he set a splendid example of coolness and devotion to duty to his men.

Lt. Charles Watt, Alberta R. (Regina).

He led his platoon against a party of the enemy in a wood who were holding up the advance with heavy machine-gun fire. He dispersed them and captured two machine guns. He showed marked gallantry and ability to command.

Lt. Alfred Laurence Wilson, Fld. Arty. (Picton, Ont.)

As forward observation officer in charge of a party of signallers he established satisfactory communications under very difficult conditions, and in spite of an intense barrage fire in a short space of time, thus enabling valuable information to be transmitted without delay. He set a very fine example of courage and determined perseverance.

Lt. Donald Bradshaw Winslow, Quebec R. (Fredericton, N.B.)

He went forward and established a divisional observation post close behind the jumping-off line, directly connected by telephone to divisional headquarters. Here he continued to telephone for several hours without cover under heavy fire. He later followed up the advancing troops closely, sending good reports back by orderly, lamp and telephone. His gallantry and devotion to duty were most marked.

Canadian War Records] CANADIANS MAKING A PRACTICE ATTACK WITH A TANK. [Photograph.

Lt. Norman Leacock Yearwood, Br. Col. R.

He handled his platoon with great skill and determination during an attack, accounting for eight enemy machine guns and their crews. He set a splendid example of disregard for his own safety, and displayed qualities of leadership of a very high order.

CANADIANS IN IMPERIAL FORCES.

MILITARY CROSS.

Temp. Capt. Ferguson Fitton Carr-Harris, D.S.O., M.D., R.A.M.C. (West Bathurst, N.B.)

He attended the wounded under heavy fire and organised bearer parties. It was due to his fine example under most difficult conditions that a large number of wounded were evacuated from "No Man's Land."

Temp. Sec. Lt. James Alexander McGuire, Tank Corps (Montreal).

After driving his Tank for three hours among enemy lines he became lost in a fog. He then did excellent work for an infantry brigade in attacking a trench and capturing over 200 prisoners, and later in destroying a large number of machine guns and trench mortars.

Temp. Capt. James Franklin McLay, M.B., R.A.M.C. (Toronto).

For great courage and devotion to duty in tending to the wounded under heavy shell fire. His conduct was worthy of the highest praise.

HONOURS FOR CANADIAN AIRMEN.

("London Gazette" Supplement, November 8.)

DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS.

Lt. (Temp. Capt.) W. B. Elliott.

This officer has taken part in 100 bombing raids, in the majority of which he has been leader, a position for which he has the essential qualities in a marked degree viz., courage, resolution and resource. While leading one bombing raid his formation was attacked by 30 hostile machines; 10 of these were destroyed, the objective was successfully bombed, and the formation returned without the loss of a machine This brilliant success was mainly due to Capt. Elliott's skilful leadership

Lt. (Temp. Capt.) E. W. Fletcher (Essex R.)

This officer is a very brilliant artillery observer; in this service he displays remarkable skill combined with clear judgment and perseverance. The success that has attended the numerous operations in which he has taken part is largely due to the valuable services rendered by this officer By his energy and fine example he has brought his flight to a high state of efficiency

Lt. (Temp. Capt.) E. T. Morrow (Waubaushene, Ont.)

On August 22, whilst leading an offensive patrol, this officer attacked 10 Fokker biplanes and Pfalz scouts, driving down one in flames. In the engagement he was wounded, and became unconscious; regaining consciousness, he found that his machine had got into a spin and was on fire. With a supreme effort, although very weak, he succeeded in landing within our lines where he was with great difficulty extricated from the burning machine. A bold and determined officer, who has destroyed four enemy aeroplanes and driven down two out of control.

Sec. Lt. (Actg. Lt.) Frank Bacon Palmer, R.A.F. (late Can. Cav.)

On the night of August 24, 1918, this officer performed very gallant and meritorious service. In an attack on one of our aerodromes by hostile aircraft, a hangar full of machines was set on fire, illuminating the whole camp, making the aerodrome an easy mark for the raiders, who continued dropping bombs for fifteen minutes. Great confusion ensued, and twenty officers and men were wounded. Lt. Palmer was blown over by the explosion of a bomb, and although badly shaken he exhibited coolness and courage of a high order, and by his promptitude succeeded in collecting the wounded, placing them in comparative safety, and also managed to remove the machines and transport from the burning hangars and shelters, notwithstanding the continual dropping of the enemy's bombs in the area

CONFERRED BY FRENCH GOVERNMENT.

Croix de Guerre with Palm.—Lt. (Act. Capt.) Robert M. Berthe, Sea Patrol (Montreal). For services in Flanders.

IN MEMORY OF CANADIAN V.C.s.

The Deptford Borough Council last Saturday afternoon paid tribute to the memory of Pte. John George Pattison, of Calgary, a native of Deptford, who was killed in action on June 3, 1917, after having won the Victoria Cross in the previous April by most conspicuous bravery at Vimy Ridge, where, with bomb and bayonet, he overcame the crew of an enemy gun. Pte. Pattison's father, Mr. Henry Pattison, who has resided in Deptford for 55 years, signed the borough Roll of Honour, and was presented with an illuminated record of his son's bravery and devotion, which is to be forwarded to the Mayor of Calgary for public presentation to Mrs. Pattison.

A tablet in memory of the late Lt. J. E. Tait, V.C., Man. Regt., is to be erected in the Parish Church of Troqueer, Kirkcudbrightshire, of which he was a native.

JEWELLERY PEACE GIFTS.

Peace celebrations are taking many forms. One of the most popular is to make gifts of jewellery, which will remain valued souvenirs for all time. The most comprehensive choice of articles for this purpose will be found at the Goldsmiths and Silversmiths Company, Ltd., whose only address is at 112, Regent Street, W.1. This is the most popular jewellery house in Great Britain for members of the Canadian Forces, and a special welcome is accorded officers and men. The quality of the goods is of the highest class, and values the best obtainable. Catalogues will be sent free on application.

"I have spent many a pleasant half-hour looking through 'Canada.' It has often been my only link with little old Canada. Moving around so often in France, the mail goes astray, and if it wasn't for 'Canada' we should feel quite severed from home at times."—A Canadian Cadet in the R.A.F.

CANADIAN ARMY FARMS.

Work of the Canadian Forestry Corps.

As a result of foresight, organisation and industry, the Canadian Forestry Corps, after a little more than a year's effort, are operating 36 company farms in Great Britain, occupying a total of 470 acres, and with reasonably good crops will be entirely self-supporting in many important food items—already it is partly so.

Early last year Brig.-General Alexander McDougall, C.B., Director-General of the Forestry Corps, together with Col. B. R. Hepburn, Assistant Director-General, and Lt.-Col. Penhorwood, realising the food shortage in Great Britain, conceived the idea of the Canadian Forestry Corps producing their own food so far as possible, so that it might be used for the benefit of the Canadian troops while in England and for their dependents, and also relieve the heavy call on the Army Service Corps and Imperial Army for food products.

With this end in view, they turned their attention to the possibility of camp cultivation of farming plots, and at the instigation of Mr. A. J. Forrest (the King's Commissioner of Lands) a model farm of 32 acres in the Windsor Great Park, beside the Base Camp, Sunningdale, was loaned by the King for this purpose. Later, an additional 66 acres, known as Norfolk Farm, near Virginia Water, was also loaned to the Canadian Forestry Corps by the King, and about 70 acres of the De Salis property at Virginia Water was rented for £36 per annum.

CAPT. B. G. RENNIE AND STAFF OF FOOD PRODUCTION DEPARTMENT, CANADIAN FORESTRY CORPS.

When a representative of Canada spent an afternoon at the Base Camp, Sunningdale, he was given every opportunity by the Commanding Officer to see for himself what the Canadian Forestry Corps are doing towards food production on these farms.

In the first place, it is to be noted that no man employed on the work is graded over "B2," nor any officer eligible for general service. Economy and efficiency are the mottoes of the operations, which are under the command of Capt. B. G. Rennie, of the Kootenay Valley, British Columbia, who was appointed Food Production Officer in November of last year. His assistants, Sergt. T. G. Harper and Cpl. J. Wood, are both experienced farmers, the former owning land in British Columbia, and the latter, who hails from Qu'Appelle, Saskatchewan, is skilled in the Cumberland system of bacon curing.

At the Norfolk Farm, Virginia Water, 47 acres are devoted to potatoes, 15 to oats, and 6 to beets, and the remainder to smaller vegetables. All the bacon cured is either sent to the Army Service Corps, or used at the local Forestry Corps camps, by arrangement with the Army Service Corps, Aldershot. The refuse from the messes goes far towards feeding its present stock of 70 pigs and 140 head of poultry.

The King and Queen and many members of their Household are taking a keen interest in the base farms, and the Officer Commanding and his Staff bear testimony not only to graceful acts of courtesy and hospitality shown by them, but also practical assistance afforded towards making the work at Sunningdale a great success, and this will certainly be a pleasant memory to the many thousands of Canadian Forestry Corps men who have been from time to time quartered at that delightfully situated base distributing camp, which, in fact, is regarded as one of the most beautiful in Great Britain.

As soon as the model farm at the Base had been established the enlargement of the scheme began, and by November, 1917, the Canadian Forestry Corps had also acquired plots of land in Northumberland and Sussex, and the results were so satisfactory that Capt. Rennie and his Staff are now controlling altogether 86 company farms, producing potatoes, turnips, parsnips, onions, carrots, cabbages, and other vegetables and garden produce, besides hay, oats, rape, etc., as food for horses and pigs. The breeding of the latter is gone in for on a large scale, and the curing is a notably successful feature, especially at Sunningdale Farm. Poultry and rabbits are also handled.

At the 86 company farms scattered throughout Great Britain one experienced man has been placed in each camp for work on the farm, whilst stock, and the use of implements have been arranged for by the Food Production Officer with a view to saving all avoidable expenditure, and at each of these farms it is a rule that at least 10 pigs be kept, in order to utilise all refuse from the messes. This branch grows in value month by month. In July, 1918, the total live stock on all the farms was 461 pigs, 142 fowls, 110 chickens and 40 rabbits, the latter being found a very profitable side line, and the breeding of which is to be gone in for on a very large scale.

In order to show the widespread nature of the work, the following list of farms controlled from the Food Production Offices at Sunningdale may be of interest:—Mortimer, Berks.; Longleat Camp, Warminster, Wilts.; Starcross, Devon; Knockando, Scotland; Achneim, Nairn, Scotland; Methven, Perthshire; Kincardine, Fifeshire (2 farms); Nethy Bridge, Inverness-shire; Longtown, Cumberland; Chillingham, Northumberland; Tunbridge Wells, Kent; Dornoch, Sutherland (2 farms); Harbottle, Northumberland; Longmoor, Hants.; Iver Heath, Bucks.; Orton, Morayshire; Loch Morlich, Aviemore, Scotland; Sluie, Forres, Elginshire; Woburn Sands, Beds.; Ampthill, Beds.; Jedburgh, Scotland (2 farms); Cliburn, Westmorland; Mansfield, Notts.; Worksop, Notts.; Beaconwood, Penrith, Cumberland; Plym Bridge, Devon; Camberley, Surrey; Black Lake, Farnham, Surrey; Kemnay, Scotland; Torrington, Devon. Much of the land acquired for these farms is either rent free, or has been obtained upon easy terms.

The keen interest taken in the work by the whole Forestry Corps, from the Director-General downwards, is very strongly in evidence, and it is certain that many a soldier is gaining practical experience in this line which will be invaluable to him when he is free to seek a homestead of his own in some part of the big Dominion.

CANADIAN TRADE WITH JAPAN.

A Field for Expansion.

To the increased shortage of shipping it is doubtless principally due that the total trade of Canada has suffered a notable decline during the present financial year as compared with the corresponding period of 1917. Notwithstanding the higher values of goods, the falling-off in imports is about 80 per cent. and that of exports about 20 per cent., "forest products" showing the only item of increase.

The most noticeable feature about the Canadian figures is the expansion of business with Japan, and it is a feature which lends colour to the views of many experts that henceforward the trans-Pacific business interests of the Dominion will show a permanent and rapid increase. The grand total value of the dutiable goods imported from Japan in 1913 was only $2,118,146; there was a falling-off in 1914 and 1915; but in 1916 the figures rose to $2,177,946, while in 1917 there was a jump to $6,097,235. From views expressed by sundry Japanese merchants in the Toronto Globe, it seems that they have made up their minds that the Canadian market is worth capturing; if so, both British and American manufacturers are in for serious competition.

Take glass goods, for instance—the Japanese export to Canada has increased 1,430 per cent. in two years. Lamps and fancy shades, paints and colours, showcases, earthenware and porcelain, toys, buttons, dyed fabrics, even towels and certain cotton exports all show remarkable increase. Tea is a staple in which the Japanese export has replaced the British, though, of course, in this and other cases these increases may greatly be attributed to the present labour and transportation handicap of British firms. There is no doubt but that the Japs mean to leave no stone unturned to increase the footing they have gained.

While hitherto Japanese goods have been mainly sold in Canada through American agencies, the Japs are now taking steps to deal direct.

The extent to which Japan is establishing her position in Canada in certain classes of goods in which its exports thereto have previously been infinitesimal is shown by the following comparison in exports quoted by a Japanese merchant:—

Glass goods, chiefly those known as "blanks" to be cut or mounted—1913, $123; 1914, $338; 1915, $115; 1916, $4,246; 1917, $16,483.

Guttapercha and its manufactures.—1913, $14; 1914, $19; 1915, $237; 1916, $833; 1917, $23,195.

Second Divisional Theatrical Troupe at the London Coliseum.

Capt. Edmund Burke's soldier-actors of the Second Division received a great ovation from a "house" packed from floor to ceiling at the London Coliseum on Peace Night. The troupe gave excerpts from their trench revue, "We Should Worry," and the attitude of the vast audience proved that the type of entertainment given by the Canadians was exactly the right kind of tonic for the pent-up feelings of the public.

That the troupe has initiative as well as histrionic power was indicated by the many impromptu Peace gags which crept into the show. The whole show was on quite unconventional lines, and provided a refreshing change after the war-time entertainment of the made-to-order variety which London has had to be content with during the past four years.

Sergt. Jack Hagan had not the same wide scope as in the original show, but was a great success nevertheless. The other "stars" of the company were Sergt. Major Clapham ("Gloomy Gus"), Pte. George Curtis, and Pte. Chalmers Murray (a violinist of considerable skill).

The orchestra, under Mr. W. H. Foote, played a big part in the success. The members of the orchestra are:—J. Bedford, Brandon; G. Bryson, Battleford; W. Couling, Vancouver; H. Coram, Toronto; G. Cahill, Montreal; S. Einarsson, Winnipeg; L. Foster, Victoria; A. J. Farley, Halifax; A. Joss and G. A. Johnson, Toronto; E. F. Lloyd, Windsor; G. R. McRitchie, Ottawa; C. Murray, Winnipeg; G. W. Paradise, Castor, Alta.; J. Robson, Calgary; H. Reed, Vancouver; T. Sallis, Grand Forks; O. Smyk, Toronto; A. R. Somerset, Regina; A. Stanford, Montreal; T. Simokin, Winnipeg; P. Taylor, Toronto; H. D. Tucker, Winnipeg; S. J. Van Velzen, Edmonton; E. F. Wallace, St. John; A. G. Watson, Toronto; C. Williams, Kingston.

CANADIAN TRACTOR MANUFACTURER'S POSITION.

A good many months ago we suggested that it would be interesting to watch what effect the removal of the duty on certain kinds of agricultural machinery would have upon Canadian manufacturers. From recent remarks by the president of the Sawyer-Massey Company, that company, which recently has specialised in tractors, now finds itself in a very serious situation. Mr. Harmer, in the course of a statement at a recent tractor demonstration at Cobourg, Ontario, is reported to have indicated that that company found itself in so inferior a position as compared with its U.S. competitors that it was considering the removal of its plant to the United States. In the course of his remarks Mr. Harmer said:—

"All we ask is a fair field and no favours. We can manufacture gas tractors that will compete with the imported article in both quality and price, provided we are placed on the same basis as American manufacturers. As we stand at present, the American manufacturer has an unfair advantage over us. When the duties on tractors were taken off for a year, it was announced that we could import our raw material also free of duty. That made it appear that the Government wanted to extend some measure of justice to us. The fact, however, is that the duties, if taken off raw materials, mean absolutely nothing, because there is no American raw material available."

It is not proposed to make any appointment to the Ministry of Information in succession to Lord Beaverbrook.

The amount collected in Canada for the Lord Mayor's Fund in aid of the French Red Cross British Committee was £28,727. The Hudson's Bay Co. have contributed £1,000, and Lady Strathcona a similar amount.

Lt. Arthur B. Hopper, R.A.F., of Ottawa, who has been serving afloat as a kite balloon officer since last February, has left for Canada on three months' furlough. Lt. Hopper was formerly auditor at the Highland Inn (G.T.P. Hotel), Algonquin Park, and later chief cashier at the G.T.R. Fort Garry Hotel, Winnipeg.

Before a General Court Martial at Westminster, last week, Lt. Cecil C. Casella, of the Prince of Wales's Own West Yorkshire Regiment, was charged with being in a state of intoxication and refusing to pay his bill for dinner at Romano's. The accused officer said he was sober, and had refused to pay because he thought the charge exorbitant. The Court's decision will be promulgated. Defendant came overseas with the First Contingent.

Lord Morris, making his maiden speech in the House of Lords last week on the Petroleum Production Bill, said for the last 25 years or 30 years oil-boring operations had been in progress in Newfoundland, and had the work been properly undertaken there would have been a very large supply of oil in that country; but through mismanagement and unscientific boring nothing of a commercial character had been effected.

A HINT TO WELL-DRESSED PEOPLE.

The period of transition from war to peace will bring many responsibilities, and these will apply equally to both sexes. Officers and men anxious to return to civil employment must have their wardrobes restocked, and ladies who have hitherto devoted all their time to war work will need gowns for the social gaiety which will immediately ensue on peace. Orders for costumes and gowns should be placed with all possible speed, as tailoring firms will be overwhelmed by the rush of business. The reputation made during the war by Mr. Bernard Weatherill (55, Conduit Street, London, W.1.) is such that reliance can be placed in him by clients. Mr. Weatherill has just returned from a successful business trip through Canada and the United States. The present, therefore, is a unique opportunity of securing the highest-class gowns designed by the leading ateliers of Paris at a strictly moderate price.

LONDON, Tuesday.

The Stock Exchange has received the news of peace with general cheerfulness, and prices in the majority of markets have naturally inclined upwards, but there have been no spectacular developments in any departments, and business at present is of comparatively small proportions, the reduction in outside orders owing to patriotic excitement rendering conditions at times rather professional.

In the Canadian department general conditions have been steady, with firmness in specialities. Among the gilt-edged issues of the Dominion the 4½ per cents. at 95 are a point better. The Fours and the 3½ per cents. aro steady without variation. Canadian Provincial Government and municipal bonds have met steady support at about previous levels. Vancouver 4½ per cents. at 78 aro 1 to the good.

In the railroad group Canadian Pacifics have appreciated a dollar to around 182, and among Grand Trunk securities there are many advances of ½ to 1½, the latter rise being shown by the 1st and 2nd Preferences.

Hudson's Bays, in the land group, are a shade under the recent best at 9. Lower-priced shares have been steady.

Industrial securities have worn a spottily cheerful appearance. There has been an advance of a point to 71 in Canada Cements. Dominion Steels and Canadian General Electrics record no variation on balance, while Lake Superiors at 20 are 1 down. Cockshutt Plow Pref, marked at 82½. Mexico Trams have further risen a point to 38, and Brazil Tractions are up to 60. Cities Services Common at 328 have fallen 1.

Canadian silver mining shares have been quiet and mark very little net change.

OUR TORONTO LETTER.

TORONTO, October 19.

So far there has been but little reflection in the Canadian security markets of the enthusiasm which the prospect of peace has aroused in New York. There was a slight expansion of business yesterday, but, on the whole, business has been of very small proportions, with price changes narrow and irregular. There are, of course, various influences which tend to restrict business, notably the near approach of the Victory Loan issue, and the difficulty of assessing the prospects of industrial securities on the advent of peace, while the influenza epidemic is, to say the least, not conducive to enthusiasm either personal or public. There is some discussion, though probably more or less academic, whether, in view of the disorganising effect of the epidemic upon the work of personal canvassing, and the holding of public meetings, it may not be judicious to postpone for a short time the opening of the loan campaign. As to the problem created by peace prospects, though distinctively war stocks are out of favour, there seems to be general confidence in the position of standard industrials. It is recognised that many should benefit by any relaxation of the insistence of the war demand upon raw materials, and also that the vast majority of enterprises are in a far stronger position to meet the change from war to peace than they were when they were caught unprepared by the sudden outbreak of war.

Thus, while there has been but little buying demand there is no evidence of desire to sell. Apart from some slight activity in Steel of Canada, the steel stocks have been quiet. The most consistently active issue in both Toronto and Montreal has been Brazilian Traction; Barcelona figured prominently on Thursday in Toronto, but declined ¼ on the day. In Montreal Spanish River and Canada Steamships showed some strength, but. on the other hand, St. Lawrence Flour came in for a fall of 5 points. Yesterday interest displayed in the lower-priced pulp and paper issues, notably Spanish River and Brompton, was taken as indicating a tendency to regard this group as "peace" stocks, the improvement of Canadian General Electric to 104 is perhaps due to the same cause.

Dominion Bridge, by declaring its regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent., thus pays 8 per cent. for the full year, as against 11½ per cent. in 1917, and 20 per cent. in 1916. Expectations of a cash or stock bonus from the Quebec Bridge profits are thus disappointed, or, perhaps, deferred. Montreal Tramways, in announcing a further deferment of the quarterly dividend on the common stock, state that the directors have considered this course advisable until there has been time for the new fares to take effect.

Among current quotations Steel of Canada is 64½; Dom. Steel 59½; Can. Car 33, pref. 85½; Cement 64¾; Steamships 47½, pref. 77; Montreal Power 85; Brazilian Traction 50¼; Barcelona 14¼; Toronto Railway 58¾; Quebec Railway 18½; Brompton 60; Spanish River 18½, pref. 59; N. ONTARIO PROVINCE.

OTTAWA.—Dies are being prepared in the Royal Mint to provide for the coinage of the new 1 cent piece. The new coin will be a trifle larger than the 10 cent piece, and much the same size and weight as the U.S. " penny."

In 1917 the Indians on their Reserves had under cultivation 70,688 acres, while this year the acreage has been increased to 82,421. The total yield in grain on the Reserves is over 1,000,000 bushels, representing an increase of upwards of 70,000 bushels.

——The Dominion revenue for the past seven months shows an increase of $18,000,000. The total war expenditure up to the end of October last amounted to $1,046,000,000.

——Mr. S. J. McLean has been reappointed to the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners.

Before the end of the year four steel ships will be launched under the new Canadian shipbuilding programme, 15 between January 1 and June, and 12 more by the end of this year.

TORONTO.—The Bank of Montreal has purchased the property of the Salada Tea Company at the foot of Yonge Street for the sum of $200,000. The property was originally owned by the bank, which sold it to the late Hon. William McMaster in 1849 for £14,000 in Halifax currency.

One thousand eight hundred pounds in bills, stolen from the Canadian Express Company in a daylight robbery between Toronto and Hamilton, has been discovered in a Toronto backyard.

——For the first six months of 1918 Ontario produced 229,421 ozs. of gold valued at $4,648,164, and during the same period 21,39[illegible] tons of nickel valued at $12,385,[illegible]50.

——The International Nickel Company of Canada, Limited, located at Port Colborne, began operation in July. From the Creighton mine ore is being raised at the rate of over 100,000 tons per month. During the half-year 804,640 tons of ore were raised from the operating nickel-copper mines. Ore smelted was 719,119 tons, producing 40,178 tons of nickel copper matte.

——Mr. Frank A. Rolph, of this city, has been appointed Chairman of the Canadian War Mission.

——Over 9,000 miles of county roads have been marked for construction under the Provincial Good Roads Act. The report of the Highways Department covering the road work done last year, upon which subsidies were paid during the current year, shows a total outlay of nearly $1,500,000, of which over $375,000 was for maintenance. The Provincial grant to county roads was $485,000.

HAMILTON.—The Board of Education has awarded the contract for the erection of a new $300,000 twenty-eight-room school at Ottawa and Main Streets.

AURORA.—The colours of the 12th York Rangers have been dedicated in Trinity Church here.

QUEBEC PROVINCE.

QUEBEC.—Mr. Justice McCorkill, of the Superior Court of Quebec, has resigned owing to illness, and is succeeded by Mr. G. F. Gibson, K.C.

MONTREAL.—President Howard G. Kelley, of the Grand Trunk system, in the course of an appeal to employees of that railway to buy War Bonds, stated that nearly 4,000 of their fellow workers had joined the Canadian Army.

A committee of 16 persons, which has conducted an investigation into the social conditions of this city, reports on the prevalence of vice and the existence of systematised prostitution. It suggests that a committee should be appointed to raise money to provide information concerning actual conditions and to develop a sensitive and informed public opinion.

——Mr. Wilfrid E. Playfair, of the staff of the Montreal Star, has been appointed official representative of the Canadian Press with the Expeditionary Force to Siberia, and will act as historian for the Dominion Government.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

FREDERICTON.—Two carloads of sheep purchased in Upper Canada will be distributed throughout the Province. The purchase was made under the arrangement recently entered into with the live stock branch of the Dominion Department.

ST. JOHN.—Premier Foster announces, says a Daily Record cable, that he will ask the Dominion Government to take over the St. John and Quebec Railway, or the Valley Railway. He will also seek to make arrangements by which the privately-owned Caraquet and Gulf Shore Railway and the Kent line will be placed under the control of the Railway Commission until such time as arrangements can be made for their operation by the Canadian Government Railways.

——Partridge Island is the scene of much building operations in order to house and care for the comfort of soldiers stationed there.

——The price of the Moncton Transcript and the Moncton Times has been increased to three cents per copy.

NOVA SCOTIA.

HALIFAX. The capitalisation of the Halifax Shipyards Company has been increased from $6,000,000 to $10,000,000. The company is to build several new types of steel steamers of 10,500 tons, as part of the Dominion Government's shipbuilding programme.

——Boring operations for coal are being successfully carried out at Abercrombie.

LIVERPOOL.—A large modern cold-storage plant, to be used in connection with the fishing industry, is being erected here by American capitalists. It has a normal capacity of six million pounds, and is capable of handling 75,000 pounds a day.

MANITOBA PROVINCE.

WINNIPEG.—The Grand Trunk Pacific and Canadian Northern Railways announce a co-operation agreement between the two systems throughout the Canadian West, whereby each will use those sections of the other's tracks and terminal facilities where such an arrangement will result in economy and a better service. There will also be a free exchange of equipment between the two systems. Where the tracks run parallel, one will be used for eastbound traffic and the other for that going west.

——" Eighty thousand Orangemen and sons of Orangemen have gone forth to fight for the Empire, or pretty well 20 per cent. of the whole army that went out from Canada," said Mr. H. C. Hocken, M.P., of Toronto, Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodge of British America, at a banquet given in his honour by the County of Selkirk L.O.L. at the Royal Alexandra Hotel.

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE.—Sugar beets weighing 15 lbs., and turnips weighing 14 lbs. were grown this season by Mr. J. S. Thomson, of this town. Five tons of sugar beets were harvested from a quarter of an acre.

—At Strathclair grains threshed to date in that locality are yielding fully up to the expectations. Mr. S. Robinson, from 100 acres of wheat, threshed over 3,000 bushels; Mr. J. Campbell's wheat threshed 22 bushels per acre; Mr. W. Gamey's wheat 35 bushels per acre; Mr. R. Hooper threshed 400 bushels from 10 acres. Oats run from 40 to 75 bushels per acre; barley 30 to 40 bushels per acre.

OUR LIBRARY TABLE.

Salvage is a series of striking pictures on the Western Front by an Australian artist, Sergt. Penleigh Boyd, each accompanied by a vivid description. (British Australasian. 2s. 6d. net.)

Volume 6 of "The Times" Documentary History of the War is the first part of the Overseas section. It consists of Canadian official correspondence, Orders-in-Council, speeches in Parliament and elsewhere, and other documents of historical importance and value. (London: The Times.)

The Love of an Unknown Soldier consists of the musings of a soldier in France, addressed to his beloved. The manuscripts were found after his death, and are published partly with a view to their reaching the lady to whom they were dedicated. They are eloquent in their affection. (London: John Lane.)

In The Hardest Part the Rev. G. A. Studdert Kennedy, M.C., C.F. ("Woodbine Willie"), endeavours to answer the question "What is God like?" It is an unconventional discussion of a variety of religious difficulties arising out of the author's experiences at the Front. His views are strikingly expressed and are destined to attract a large amount of attention. (London: Hodder & Stoughton. 5s.)

The Prisoner of War in Germany is a semi-official account of the treatment of prisoners of war in Germany, by Dr. McCarthy, one of the special inspectors appointed by the American Embassy to visit and report on the various Prisoners' Camps in Germany. Written during the days of America's neutrality, this account is especially valuable as an entirely unbiased, impartial statement. (London: Skeffington & Co.; 12s. 6d.)

THE SPIRIT OF BRITAIN.

Mr. John S. Currie, editor of the St. John's News, Newfoundland, one of the Overseas Press party, has written a letter to the Minister of Information, in which he says:

"I carry away the absolute conviction that Great Britain is concentrating her whole energy, devoting the full power of her organised might, doing indeed everything that is humanly possible to ensure a complete triumph over the enemy. I have been no less impressed with the splendid spirit of the people everywhere, finding a firm determination to see the war through and a readiness to accept any sacrifice which will tend to supplement the heroic endeavours of the soldiers in the field and bring victory nearer."

FROM EAST TO WEST.

SASKATCHEWAN.

REGINA.—The total acreage under wheat in this Province in 1918 was 9,249,260; oats, 4,938,499; barley, 699,296; flax, 810,957; rye, 123,500; peas, 4,251; beans, 861; buckwheat, 1,207; mixed grains, 23,449; other grains, 27,347, according to the latest estimate. In root crops the figures are as follows: Potatoes, 59,793 acres; turnips, 5,622; mangolds, 1,806; other roots, 2,332. In feed crops there were in corn 11,186 acres; hay, 315,117 acres; and pasture, 933,862; and alfalfa, 6,913, and other crops, 40,504.

—The vacant land tax in this Province is expected to yield a revenue of $800,000 this year. The tax was changed at last session of the Legislature from $10 per quarter section to one per cent. on the value of the land.

—The waterworks system recently installed at a cost, including electric light, of $87,000 is now in operation.

—Mr. J. W. Reid is still King's Printer, but his office has been transferred to the supervision of the Hon. S. J. Latta instead of that of the Hon. George A. Bell as heretofore.

—In twelve months the number of subscribers to the Provincial rural telephones grew from 11,724 to 35,555. Every farm of any size in many districts is now linked on the system.

MOOSE JAW.—The Union depôt to be constructed here by the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways will be located on Stadacona Street East, facing west between Third and Fourth Avenues. Freight sheds will be built in close vicinity north of Caribou Street.

ALBERTA PROVINCE.

EDMONTON.—Full returns of the Provincial by-election at Red Deer gave Mr. J. J. Gaetz, the Liberal candidate, a majority of 879 over Mr. F. W. Galbraith, the Independent Conservative, who loses his deposit.

—Oil wells sunk near the Athabasca river, north of Fort McMurray, Alta, have penetrated sands bearing oil in considerable quantity.

—Plans are being perfected for the construction of a steamboat which will ply between Edmonton and Battleford on the Saskatchewan. It will be 80 feet long with 20 feet beam.

—During the past summer 7,993 lots were cultivated under the auspices of the Edmonton Vacant Lots Garden Association. Of these 2,818 were allotted in blocks of from one to three lots.

—An increase of about 8,000 in the school population of this Province is reported by the Department of Education, and it is expected that the total this year will be about 108,000.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

VICTORIA.—Over 12,000,000 feet of spruce for aeroplanes have been cut since last April by the 300 men who are logging at Camshewa Inlet, Charlotte Islands, B.C. Over 3,000,000 feet of this has been sent to the mills. One tree which was scaled contained three logs, with a total of 40,000 ft. of No. 1 spruce. The smallest log was 80 inches at the top, while the butt of the largest log measured 11 ft. 4 ins.

VANCOUVER.—In September the building inspector issued 96 permits for buildings valued at $205,840. In the same month last year the permits totalled $36,900.

—With the exception of two showers there was no rainfall here from August 22 until the end of September, constituting a new and unique record.

—Mr. A. D. Swan, the eminent harbour engineer, has been selected by Hon. C. C. Ballantyne to make a comprehensive report as to the possible development of the port.

VERNON.—The people of the Okanagan Valley claim that there is no section of British Columbia that has sent so large a proportion of its men to bear arms Overseas. Yet, in spite of the exodus of active young men, the fruit production of the entire valley seems to have steadily increased in every section, due in a large measure to the fact that many young orchards planted at a time when the fame of this valley was being widely advertised abroad are now coming into bearing.

PRINCE RUPERT.—Many mining properties along the coast and up the Skeena River are being examined by engineers for the Granby Co., including the holdings of R. O. Jennings, on the Skeena River.

BANKING AND FINANCE.

U.S.A. A Great Creditor.

One of the most disquieting factors in the early days of the war was the difficulty in maintaining the exchange between this country and North America. With the entry of the United States into the conflict this was naturally overcome, but whilst the enormous sums required to keep the Republic's great armies in Europe must help to redress the vast sums owing by the European Allies to America, it is certain that the end of thé conflict will find the United States a great creditor nation. A New York correspondent of the Toronto Globe, in stating that the Republic should emerge from the conflict a creditor to the extent of $9,000,000,000, says that this opinion is based on the recent statement made by Mr. J. E. Rovensky, the Vice-President of the National Bank of Commerce, before the National Convention of the American Institute of Banking at Denver. This authority estimates that at the beginning of the war the United States owed the world about $5,000,000,000, but that this was extinguished two years ago. The method by which this conversion was accomplished is explained by the unprecedented demand for American products and the resultant rise in prices, the latter having the effect of reducing domestic consumption and increasing production to an unprecedented extent. The trade balance of the United States was largely augmented by the material increase in exports, payment taking the form of the repurchase of American securities, upon terms, we may add, which would have been regarded as impossible a few years ago. From the beginning of the war United States gold imports were $1,000,000,000, and up to July 1, 1918, the Republic's trade balance showed an excess of exports of about $10,000,000,000. The authority quoted, estimating in his speech to the Convention that the war would be over in about a year, considered it safe to assume that the United States would at that date be a creditor nation to the extent of about $9,000,000,000, allowance being made for the American holdings of foreign securities and other property estimated to be worth about $1,500,000,000, while she has been feeding and financing the Allies and supplying them with munitions. The United States was in the early days of the war freely lending money to the Dominion and taking the part of the Mother Country. Latterly, of course, her own financial necessities have compelled her to adopt a more conservative attitude in this respect, but all the same, when the financial history of the war comes to be written it will be found that the great Republic played a giant's part in all stages of the great conflict, and that she materially smoothed the financial path of the Dominion when the latter found the London Money Market summarily closed to her by the dramatic events of 1914.

Quebec and Succession Duty.

Months ago Canada suggested that the Act for levying succession duty in the Province of Quebec would possibly be detrimental to the status of Quebec securities on this market. We have since seen the irritation caused by the collection of this duty voiced by a number of prominent financial writers in this country, and the latest of these is the Financier, which refers to the annoyance which is being caused in financial circles owing to " the delay which arises before securities belonging to a deceased estate can be dealt with." Our contemporary points out that " until a few months ago Canadian succession duty was not payable in respect of Montreal stocks held in England," but quite apart from the question of the impost itself there now appears to be reasonable cause for complaint; and in justification of this statement it advances the same reasons as have already appeared in Canada. Quebec, if it so prefers, is, of course, quite entitled to levy such a duty, although it will perhaps affect the deservedly high esteem which its securities have hitherto enjoyed in the Mother Country, but its Government should at all events see to it that the department responsible for the collection of the duty places no unnecessary obstacles in the path of those entrusted with the winding up of deceased accounts. In referring to what he describes as the " considerable delay " entailed by the " needlessly cumbrous methods " at present operative in connection with the transfer of stock by trustees and executors, the writer offers the opinion that in view of the objection of brokers to the present method he " does not imagine that it will be continued for any length of time," an opinion which we have little doubt will be justified in the event. It is notable the Province of Saskatchewan in the prospectus of its recent issue laid stress upon the fact that the new loan was absolutely exempt from all forms of Provincial taxation. In thus looking ahead to the time—which now seems to be rapidly approaching—when the London Money Market will again be open to Canadian borrowers, it showed its wisdom.

BRITISH TRADE IN CANADA.

During his recent tour through Ontario, H.M. Trade Commissioner at Toronto found a marked predilection among the manufacturers and merchants for British materials and for United Kingdom goods. He therefore advocates the organisation of aggressive selling campaigns from the United Kingdom, especially in view of the geographical advantages of the United States and the activities of her merchants.

He points out to the Department of Overseas Trade (Development and Intelligence) that a great deal of the import trade of Ontario is being done at present through New York brokers. In a number of lines, American brokers control the Canadian market. There appears to be an opportunity, he adds, for the establishment of agencies in Canada for the handling of such business direct from the country of origin, through the United Kingdom, or through United Kingdom agencies rather than through houses in New York. A paint and varnish manufacturer, for instance, expressed his conviction that there is a favourable opportunity for the establishment of a firm in Canada to import shellac, etc., for sale to paint and varnish and similar factories in this Dominion.

A number of enquiries were received during his tour in regard to the progress of the dye industry in the United Kingdom. There is scope, he thinks, for a publicity campaign in Ontario and Canada generally similar to that carried on in the English Press, as to the progress being made by the British dye industry.

The fraternisation of American and Canadian business men, especially in the Border cities, naturally makes its mark on trade relations. The visits, after the war, of principals of United Kingdom firms to this market and, when possible, of parties representing United Kingdom Chambers of Commerce or groups of industries, are obviously very desirable. They are assured of a cordial reception in Ontario. That part of the technical training of young engineers, chemists, etc., of the United Kingdom might be received in Canadian establishments is also a matter which is possibly worthy of some attention.

TORONTO MINING MARKET.

TORONTO, October 19.

Among the mining shares a feature of the trading has been Rockwood Oil, which under continuous selling pressure has declined to .10. The gold and silver stocks are quiet after their recent activity. Big Dome, however, continues strong, selling up to $12.75, while McIntyre has advanced to $1.58. Dome Extension at .21 and Lake Shore at .82 also show slight gains. Among the silver shares trading has mainly concerned the low-priced issues of which Hargraves at .03, Ophir at .06¾, Gt. Northern at .03 and Peterson Lake at .10¼ are examples. Nipissing is quoted $8.70; Coniagas $3.50; La Rose .50, and Temiskaming .29½. A report from Kirkland Lake states that operations are expected to be resumed soon at the Tough-Oakes Mine, where work has been suspended for the past three months.

THE BANK OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

An Extraordinary General Meeting of the Proprietors was held at the office of the Corporation, 5, Gracechurch Street, London, E.C., on Tuesday, November 12, 1918, Mr. E. A. Hoare presiding.

The Assistant Secretary (Mr. E. T. Ritchie) having read the notice convening the meeting,

The Chairman said: You have learned from the circular issued on October 18 that the Governor in Council having given consent to the provisional agreement dated July 23, 1918, for the amalgamation of this Bank with the Bank of Montreal, the agreement is now effective. The consent of the Governor in Council on October 12 completed the formalities necessary under the Canada Bank Act, and, therefore, it only remains to pass the necessary resolution for the dissolution of the Bank of British North America in accordance with Clause 19 of the Deed of Settlement. By that clause it is provided:—

> "That a majority of the qualified voters present and not declining to vote, at each of two successive Extraordinary General Meetings to be specially called for the purpose, shall have full power to come to a resolution to dissolve the Society or Co-partnership; provided such dissolution shall have been, previously to the first of such meetings, approved of and recommended by the Court of Directors."

In accordance with that provision, the Court of Directors at their meeting on Tuesday, October 15, unanimously resolved:—

> "That in view of the amalgamation of the Bank with the Bank of Montreal, the Court of Directors approve of and recommend the dissolution of the Bank, and that William Samuel Goldby, of 5, Gracechurch Street, London, be appointed liquidator, for the purpose of executing and doing on behalf of the Court of Directors all such assurances, acts and things as may be necessary for carrying out such dissolution and winding up the affairs of the Bank, and for that purpose to use the Common Seal of the Bank, and have power to appoint an attorney in respect of the affairs of the Bank in the Dominion of Canada or United States of America or any Province, State or Territory thereof."

The provisions of the Deed of Settlement having been thus complied with by the Court of Directors, it only remains for the proprietors to pass the resolution of which you have received notice, but before I put that resolution to the meeting, I wish to say a few words respecting the terms of the agreement, because I find that there is still some misunderstanding of an important point. Addressing you on September 3 I used these words:—

> "You will receive your dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum on October 5 next as usual, and interest at the same rate will be paid in respect of the period between October 5, 1918, and the date of the completion of the purchase, which we hope may be December 1, 1918, either to those who take cash or to those who make exchanges of shares."

Since that meeting December 1 has been agreed upon as the date of completion of sale and, therefore, a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent per annum, equivalent to 12s. 6d per share, less tax, will be paid by the Liquidator on and after that date. You still have until February 12, 1919, i.e., four months from October 12, 1918, when the Governor in Council gave his consent to the agreement, to make up your minds whether you will take cash or make exchange of shares, but those who decide to take cash should decide before December 1, for their dividend will cease on that date. There are still 148 proprietors on the London Register holding 1,539 shares who have made no response to the circular of September 11, and have not returned either the white or the buff form, and I urge upon them, and particularly upon those who intend to take cash, that they should immediately do so. Those who desire to take cash should fill up the buff forms.

I hope I have made this point clear and that Proprietors who are unable to be present to-day will read the report of these proceedings and, if they have not already done so, will immediately respond to the circular of September 11, otherwise there will inevitably be disappointment when they are paid off on February 12 1919, and find that they have lost ten weeks' interest on their money

Before I propose the resolution, a copy of which you have received with the notice convening the meeting, I must say with very great regret that Mr. William Samuel Goldby is unable to undertake the duties of liquidator. He has suffered from a very serious attack of influenza, followed by bronchitis, and is quite unfit to come to the city and take up the responsible duties of the office. We propose, therefore, that Mr. George Rowland Ginne be appointed liquidator in his stead and, therefore, the resolution which I now propose is as follows:

> "That in view of the amalgamation of the Bank of British North America with the Bank of Montreal and pursuant to the recommendation of the Court of Directors, it is expedient that the Bank of British North America be dissolved and that George Rowland Ginne, of 5, Gracechurch Street, London, be and he is hereby appointed liquidator for the purpose of executing and doing on behalf of the Court of Directors all such assurances, acts and things as may be necessary for carrying out such dissolution and winding up the affairs of the Bank, and for that purpose to use the Common Seal of the Bank and to have power to appoint an attorney in respect of the affairs of the Bank in the Dominion of Canada or the United States of America or any Province, State or Territory thereof."

I will ask Mr. Lubbock to second that.

Mr. Frederick Lubbock: I beg to second the resolution.

The Chairman: The resolution has been proposed and seconded. Those who are in favour please signify the same in the usual manner; to the contrary. Carried unanimously.

On Tuesday next, November 19, a confirmatory meeting will be held, when the proceedings at this meeting will be reviewed and come up for confirmation by the Proprietors. That concludes the business of the day, gentlemen.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman terminated the proceedings.

Last Saturday 100 wounded Canadians were entertained to a whist drive and concert by the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services staff at Liverpool.

A marriage will take place in December between Captain E. Hamilton Henry, Canadian Infantry, and Mona Mary, widow of the late Capt. P. S. Banning, 2nd Batt. Royal Munster Fusiliers.

At St. George's Church, Montreal, last month, Miss Dorothy Adelaide Anderson, only daughter of Lt.-Col. W. P. Anderson, C.M.G., and Mrs. Anderson, was married to Captain Orville S. Tyndale, of the Headquarters Staff at Ottawa, only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Tyndale, of Montreal.

In Montreal, on October 1, the wedding took place of Eleanor Agnes, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Peattie, to Lieut. R. Willoughby-Gee, formerly 73rd Royal Highlanders of Canada, and son of the Rev. W. Willoughby-Gee, of Peterborough, Northamptonshire.

The marriage of Miss Millicent Hanington, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Hanington, to the Rev. Sydenham Bagg Lindsay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lindsay, was celebrated last month in Montreal at the Church of St. John the Evangelist.

Vast natural resources and an industrious, thrifty, and enterprising population have brought unexampled prosperity to this Province.

No Province of the Dominion offers more startling opportunities for the investor. Immense water powers, now running to waste, will produce electricity for industrial purposes in unlimited volume; vast forests will supply an enormous cut of timber and wood pulp; rich mineral deposits hold out alluring opportunities to the prospector; extensive tracts of fertile land suitable for general farming and dairying await settlement. Next to its lands and forests, the Fish and Game of the Province are among its most valuable assets, providing splendid commercial opportunities and incomparable sport. Quebec is the Sportsman's Paradise, the Holidaymaker's Elysium, and a land of opportunity for all.

THEIR COUNTRY'S GRATITUDE.

ON the acceptance of the terms of armistice by Germany a cable was sent by Sir Thomas White, Acting Prime Minister of the Dominion, to Sir Arthur Currie. The same morning the Canadian Corps, under their great leader, had most fittingly rounded off their victorious advance, which started on August 8 from Amiens, by the capture of Mons. The full message, which we print elsewhere, pays a lofty and well-earned tribute both to the commander and the men, who have indeed "deserved well of their country." There was nothing in this high eulogy so admirably expressed by the Acting Prime Minister and which but re-echoes the feelings of all Canadians that was not entirely true and well merited. At this time it may be permitted to say ourselves what has been so freely and generally said by others concerning Canada's soldiers.

It is unnecessary to make comparisons with other units which fought under the Union Jack, but it is conceded both by British and French professional soldiers that Canadian troops under every test to which they have been subjected in the fiery furnace of war have fully maintained the highest traditions of their race, and in the matter of organisation both behind the lines and in England their high efficiency has been equally acknowledged and recognised by the General Staff. Ever since the Corps came under the command of General Currie they have been regarded and employed as storm troops, and their record is written on the guns they have captured and in the towns and strategic points they have rescued from the Hun. No foreign troops in France were more trusted and welcomed by the inhabitants than the Canadians, which may be attributed to the friendly and intelligent interest taken by both officers and men in the people whose country they were fighting to save.

The warm acknowledgments expressed by President Poincaré, the curé at Denain, and the mayors of numerous towns were not merely compliments exchanged between Allies, but were genuine and heartfelt as they were well deserved. Canada's citizen soldiers have left an honoured and fragrant memory in all those portions of France which are dotted with Canadian graves. Canada for years prior to the war was featured in the Mother Country as the "land of opportunity." The people at home have now seen the type of men who are building up that great Dominion, and Canada has lost nothing in prestige by this personal acquaintance. Resulting from this better knowledge and understanding must be a greatly increased growth of interest in Canada, and it will be the fault of Canadians themselves if they do not now take full advantage of their unique opportunities.

DEMOBILISATION.

ALL members of the O.M.F.C. have naturally been eagerly waiting for an official pronouncement in regard to demobilisation. This has now been issued, and the Government have decided very wisely that men will be returned to civil life according to the nature of their previous employment and the immediate industrial needs in their discharge area. At present it is considered that transport cannot exceed 20,000 per month. The return of Canada's citizen soldiers depends on several factors, namely the supply of ships, the duration of the period of occupation, and what portion of the Canadian Army will be retained for that honourable and important work.

In many respects, it is most fortunate that the end of the war has come now, as during the winter months it will give time for arrangements to be made in Canada to absorb its returning men. The intention of the Government and of the people in Canada is that the men who have served will get all preference that is possible on their return to civil life, no matter when they return, and we feel sure that there need be no apprehension that those who may be among the last to return, owing to the position of honour accorded to the Canadian Corps, will suffer in any way by the delay. All units in the British Army keenly wish to be present, or, at least, represented, in the march into Germany, and it is, therefore, an honour fully appreciated and understood that the whole Canadian Corps has been selected to be one of those units.

At the moment advantage must be taken of all available shipping, and, therefore, in addition to wives and dependents, who are being returned to Canada as speedily as possible, low category men—the majority of whom are those who have seen service Overseas and have suffered in health—and, in addition, older men and boys, will take the earliest boats. Although we are marching into Germany, the Hun has not laid down his arms, though he has been forced to surrender important items of his armament; it is, therefore, obviously impossible either for the British or Canadian authorities largely to reduce their fighting forces until Peace is signed and the safety of Europe is definitely secured.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

The Link of Empire. While the King was receiving the plaudits of his people in the Empire's Capital, the Prince of Wales was saying adieu at Canadian Corps Headquarters at Valenciennes. During the weeks he has been attached to General Currie's staff, the Prince has met a great many Canadians. They have been greatly attracted by his unaffected good nature, and he has reciprocated their appreciation and good will. Thus, by their kindly human sympathy, both sire and son are binding more closely the links of the glorious and mighty Empire over which they preside by the will of their people.

The crowned democracy of the British Empire is, perhaps, the best proof of the genius of our race for ordered government, in which we set a standard for the whole world. To-day, when other Thrones are empty or tottering, ours stands firm on the respect and affection of the people. As was truly said by Mr. Bonar Law, in moving the address to the King in the House of Commons, no one in the Kingdom has devoted himself more wholeheartedly and unselfishly to his country's cause than the King himself. The Throne is the only possible link to keep the Empire together, and while the link is of true and solid metal it will surely hold.

* * *

Sir Robert Borden's Arrival. The arrival of Sir Robert Borden in England in order to participate in the Peace deliberations, has been generally welcomed as a guarantee that full effect will be given to the views of the Overseas Dominions regarding the final settlement. Canada's Prime Minister has attained a well-deserved reputation in the Mother Country for statesmanship and broadmindedness, and the issues are felt to be safe in his hands. Importance is also rightly attached to the high qualifications of the colleagues and advisers accompanying him.

The Canadian Ministers' mission, while primarily, of course, concerned with the terms of peace, also embraces the consideration of economic questions, in which Sir George Foster—not only as Minister of Trade and Commerce, but also as, for some time, Acting Chairman of the Dominions Royal Commission—is specially interested. Chief among these will be the formulation of a scheme for carrying out the principles of Imperial Preference and inter-Imperial trade, approved by the Imperial Conference. Another matter which is being gone into without delay is the demobilisation and repatriation of Canada's Overseas Forces.

* * *

The New World. Politics and policies in the Mother Country are in the melting pot. The Coalition Government has announced its general policy, and issued a call for national unity. Those who claim to speak for organised Labour repudiate the party truce, and some even advocate Bolshevism. This is not the voice of British Labour, which is grossly libelled by its pretended representatives, as the coming elections will, we believe, show.

The programme of the Coalition does indicate a desire to develop the resources and interests of the Empire for the mutual advantage of the component parts. Imperial Preference is now the definite policy of the Government of the Mother Country, and this will, we trust, be applied to emigration, cables and transportation, as well as to trade. In spite of their heavy burden of debt, the future of the British Commonwealth of Nations is fairer to-day than ever before if only we can rise to the height of our splendid opportunities.

* * *

Justice for Crime. As our prisoners in Germany—poor wrecks of humanity in so many cases —filter back to this country the public at large will increasingly realise the necessity for exacting justice on those responsible for all this calculated brutality. Lord Morris has done well to draw public attention to German barbarities to our prisoners, and we hope that his suggestion that at the forthcoming election every candidate should be required to give a pledge that if elected he would do his best to bring these brutes to justice, may be widely acted upon.

If there be any who have honest doubts as to the necessity for such action by the British Government, we commend to them the report just issued by Mr. Justice Younger's Commission on the employment of our prisoners in coal and salt mines.

A 1915 Star. The trouble over the proposal to award a special Gallipoli medal to only the Australian troops has had a satisfactory outcome. A decoration similar to the 1914 Star is to be given to all officers and men who served in a ship of war at sea, or in any theatre of war, prior to December 31, 1915. This, of course, will include the Canadian Forces, the only unit of which to receive the 1914 Star was No. 2 Canadian General Hospital.

As a result, some of the dissatisfaction caused by the service chevrons will be met, for the new decoration will not be awarded to men who have remained in England. It is to be hoped, however, that some distinction will be made between the 1914 and the 1915 ribbons, otherwise an injustice will be done to the "Old Contemptibles," for whom the original Star was intended.

The Latest V.C.s. With the four heroes whose deeds are described this week, the Victoria Cross has been awarded, during the present war, to 47 members of the Canadian Corps. The probability is that additional winners of the premier honour will be announced before the last of the honours lists is published, bringing the number up to at least the half century. Canadians may well be proud of the record, for it is but a reflection of the part played by their troops in the great struggle.

This week's list is made notable by the inclusion of the name of Lt.-Col. Peck, the first Canadian commanding officer, and the first Member of Parliament of any country to win the V.C. His conduct is well described as a "magnificent display of courage and fine qualities of leadership." The story of Lt. Rutherford's "masterly bluff" and boldness and gallantry in other respects has attracted general attention. The deeds which gained the Cross for Sergt. Knight and L.-Cpl. Metcalf are also in keeping with the highest fighting traditions.

Empire Comradeship. The comradeship established by the Great War not only belongs to the men of different units of the same Army, but extends to those of troops drawn from the various parts of the Empire. This is too great an Imperial factor to be ignored or to be allowed to die. It is, therefore, satisfactory to learn that definite steps have been taken to secure its permanency.

Under official auspices, a Conference was held at the Horse Guards, Whitehall, last week, under the chairmanship of General Sir Ian Hamilton with this object in view. As an outcome, a consultative committee has been formed, representative of both officers and other ranks, past and present, and the women's side of the Services to take evidence concerning existing organisations, and to report upon the best efforts of utilising or co-ordinating them so as to foster comradeship and mutual help. Another Committee, under the chairmanship of Admiral Viscount Jellicoe, will consider the promotion of comradeship throughout the Empire among all who have served in the present war. This committee will consist of two members of the Imperial Forces and five members representing India, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa respectively.

Ocean Travel. One of the most gratifying evidences of the probability of a speedy return to pre-war conditions as regards transatlantic passenger travel is the removal of the censor's ban upon the publication of particulars regarding prospective sailings and arrivals. Though certain passport restrictions remain in force, it is now possible for the intending traveller to obtain reliable information and secure his passage from any authorised steamship broker representing the various lines thoughout the United Kingdom. In the list of prospective sailings which is published on page 287 will be found the names of several of the old favourite liners. The Alsatian, the finest vessel of the big Canadian Pacific and Allan Line fleet, the Mauretania, the Olympic, and other popular Cunard and White Star vessels are still, we understand, under Admiralty control.

Happily, in proportion, few of the finest vessels of the transatlantic fleets have fallen victims to Hun ruthlessness, the Lusitania and the Calgarian having been the most notable transatlantic record breakers destroyed by submarine devilry. The Minnedosa, which starts on her maiden voyage about December 3, is one of the most notable additions to the list of regular liners plying between U.K. and Canadian ports which have been completed during the war.

* * *

Hospital Equipment. There is much to be said for the suggestion contained in the letter from Mr. H. G. McMicken, which we publish elsewhere. It is an obvious truism that a well-equipped settler becomes an asset to the country much more quickly than one who is insufficiently or poorly equipped.

The difficulty that we see in Mr. McMicken's suggestion is the provision of the shipping to carry this equipment back to Canada. Under existing rates the freight charges would make the cost prohibitive. Subscribers to the Canadian Red Cross would be glad if the useful and

Commencing with this issue the price of "Canada" has been increased from 8d. to 9d.

For some time past it has been necessary to increase the size of "Canada" in order to include full official and other announcements. This has added considerably to the heavy cost of production, and it is considered better to make a slight increase in the price than to curtail the full and complete service which has been maintained by "Canada" ever since the outbreak of war.

excellent equipment of their hospitals could be used to benefit Canada's new citizens, but failing that, owing to the difficulty and cost of transportation, they would doubtless wish it to be given to the French and Belgian refugees who have been despoiled of all their household comforts by the brutal invader.

CANADIAN CASUALTIES.

The Toronto correspondent of the Times states that the Canadian casualties during the war are 211,358. They were:—

Killed in action...	34,877
Died of wounds or disease	15,457
Wounded	152,779
Presumed dead, missing and prisoners ...	8,245

The total British casualties up to November 10 last, including the Dominion and Indian troops, were 3,049,991—142,634 officers and 2,907,357 other ranks. The killed and died were 37,876 officers and 620,828 other ranks; wounded, 92,664 officers and 1,939,478 other ranks; and missing, 12,094 officers and 347,051 other ranks.

It is authoritatively estimated (says a Central News telegram) that the total United States casualties in the war amount to 100,000.

CANADA'S GLADNESS.

Sir Thomas White's Message to the King.

Sir Thomas White, Acting Prime Minister of Canada, in a message to the King, says:—

The Government and people of Canada, animated by feelings of indescribable gladness, rejoice with your Majesty upon the victorious termination now assured of the mighty conflict which has absorbed our thoughts and energies during the past four years, upon the overthrow of your Majesty's enemies, and upon the triumphant vindication of those principles of justice and freedom upon which rest secure the foundations of the Empire.

They desire to join their voices in the great hymn of thanksgiving which ascends from all parts of the earth to-day, and they earnestly pray that Divine Providence may guide the deliberations and prosper the labours of your Majesty's counsellors in the great work of reconstruction which they are about to approach.

Similar messages (says Reuter) were sent to Mr. Lloyd George, the Allied Governments, and the other oversea Dominions.

CANADA'S GRATITUDE TO HER TROOPS.

Admiration for General Currie's Leadership.

The following message from Sir Thomas White, Acting Prime Minister of Canada, was telegraphed to Sir Arthur Currie, the Canadian Corps Commander, on November 11:—

Upon the conclusion of the Armistice, which closes the war and stays the victorious advance of the gallant forces under your distinguished and most capable command, I desire, on behalf of the people of Canada, to convey to you and to them the most earnest expression of the deep and abiding sense of national appreciation and gratitude, cherished by all your fellow-citizens, for the heroic conduct and glorious achievements which have brought so much honour and credit to Canada and played so decisive a part in saving the Empire and preserving civilisation itself.

The courage, endurance, heroism, and fortitude of the Canadian forces at the Front have spread their fame throughout the world, and will for all time be the priceless heritage and tradition of the Canadian people. Canada can never repay the debt which we owe for their sacrifices and suffering in her defence.

Your leadership has been characterised by great courage, sound judgment, fine initiative and able strategy, inspiring confidence both in the Field and at home, and I desire to express to you personally the admiration of your fellow-citizens of Canada for the brilliant results which have been achieved.

CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES.

On Wednesday of last week Sir George Perley gave a luncheon at the Savoy Hotel to the members of the second and fourth of the parties of American editors visiting Europe under the auspices of the Ministry of Information. Lt.-General Turner, V.C., and Surgeon-General Foster were among those present.

In proposing the toast of the guests, Sir George referred to the close relationship which existed between Canada and the United States, pointing to the existence between them of 100 years of peace. He also reminded his hearers of the great part the United Kingdom, and especially the British Navy, had played in the war.

Mr. H. M. Swetland, President of the United Publishers' Association, replied.

Sir George Perley, replying to the toast of his health (proposed by Mr. F. P. Glass, President of the American Newspaper's Association), said the League of Nations was something that we all hoped for, but if unfortunately it should not be brought about, it seemed to him that the alliance between the English-speaking peoples—the United States and the British Empire—ought to be quite enough to guard the peace of the world.

DE BECK v. "EVENING STANDARD."

As we go to press we learn that the case for libel brought by Mr. Alexis Maria de Beck, founder and until recently editor of the National News, and previously the editor of Canadian News, ended by the jury giving a verdict against Mr. de Beck without leaving the box.

When the libel action was first announced we expressed doubt that the plaintiff would go into the witness-box. He has, however, done so, and a British jury has fully endorsed the action of the Evening Standard, who in exposing this naturalised Semitic Hungarian has done a valuable public service.

CANADIANS MARCH ON TO THE RHINE.

LT.-GENERAL SIR ARTHUR CURRIE, who has been spending several days in London, left early on Monday morning for France, in order to lead his men on to the Rhine, where they are to occupy one of the bridgeheads.

The Corps and the Armistice

It is extremely difficult to disentangle the varied thoughts and emotions of the Canadian Corps when they learnt that the "cease fire" would sound at 11 o'clock of the 11th day of the 11th month. There were no such rapturous expressions of joy as were witnessed in London or Toronto, because of the very general feeling that they had not quite finished with the Boche, and there was a certain amount of disappointment felt that the Hun by his timely surrender had prevented the bombing of Berlin. On the other hand, there was a natural pleasure of anticipation of returning home and being free from the grim horrors of war.

In Valenciennes Canadian lorries had been busy for days restoring refugees to their looted and shattered homes, and feeding the civilians. All the long miles of the shell-torn roads from Mons to Valenciennes were filled with refugees, pushing and dragging their little carts filled with their few personal belongings, too valueless to arouse the cupidity of the Hun. The sight of aged women tottering with their little handbarrows along these broken roads renewed the wrath against the Hun, which even the stern terms of the armistice could not palliate.

A CANADIAN DRIVER BRINGING IN REFUGEES AND THEIR BELONGINGS.
Canadian War Records Photograph.

When it was known on Tuesday morning that the Canadian Corps was selected, among other units of the British Forces, to march into Germany and occupy the selected bridgeheads on the Rhine, the Corps cheered up, for its work was not yet done. Should the Boche indulge in any monkey tricks he will discover that the sight of the wanton devastation to civilian property, and the piteous streams of half-starved refugees will have sharpened the weapons of the army of retribution.

MR. LIVESAY'S DESPATCHES.

The following despatches have been received by the Canadian War Records Office from Mr. J. F. B. Livesay, Press Correspondent with the Canadian Forces:—

Casualties Caused by Delayed Mines.

WEDNESDAY, November 13.

The Canadian Corps is reported to be among several honoured by selection to occupy the bridgeheads on the Rhine. Thus its not unreasonable ambition to finish its campaign on German soil will be satisfied. Admirable reinforcements coming forward are rapidly bringing every unit up to strength, and in a passage through the enemy country it would present unbroken ranks of all arms. The deep significance of the end of the war is but slowly coming home.

Yesterday there were sounds of heavy guns along the front line, or so it was thought, but it turned out to be delayed enemy detonations of bridges and road crossings. One of these caused us some casualties. The enemy has notified our engineers of delayed explosions, particularly at a village which for some days was a Corps Headquarters. Some of these are set to take place almost immediately, others in December, and one on January 15. This system of delayed explosions is distinct from "booby traps," whose intent is merely malicious. It is designed to dislocate traffic at critical times. According to the Boche ethics of war no doubt it is very proper, but it is abhorrent to us.

Valenciennes Monument to Canadians

THURSDAY, November 14.

Before leaving Valenciennes the Canadian Corps was informed of a graceful act of appreciation by the City Corporation, which has renamed the Place de Famars the Place du Canada, and proposes in the near future to erect in that spacious square a monument to Canadian soldiers who fell in the relief of Valenciennes. It is in the heart of the best residential district, and, larger even than the Place d'Armes, was chosen to do honour to the Canadian Corps, particularly because it was the scene of stiff fighting when our troops penetrated to that point on the day previous to the actual fall of the city. In fact, it was here that heroic French civilians ran out and waved back our troops from a storm of fire about to be launched on them from hidden machine guns as they debouched on the square.

The Canadian Corps has learned to love and honour the people of France. In its progress through territory occupied these four years by the enemy it has learned on every hand of the wonderful heroism of the civil population. Nowhere has this shone more brightly than in the care for the brutally ill-treated British prisoners who are now rejoining the Army. Threatened with death, and often beaten when discovered, these people have given freely of their poverty. For months young French girls and boys braved detection and carried food and clothing to these unhappy victims of Hun ferocity singled out from all nationalities for the vilest treatment. To this passionate devotion many British owe their lives.

Mons Coincidences.

FRIDAY, November 15.

To-day witnessed a great review and march past of the Canadian and British troops who have taken part in the advance on Mons, which the Canadians captured on the morning of the Armistice.

By happy fortune an English battery which had been the last to leave Mons on August 23, 1914, took part in the attack last week, and actually finished in the same battery position from which it retired on that occasion. But this was not the only coincidence. Mons was actually taken by the 42nd Canadian Battalion (5th Royal Highlanders of Canada), this being the Montreal unit affiliated with the famous Black Watch, both wearing the scarlet Highland hackle. The parent battalion is the 42nd of the British Army, and with the First Brigade was the first to leave England on August 12, and the last infantry unit to retire from Mons. There is one other coincidence, tragic in character. The first shot fired in Mons was by the 5th Lancers, which was attached to the Canadian Corps in the capture of the city, and an officer who fought there in 1914 was killed an hour and a half before the Armistice.

Many things have happened in those four years from Mons to Marne and back again, not the least significant being the brotherhood of arms of the Canadian Corps and the British forces.

Thanksgiving Service in Mons.

SUNDAY, November 17.

This morning the Canadian Corps celebrated in the theatre of Mons "A thanksgiving to Almighty God for the blessing of victory." It was a solemn and wonderful occasion. In that hour expression was given to all pent-up emotion of the past few weeks. The simple service, with its grave and serious note, uttered aloud the deep feelings in the hour of victory of the Canadian soldiers. This was far more than mere rejoicing, more, too, than the conscious attainment of a righteous purpose. There was sadness for those who have died during those four bitter years of pilgrimage, and there was brave hope for the future.

"Fifty thousand Canadians cannot take part in this service," said the preacher. "They sleep in foreign soil. But they did not die in vain; we have kept the faith with them. Their sacrifice and that of thousands more who must return maimed and crippled brought us to this day, and they have set their true mark on the pages of Canadian history. We thank God for these gallant men who laid down their lives, and we can best requite them by carrying back with us the high ideals that have made the Canadian Corps a shining sword of righteousness."

The Te Deum was sung, the music being supplied by the band of the Royal Canadian Regiment, and the hymns "Now Thank

We All Our God," "For All The Saints," and "O God Our Help in Ages Past."

As the congregation filed out there came floating down from the great belfry of Mons a clear and sweet refrain, "O Canada." It was a miracle. Up there in his lofty eyrie the Belgian carillon player had secured the music of Canada's National Anthem, and from this orchestra of silver tongues peeled out far across the countryside Canada's message of faith and sacrifice.

Canadian mothers had never more cause for pride in their soldier sons. Mons is wide open. It has been undamaged. Its stores are full of goods and its inns of liquor. But with all these thousands of Canadian troops in the town the Provost Marshal has nothing to do. Our men have beaten the foe not to fall to defeat themselves.

Martial music blares through these ancient, crooked streets; the men of Canada march through them.

FRENCH TRIBUTE TO CANADIANS.

Denain Curé's Eloquent Words.

One of the illustrations on our centre double-page last week showed the Prince of Wales, accompanied by General Currie and other Canadian officers, being received at Denain Church by the curé.

The address given by the latter on this occasion was particularly striking in its eloquence. "Thanks be to God," he began, "and thanks to our brave liberators! Such is the cry, O Lord! Officers and my brothers, such is the cry which on this day of celebration of our deliverance springs from our grateful hearts. Thanks be to God! To Him firstly our homage is due. He is the author of all good. He is the Master and the Lord of all." The Divine instrument of their deliverance, continued the curé, they found in the effective help brought by the British nation, and he saluted the Prince of Wales as "the legitimate hope and the sympathetic personification of a great people, devoted friend of my dear France." Proceeding to pay a tribute to "the valiance of tenacity" of the "magnificent army" of Great Britain, he said :—

Among the various Corps of this huge Army, we have the honour, the joy and the duty to acclaim this morning one of the most glorious, the Canadian Corps. We acclaim it with a joyful and profound gratitude. for it is the 4th Canadian Division of the Canadian Corps, which, with such skill and bravery, has been the instrument of our deliverance. We acclaim it with admiration for the firm and wise direction given to it by its eminent Commander, with the assistance of a staff d'élite. We acclaim it for the bravery and endurance of its soldiers; for the science and devotion of its admirable leaders; for the reciprocal confidence which binds together so intimately officers and men; for its unbreakable power of resistance—for it is known to all that the Canadian Corps has never retired; for the light-hearted animation of which we have been witnesses in its advance. The Canadian Corps! We acclaim it with deep and heartfelt sympathy.

O Canada! Canada! Is it not a brother people of our France! Brother by the blood which runs in its veins; brother by the community of chivalrous feelings; brother by the sentiments of the heart.

I do not need to look for proofs in the history of the past; it is the history of yesterday. When it was known there, far across the ocean, that dear France was invaded and endangered, four hundred thousand Canadians arose to come to its help—understand fully, four hundred thousand volunteers. And since then how they have fought, how they have suffered, God knows—how many are dead, perhaps fifty thousand—and they still continue their brotherly work of devotion; they still continue after four years, and now their heroic effort has delivered us.

O brothers! O noble and valiant sons of Canada! Proud and admirable officers, brave and courageous soldiers, let us offer to you in the enthusiasm of this never-to-be-forgotten celebration the heart homage of our cordial and imperishable gratitude.

The Dominion Government has decided to suspend forthwith the operations of the Military Service Act.

In the Royal Newfoundland Regt. 20 are reported killed, 11 died of wounds, 2 died, 50 wounded, and 1 missing.

The Ministry of Food hopes to secure some 20,000 tons of Canadian apples for placing on the British market early in December at fixed prices.

Immense destruction was caused in the river villages and towns between Quebec and Three Rivers by a flood wave which swept up the St. Lawrence on Monday night.

The Provincial Government of British Columbia has appointed Mr. W. A. Blair as Secretary to the office of the Agent-General of the Province in London. For the last seven years Mr. Blair has been Secretary to the Board of Trade in Vancouver. Mr. F. C. Wade, the recently appointed Agent-General, is expected in London in a few days.

Lt. C. E. White, O.C. the M.T. workshops at Hythe, met with a serious and painful accident recently, being run into by a passing taxi while on his motor-cycle. A broken leg and numerous contusions resulted. He has since been under treatment at No. 11 C.G.H., Shorncliffe, and since the operation has been progressing favourably. He will be a patient for some considerable time.

GRATUITY ON DISCHARGE.

To the Editor of CANADA.

DEAR SIR,—It is proposed by the Canadian Government to give each officer on discharge "three months' pay plus separation allowance, irrespective of term of service."

This allowance will hardly pay the cost of transporting our families home and outfitting us in civilian clothes, much less giving us a fresh start in life.

The British officer on discharge receives "124 days' pay for the first year of service or part of year, and 62 days' pay for each subsequent year of service, or any part of year." This means that a British officer receives ten months' gratuity for four years' service, whereas we only receive three months' pay as a gratuity.

Surely the Canadian Government intend to increase this gratuity. Many of us have given up everything, including four of the best years of our lives, and three months' pay will not go far towards starting life over again.—Yours, etc.,

CANADIAN HOSPITAL SUPPLIES.

To the Editor of CANADA.

DEAR SIR,—Now that the fighting is over there will be, in a very few months, no use for our Canadian hospitals, and this will apply also to all or most of the temporary hospitals that have been constructed during the war, and which have been of such immense benefit to our wounded.

The question now arises, what are we going to do with all the material we have bought to equip these hospitals? It would be very foolish to throw all this material on the market merely as junk, and for which we would get next to nothing. Allow me, therefore, to suggest a plan which I outlined over a year ago for the disposal of most of the material now contained in our several institutions.

I am speaking now only as a Canadian, and dealing with the Canadian end of it, as I have had rather a unique experience in regard to uses to which we could apply our equipment, having been a resident of Manitoba for 23 years, during the time of the immigration into that country, and knowing the requirements of incoming settlers, in whom I was interested in several ways. I have a good knowledge of what the requirements of settlers in a new country are, and more especially the classes who will have very little cash.

A settler with restricted means has many calls on his small capital. He can build a shack or live in a tent, make a bunk out of rough lumber and a bed out of the prairie grass. A rough table and benches can be made out of a few boards. This is rather an uninviting condition to take a wife to. Her time will be fully taken up with cooking, looking after the children and live stock, making jams and pickles, butter, etc., and she should have the most comfortable surroundings it is possible to give her.

I would therefore suggest that the Dominion Government take over all articles that may be of use to intending settlers; pots, pans, enamel ware, knives, forks, spoons, frying pans, mugs, cups plates, beds, bedding, carpets and rugs, folding tables, chairs, looking glasses, sheets, pillows, blankets and all such articles. Then furnish each settler with the necessary domestic articles, and charge him a certain price for them, and if he should remain on his farm for three years, cancel the debit, as by his work and improvements the Dominion will be vastly benefited. The waster or incompetent should be made to pay, or the outfit taken away from him and given to some one else.

My experience as purchasing agent for three years for the Red Cross enables me to say that very little of the supplies now on hand need be sacrificed. The few pianos, billiard and card tables owned by the Society could be sold in Canada to much better advantage than they can here. I would, therefore, suggest that the Dominion Government be approached as to the taking over of all supplies; the arrangement as to payment could be made with the Executive of the Red Cross Society. If the material is properly handled it can be disposed of to much better advantage than by throwing it promiscuously on the market or selling by auction.

There is no doubt that other charitable institutions will hand over much of their material to the Belgian and French people, who would, I am sure, be very thankful for all that they could get. There will be such a quantity of equipment dumped on this market that in some cases they will not be able even to give the stuff away, but will have to pay for its removal. Let Canada, therefore, take everything to Canada, where it can be utilised to the best advantage.—Yours truly,

H. G. McMICKEN.

SIR ROBERT BORDEN IN ENGLAND.

Canadian Representatives at Peace Discussions.

In order to take part in the Peace Conference, Sir Robert Borden arrived in the Mersey last Saturday by the Cunard Line R.M.S. Mauretania, and proceeded to London on Sunday.

At Euston, where he had a hearty reception, Sir Robert was met by Mr. Lloyd George, and among those present on the platform were Col. the Hon. Claude Willoughby (representing the King), Sir George Perley, and representatives of Mr. Walter Long and the Empire Parliamentary Association. A guard of honour, with band, from the 17th Res. Bn. was drawn up on the platform.

Sir Robert was accompanied by Sir George Foster (Minister of Trade and Commerce) and the Hon. A. L. Sifton (Minister of Customs). With him also arrived Mr. Frank Jones (Vice-Chairman of the Canadian War Trades Board), Dr. J. W. Robertson (representing the Department of Agriculture), General H. M. Elliott (Master-General of Ordnance, Department of Militia and Defence), Col. O. M. Biggar (Judge-Advocate-General, Department of Militia and Defence), Mr. P. M. Draper (Secretary of the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada), Mr. L. C. Christie (Legal Adviser of the Department of External Affairs), Mr. George Buskard (Private Secretary), and others.

Prime Minister of Canada

HON. A. L. SIFTON
Dominion Minister of Customs

The party are staying at Claridge's Hotel. It is expected that the Hon. C. J. Doherty (Minister of Justice) will arrive in England at an early date. Mr. Lloyd Harris (Chairman of the newly-established Canadian Trade Mission in London) will shortly arrive in England to take up his duties, and will also assist Sir Robert Borden in the Peace negotiations.

Statement by Sir Robert Borden.

In a statement on his arrival, Sir Robert Borden said :—

Since my return to Canada at the end of August I have been in constant communication with the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom, and several weeks ago he warned me that I should be prepared to start for Europe in the immediate future. Shortly afterwards I was asked to come at once, and I left with the least possible delay. Fortunately the voyage has been uneventful. Notwithstanding the armistice, every precaution was taken to ensure safety, as there was the possibility of meeting a chance submarine ignorant or regardless of the armistice proclaimed on Monday last. We had on board more than 4,000 United States troops, men of magnificent physique and fine spirit, eager to take their part in the notable achievements which have distingushed the American forces in France.

When I landed in England on June 8 last there never seemed a greater need of calling upon our sternest resolve. When I left England on August 17 the military situation had vastly improved, but even then there was no thought that the war could be successfully ended during the present year. Since then events have marched apace, until the Peace Conference has been summoned under conditions which promise to relieve humanity from the menace of insensate and aggressive militarism, and to restore to a war-torn world the blessings of an enduring peace. No more sudden or dramatic transformation has been recorded in the history of any war than that which has taken place since the middle of July only four months ago

On the ocean the news which reached us of the events since our departure has been of a very meagre character, but we learned of the armistice signed on Monday last, and that its terms were those communicated from Versailles before I left Canada. On the eve of our departure we had news of the Kaiser's abdication and of the revolution in Bavaria. Since then we have heard that various German kinglets and princelings have fled from the wrath to come

I am happy and proud to know that in the great military events which have brought this war to so glorious a conclusion the Canadian forces, side by side with their gallant comrades of the Britannic Commonwealth and of the Allied nations, have borne themselves worthily, and that their achievements were never more splendid than in the closing months of this awful struggle. Some of them have been at the Front for nearly four years, and I rejoice that they have before them a respite from the danger, toil and hardship which they have endured so long and so heroically, and eventually a glorious welcome in their homeland of sunshine and hope.

The problems that lie before our country in common with other Britannic nations are quite as momentous as those which we faced during the war, and are perhaps even more difficult. Our people will face them with the same courage, resolve, and confidence as sustained them during these weary years of war.

Conferences and Interviews.

Sir Robert Borden, Sir George Foster and Mr. Sifton were engaged until midnight on Sunday and again during the whole of Monday in a series of conferences and interviews relating to one or other of the objects of their mission.

On the invitation of Mr. Lloyd George, Sir Robert Borden visited the offices of the War Cabinet, where the arrangements for the Peace Conference and for the proposed preliminary conferences between the representatives of the Imperial and Dominions Governments were discussed at considerable length. Subsequently Sir Robert Borden and his Ministerial colleagues met General Currie, General Embury, and other officers, when questions concerning the demobilisation of the Dominion Forces were under consideration for some hours.

After an interview with General Smuts, Sir Robert Borden, together with Sir George Foster, attended a meeting of the Imperial War Cabinet.

Sir George Perley had a long interview on Monday with Sir Robert Borden at Claridge's Hotel, and in the evening the Prime Minister and High Commissioner visited Sir Edward Kemp in his room at the Ritz Hotel.

Sir Robert Borden, Sir George Foster, and Mr. Sifton were present in the Royal Gallery in the Palace of Westminster on Tuesday afternoon, when the King delivered his historic message to his people, in reply to addresses from both Houses of Parliament.

In the evening Sir Robert Borden was present at a meeting of the Privy Council, and afterwards had an audience of his Majesty.

DEMOBILISATION AND RECONSTRUCTION.

Employment for Returning Soldiers.

Reconstruction and demobilisation problems are engrossing the attention of the Government (says the Ottawa correspondent of the Times). Many conferences have been held with the heads of the leading industries, and it is believed that Canada will be able to meet the readjustment period without serious dislocation of business.

The railway companies are planning large programmes of development, and orders have been placed this week for 200,000 tons of steel rails. On the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern Railways extensions and improvements it is believed that fully 50,000 men can be employed.

The Militia authorities held a conference last week with the Soldiers' Settlement Board, the Civil Re-establishment Branch of the Department of Agriculture, and the Labour officials in order to prepare for the gradual absorption of soldiers into civil life. There are some 40,000 troops in Canada who will be demobilised first, while plans for bringing home Oversea troops are nearly completed.

Sir Thomas White says it will take Canada the greater part of next year to demobilise. Speaking at Port Hope, Ont., the Hon. N. W. Rowell said the difficulty of demobilisation was greater in some respects than mobilising its resources and putting the country on a war footing.

The Soldiers' Settlement Board has decided to establish a number of training farms in Great Britain, where soldiers can secure training during the demobilisation period. The farms are being arranged as schools of instruction in the essentials of farming under Canadian conditions. They will provide an intensive course of about three months' duration, the staffs being selected from service men, who were formerly connected with agricultural teaching.

The Military Plans.

The military side of the demobilisation of Canada's Army overseas has been completed, and the plans are ready to be put into operation immediately peace is declared (says a Daily Record cablegram from Ottawa).

It has been decided that it would be better first to return men whose trade classifications showed the immediate need of them from the industrial point of view.

Preference is to be given to the married men because of their heavier responsibilities. The order of their return will depend upon the length of time they have been away from home. Then will come the single men in accordance with their length of service overseas. This sorting out will be done in France and England before embarkation.

For the purposes of demobilisation, Canada has been divided into 24 Dispersal Areas, and the men are to be allowed to return to any area selected by them regardless of previous residence or enlistment. The rate of return to each area will be in accordance with the proportion that the number desiring to return to such area bears to the entire force. Men will be returned in standardised drafts of 500 of all ranks. The rate of return at the outset will not exceed 20,000 per month.

It is the intention of the Militia Department to discharge the men immediately on reaching their Dispersal Area, so that they may quietly return to civil life, but there is the danger of too quickly flooding certain districts, and the number which can be handled safely and expeditiously has been carefully considered. Consequently, the Militia Department has classified the men serving overseas into occupational groups. It will be possible in this way for men to be returned in accordance with the demand of any particular area. The Department also hopes to return men with any special trade or profession, should the demand for such be made.

All field-guns and machine-guns, with what ammunition is decided upon by the Canadian Government, will be brought from overseas. The men will retain their uniforms, greatcoats, steel helmets, and other wearing apparel.

DOMINION SOLDIERS' WIVES AND CHILDREN.

Arrangements for their Return.

The Ministry of Shipping issue the following statement on the question of the repatriation of the families of Dominion troops :—

> Although the naval reasons which have hitherto made it necessary to restrict the issue of passports to men, women and children no longer apply, extraordinary demands will be made on passenger tonnage by the necessity of repatriating the families of Dominion troops, and, when demobilisation commences, the troops themselves. The paucity of tonnage in relation to the anticipated demands renders it necessary, therefore, to maintain, for purely traffic reasons, restrictions upon the number of passports issued.
>
> On Imperial grounds, as well as in the interests of the passengers themselves, it is essential that as many as possible of the families of persons domiciled or permanently stationed abroad should be repatriated before demobilisation of the Army commences. Passengers within this category should, therefore, lose no time in obtaining passports, and, having done so, in applying to the shipping companies for passages. A further announcement will be made in regard to the provision of passages for the families of his Majesty's Imperial Forces. Once demobilisation has begun accommodation for families will be increasingly difficult to provide
>
> Hitherto it has been necessary to refuse passports to the fiancées of men resident abroad. These restrictions will now be relaxed in the case of those who produce satisfactory evidence that their engagement is of not less than two years' standing. Passages for fiancées will be provided as rapidly as possible, but the holders of passports granted under these conditions must understand that passages cannot be guaranteed, as wives and families must necessarily take precedence.

Enquiries regarding transportation to Canada by the wives or dependents of members of the Canadian Forces should now be addressed to Major Scroggie, Military Dependents' Branch British Columbia House, 1, Regent Street, London, S.W.1 (opposite the Bank of Montreal).

Eighteen Months' Successful Work.

With the departure of the steamships Scandinavian and Metagama for Canadian ports this week, the Commissioner of Emigration, Lt.-Col. J. Obed Smith, ceases the successful work carried out by him during the last 18 months, by which women and children, mostly relations of members of the C.E.F., have been able to return to Canada comfortably.

As is now generally known, at an early stage of the war all passenger steamers were requisitioned either by the Admiralty or the Ministry of Shipping, while various restrictions were placed upon the freedom of movements of intending travellers as the submarine peril developed. The casualties and other incidents of warfare created a congestion of Canadian civilians in the British Isles, and the High Commissioner for Canada very strongly urged upon the British Government some special arrangement under which it might be reasonably safe and possible for women and children to get home. This appears to have taken the form of convoys for certain selected steamers going from different ports in the British Isles to various ports on the North American Continent, and as upon secrecy depended safety, these matters, with plenary powers were placed unreservedly in the hands of Lt.-Col. J. Obed Smith. How well he organised the arrangements, how carefully he has ministered to the wants of many thousands of women and children, to the satisfaction of the Government and other officials, and especially to the women and children themselves, is testified in numbers of grateful letters of thanks which have reached his Department.

Those who have had to arrange the details for the departure of their own family know something of the difficulties, but when multiplied a thousand times in one sailing, with added difficulties due to sudden illness, incapacity to travel at the last moment, or lack of financial means, some idea of the magnitude of the detail work and the patience that Col. Smith and his staff have had to exhibit is realised, and they have achieved a record of which the Canadian Government may well be proud. The steamship companies, who know so much about the care and transportation of passengers in peace time, have given generous praise to the care exhibited by the Department of Emigration and Colonisation for their interests, as well as for those of the passengers, and both steamship and railway officials extend their congratulations on the successful completion of an undertaking entirely supplementary to the ordinary work of the Department.

The concentration of the necessary machinery in the Canadian Government Emigration Offices at Charing Cross was undoubtedly the keystone on which this superstructure of success was based. Everything had to be done in secret; no one was to know the name of the steamer, the port of sailing, the date or hour of departure, or the prospective port of arrival, nor even where the train from London was bound for. This secrecy, however, has doubtless helped to secure the transportation of many thousands of women and children through perils of submarines and mines without the loss of a single life.

Col. Smith's Personal Interest.

To a representative of Canada, a visit to the Charing Cross office the day before one of these organised parties was to sail was a revelation of organised ability not easily forgotten. Hundreds of women and children, with their baggage, were dealt with tactfully, expeditiously, and patiently, the entire machinery working with automatic precision and a notable lack of friction or inconvenience.

At the departure of the special train for the ship's side friends were allowed to be present on the platform, and if, as sometimes happened, there were long delays, Col. Smith's staff never failed to provide fresh milk and buns for the little ones, so that the rigours of a long train journey without food were avoided.

Col. Smith himself invariably attended each embarkation to smooth out any eleventh-hour difficulties regarding passports, lack of funds, etc., and metaphorically always saw his large family safe and comfortably seated at the dinner-table before he left the ship.

Space forbids mention of individual cases of persons other than soldiers' dependents who were helped by the Commissioner of Emigration's organisation. A typical instance is that of a Montreal French-Canadian who came over with horses, the ship being torpedoed and he and an Ontario companion taken prisoners. After two years the Montrealer was released, arriving in London penniless, and he was cared for until his transportation back to Canada was arranged.

OFFICERS KILLED AND DIED.
Overseas Military Forces of Canada.

Lt. John McClelland Adie, C.M.G.C. (died of wounds on November 3), was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Adie, of St. Catharines, Ont. He enlisted in Calgary, and came overseas with the 12th C.M.R. in 1915, and won his commission in the field. Lt. Adie is the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Adie to be killed within a year. Another brother, Capt. R. N. Adie, has been wounded, and is at present serving in the Q.M.G.'s Inspection Department at Bramshott.

Lt. Wallace L. Algie, C. Ont. (killed on October 11), was the son of Dr. James Algie, surgeon on the staff of the Hospital for the Insane, Toronto. Deceased enlisted in the Buffs as a private.

Lt. E. F. Burgess, W. Ont. (killed), was a well-known Brantford commercial traveller, who came overseas as a private.

Lt. J. Scott Cameron, 27th (Man.) Bn. (died at No. 13 Canadian General Hospital, Hastings, on November 8 of influenza and pneumonia), was a well-known Winnipeg lawyer. Deceased came overseas with the 44th Bn., and was transferred to the 27th in France. His father, the Rev. J. H. Cameron, resides in Vancouver. Lt. Cameron had been twice wounded.

Lt. Walter T. Denison, Sask. (died of wounds), belonged to Port Arthur, where he was in the Customs Office. He leaves a widow and two children.

Capt. Harry Dunlop, C.A.M.C. (died of wounds), was born at Kingston 35 years ago, and was a graduate of Queen's University there. Coming overseas in September, 1916, he served as M.O. with various units in England until November, 1917, when he proceeded to France to become M.O. of the 102nd Bn. He was serving with that unit when he received the wounds which resulted in his death on November 2.

Lt. Clarence K. Flint, Alta. (killed), was the eldest son of Mr. Paul Flint, a farmer in the Peace River district, and formerly a Methodist minister in Ontario. Deceased was for a number of years in charge of military instruction in schools in Edmonton. He leaves a widow.

Capt. W. Garland Foster, C. Ont. (died of wounds on October 14), was previously reported wounded. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Foster, 45, Pretoria Avenue, Ottawa, and at the time of his casualty he was acting adjutant of a famous Kootenay battalion. Capt. Foster was formerly manager of the Nelson Daily News, and prior to that he had been on the Winnipeg Telegram, the Victoria Colonist, and the Victoria Times.

Lt. William E. Foxen, 50th (Alta.) Bn., died of wounds and influenza on November 13, was the younger son of the late Mr. W. T. and Mrs. Foxen, of 37, Montserrat Road, Putney, and was 24.

Lt. (A/Capt.) Allan Gray, B.C. (killed on September 28), was the elder son of Mr. Reginald Gray, J.P., and Mrs. Gray, of Burford, Ont., and was 29. On leaving Port Hope College he joined the Vancouver staff of the Bank of Montreal. He enlisted as a ranker in the C.M.R. in 1915, and received his commission before coming overseas in July, 1916, when he became attached to the 72nd Bn. He proceeded overseas the same month, but three months later was evacuated with pneumonia. He returned to France in December, 1917. Lt. Gray was killed by shellfire whilst in command of "A" Company, and was buried near Vichy-en Artois.

Lt. Elmore L. Hankinson, W. Ont. (killed on October 5), was a popular young officer of St. Thomas, Ont., and enlisted in a cavalry unit four years ago. He was formerly chief clerk in the superintendent's office of the Michigan Central Railway at St. Thomas.

Lt. C. M. Inglis, M.C., 72nd (B.C.) Bn. (killed on September 27), was the adopted son of Mrs. A. H. Mason, 801, Eighth Avenue West, Vancouver. Deceased came overseas with the 231st Bn., and later transferred to the 72nd. He was wounded at Passchendaele, and for his gallantry in that battle was awarded the M.C. He returned to France on September 1.

Capt. and Q.M. Jonathan L. Johnston, C.A.M.C. (died at Horton War Hospital, Epsom, on November 3 of influenza), was 52, and belonged to Lockeport, N.S. He came overseas with the 9th Stationary Hospital in June, 1916, and when taken ill was on the staff of the Woodcote Park Convalescent Hospital at Epsom.

Lt. Mervyn C. A. Jones, C.F.A. (killed on September 28, aged 19), was the only son of the late Mr. Edwin Jones and Mrs. Jones, of Quebec. A student of McGill University, he enlisted in 1915.

Lt. Frederick J. Longworth, C.F.A. (died of wounds on November 10), enlisted 2½ years ago, prior to which he was a student at Macdonald College, P.Q. He was the only son of the late Col. Longworth, and grandson of the late Mr. Charles Palmer, K.C., of Charlottetown, P.E.I., and was 25.

CAPT. A. GRAY, B.C.
(Killed).

CAPT. G. BEVERIDGE, QUE. & R.A.F.
(Severely Wounded)

Lt. Edward A. McMurdie, Alta. (killed on September 29), was the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. McMurdie, of Kenora, and was 28. Prior to enlisiment at Edmonton, he was a buyer for a firm in that city. He came overseas in 1915, and was wounded about a year ago.

Lt. Ivan C. Maharg, Sask. (killed), was a nephew of Mr. J. A. Maharg, M.P., president of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association. Deceased was a student at Brandon College prior to enlisting in the Western Universities Bn. He received his commission in the 249th, and came overseas with that unit, later transferring to a C.M.R. battalion.

Lt. R. de L. Millyard, E. Ont. (killed), was at first reported missing as from September 30. He was the son of the late Mr. R. W. Millyard, of Goderich, Ont., and a nephew of Mr. Malcolm Schell. An Arts graduate of Toronto University, he came overseas with the 5th University Company.

Lt. W. J. O'Brien, C. Ont. (killed), was the son of Mrs. Samways, 398, Parliament Street, Toronto, and enlisted as a private in the 75th Bn. in 1915. He was formerly employed as a printer in Toronto.

Lt. William T. Ramsay, P.P.C.L.I., C. Ont. (killed, previously reported missing), was the son of Mr. W. L. Ramsay, farmer and stockbreeder, of Bladworth, Sask. He enlisted with the 4th University draft. One brother (Robert) holds a commission, and another (Emerson), a sergeant, was killed at Vimy Ridge.

Lt. A. McK. Scott, E. Ont. (killed on October 12), was a native of Gelert, Ont., but had lived in Ottawa for some years prior to enlistment, being employed in the Militia Department. He came overseas two years ago.

Major Greville Havergal Shaw, Eng. (killed on November 3), was the second son of the Rev. W. H. Shaw and Mrs. Shaw, St. Giles, Wadebridge, Cornwall, and formerly of Stapleton Rectory, Bristol. The deceased officer was in the R.C.E. (Permanent Force), and was formerly employed under the Director-General of Engineering Services at Ottawa.

Capt. C. H. V Smith, C.A.M.C. (died on November 1 of lobar pneumonia), was referred to in our issue of November 9. The deceased officer spent some time at No. 2 General, and then became M.O. of the P.P.C.L.I. He contracted trench fever in 1917, and on recovery was posted to No. 14 General. He was employed on the medical staff, and during the influenza epidemic, although he had only recently recovered from a severe attack, and was far from fit, he insisted on "carrying on," until he fell a victim to the disease on October 26, succumbing a few days later. He was buried at the Seaford Military Cemetery. Deceased leaves a widow and two young children.

Capt. Douglas Weir, 55 District, Forestry Corps (died on November 12 at Edinburgh of pneumonia following influenza), was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Stanley Weir, of Montreal.

Imperial Forces.

Killed.

Sec. Lt. Percy Llewellyn Brown, R.A.F. (died of wounds), obtained his commission in the Flying Arm at the end of 1917, having previously been a sergeant in the Canadian Forces.

Lt. J. P. Cavers, R.A.F., who was previously reported missing, is now reported killed. He enlisted in 1915 with the Eaton Machine Gun Battery, later transferring to the Air Force, and had been three times wounded. He was the son of Mrs. W. J Dyas, of Howland Avenue, Toronto, and was born at Galt, Ont., twenty-five years ago. He was educated at Upper Canada College and Toronto University.

Sec. Lt. Charles H. Edgecombe, R.A.F. (killed), was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Edgecombe, of Fredericton, and was well known in business circles in New Brunswick, owing to his connection with the F. B. Edgecombe Company. He joined the Flying Corps just a year ago, trained at Borden Camp, and at Texas and had only been on this side a short while when he was accidentally killed.

Sec. Lt. Frank William Morley, Buffs (E. Kent R.), died of wounds, was the younger brother of Lt.-Col. A. W. Morley, of Winnipeg. He had served in France for over two years as a private in the Canadian Forces, and was gazetted to the Imperial Army last July.

Lt. John Warren Price, R.A.F. (died), was the son of Mr Claude W. Price, of the Canadian Government Railways, Moncton, and was 26. He enlisted in August, 1914, came overseas in January, 1916, and transferred to the Flying Arm. He was severely wounded in November of last year, and subsequently invalided to Canada, and has since been acting as Lewis-gun instructor at Hamilton, Ont. His death was due to pneumonia following influenza.

Lt Percy Roy Shannon, M.B., R.A.M.C. (died of wounds), was formerly a lieutenant in the C.A.M.C., and transferred to the R.A.M.C. last March.

Sec. Lt. Alexander McG. Simpson, London Regt. (killed on September 5), was a graduate of Toronto University, being gold medallist in mathematics in 1908. He was on the staff of the Brandon Collegiate Institute before enlisting, in the spring of 1916, in the 196th (Western Universities) Bn. He came overseas in the autumn of the same year, and obtained his commission last April. Sec. Lt. Simpson was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Simpson, of Atwood, Ont.

Sec. Lt. Percyval Bradbury Tudor, R.F.A. (died on November 1), was the son of Mrs. Ivan Tudor, formerly of Filston Manor, Shoreham, Kent, and grandson of the late Mr. Frederick L'Estrange Hart, of Montreal. He was gazetted to the R.F.A. in May, 1917

WOUNDED, MISSING, AND PRISONERS

Imperial Forces

Sec. Lt. Gerald Aldous Bate, R.F.A. (wounded), graduated from the Royal Military College, Kingston, last March.

Lt. Clinton C. Conover, R.A.F., who has been missing since September 24, is now believed to be a prisoner in Germany. His home is in Toronto, and he was formerly employed in the head office of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. He is 28, and was born at Leamington, Ont.

Sec. Lt. Charles Albert Crichton, R.A.F. (missing), obtained his commission at the end of last year. He was previously a private in the O.M.F.C.

Sec. Lt. W. Dalziel, R.F.A. (wounded), comes from Toronto.

Lt. P. E. Durnford, R.F.A. (wounded), belongs to Montreal, and is the son of the late Mr. A. D. Durnford, of Molsons Bank. He was educated at Lower Canada College, and qualified for his commission at Kingston Military College. He was previously wounded in August, 1917.

Sec. Lt. Andrew D. Gunn, R.F.A. (wounded), is a graduate of the Royal Military College, Kingston, and obtained his commission in April, 1917. He is the son of the late Andrew and Mrs. Gunn, of Toronto, and a cousin of Lt.-Col. J. A. Gunn, D.S.O. His elder brother, Sec. Lt. Murray G. Gunn, R.A.F., was reported missing on December 7, 1917, and is presumed to have been killed on that date.

Sec. Lt. J. H. Hampton, R.A.F. (wounded), was formerly a private in the Canadian Forces, obtaining his commission in the Flying Arm last spring.

Capt. A. A. Harcourt-Vernon, R.A.F. (missing), is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Harcourt-Vernon, of Montreal.

Lt. Carl Heebner, R.A.F. (missing since September 24), is the son of Professor and Mrs. C. F. Heebner, of 265, Wellesley Street, Toronto. A University student, he joined the R.A.F. in February, 1917, and came overseas the following October. He went to France in May.

Lt. George E. C. Howard, R.A.F. (missing since September 26), is a graduate of Toronto University, and was a member of the C.O.T.C. prior to joining the Air Force. He came overseas about two years ago, and was wounded in September, 1917. He is the son of Mrs. E. S. Howard, of Vermont Avenue, Toronto, and is 22.

Lt. Frederick Ross Johnson, D.S.C., R.A.F. (prisoner), was previously reported missing. His parents live at Westmount, P.Q., and he first enlisted in Montreal in the Grenadier Guards, later transferring to the R.N.A.S.

Captain William A. Leslie, R.A.F. (wounded), was formerly with the 201st Bn., and was gazetted a flying officer in July, 1917. He is the son of Mr. Alex. Leslie, of 82, Westminster Avenue, Toronto, and his brother, Lt. H. T. Leslie, is also in the Air Force.

Maj. W. B. Mackie, M.C., R.F.A. (wounded), belonged originally to the Canadian Militia. He was mentioned in despatches at the end of 1916, and obtained his M.C. a few months ago. He had been serving with the 141st Battery.

Sec. Lt. R. F. Marshall, R.H.A. (wounded), came overseas three and a half years ago as a signaller, subsequently transferred to the Imperial Forces, and won his commission on the field. This is the second time he has been wounded. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Marshall, of Calgary, and was formerly a student of Alberta University.

Sec. Lt. Charles Earle Nicholas, R.A.F., a Canadian, was badly injured when his machine fell into the Thames near Twickenham on Monday afternoon. Fortunately he managed to extricate himself from the wreckage before the machine sank. A fisherman, 70 years of age, who was in a punt near by, held the airman up until additional help was forthcoming. He was taken to the Royal Hospital at Richmond, where it was found that in addition to being badly shaken he had sustained a fractured jaw and an injury to one of his eyes.

Sec. Lt. Percy Stuart Tennant, R.A.F. (missing), was gazetted to the Air Force at the end of 1917. He was previously a sergeant in the O.M.F.C.

Lt. G. B. Wootten, R.A.F. (wounded), is a lieutenant in the New Brunswick Regiment, and was seconded to the Air Force as a flying officer in April last FOUR MORE CANADIAN V.Cs.

First Lieutenant-Colonel to Win the Honour.

The award of the Victoria Cross to the following Canadians is announced in a Supplement to the "London Gazette," dated November 15:—

Lt.-Col. Cyrus Wesley Peck. D.S.O., Manitoba R.

For most conspicuous bravery and skilful leading when in attack under intense fire.

His command quickly captured the first objective, but progress to the further objective was held up by enemy machine-gun fire on his right flank.

The situation being critical in the extreme, Col. Peck pushed forward and made a personal reconnaissance under heavy machine-gun and sniping fire across a stretch of ground which was heavily swept by fire.

Having reconnoitred the position he returned, reorganised his battalion, and, acting upon the knowledge personally gained, pushed them forward and arranged to protect his flanks. He then went out under the most intense artillery and machine-gun fire, intercepted the Tanks, gave them the necessary directions, pointing out where they were to make for, and thus pave the way for a Canadian infantry battalion to push forward. To this battalion he subsequently gave requisite support.

His magnificent display of courage and fine qualities of leadership enabled the advance to be continued, although always under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, and contributed largely to the success of the brigade attack.

LT. C. S. RUTHERFORD, V.C., M.C., M.M.

LT.-COL. C. W. PECK, V.C., D.S.O., M.P.

THE LATE SERGT. A. G. KNIGHT, V.C.

Central News Photograph.

Lt. Charles Smith Rutherford, M.C., M.M., Quebec R.

For most conspicuous bravery, initiative and devotion to duty. When in command of an assaulting party Lt. Rutherford found himself a considerable distance ahead of his men, and at the same moment observed a fully armed strong enemy party outside a "Pill Box" ahead of him. He beckoned to them with his revolver to come to him; in return they waved to him to come to them. This he boldly did, and informed them that they were prisoners. This fact an enemy officer disputed and invited Lt.-Rutherford to enter the "Pill Box," an invitation he discreetly declined. By masterly bluff, however, he persuaded the enemy that they were surrounded, and the whole party of 45, including two officers and three machine guns, surrendered to him.

Subsequently he induced the enemy officer to stop the fire of an enemy machine gun close by, and Lt. Rutherford took advantage of the opportunity to hasten the advance of his men to his support.

Lt. Rutherford then observed that the right assaulting party was held up by heavy machine-gun fire from another "Pill Box." Indicating an objective to the remainder of his party he attacked the "Pill Box" with a Lewis gun section and captured a further 35 prisoners with machine guns, thus enabling the party to continue their advance.

The bold and gallant action of this officer contributed very materially to the capture of the main objective and was a wonderful inspiration to all ranks in pressing home the attack on a very strong position.

No. 426402 Actg. Sgt. Arthur George Knight, late Alberta R.

For most conspicuous bravery, initiative, and devotion to duty when, after an unsuccessful attack, Sgt. Knight led a bombing section forward, under very heavy fire of all descriptions, and engaged the enemy at close quarters. Seeing that his party continued to be held up he dashed forward alone, bayoneting several of the enemy machine gunners and trench mortar crews, and forcing the remainder to retire in confusion. He then brought forward a Lewis gun and directed his fire on the retreating enemy, inflicting many casualties.

In the subsequent advance of his platoon in pursuit, Sgt. Knight saw a party of about 30 of the enemy go into a deep tunnel which led off the trench. He again dashed forward alone, and, having killed one officer and two N.C.O.'s, captured 20 other ranks. Subsequently he routed, single-handed, another enemy party which was opposing the advance of his platoon.

On each occasion he displayed the greatest valour under fire at very close range, and by his example of courage, gallantry and initiative was a wonderful inspiration to all.

This very gallant N.C.O. was subsequently fatally wounded

No. 22614 L.-Cpl. Henry Metcalf, M.M., Manitoba R.

For most conspicuous bravery, initiative and devotion to duty in attack, when, the right flank of the battalion being held up, he realised the situation and rushed forward under intense machine gun fire to a passing Tank on the left. With his signal flag he walked in front of the Tank, directing it along the trench in a perfect hail of bullets and bombs. The machine-gun strong points were overcome, very heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy, and a very critical situation was relieved.

Later, although wounded, he continued to advance until ordered to get into a shell hole and have his wounds dressed

His valour throughout was of the highest standard.

THE NEW V.C.S.

Lt.-Col. Peck is the well-known and popular commander of the 16th Battalion (Canadian Scottish). Born at Hopewell Hill, N.B., in 1871, he was in civil life a broker in Prince Rupert, and enlisted in the 30th Battalion at Victoria on November 8, 1914. He has been twice wounded this year—in May and October—has been mentioned, and was awarded the D.S.O. in June, 1917. So far as is known, Col. Peck is the only member of Parliament in any country who has won the V.C. He stood for Skeena in the last Dominion Federal Election while serving in France. He was defeated by the civil vote in the Dominion, but elected by the overwhelming majority he secured from the soldiers.

Lt. Rutherford was born on January 9, 1892, at Colborne. Ont. He is the second of four sons of Mr. and Mrs. John Rutherford, who farm three miles north-west of Colborne. A brother, Gunr. Alex Rutherford, is in the C.F.A., Siberian Expeditionary Force. Lt. Rutherford, who is a farmer, joined the 83rd (Toronto) Battalion as a private on March 2, 1916, his regimental number being 172458. He afterwards transferred to the 5th C.M.R., and was wounded in the arm at Regina Trench (Somme) on October 1, 1916, and again at Avion (Lens) in June, 1917. He won the Military Medal as a ranker, and before coming to England to take his cadet course at Bexhill (February-April, 1918) he had risen to the rank of sergeant. He returned to France on June 1 of this year, won the M.C. for gallantry on August 9, and the V.C. for his part in the capture of Monchy-le-Preux (Arras-Cambrai line) on August 26. He had command of No. 9 Platoon, "C" Company, and participated in the storming of Passchendaele in November, 1917, on which occasion Lt.-Col. Pearkes, commanding the 5th C.M.R., won his V.C. Col. Pearkes was the first to congratulate Lt. Rutherford on the day his V.C. was gazetted, the young officer being then on his way back to France after spending 14 days' furlough in Edinburgh.

The late Sergt. Knight was born at Haywards Heath, Sussex, on June 26, 1886, and was a carpenter before enlisting in the 46th Battalion at Regina on December 19, 1914. Transferring to the 10th Battalion, he won the Croix de Guerre in July, 1918, and was killed on September 3 last. His next-of-kin is Mr. E. H. Knight, Meadvale, Redhill, Surrey.

L.-Cpl. Metcalf was born at Waige, Walsh Co., Maine, U.S.A., on June 29, 1885, and his next-of-kin lives at Dunnysville, U.S.A. Before the war he was a barber. He enlisted in the 12th Battalion at Valcartier on September 23, 1914, and afterwards transferred to the 16th Battalion. He was awarded the Military Medal in January, 1917, and was wounded on September 4, 1918.

DEATH OF A CANADIAN V.C.

Lt. A. A. McLeod Succumbs to Pneumonia.

A Daily Record cable of November 15 announced that Lt. Alan Arnett McLeod, V.C., R.A.F., had died in the Winnipeg General Hospital from pneumonia.

Deceased, who was but 19, was the only child of Dr. and Mrs. A. N. McLeod, of Stonewall, Man., and was the hero of one of the greatest air fights of the war.

While attacking hostile formations by bombs and machine-gun fire at a height of 5,000 ft. he was assailed by eight enemy aircraft. After he had shot down three of them his machine caught fire.

Although suffering from five wounds, Lt. McLeod climbed out on to the left bottom plane, controlling his machine from the side of the fuselage. He ultimately landed in No Man's Land, rescued his six-times wounded observer from the burning aircraft, and while performing this act he was again wounded by an enemy bomb.

Lt. McLeod spent several months in the Prince of Wales Hospital before he was fit to travel to Canada. His lungs were injured, and this fact probably made him peculiarly susceptible to the disease.

A PRINCE EDWARD ISLANDER'S V.C.

The particulars of the action in which H.M.S. Pargust figured on June 7, 1917 (and for gallantry on which occasion Lt. Ronald Neil Stewart, D.S.O., R.N., a Prince Edward Islander, was awarded the Victoria Cross) are fully given for the first time in a London Gazette Supplement dated November 20. "Officers and men," concludes the official notice, "displayed the utmost courage and confidence in their captain, and the action serves as an example of what perfect discipline, when coupled with such confidence, can achieve." Lt. Stewart was formerly in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services.

STAR FOR 1915 MEN.

Mr. Macpherson, Deputy Secretary for War, made the following announcement in the House of Commons last week:—

> An agreement has been reached, with the approval of the War Cabinet and the King, which I am assured is satisfactory to those principally concerned, regarding the subject of the Gallipoli decoration. The 1914 Star will be reserved for its special purposes. A Star on the same model and with the same riband, but bearing distinctive marks as to date- 1914-15—will be given to all officers and other ranks of the Royal Navy and Royal Marines who, prior to December 31, 1915, served in a ship of war at sea, and all officers and other ranks of military andair forces who served in any theatre of war prior to the same date. In every case the officer or man must have served on duty andwith proper authority, and no officer or man will receive the 1914 15 Star in addition to the 1914 Star. Thus, in the same way that those who first bore the brunt of the attack in France and Flanders received a special mark of recognition by the award of the 1914 Star, so those from our Dominions and Colonies, as well as British and Irish troops who first responded to the call of duty and served in a theatre of war will receive recognition.

As Mr. Macpherson pointed out, among those eligible will be the Canadian troops who fought at the Second Battle of Ypres, the Battle of Festubert, and subsequent operations of the year in France and Flanders.

STORIES OF THE W/R.

Many Canadians serving with Imperial units on sea, on land and in the air, as well as in the O.M.F.C., have good stories to tell. The Editor will be glad to consider and pay for such articles as are suitable. In view of early relaxation of censorship restrictions articles should be sent in without delay.

A SCOUTING AND SNIPING SCHOOL IN ITALY.

Among our photographs this week are three which, though taken in Italy, have a special interest for all Canadians, as they show classes of instruction at the G.H.Q. Scouting and Sniping School in Italy this year, which was under the command of Lt.-Col. J. Sclater, D.S.O., of Vancouver, who came over with the 29th (Vancouver) Bn. as Major.

This officer was a well-known marksman, having twice represented the Canadians at Bisley, and he was selected in January, 1916, to establish a sniping school for the Second Army. The success of his methods and organisation was such that all instruction was subsequently modelled on the school started by Col. Sclater, and when General Plumer went to Italy, he took him with him to establish a similar school of instruction. French, Italian, and British officers went through the course and up to the time of the defeat of the Austrians and the return of Col. Sclater to this country he had completed twelve courses at his school.

It will be remembered that Canadians set the standard for trench warfare schools in France, and it is gratifying to all Canadians to know that it was a Canadian officer who was selected to command the scouting and sniping school of the British Army in Italy.

WORKMEN FROM OVERSEAS

The Minister of Labour announces to all workmen who came to the Mother Country from the Dominions after the outbreak of war, and who have been engaged on war work, that for the present they should remain at work, so long as work is available. On receiving notice of dismissal they should report the fact to the nearest Employment Exchange.

They will receive during unemployment the allowances to which they are entitled under existing arrangements, or the out-of-work donation of 24s. per week, with children's allowances, if this is more favourable. The latter will be paid during the period of six months for a maximum of 13 weeks as announced in the Government scheme.

The general arrangements for the repatriation of Dominion workmen will be pressed forward, and a further announcement will be made in the public Press. The Minister believes that these arrangements will be such as will satisfy every reasonable demand.

* *

It is understood (says the Times) that the Dominion Government will endeavour to arrange with the United States for a joint development of the water powers on the St. Lawrence.

Western Canada has been given representation on the Dominion Railway Commission by the appointment of D Rutherford, of Calgary, to succeed Mr. D'Arcy Scott, whose term has expired. Commissioner McLean has been reappointed on the expiration of his term.

The signing of the armistice was celebrated at St. John's, Newfoundland, on November 13, by a parade of French and British forces. The Administrator read the King's message to the Overseas Dominions. There was a public holiday and a torchlight procession at night. The Premier left the same day in order to take part in the Peace Conference.

Mr. James Glass, of Ormiston & Glass, London, has offered to hand over to the Edinburgh Merchant Company, for the purpose of establishing a school of chemistry in connection with George Watson's College, certain town properties in Canada which he holds, together with £3,000 in National War Bonds. These Canadian properties, he says, are worth at a modest valuation £17,000, and could be readily disposed of after the war when values have returned to normal.

Christmas

THE Goldsmiths and Silversmiths Company have made a great effort to offer Christmas stocks of the most varied and complete description for the selection of Gifts. Buyers should, however, be warned to make an alternative choice, if possible, in case of short supply, as the demand for advertised articles is expected to be exceptionally large, such shortness of supply would only be the result of War conditions. All articles are of highest quality and the best value.

Selections will be sent for approval, if desired, carriage paid, and at the Company's risk, or a Christmas Catalogue may be had post free on application.

Increase in Field Allowance—Notes for Officers and Men.

ALL Canadian officers in England, of whatever rank or category, can, on one condition, be returned to Canada for discharge on making application through the regular channels. The condition is that they must first have been struck off the strength of their service unit in the Field.

Up to noon on November 16, application for a total of $659,500 has been received by the Paymaster-General in respect of the Canadian Victory Loan. Witley Area heads the list with $224,400 and France is second with $119,800.

Increase in Field Allowance.

Under authority of the Order-in-Council 2231 (September 12, 1918), Field Allowance for captains, lieutenants, matrons and nursing sisters has been increased to $1 per diem, with effect from September 12. This increase also applies to officers holding hon. rank who are in receipt of pay and allowances of such rank.

MAJOR J. M. CLARK.

LT.-COL F. MINDEN COLE, D.S.O., C G.A.

Major Joseph M. Clark, who has been Acting Agent-General for the Province of Ontario since the death of Lt.-Col. Richard Reid, is a native of Tillsonburg, Ont. Prior to the war he paid frequent visits to Britain in connection with the immigration organisation work of the Ontario Government. During the war he has been assistant to the Agent-General, devoting himself mainly to lookng after the welfare of officers and men from Ontario located in the various hospitals throughout Great Britain—a work which has been generally appreciated. He was gazetted Hon Major last year. His daughter Mildred is a Nursing Sister in France.

The Allied Officers' Club, 24, Park Lane. London, W., is now available for use by Canadian officers.

Re-enlisted soldiers who were entitled to wear the Silver War Badge, may continue to wear the badge when in uniform.

Increase in Separation Allowance.

As announced in last week's Canada, separation allowance has been increased for dependents of the following ranks:—Lieutenants, from $30 to $40; warrant officers, 1st class, from $30 to $35; all ranks below W.O., 1st class, from $25 to $30 a month. The increase takes effect from September 1.

All cadets, of lower rank than sergeant, nominated as candidates for commissions (says Routine Order No. 4937) will be granted the acting rank of sergeant, with pay, from the date fixed for the commencement of their training course, whether at a Canadian or Imperial School.

From November 15, cadets who receive commissions, but do not proceed to France, will receive an outfit allowance of $100 only.

Notes on Officers.

Lt.-Col. Norman Gentles, D.S.O., Saskatchewan Regt., of Moose Jaw, has succeeded Lt.-Col. A. Douglas Cameron, M.C., of Winnipeg, as Commandant of the Canadian Training School at Bexhill.

Capt. F. T. Bown, M.C., Que., and Lt. J. J. McDonald, C.R.T., have been invalided to Canada as permanently unfit.

Capt. J. P. Lyle, W. Ont., has been invalided as unfit for G.S. six months.

Hon. Lt.-Col. and Chaplain (Rev.) J. Pringle has been returned to Canada on compassionate grounds, as has Capt. F. C. Curry, E. Ont.

Having completed his duty in England, Hon. Capt. J. W. Beatty, General List, has returned to Canada.

Lt. J. C. Murray, 7th Bn., who is staying at the Hotel Rubens, is a son of Mr. J. W. Murray, manager of the Belleville branch of the Dominion Bank. He was taken prisoner on the Somme in December, 1916, made several unsuccessful attempts to escape from German prison camps, and though in a specially guarded camp, eventually escaped to Austrian territory, where he was interned until he recently succeeded in escaping to Fiume.

N/S. Mary M. E. Chisholm has resigned her appointment in England.

Lt.-Col. G. G. Hume, C.A.D.C., has been retained in Canada

Lt.-Col. S. C. Young, Assistant Director Railways and Docks, B.E.F., France, is proceeding on leave to his home in Fort William Ont., returning to France in January

THE KAISER'S FATE.

Mr. Donald Macmaster, K.C., M.P., expresses the following views with regard to the Kaiser:—

"The Kaiser, personally, is not one whit better or worse than the average German; but he exercised despotic power, and might have prevented the war as well as the unpardonable brutalities to our prisoners. He is criminally guilty, at the Bar of Natural Justice, of ten thousand murders, and is too dangerous a culprit to be left at large on the borders of Germany in revolution, to which five millions of soldiers are now returning with arms in their hands.

"In my opinion, the Allied nations and the United Stat should demand from Holland his immediate surrender, and should deliver him as a prisoner of war for his natural lif to the custody of the French nation—the greatest punishmen and deepest humiliation to which he could be subjected Justice would be vindicated more effectually by this proc than by putting him to death. Killing is too good for him Let his own conscience and the execration of all nations be hi executioners."

("London Gazette" Supplement, November 15.)

BAR TO DISTINGUISHED CONDUCT MEDAL.

969 Cpl. W. Gough, D.C.M., Infy.

This non-commissioned officer showed conspicuous gallantry and initiative vhen his company was held up at the crossing of a river. With one rivate he rushed an enemy machine-gun post which was denying the rossing. Although under heavy fire, he pushed on regardless of danger, apturing the post, with four prisoners. (D.C.M. gazetted November 25. 916.)

30337 Sgt. G. H. Soles, D.C.M., Infy.

When a Tank which had fallen behind commenced firing upon our men, his non-commissioned officer immediately put a steel helmet on his bayonet nd ran to the Tank through a storm of bullets until he attracted their ttention and diverted the fire. His conduct in charge of a platoon throughut the operations was characterised by daring and high fighting qualities D.C.M. gazetted March 28, 1918.)

6132 Sgt. F. W. D. Sorby, D.C.M., Infy.

When his platoon was advancing on a village along a sap the enemy ttempted a flanking movement. This N.C.O. rushed out with a Lewis un, beating them off with heavy casualties. The platoon was next held p by a defended wire block. In attempting to rush it he was wounded y a bomb bursting on his helmet. He next found one of his men, who was issing, lying very badly wounded. He picked him up and carried him ack under a hail of bombs. (D.C.M. gazetted in this Gazette.)

DISTINGUISHED CONDUCT MEDAL.

273 C. S.-M. C. Allan, Infy.

After the officers of his company had become casualties he showed great adership in keeping the men together and pushing the attack home. On e way he led a small party against a strong post, which was obstructing e advance, killing several and capturing fifteen prisoners. His untiring nergy and initiative were a great asset to the men of his company.

6334 Sgt. C. T. Anderson, Infy.

When his officer became a casualty he took command of his platoon and arried them forward under heavy fire. He succeeded in capturing or lling the crews of four enemy machine guns. His excellent leadership nd great personal courage enabled his men to overcome heavy odds.

7815 Cpl. W. Appleby, M.G.C.

He went forward as a scout and brought back valuable information to s section officer. He guided his crew through heavy fire and brought it to action on several occasions, inflicting heavy casualties. His gun also t two field guns out of action.

155 Cpl. A. Armstrong, M.M., Infy.

When his officer became a casualty he took charge of his platoon on the ft flank when the troops on the left were forced to temporarily withdraw. e used his few remaining men as a flank guard to cover the withdrawal, aintained his position, and brought covering fire to bear on the enemy, nabling the flank troops to come forward. During the whole of this time e was exposed to very heavy fire and cut off from the remainder of the attalion. His courage and able leadership were most marked.

48321 Pte. J. Asteriades, Infy.

When their platoon was being held up by snipers and machine-gun fire, is man, along with a comrade, rushed two positions under very heavy re, killing or capturing five in one and seven in the other. This enabled e platoon to continue the advance to the final objective.

5124 Pte. W. Ayers, Infy.

When a machine gun held up the advance of his company, he advanced great personal risk to a position about fifty yards on the flank and pened fire, causing the crew to surrender. Later in the advance he pushed in front of his company and took up a commanding position, from hich he inflicted heavy casualties by his fire. Throughout he used his un with great effect, being responsible for many casualties.

32788 Cpl. H. R. Barnaby, Infy.

This non-commissioned officer led his machine-gun section with great kill and initiative. Twice held up by machine-gun nests, he on each ccasion organised a charge from both flanks, capturing the guns and illing both crews. His disregard of danger was a splendid example to the en.

8807 Sgt. T. Barron, Infy.

This non-commissioned officer, after his platoon commander became a asualty, took command and handled it through an artillery barrage and achine-gun fire with determination and ability. The next day he led his latoon against a machine-gun post, and dislodged the enemy with heavy sses, he himself killing two of them. He then led his men on to the nal objective.

47085 Sgt. A. Bastien, Infy.

This non-commissioned officer was in charge of the left flank of the ompany, and met strong opposition from an enemy block, which repeated ssaults failed to dislodge. Taking one man, he went forward and rushed he post with bomb and bayonet, forcing the enemy out. Twenty yards arther on he disposed of a similar block, and before reaching his objective e had successfully led rushes on six strong points. He made a passage hrough the last block by rushing forward with his rifle wire-cutters. His etermination and energy set a fine example.

47451 Pte. J. Belasko, Infy.

When the battalion was checked before a village he went forward alone, ocating an enemy post and killing an officer and two men. He coninually went alone to close quarters with the enemy, and throughout the ghting set a very fine example of courage and determination.

7666 Sgt. W. R. Bell, Infy.

While advancing through a wood in close support of the main attack he platoon which this non-commissioned officer commanded met an enemy achine-gun nest of two guns which the first wave had passed. He made skilful flank attack, killing both crews. On reaching the final objective, he colour sergeant-major having been wounded, this N.C.O. superintended he reorganisation and consolidation under heavy fire. He displayed rilliant leadership through the day.

49278 Sgt. E. Bellanger, Infy.

This non-commissioned officer was in charge of a platoon in the attack, nd handled his men with skill and determination. He captured a achine-gun nest of three guns and fifty men, personally inflicting many asualties. During the two days' fighting his coolness and determination ere a great factor in the success of his company.

2245 Sgt. P. Benoit, Infy.

As acting colour sergeant-major he rendered valuable service prior to the ttack, organising the company and distributing munitions, etc., while hroughout the fighting he was the mainstay of the commanding officer. He organised a successful rush on an enemy field gun which was firing oint blank and inflicting heavy casualties. Through the artillery barrage and machine-gun fire he remained quite cool, and set a fine example to the men.

422919 Sgt. R. B nson, Infy.

When his officer became a casualty he took command of his platoon and carried them forward under heavy fire. He succeeded in killing or capturing the crews of six enemy machine guns. His excellent leadership and great personal courage enabled his men to overcome heavy odds.

24574 Sgt. R. C. Bigland, Infy.

While acting as sergeant-major during an attack, he rallied and organised sections, and at one strong point successfully led a section against a machine-gun post, capturing the gun and killing the crew of five. His example of courage and determination to his men throughout was of great value.

24107 Cpl. P. Bowman, Infy.

Single-handed he rushed an enemy machine gun and killed the entire crew, enabling the advance to be resumed. His marked courage, initiative and devotion to duty were a great incentive to his men.

65106 Sgt. G. L. Bradley, Infy.

At the beginning of the attack all the crew of a Lewis gun became casualties. He immediately picked up the gun, organised a new crew, and carried on the attack. When the advance was held up by the enemy from a wood he worked his way to a flank and opened fire with a Lewis gun, killing four and capturing or driving off the remainder of the garrison. He was the only N.C.O. left with the platoon when the objective was reached, and he immediately set to work reorganising and consolidating with energy and initiative.

652250 Pte. J. Bucheven, Infy.

This man acted as stretcher-bearer during an attack on a village, and worked unceasingly in the open under heavy fire. During an enemy counter-attack a few days later he continued attending to the wounded although he himself was also wounded, until he was taken prisoner. He, however, succeeded in escaping and got back to the lines. His energy and untiring devotion to his duty were worthy of the highest praise.

823713 Sgt. H. Bucklee, Infy.

After his officer had become a casualty, this N.C.O. handled the platoon with skill and judgment, pushing forward against stiff resistance, and being responsible for the destruction of two enemy posts, with the killing or surrender of the garrisons. Throughout the entire operation his conduct was magnificent 427537 Cpl. F. Camm, Infy.

In an attack on a village he led his section with the greatest dash against enemy nests and successfully dealt with them. He personally killed seven of the enemy and wounded many others. He was an inspiration to his men by his resolute and fearless conduct.

240504 Sgt. J. Campbell, Infy.

When in charge of a section this N.C.O. twice rushed machine-gun posts, capturing two guns and 20 prisoners. When his section came under heavy shell fire he steadied the men, and by his cheerfulness and coolness encouraged them in their advance on the final objective. He was of immense assistance to his platoon officer.

22985 Actg. Cpl. W. Cooper, Infy.

When a strongly entrenched enemy party with two machine guns were holding up his company, he led eight men forward and captured the post, together with 60 prisoners and two machine guns. His prompt act of courage and determination enabled his company to continue their advance.

491153 Sgt. J. Copland, Infy.

In an attack on a village, when the left company was unable to advance on account of direct fire from a 7.7 c.m. gun and machine-gun fire, this N.C.O., with another N.C.O. and a section of nine men, crept round the flank, and, using smoke bombs, rushed the post with only three men who were left. They killed one officer and 17 men, putting the guns out of action. The two N.C.O.'s were the only men of the section who were not wounded, and their gallant effort enabled the line to advance.

62176 Sgt. C. Corneloup, M.M., Infy.

Prior to the attack this N.C.O. organised the company at its jumping-off ground, and, during the attack, with a party of ten men, he captured 75 prisoners. The next day one of the platoon commanders having become a casualty he took command and led it with great dash through heavy machine-gun fire to the final objective. Although wounded in the head, he superintended the consolidation of the line, setting a fine example to all ranks.

50 '802 Sgt. J. J. Coyle, M.M., Engrs.

This N.C.O. was with a party of Engineers under his officer, following the infantry attack. By his personal example he forced through the work of clearing and repairing the main road under heavy fire, so that guns and ammunition could be got up. He had been wounded two days earlier, and was again wounded while assisting another wounded man under fire, but refused to leave. He also assisted in the capture of eight men and one machine gun, which the infantry had passed.

799 77 Actg. Sergt. A. Craig, Infy.

This N.C.O. under intense fire dashed forward and charged an enemy machine-gun post single-handed. He shot the No. 1 of the gun, and turned it on the rest, causing them severe casualties. This personal act of courage contributed largely to the success of the attack.

46830 Sgt. H. Davis, M.M., Infy.

He rushed two enemy machine guns single-handed, killing the crew and capturing the guns. He also with several other men captured a battery of heavy guns. He displayed splendid courage and leadership.

1968 Sgt. F. H. Dent, A.M.C.

This N.C.O. was in charge of seven bearer squads during an attack on a village. Despite heavy shelling, machine-gun fire and thick mist, he succeeded in keeping in close touch with the infantry and directing the evacuation of the wounded. His courage and coolness were a help to all around him.

55821 C.S.-M. H. Dewar, M.M., Infy.

He showed exceptional ability in leading his party in the attack, and when the objective was gained continued his good work in reorganising and consolidating under difficult conditions. His coolness and leadership throughout were of the greatest assistance to his company commander.

814453 Cpl. J. Disley, Infy.

During an attack this N.C.O. pushed a Lewis gun forward, bringing enfilade fire to bear with telling effect on enemy machine-gun posts. The following day he covered the right flank of the attack, and at a critical moment, by the fire of his Lewis gun, not only prevented a serious check, but cut off twenty of the enemy, being wounded just as he was taking them prisoners

435841 L.-Sgt. A. B. Dixon, Infy.

He led his platoon splendidly, and his fine spirit gave confidence to those under him and caused them to gain their objective. He was twice wounded, but cheered his men on in face of very heavy fire. He showed great courage and devotion to duty.

104025 Sgt. J. S. Donaldson, M.M., Infy.

He assumed command of half the company after his officers had become casualties, and successfully led his men over five thousand yards in face of strenuous opposition to their objective. He displayed determined courage and fine leadership.

193462 Sgt. C. Doolittle, Infy.

He led his platoon with great skill and dash in an attack, capturing three machine guns. Later, though wounded, he encouraged and directed his men forward. His fine example of courage and determination inspired all under his command.

404579 L.-Sgt. J. Dormer, Infy.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in command of the Lewis gun section during an advance. He got his section through a heavy barrage at a certain point without casualties. When held up by an enemy machine gun he personally rushed the post, killing the crew. On nearing the objective, he rendered invaluable assistance in manœuvring three Lewis gun crews, and by their action on the flanks enabled the platoon to advance. He showed marked courage and ability.

463259 Sgt. W. Draper, Infy.

He organised a party and rushed a machine gun, capturing the gun and killing the crew, most of whom he accounted for personally. His prompt and fearless action enabled the advance to be continued, and throughout the whole of the attack his splendid work inspired his men to great efforts.

150068 Sgt. M. Duffy, M.M., M.G.C.

His section commander being early wounded, he took command, and showed great dash and disregard for his own safety. He went forward alone many times, reconnoitring positions and approaches, and brought his guns into action most effectively, inflicting great losses on the enemy. He set a splendid example to those under him.

41499 Sgt. D. C. Duncan, F.A.

This N.C.O. was in charge of a section in support of an infantry attack, close up to deal with machine-gun nests. Before moving off the section had eight drivers wounded and eight horses killed. With great coolness and resource he replaced the casualties and moved the guns to a flank, from where they were able to give efficient support to the infantry. His work has always been of a high order.

55414 C.S.-M. W. T. Dyball, Infy.

When held up by a machine-gun post, this W.O. organised a small party, and in face of great odds succeeded in capturing or killing the crew. Although severely wounded in the foot at the beginning of the fight, he refused to stop until the final objective was reached. His coolness and leadership were a great asset.

2223345 Pte. J. Egan, M.G. Corps.

During an advance this man was severely wounded, but persisted in carrying his gun forward from point to point until the critical phase of the action was over. His determination to carry on despite the painful nature of his wound inspired all with him.

748956 Pte. C. A. Elliott, Infy.

Along with his officer he helped to guide a company in the attack, skilfully evading the heavy field of fire, and assisting to capture and destroy the concealed machine guns and crews which were holding up the advance. Although seriously wounded, his resource and devotion throughout were of the highest order.

231029 Cpl. H. Ellis, Infy.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in charge of a Lewis gun section during an advance. Though early wounded, he carried on, and was with the first to reach the final objective, where he was again wounded. His fine courage and leadership instilled the greatest confidence in his men.

79 909 Sgt. R. G. Evelyn, M.M., Infy.

He discovered a machine-gun post in a church tower which was inflicting heavy casualties. He led his men forward, and succeeded in killing the crew and capturing the gun under extremely heavy fire and difficult circumstances. His behaviour throughout the whole of the attack was splendid.

5665 Sgt. H. J. Faulkner, M.M., Engrs.

He went forward with one signaller under heavy fire, and kept in touch with lamp station at advanced brigade headquarters until within two hundred yards of the objective. Here the ground was heavily swept by machine-gun fire, and he was only saved by the action of a Tank, which cleared the position. He set a splendid example of enterprise and devotion to duty.

436148 Pte. J. W. Faulkner, L.T.M. By.

Pte. Faulkner, with a N.C.O. and nine men, annihilated an enemy machine-gun nest and a 7.7 c.m. gun crew during an attack on a village. The approach was made in the face of intense fire under cover of smoke bombs, but at the finish, after completely destroying the crews of the gun and machine guns, Pte. Faulkner and the N.C.O. were the only members of their party who were not casualties. Owing to this gallant effort the whole line at that point was able to advance.

1093043 Pte. A. R. Fenwick, Infy.

Although his Lewis gun crew, with the exception of one man, became casualties, he pressed forward and put out of action three successive machine guns, following this up by capturing four machine guns and one officer and twelve men. The destruction of these posts enabled his platoon to go forward without delay.

33253 S.-Sgt. J. Ferguson, A.M.C.

This N.C.O. displayed exceptional devotion to duty under heavy fire in personally organising his stretcher-bearers, so that the battlefield in his vicinity was rapidly and efficiently cleared of wounded.

1982 Sgt. F. Foster, A.M.C.

During an attack on enemy positions in front of a village, in thick mist, this non-commissioned officer controlled and directed his bearer squads with coolness and resource, dressing cases in the open under heavy fire, and managing to keep up with the advance. His disregard of danger materially assisted in the speedy evacuation of the wounded.

736580 Sgt. J. W. Foster, Infy.

When his platoon was suffering from heavy machine-gun fire, this non-commissioned officer went forward, and at great risk located the machine-gun nest. Returning to his platoon, he organised and led an attack, capturing the post, and opening the way for the advance of the company. His coolness and resource throughout were an inspiration to his men.

138574 Sgt. T. F. Fudge, Infy.

With one other man this non-commissioned officer rushed a machine-gun post, killing eight of the enemy and taking two prisoners. This feat enabled his platoon to push forward. His coolness throughout the attack was most noticeable.

[illegible] J. Fulton, M.M., Engrs.

He and his party followed the centre battalion, laying and maintaining the line as they went forward. He behaved with marked courage, energy and devotion to duty under heavy fire.

81299 Sgt. W. J. Garratt, M.M., Can. Infy.

After his officers had become casualties he assumed command of half the company and successfully led them over five hundred yards through heavy fighting to their objective. He displayed determined courage and fine leadership.

469861 Actg. C.Q.-M.S. W. F. Gauld, M.M., Infy.

When his platoon was held up by a field gun firing point blank, he assisted his platoon commander in leading a party round the flank, where they opened fire with a Lewis gun, and, charging the post, put the gun out of action. After his commander was wounded he led the platoon with great skill and daring in attacks on two villages. He then volunteered to gain touch with the company on the left, which he succeeded in doing under very heavy fire.

69319 Sgt. (Actg. C.S.-M.) J. F. Gilbert, M.M., Infy.

When the platoon commander and senior non-commissioned officers had become casualties, this warrant officer, at a critical period of the advance, took charge, and led the platoon to its objective. Although wounded, he refused to leave until the objective was gained. The success of the attack was largely due to his coolness and initiative.

657512 Cpl. T. D. Gilbert, Infy.

In the first day's fighting on a river, this non-commissioned officer assisted his company to clear several nests of enemy machine guns, which enabled the attack to be brought to a successful conclusion. The next day, when the attack was held up, he directed the fire of his Lewis gun section, and then, rushing forward, captured a machine gun and crew single-handed.

434249 Cpl. T. C. Greenwood, M.M., Infy.

He led his men splendidly, and outflanked a strong enemy garrison and captured three machine guns. He took forward and used one of these guns against another enemy position, which he captured, together with ten prisoners. He displayed courage and leadership of a high order.

919393 Pte. C. H. Grogg, Infy.

Just before reaching its objective the battalion was held up by machine-gun fire. This man rushed his gun forward for over 150 yards of open ground and opened fire on the enemy. He was severely wounded, but kept on firing until a stretcher-bearer arrived and dressed his wound. While being dressed he fired several bursts, and his dashing conduct no doubt saved many lives.

174582 Sgt. C. Harley, Inf.

During an advance a trench on the right flank of the battalion offered stubborn resistance. This non-commissioned officer detached a party of twenty men and rushed the position in the face of strong opposition. After bombing the post and bayonetting many of the garrison, the remainder surrendered, over 100 prisoners and four machine guns being captured.

A36221 Sgt. R. S. Harris, M.M., M.G.C.

He brought his guns into action under heavy machine-gun fire and successfully dealt with the enemy machine guns. He took command of the section when his officer was wounded, and most ably controlled and guided them through heavy shell fire. His courage and ability won the confidence of all under him.

696120 Pte. R. A. Harron, Infy.

With two other men, under heavy fire, he captured an enemy machine gun and crew, which was the more difficult as the gun was firing from the apex of two belts of wire. Later, when his company was forced to fall back, he undertook to bring out his wounded platoon officer, and did so successfully at great personal risk. He behaved throughout with marked courage and determination.

648409 Pte. H. E. Heggart, M.M., Mtd. Rif.

When the line was being consolidated, this man, as stretcher-bearer, although wounded, rescued two wounded machine gunners, crossing an open space of fifty yards, swept by fire, four times. He rescued many wounded by his coolness and disregard of fire.

171786 Sgt. A. K. Hibbert, M.M., Engrs.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty while in charge of forward signal communication for the brigade. Under extremely trying conditions he successfully maintained communication by telephone with the storming battalions. The area over which he worked was continuously shelled and swept with machine-gun fire. He showed great initiative throughout and rendered valuable service.

797119 Pte. (Actg. Lce.-Cpl.) W. G. Hill, Infy.

This non-commissioned officer, whilst guiding a body of scouts, encountered an enemy machine-gun post in a wood which was difficult to locate owing to mist. Placing his men under cover, he crawled forward and, capturing the look-out man, called to his comrades, who encircled and dislodged the post, capturing the gun and crew. His judgment in handling a difficult situation was most praiseworthy.

229295 Sgt. G. F. Hilliard, Infy.

He led a party of men against a strong enemy post in a wood, and with one other N.C.O. and six men was responsible for the capture of twelve machine guns and two hundred prisoners. His splendid courage and initiative cleared the way for his battalion's advance, and he rendered invaluable service.

742204 C.S.-M. G. G. K. Holder, M.M., Infy.

When the right flank of the company was held up by a machine-gun post this W.O. took charge of the men on the left and rushed forward with them, capturing the guns and clearing the advance. He gave his company commander great assistance in reorganising the company when the objective was reached.

745686 Cpl. (Actg. Sgt.) R. Hollidge, M.M., Infy.

When his platoon was held up by a machine-gun post he and his officer started to rush it. His officer was killed, but he seized the gun and turned it on to the crew, killing the whole six. He then turned it on to the enemy in rear, causing them many casualties. Later he was among the first to enter a village, and did splendid work with a Lewis gun. Throughout he showed the greatest courage and determination.

414908 Pte. C. Hopton, Infy.

Single-handed he attacked and captured an enemy machine gun, killing the crew. Later, he accounted for several of the enemy. He behaved with splendid courage and determination.

223311 C.S.-M. J. Hudgins, Infy.

During an advance over open flat country, under heavy machine-gun and snipers' fire, this warrant officer was continually in and out amongst the men, cheering them on and assisting in directing the fire, and finally leading them in a successful assault. Later, his energy and disregard of danger were most helpful in consolidating the position.

7866 Sgt. F. Hughes, Infy.

This N.C.O., acting as C.S.M., rendered invaluable service in two days' fighting, by keeping close liaison between platoons and the company commander, under intense fire of every description. He made a reconnaissance with his company commander of machine-gun posts which were holding up the advance, which resulted in their being outflanked and destroyed. He showed tireless energy throughout the operations.

A34735 Cpl. E. M Hume, Infy.

He led his platoon cleverly round an enemy strong point and rushed it, killing five of a gun crew and capturing the gun and 30 prisoners. After being wounded he continued to lead his section with great gallantry, and throughout set a splendid example to his men.

210436 Pte. C. N. Hurd, Infy.

This man approached within a few yards of a post which was strongly resisting, and opened fire with a Lewis gun. This did not effectively silence the enemy, so with another man he worked up a trench and rushed the post, killing at least ten.

63491 Sgt. J. J. Jackson, Infy.

This N.C.O. took charge of the company when his company commander and three platoon officers were wounded, making an advance of 50 yards through a heavy machine-gun barrage and drove the enemy out of a village. He was wounded the next day, after most efficient work.

202138 L.-Sgt. R. H. Jackson, Infy.

When his platoon officer and sergeant had both been killed while attacking a machine-gun nest, he took command, and, reorganising the men, cleverly manœuvred them and captured the post of two machine guns and 18 men. He then led his platoon to the final objective, saving casualties by his skilful handling. He was a splendid example to his men.

171911 L.-Sgt. W. Jennings, Infy.

This N.C.O. single-handed rushed two enemy machine-gun posts and bayonetted the crew. On nearing the final objective there was a machine gun at some cross-roads which held up the right flank of the advance. He worked round it, tackling the entire crew of six men by himself. He bayonetted five, but the last man wounded him severely. His work and cheerfulness when wounded were an inspiration to his men.

404376 Sgt. J. Jessop, Infy.

When battalion headquarters came under heavy machine-gun fire from a large force of the enemy, this non-commissioned officer handled his section with firmness, and, though suffering many casualties, continued to advance, and drove the enemy back. The next day he showed courage and resource in repairing telephone wires under heavy fire and restoring communications. He set a fine example throughout the two days' fighting.

809009 Pte. W. R. Johnson, M.M., Infy.

In company with another man, he rushed a nest of snipers working with a machine gun, bayonetting some of the occupants and capturing the remainder. His dash and courage inspired the men of his company He has consistently done excellent work.

59530 R.S.-M. T. F. Jordan, M.C., Infy.

When the left flank of the battalion advance was held up by the resistance of two enemy machine-gun posts, this warrant officer quickly reorganised the men near him and led them to help the company which was dealing with these posts. His prompt action led to the destruction of both posts, one of which was dealt with by his men and himself. He was then seriously wounded. He has set a gallant example on numerous occasions the last three years.

788242 L -Sgt. E. L Kelly, Infy.

When his platoon became separated from the rest of the company in a thick fog, and his officer was wounded, he took command, and by skilful manœuvring rushed a machine-gun post, which he captured, as well as a brigade headquarters. He then pushed on and joined another company of the battalion, showing great initiative. The next day he skilfully established an outpost line on high ground.

874958 Pte. R. A. Kenney, Infy.

This man, acting as battalion scout, assisted to locate the bridges over a river under heavy fire. Later, in a counter-attack by the enemy, he with four others worked round their flank and rushed a patrol, killing six out of seven. This man was full of resource and courage.

126712 Pte. V. T. Keough, Infy.

Single-handed he rushed three machine guns, killing at least fifteen of the enemy. He set a splendid example of courage and devotion to duty.

416782 Pte. E. Latour, Infy.

Single-handed he captured fourteen of the enemy, besides killing over fifty with his Lewis gun. At the consolidation he used his gun to great advantage on the retreating enemy. He showed great courage and rendered invaluable service.

144933 Cpl. J. C. Long, Infy.

When nearing the objective this Cpl.'s section met a strong enemy bombing post. He organised a flank attack, shooting and bayoneting four and capturing the remainder of the garrison. His gallantry and leadership enabled his platoon to get through an intense hostile barrage.

770045 Pte. J. Loveridge, Infy.

This man did valuable work as a stretcher-bearer. His courage and initiative saved many lives, and he set a fine example to his comrades.

761017 Pte. W. McCaughey, M.G.C.

His cheerful example and fighting ability saved his guns when encircling a wood. He advanced alone when held up by enemy machine guns, and single-handed bombed and shot nine of the enemy. His action allowed the advance of the gun crew to proceed without interruption. Throughout he showed great courage and determination.

715701 Pte. A. O. McDonald, Infy.

While his section was engaging a machine-gun post from the front, this man, on his own initiative, worked his way round to the rear, capturing the whole garrison of thirty men and eight machine guns. He was exposed to heavy rifle and machine-gun fire.

79862 Sgt. (Actg. C.S.-M.) J. McIntosh, Infy.

After his platoon officer had become a casualty he took charge of the platoon, and by skilful leading captured a strong post. Later, when his platoon was held up by a machine-gun post, he rushed ahead, attacking and dispersing the crew. His conduct and coolness were a great example to his men.

766443 Cpl. P. McIntosh, Infy.

When his platoon officer and sergeant had become casualties, he took command, and under heavy fire worked his men to the final objective with great skill, killing and capturing many of the enemy. His work was an example that inspired all ranks.

529620 Pte. A. F. Mackinnon, A.M.C.

This man led his squad into a wood under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, and succeeded in clearing into safety many wounded. A few days later he again did exceptional work under heavy shell fire in a village, attending to wounded. His coolness and judgment were responsible for the safety of many wounded.

79953 L.-Sgt. C. R. MacKinnon, Infy.

This N.C.O., seeing a light enemy field gun coming into action, rushed ahead with a Lewis gun, and put it out of action, killing and wounding the entire team. Later, he prevented a party of the enemy capturing one of our small Tanks, which was out of action. When his platoon was held up by a machine gun, he dashed forward, bayonetted three men, and captured the gun. He showed splendid courage and coolness throughout.

476805 Driver J. M. G. McLane, F.A.

During a bombardment by aircraft at night the wagon lines were heavily bombed, a number of casualties being caused to personnel and horses. This driver organised rescue parties and sent for ambulances. For more than an hour the place was bombed, the work of rescue being made more dangerous by the explosion of an ammunition dump. His coolness and organising ability inspired those with him, and saved many lives.

844844 Pte. C. L. McLean, Infy.

During an attack this man, with some of his platoon, worked his way up to an enemy strong post. He then rushed it, capturing three machine guns, two light trench mortars and three prisoners, besides inflicting heavy losses on those who retreated. His courage and dash set a splendid example to the men working with him.

687962 Sgt. D. H. McLean, Infy.

This N.C.O., in charge of a scout section, preceded his battalion in company with an officer. He successfully led his section against four machine-gun posts, and on each occasion captured the guns and killed, wounded or captured the crews, personally accounting for at least twelve himself A few days later he led a small party against a strong post, killing two and capturing the remainder of the garrison.

426252 Sgt. H. S. McLennan, Infy.

This N.C.O. showed great ability in organising for the capture of machine guns and strong points, which impeded the advance at different times, and did not fail in any instance to put them out of action. He showed confidence in himself and resource, which kept all up to concert pitch during a long advance.

187214 Sgt. G. H. McNeill, Infy.

On his platoon officer being killed, he led the platoon to its objective through heavy machine-gun and rifle fire. After this he led another platoon to a flank, where he broke up an enemy counter-attack. He then crept forward with one man and captured a machine gun and twelve men in a wood. Although severely wounded, he continued at duty until ordered to leave. He showed great determination throughout.

633512 Pte. A. McPhee, Infy.

After his Lewis gun crew had suffered heavy casualties, he continued to move forward with only one man, and with daring initiative outflanked a bombing post, which he put out of action, killing the whole garrison Later, he destroyed a machine-gun post. On reaching the final objective, he rushed a heavily manned trench, and caused the surrender of the officer and nine men. He set an inspiring example.

412410 Cpl. A. McWade, Infy.

He first cut a lane through ours and the enemy wire, and in the attack led his platoon, most gallantly jumping into a machine-gun emplacement and killing the crew. Although early wounded, he continued to lead his men with splendid courage and determination, and personally killed more of the enemy than any other man in the company.

1009911 Pte. L. McWhinnie, Infy.

Though early wounded, he continued to direct his section throughout the operation, and successfully rushed a machine-gun nest, capturing three machine guns and killing or capturing the crews. He himself killed four of the enemy His courage and devotion to duty were a splendid example to all.

147664 Sgt. D. Madowell, Infy.

Under very heavy fire and through fog mixed with gas he led his men to the final objective. When held up by an enemy machine gun he went forward alone and put the crew out of action and captured the gun. His conduct throughout operations was excellent, and his courage and able leadership most marked.

292216 Sgt. C. N. Mains, Infy.

After his officers had become casualties, he took command of the company, rallied them under heavy machine-gun fire, and led them successfully in the final attack. He showed marked courage and ability to command.

404399 Sgt, W. B. Martin, Infy.

After his platoon officer had become a casualty, this N.C.O. took command and continued the attack, overcoming enemy strong points. He was responsible for killing eight of the enemy with the bayonet, and at the same time handled his platoon with coolness and resource, taking full advantage of cover. His action throughout was an inspiration to his men.

222481 Sgt. J. A. Maxwell, Infy.

He went from section to section as they were held up, and by his skill and coolness cleared the opposition, making the advance possible. When the objective was reached he made an invaluable reconnaissance under heavy machine-gun fire, locating various units, and directing the consolidation.

59649 B.S.-M. J. Q. Meeks, M.M., M.G. Corps,

Throughout four days' operations he showed coolness and determination in command of a battery of guns. On one occasion, when the advance was held up by machine-gun fire, he rushed forward alone, and with bombs killed the crew and captured the gun. He showed great skill in handling his guns under difficult conditions

469536 Sgt. P. H. Mitchell, Infy.

When the company was held up by fire from a machine-gun post, this N.C.O. with an officer and a man rushed it, the officer being wounded and the man killed, but the gun and crew were captured. Later, although wounded, he moved up a Lewis gun section to outflank a machine-gun nest which was blocking the advance; eight machine guns and twenty-five men were captured 700853 Pte. E. J. Moore, Infy.

Single-handed he attacked an enemy machine gun, capturing the gun and killing the crew of four. Throughout he set a splendid example of courage and devotion to duty.

461360 Sgt. D. Morrow, Infy.

He went forward and cleared a gap in wire under enemy machine-gun fire at close range, leading his platoon and breaking up the defence at that point. He killed four of the enemy in mopping up, and showed great courage and ability to command.

475468 Spr. (Acting 2nd Cpl.) E. F. Mount, Engrs.

This man carried urgent operation despatches to one of the assaulting divisions, the headquarters of which was continually on the move. After six hours' search, over shell-torn and congested roads, and despite continuous hostile fire, the concussion from which twice lifted him from his machine, severely injuring him, he finally delivered his despatches, and brought back situation reports. His work undoubtedly assisted in the success of the operations.

736803 Cpl. R. A. Murray, Infy.

When the advance was twice held up by machine-gun nests, he led his men beyond the posts and attacked from the rear. In order to exactly locate the nests, he first drew fire on himself, and then, working round the flanks, captured the guns and killed the crews. His coolness, cunning and leadership were most praiseworthy.

23172 Sgt. W. Myers, M.M., Infy.

Acting as C.S.M. when only one officer and very few N.C.O.'s were left, owing to machine-gun fire, he dashed forward to a heavy belt of wire, and, reconnoitring the passages through it, led a section up, when he was wounded. His energy and dash were a great incentive to his men at a critical time.

2350356 Pte. W. Neil, Infy.

When his platoon was being help up by snipers and machine-gun fire, this man, along with a comrade, rushed two posts under very heavy fire.

killing or capturing five in one and seven in the other. This enabled the platoon to advance to the final objective

769474 Sgt. J. W. Nutter, Infy.

This N.C.O. led his platoon across the open and charged a machine gun, which was holding up the advance. Although wounded, he insisted on carrying on, and when the front line companies were held up by machine-gun fire near the final objective, he led two sections forward in support, charging up a hill and gaining the crest, where he was again wounded while gallantly pressing on.

142488 Sgt. F. A. O'Donnell, M.M., Infy.

This N.C.O. led his platoon in the first wave of the attack through intense machine-gun fire. Although practically all his men became casualties, he gained the objective. The following day, while acting as platoon sergeant, he was severely wounded by a shell burst early in the attack. He has always distinguished himself.

195181 C.S.-M. H. O'Heron, M.M., Infy.

This W.O. went forward with his company, which was checked by terrific machine-gun fire from a bit of ground overlooking the level along which the attack was coming. The company commander and both the officers of the leading platoons became casualties. Without any hesitation he took command and reached the objective. His coolness and resource led to the final success of the company's attack.

919302 Cpl. J. C. O'Toole, Infy.

This man went out with his sergeant against a machine gun which was firing on the company from a wood. They captured the gun and twelve men. Later, he volunteered with another man to establish communication with the unit on the right. The two men ran into an enemy patrol of one officer and twenty men, whom they forced to surrender and brought into the lines

288033 Sgt. N. W. Pace, Infy.

For conspicuous gallantry while in charge of battalion scouts in forward service during an attack on a village. He was the first to enter the village, continually leading small rushes against enemy parties in face of heavy machine-gun fire. Later, he held an advanced block against enemy attacks, at one time being entirely surrounded. He set a very fine example of courage and determination to his men.

59768 Sgt. J. Packer, Infy.

During the advance he organised all stragglers that had gone astray in a thick mist, and on three successive occasions led his party against machine-gun nests, killing or capturing the crews. Later, he met a battery of field guns in action in a village, which he charged, killing the crews His courage and example were of a high order.

A2390 Cpl. (Actg. Sgt.) W. E. Pagett, Infy.

During severe fighting this N.C.O. worked his way up a shallow disused trench to a machine-gun post, which he engaged single-handed, killing two and taking the remaining four prisoners. He then turned the gun on to the retreating enemy and inflicted heavy casualties.

907662 Pte. J. Paton, Infy.

When an enemy machine-gun was causing heavy casualties, he dashed forward over seventy-five yards of open ground in face of the heavy fire and rushed the gunner, killing him and putting the gun out of action. By his splendid courage and promptitude he saved many casualties, and greatly facilitated the advance.

A20447 C.S.-M. J. Porter, Infy.

This warrant officer rendered most valuable service in assembling his company in the dark on ground that had not previously been reconnoitred During the action, when part of the company was held up by machine-gun fire, he organised a flank attack which put it out of action. He set a fine example, and saved many lives by his gallantry and initiative

178020 C.S.-M. E. E. Potter, M.M., Infy.

When a machine-gun post was checking the attack this warrant officer collected a few stragglers, and by skilful manœuvring outflanked the post, and, rushing it, captured the gun and crew. He has at all times been a tower of strength to his company.

887111 Actg. C.S.-M. R. Quilliam, Infy.

He showed marked initiative and resource in handling his men, and led them fearlessly in face of heavy fire. On one occasion he, with five other men, rushed and captured two machine guns, killing or capturing nine of the enemy. He set a splendid example to his men.

892273 Pte. R. Rae, Infy.

When his battalion was held up in a wood he rushed an enemy gun pit which held three snipers and killed one of them, while the other two surrendered Later, when the enemy tried to break through, he used his machine gun with great effect, and was the cause of about forty of the enemy surrendering. He did splendid work and behaved most gallantly.

7677 Sgt. J. Robertson, Infy

When the company met very determined resistance from massed machine guns this non-commissioned officer's commander was killed. He immediately took charge of the platoon, and with only one other N.C.O. to help led it through severe fighting in a village, showing all the qualities of leadership and determination.

474200 Pte. C. Russell, Infy.

Although a company runner, he greatly assisted to carry forward the charge of a platoon on two enemy field guns. The gunners were killed or captured and three horses killed. Private Russell mounted a horse, and, regardless of enemy fire, galloped to various parts of the line with messages rendering valuable assistance in guiding detachments of his company to their objective. He rendered splendid service throughout the three days' operations.

304306 Sgt. E. J. Ryan, F.A.

During the temporary absence of the section commander this non-commissioned officer learnt that some neighbouring troops were held up by a nest of machine guns in a hedge. He immediately brought the fire of the section to bear on this point at close range, thereby neutralising the machine guns and allowing the advance to continue. This non-commissioned officer showed the greatest coolness throughout, setting a splendid example to the men.

835669 Lce.-Cpl. C. R. Salsbury, Infy.

This man was section commander of the leading section, which came under intense machine-gun fire, losing all its Lewis gunners; so he took the gun and brought it into action, neutralising the enemy's fire. Then, with his officer, who was at once mortally wounded, he rushed the enemy post, seizing their machine gun and turning it on the flying enemy, after which he brought his wounded officer back under heavy fire. The following day his work was also a splendid example to all.

796597 Pte. P. Shand, Infy.

When his company was in the act of crossing a river it was suddenly fired upon at close range by an enemy machine gun. Without a moment's hesitation this man, with his section commander, rushed the gun, capturing it and four prisoners. This feat enabled the company to continue its crossing of the river.

118096 Sgt. J. M. Shields, Infy.

When about eighty of the enemy were cut off by his platoon and attempted to break through, he strenuously opposed them, killing four before he was wounded He continued in the attack until the objective was reached He showed absolute disregard of danger, and set a fine example to his men

416766 Pte. D. Simard, Infy.

Single-handed he captured a machine gun and killed the crew. Throughout he set a splendid example of courage and initiative to younger soldiers.

427464 Sgt. J. P. Smith, Infy.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during an attack When his officer became a casualty he took command of his platoon and carried them forward under heavy fire. He succeeded in killing or capturing the crews of four enemy machine guns. His excellent leadership and great personal courage enabled his men to overcome heavy odds.

466132 Lce.-Cpl. F. W. D. Sorby, Infy.

He employed his Lewis gun to great tactical advantage, killing a large number of the enemy. By giving covering fire with his gun, he was responsible for the capture of two strong points by his section. He rendered most valuable service.

A36226 Sgt. A. Stead, Infy.

When a platoon was scattered by enemy machine-gun fire, this N.C.O. organised the sections and took them forward. He then collected the remainder of another company and brought them forward through a machine-gun barrage. The word of this N.C.O. constantly inspired the men to push forward, and his leading was of the highest order.

21764 Sgt. J. Stephen, Infy.

This non-commissioned officer's platoon officer was wounded when the platoon was a mile from its objective, whereupon he took charge and led it through. It had to wheel to the left to capture some guns, but by his grasp of the situation and determination the movement was successfully performed, though under heavy machine-gun fire at the time.

425358 Cpl. P. Stevens, Infy.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty when in charge of the battalion signal section during an attack. He showed the greatest initiative and resource, and shortly after the attack had passed a half-way point he had a forward station established with direct communication to brigade. Throughout he showed utter disregard of personal fatigue or danger, and rendered invaluable service.

883210 Cpl. C. Stewart, Infy.

This non-commissioned officer took charge of his platoon after his sergeant was killed, and, though wounded himself, led his men to the attack of a strong post, which he rushed, killing the crew and capturing the gun. He was again wounded, but led his men till the final objective was gained. His utter disregard of danger greatly encouraged his men

718967 Pte. F. Sumner, M.M., Infy.

This man charged sixteen of the enemy, including two officers, single-handed, killing one officer and one man and taking the remainder prisoners. Subsequently his platoon officer and sergeant were shot dead by a sniper, and he instantly dashed up at point-blank range and killed him. Regardless of danger, he put many of the enemy out of action, setting a splendid example to his comrades.

829340 Pte. O. G. Swire, M.M., Infy.

For conspicuous gallantry in an attack made by another unit. He took charge of a party whose non-commissioned officers had become casualties, and held a block assigned to him for several hours. He killed three of the enemy, and showed great courage throughout.

29028 Sgt. A. R. Taylor, Infy.

Following the advance and in the midst of heavy machine-gun fire and shelling, this non-commissioned officer led his stretcher-bearers, bandaging the wounded, and sending them back to the dressing stations. The promptness and precision with which he organised the evacuation of the wounded no doubt saved many lives.

1431 Lce.-Sgt. N. M. Taylor, A.M.C.

At the risk of his life, under heavy shell-fire, this non-commissioned officer dressed many wounded and superintended their evacuation to the R.A.P. He remained out in this exposed position until bearers and wounded had reached a safe place. By his gallant determination he undoubtedly saved many lives.

59969 C.S.-M. S. Thomas, Infy.

This W.O. by his initiative and resource was largely responsible in keeping the direction of his company through a heavy mist. He led a party against a machine-gun nest under heavy fire, capturing three guns and shooting six of the crew with his revolver. He set a splendid example throughout the fighting.

79639 Sgt. I. Tidswell, M.M., Infy.

When this N.C.O.'s platoon was held up by a strong machine-gun post he went forward alone, reconnoitred the post, came back, and directed his platoon to a flank, then personally rushed the post in front to cause a diversion, and so allowed the platoon to dash in and capture over thirty of the enemy. His conduct in this case and on previous occasions set a splendid example to the men of his platoon.

624758 Sgt B. M. Tremming, Infy.

This N.C.O., acting as battalion scout sergeant, showed great coolness and resource in assisting to locate bridges under exceptionally heavy fire. Although badly bruised and shaken by a shell burst, he continued at his job. A few days later, during an enemy counter-attack, he, with ten scouts, held a flank. While assisting a wounded man he was himself badly wounded.

602808 Pte. G. Van Valkenburg, Infy.

He led his section with great dash and determination, mopping up a number of dug-outs and capturing a machine-gun and killing the crew. He was responsible for the capture of twenty-three prisoners and a quantity of valuable information. He did splendid work.

449002 Cpl. E. Villeneuve, Infy.

This N.C.O., in charge of battalion scouts, made several reconnaissances, during one of which he rushed a machine gun, killing the No. 1 and capturing the gun and the remainder of the crew, opening the way for the battalion's advance. After the battalion had consolidated, he again made valuable reconnaissances, sending back information of the highest importance to his C.O.

195236 Pte. W. Waterson, Infy.

This man, when a party of infantry were held up, approached to within a few yards of an enemy post, and opened fire with a Lewis gun. This did not effectively silence the enemy, so he, with another man, worked up a trench and rushed the post, killing at least ten.

77571 C.S.-M. J. L. Watson, M.M., Infy.

This W.O. led his men against many machine-gun nests with great coolness and dash, his quickness in attack with the bayonet being most remarkable. Although wounded in the leg, he refused to go back until the final objective was gained.

434623 Pte. (Actg. Lce.-Cpl.) W. G. Watson, Infy.

This signaller worker with the greatest energy in keeping up communication under heavy fire. On one occasion he located a nest of eight of the enemy, and, together with two men, he captured the lot. Throughout the operations he showed an utter disregard for his personal safety

204396 Sgt. J. H. Wells, Infy.

This N.C.O. was advancing with his platoon through the mist when he ran against an enemy machine-gun post. He immediately dashed forward, and single-handed captured the gun, killing some of the crew and taking some prisoners. His quickness and daring were worthy of the highest praise.

THE LONDON MARKET.

Stock Exchange Settling Days :—

CONSOLS PAY DAY, Monday, Dec. 2.

Ticket Day.	Pay Day.
Wed., Nov. 27.	Thurs., Nov. 28.

LONDON, Tuesday.

The Canadian section has been no exception to the prevailing heaviness, though here, as elsewhere, there has been no pressure to sell. The gilt-edged issues of the Dominion have shown resistance, and are about unchanged on balance, the 4½ per Cents. standing at 95. the Fours around 84, and the 3½ per Cents. at 73. Canadian municipal bonds have also been steady in the main. Edmonton Fives, at 80½, are a point to the good, but there is little other quotable change either way.

Among railroads, Canadian Pacifics are dull around 181. Grand Trunk senior issues have held their ground, but junior stocks are ¼ to ½ down, and the 2nd Pref. at 53 has shed a point. Grand Trunk Pacific 4 per Cent. Debs. at 62 are 1 better.

Hudson's Bays, in the land group, have further eased to 8¾ on light realising.

The industrial department has shown no pronounced tendency, and there has been little business to test values. Canadian Cars are unaltered at 56, but the Pref. has gained 2 at 99½. Canada Cements remained at 71 and Dominion Steels at 65. Lake Superiors, at 19, are a point weaker. There has been an improvement of 2 to 330 in Cities Services Common.

Brazil Tractions have been adversely affected with other Brazilian issues by the less favourable exchange, and are back to 57, but Mexican Light and Power has risen well to 40, and Mexico Trams issues are 2 to 3 points better.

Canadian silver mining shares have ruled dull, with quotations occasionally 3d. to 6d. easier.

OUR TORONTO LETTER.

TORONTO, November 1.

As you will have seen by my former letters, the Canadian security markets did not maintain in October the activity and strength which characterised them during the two preceding months. Still, though buying was held in check by influences to which I alluded last week, the tone continued to be generally good, and, despite a break in prices towards the end of the month, a good many stocks closed the month with net gains. Movements were too irregular for any general deductions to be drawn, but, as I have previously noted, there seemed to be a gradual concentration of interest upon stocks which might definitely be classed as "peace" issues.

The steel stocks were, on the whole, weaker, though towards the end of the month Dominion Steel came in for a sharp rally. Western Grocers, Ltd., has issued a circular proposing to pay off, early in 1919, its arrears of Preferred dividends by the issues of Preferred stock in lieu of cash for the 35 per cent. which will have accumulated by the end of 1918. The proposal is to issue shares of $100 par value, and shareholders whose dividends do not amount to $100, or to even multiples thereof, will be asked to put up the difference in cash. If this offer is accepted the directors propose to put the Preferred stocks on a regular 7 per cent. per annum basis, commencing with the first quarter of 1919. The proposal is in general commented upon favourably as being in the best interests of both Preferred and Common stock holders. Spanish River is reported to be about to combine its two Preferred stocks into one issue. The proposal is to give holders of the original Preferred stock a scrip bonus in lieu of one year's deferred dividend. As the two issues would thus, as regards dividend position, be placed on an equality, the principal difficulty in the combination of the two issues would be removed. Under this scheme there would be but one class of preferred stock, the total amount of which would be $5,699,100. Another interesting suggestion concerns the Toronto Street Railway, and is to the effect that the City and the company should become partners in the enterprise, which would continue under the management of the company; that a sliding scale of fares should be arranged to cover the cost of the service, automatically increasing or decreasing from year to year as costs rise or fall; and that the service should be given "at cost," cost to include a dividend of 6 per cent. on the company's stock.

Among market quotations at the end of October, Dominion Steel is 63¼, Steel of Canada 63⅞, Scotia 66, Can. Car 32, pref. 84, Cement 64½, Can. Gen. Electric 104½, Can. Loco. 64, Dom. FROM EAST TO WEST

ONTARIO PROVINCE.

OTTAWA.—The Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of Agriculture, has called a conference of livestock men and meat packers to consider measures affecting new conditions in the export of meat and produce.

——A National Bureau of Public Health is to be established by the Dominion Government.

——Over $90,000,000 worth of meat and dairy products were purchased in Canada by the British authorities in the last twelve months.

——The report of the Superintendent of Insurance shows that last year life insurance companies' war claims amounted to $5,600,000, as compared with claims totalling $6,500,000 in the preceding year. The total death claims incurred were $17,900,000, so that the war claims were approximately 31 per cent. of the total claims.

——Mr. Joseph Robert Bruce, Superintendent of the Royal Bank of Canada in New York, has been appointed to represent Canada on the International Sugar Commission.

TORONTO.—Mr. F. Rolph, who has been associated with Mr. Lloyd Harris at the Canadian War Mission in Washington, succeeds him as chairman of that Mission.

——The Provincial Treasurer announces a substantial surplus for the fiscal year ended October 31. As in previous years, more money has been expended by the Province for war purposes than was received from the proceeds of war taxes, the excess for the twelve-monthly period just ended reaching over $2,000,000. The total revenue, however, showed an increase, as the result of motor licences and munitions taxes.

——The Hon. H. J. Cody, Provincial Minister of Education, has arrived from England. He announces that he will recommend to the Government a plan for the training and employment of returned soldiers as school teachers. His scheme includes the cost of the education and maintenance of the men during the period of training.

The losses of Toronto units since the beginning of the Allied counter offensive on July 18 have been 2,721. Of this total, 459 have been listed as killed in action and 134 died of wounds. There are 37 missing, and five are presumed dead.

——A referendum prohibiting retail trade in liquor in this Province after the war will not be taken until the soldiers return.

——The last section of the Don, Rosedale and Bloor-Danforth viaduct was opened by Mayor Church on October 18. Its total length is 5,267 feet, and the longest span 281 feet and 125 feet above ground. The cost was $2,500,000.

ST. CATHARINES.—The new town of Merritton will send a deputation to Ottawa to ask that Merritton be made a port of entry and that a Customs Office be established there.

KITCHENER.—In connection with the peace celebrations here (says a Daily Record cable), Alderman A. L. Bitzer, standing with bared head, was made to kiss the Union Jack on the steps of the City Hall, before thousands of people.

PERTH.—Col. H. M. Balderson, K.C., has been appointed Crown Attorney and Clerk of the Peace for Lanark County. In 1918 he unsuccessfully contested South Lanark in the Federal election.

LEAMINGTON.—The price being paid for good leaf tobacco is 32 cents, barn run, and the average yield is around 1,300 pounds per acre, or a net return of over $400 per acre. The Burley crop will be in the neighbourhood of 7,000,000 pounds, and many growers are realising $500 per acre.

PORT ARTHUR.—The News-Chronicle states that interest is increasing in the proposal to merge this city and Fort William into one civic corporation. It is generally admitted that if the two cities were united it would be of inestimable benefit in many ways and a large amount of money would be saved in administration.

Please make a special note of the change of address, as I am going on leave and do not want to lose any copies. I value 'Canada' very highly, and always send it on to France, where it is passed along till it is worn out, I am told."—A CANADIAN V.A.D.

QUEBEC PROVINCE.

MONTREAL.—At the annual dinner of the Canadian Fisheries Association here the president announced that 8,000,000 pounds of fish were taken in Canadian waters last year, the value of which was approximately $40,000,000 There is no reason, he added, why Canada cannot have an output of $140,000,000 worth of fish annually, which would enormously reduce the cost of living in the Dominion, and assist in providing towards the great national liabilities.

——A new foundry, said to be the most modern of its kind in this part of Canada, covering an area of 18,000 square feet, has been erected by Darling Brothers, engineers and founders, at the corner of Prince and Ottawa Streets. Adjoining the new building is the old foundry opened by Darling Brothers thirty years ago. The new building is almost a dozen times larger than the old.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

FREDERICTON.—The land and water areas of New Brunswick are 17,863,040 and 47,360 acres respectively. Over 10,000,000 acres are estimated to be suitable for farm purposes. At present only 4,500,000 acres are occupied as farm lands. The Province still holds 7,000,000 acres which, though mostly timbered, contain extensive areas which will prove suitable for agriculture, if cleared. These Crown lands can be obtained by settlers as free grants of 100 acres by residing on the land for eight years, clearing 10 acres and building a house 16 by 20 feet.

ST. JOHN.—During the peace celebrations the Dominion bonded warehouse in Smythe Street, wherein all liquor seized in the Province under the Prohibition Act is stored, was raided.

NOVA SCOTIA.

HALIFAX.—Governor S. W. McCall, of Massachusetts, has been given the degree of LL.D. by Dalhousie University in recognition of the service rendered this city during the disaster last December. Afterwards he delivered an address to the students.

——On October 21, Trafalgar Day was proclaimed a civic half-holiday, Admiral Hines, of the U.S.N., and the Military Headquarters Staff making the arrangements. A parade of sailors from the different warships was held. Through the courtesy of Capt. Hines, of the U.S.N., while the procession was in progress, seaplanes flew over the city.

SYDNEY.—In order to effect an increase in the production of coal in the Maritime Provinces, the Dominion Fuel Controller has recommended that the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company be granted the right to take out coal from the holdings of the Dominion Coal Company under Sydney Harbour. The Controller expresses the opinion that there should be a readjustment of the coal areas leased to the two companies in the Cape Breton district, as if these were bet allocated the production of coal could be carried on mo economically.

696928 Lce.-Cpl. G. E. Westover, M.M., Infy.

This N.C.O. was in charge of a section which could not advance owing to an enemy machine-gun post on the right flank. He rushed at it alone, killing three, and captured the rest of the gunners. Though wounded, he skilfully directed his section on to its objective, where he fell exhausted.

138728 Pte. [illegible] Whitehead, Infy.

He started with the leading wave of the attack, using his rifle with deadly effect, and at a sunken road, where heavy machine-gun fire checked the advance, borrowed a Lewis gun, and, dashing forward, enfiladed the road, absolutely annihilating the garrison. His work throughout that day and the next was consistent with the above.

CANADIANS IN IMPERIAL FORCES.

M2/[illegible] Pte. W. E. Burr, A.S.C. (Vancouver Island, B.C.)

He drove his ambulance up to a village from which the enemy had just been driven, and worked continuously for forty-eight hours removing the wounded, often under [illegible] ammunition and petrol [illegible] the building. On a later occasion, though he was ordered to withdraw for a rest, he remained at work for seventy-two hours. He saved many lives by his energy and contempt of danger.

MANITOBA PROVINCE.

WINNIPEG.—The population of the three Prairie Provinces in 1916 was nearly 1,700,000. In 1901 it was 419,512; in 1906, 06,883; in 1911, 1,322,600; in 1916, 1,698,000. Between 1901 and 1906 the population nearly doubled.

—The Hon. P. E. Brown, Provincial Treasurer, states that the Federal Government has decided not to purchase the Agricultural College building at St. Vital. The transfer to the Dominion Government of the Tuxedo property at $830,000 will, therefore, not be proceeded with.

—The Provincial Cabinet has made grants of $1,000 each to the Salvation Army Red Shield work and the Italian Red ross

SASKATCHEWAN.

REGINA.—This city will expend $14,250 in the erection of a building to house the soldiers who are to be stationed here during the winter.

—The City Council has voted to invest $250,000 in the Victory Loan. In 1917 the city took $110,000 of the loan.

SASKATOON.—The number of women attending the University of Saskatchewan here this year exceeds that of last year by 30.

—Dr. A. Snell, Principal of the Normal School, has been appointed Inspector of Collegiate and High Schools in the Province.

ALBERTA PROVINCE.

EDMONTON. According to estimates prepared by experts, though the mines of Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia have scarcely been tapped, they have produced a total in one year of 6,000,000 tons, valued at over $25,000,000. The Alberta and Saskatchewan coalfields, it is said, can supply the demand of the Prairie Provinces for centuries. The coal is of very good grade, and is equally serviceable for steam purposes and household heating.

—Mr. Wilfrid Gariepy, the late Provincial Secretary, and his family have left Edmonton for their new home in Three Rivers, Quebec. Mr. Gariepy, however, will not sever his connection with Edmonton, where he is still retaining large interests and will keep his seat in the Legislature.

—The ratepayers of Peace River town have rejected a proposal to grant a 10-year franchise to a private company to supply the town with natural gas.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

VICTORIA.—The total quantity of timber scaled in British Columbia last year was 1,647,275,000 feet board measure, as against a production of 1,161,750,000 in the previous year. The value, including transportation within the Province, was over $48,000,000, as compared with $35,000,000.

During the past year 4,691 acres of British Columbia idle lots were brought into cultivation.

The Marine Court, after investigating the stranding of the Princess Adelaide, at Georgian Point, on October 13, suspended the certificates of Capt. R. A. Hunter and Second Officer H. W. Hunter for two and six months respectively.

VANCOUVER.—Capt. T. H. Worsnop has been appointed Port Warden, to succeed Capt. Cullington, resigned.

—The Commission of Conservation has completed an exhaustive investigation, which covered a period of three years, into the forest resources of British Columbia. The report shows that there is a stand of saw lumber and pulp wood material in the Province of 366.000.000.000 feet board measure. Using the lumber standing as a basis for calculation, it is estimated that the Province has lost through forest fires at least 665,000,000,000 feet board measure.

Under the auspices of the Royal Colonial Institute, Col. H. M. Tory is to give an address on Tuesday, at 4 p.m., at the Central Hall, Westminster, on "Education in the Canadian Army."

Mr. W. E. Playfair, the Canadian Correspondent with the Siberian Expedition, says that the plans of that Force will not be affected by the end of hostilities in France (says a Daily Record cablegram). The Canadian force in Siberia will be engaged largely on construction work.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

N.B.—All letters asking for information or advice must contain an enquiry coupon from the current issue of "Canada," except when the enquirer is an annual subscriber.

Detailed replies by letter are not made except to annual subscribers. Non-subscribers desiring detailed or exhaustive replies by letter must enclose a P.O. for 5s., which will cover three questions.

Copies should be kept of questions, and these should be numbered when more than one is asked.

Enquiries regarding investment matters should be marked "Financial" on the left-hand top corner of envelope.

The fullest particulars of special investment opportunities in Canada mentioned from time to time in the column headed "Investment Notes and Opportunities" are supplied on request to readers who are annual subscribers.

R. F. L. B. (C.C.D., Seaford).—See reply to C. R., Witley.

B. P. B. (Borden Camp, Hants.).—See O.M.F.C. notes in this week's issue.

W. E. Moore (Seaford).—(1) See reply to C. R., Witley. (2) We cannot advise you.

E. C. (Moore Barracks, Shorncliffe).—We cannot say, but it is certain no new units will be organised on this side.

Sub.—See next week's issue for a full statement on the matter in question. It is not yet sanctioned for publication.

H. S. (Witley).—Write to Enquiry Department, Canadian Record Office, Green Arbour House, Old Bailey, London, E.C.4.

M. M. S. (Hastings).—(1) See reply to C. R., Witley. (2) Yes. (3) You would have to return to be able to participate in the Soldiers' Settlement Scheme.

T. H. M. (Taplow).—(1) See reply to C. R., Witley. (2) Yes. (3) Most unlikely. (4) It is entirely a matter for the War Office.

P. T. K. (Seaford).—A married man on discharge (in Canada) will receive the three months' pay and three months' separation allowance, according to his rank.

R. G. Baker (Kinmel Park, Rhyl).—Your information, though a little previous, is correct. Watch for a full statement in our next issue.

Canadian Soldiers (Witley).—Leave was cancelled on the suggestion of the medical authorities on account of the influenza epidemic. The whole question is one for the military authorities.

S. R. L. (France).—It has been officially stated that you will be returned by the Imperial authorities if you make application within six months of your discharge.

Hull (Bayswater).—Address your enquiry to the Minister of Militia and Defence, Ottawa, Canada. The Canadian authorities in England only deal with matters affecting the Overseas Forces.

G. F. Blenkarn (R.A.F., Oxford).—You waive your right to transportation, but we understand you will receive it later from the Imperial authorities. The matter of a bounty does not come within the jurisdiction of the O.M.F.C.

C. R. (Witley).—Discharges in the United Kingdom will be granted only in cases where very grave hardship might otherwise result. Application should be made through your C.O., and will be subject to the approval of the Overseas Minister.

G. P. M.—We most strongly advocate that Canada should treat her soldiers with the utmost generosity, and doubtless something will be done to see that the long-service men are properly cared for. The suggestion you sent us is, we fear, hardly practicable.

D.S.O. (Cambridge).—(1) Service in the war does not count double towards the Long Service Medal. (2 and 3) Write to the Secretary, Department of Militia and Defence, Ottawa; it is a matter only within the jurisdiction of the Canadian Militia Authorities.

H. W. (C.R.A., Witley).—All Canadian graves in the theatres of war are looked after by the Director, Graves Registration and Enquiries, Almchester House, St. James' Square, S.W. Canadians have no separate organisation for graves other than those in the United Kingdom.

C. E. B. D. (London).—The Union Jack is the official flag of the Overseas Dominions as well as of the United Kingdom, and is flown from the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa as at Westminster. The Canadian Marine Ensign has the Dominion coat of arms on the "fly," the Union Jack being in the upper corner.

W. L. P. (France).—(1) If you can show sufficient grounds, a month's leave might be arranged; or, if the Overseas Minister acquiesced, you might be permitted to take your discharge in this country. (2) Not that we know of. (3) In this country, £2; in Canada, $35. (4) A Canadian soldier is entitled to ration allowance on sick furlough from hospital.

THE BANK OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

An extraordinary general meeting of the proprietors was held at the office of the corporation, 5, Gracechurch Street, London, E.C., on Tuesday, November 19, Mr. E. A. Hoare presiding.

The Assistant Secretary (Mr. E. T. Ritchie) having read the notice convening the meeting, the Chairman said :

"This meeting is summoned in conformity with our Deed of Settlement to confirm the proceedings at an extraordinary general meeting of the proprietors held on the twelfth day of November. At that meeting the following resolution was duly proposed and seconded and carried unanimously :—

"That in view of the amalgamation of the Bank of British North America with the Bank of Montreal and pursuant to the recommendation of the Court of Directors, it is expedient that the Bank of British North America be dissolved, and that George Rowland Ginne, of 5, Gracechurch Street, London, be and he is hereby appointed liquidator for the purpose of executing and doing on behalf of the Court of Directors all such assurances, acts and things as may be necessary for carrying out such dissolution and winding up the affairs of the Bank, and for that purpose to use the Common Seal of the Bank and to have power to appoint an attorney in respect of the affairs of the Bank in the Dominion of Canada or the United States of America or any Province, State or Territory thereof."

On the motion of the Chairman, the resolution and the proceedings at the meeting of November 12 were confirmed and ratified.

C.P.O.S. WAR RECORD.

New Steamer's Maiden Voyage.

The Canadian Pacific steamer Missanabie was the first steamer to sail on her maiden voyage from Great Britain to Canada after the outbreak of war. When on or about December 3 the Minnedosa, belonging to the same company, sails from Liverpool to St. John, she will be the first steamer to sail on her maiden voyage after hostilities have ceased. The Minnedosa is a sister ship to the Melita, and has a tonnage of 14,000 and speed of 17 knots, and accommodation for approximately 500 cabin and 1,500 third-class passengers.

The C.P.O.S. have carried from the outbreak of hostilities to October 31, 1918, 1,041,000 troops and passengers all over the world, embracing all ports in China and Japan, Singapore, Bombay, Mesopotamia, Suez, Gallipoli, all ports in the Mediterranean, Colombo, Dar-es-Salaam, Delagoa Bay, Durban, and Mauritius, in addition to the west coast of North and South America, and the United States and Canadian ports. The total loss of troops carried caused by enemy action, and irrespective of disease, has been eight.

The Canadian Pacific flag has flown in the "highest North"—in latitude 72.30. N. On one consecutive continuous voyage one of the company's vessels steamed 28.441 miles.

Over 4,000,000 tons of cargo and munitions of war have been carried in addition to many thousand horses and mules.

The losses of the fleet have been comparatively small, and this is largely due to the great devotion of the officers and crew of the ships, and the great pains taken by them in gun practice, anti-submarine work, signalling, station keeping in convoy, and so forth.

Over 300 officers and engineers were found out of the company's service for the Royal Navy, one of whom, Lt. R. N. Stuart, has won the V.C. and D.S.O., whilst many others have received decorations and been mentioned in despatches.

THE VALUE OF Dutton's Shorthand PROVED IN THE LAW COURTS.

IN THE ROYAL COURTS OF JUSTICE (October 29th to 31st, 1918).—In the course of the libel action brought by Mr. R. J. G. Dutton, the author of Dutton's Shorthand, against Sir Isaac Pitman & Sons, Ltd., a young lady Dutton writer was given a speed test from matter selected by the Judge (Mr. Justice Darling). This she accomplished at 150 words per minute, her performance being described by the reporters present as "very fluent." Evidence was also given by a House of Commons official reporter that the Dutton system is practicable for general newspaper and law reporting, and members of Queen Mary's Army Auxiliary Corps and the Women's Royal Naval Service testified that they had reached speeds of 80 to 100 words per minute in six weeks.

LEARN DUTTON'S SHORTHAND AT YOUR OWN FIRESIDE.

Now that the long evenings are back again, there could be no more enjoyable and profitable occupation than to take up the study of Dutton's Shorthand at your own fireside in comfort. It would be impossible to devise anything simpler than the which has been so clearly arranged that the tuition is as explicit and thorough as if Mr. Dutton himself were at your elbow guiding and directing. Moreover, the Postal Student is treated quite individually, and all answers to queries are in writing, always at hand for immediate reference.

As a matter of fact, the complete theory of Dutton's Shorthand can be acquired in 24 hours, after which practice quickly develops high speeds. Also, progress in Dutton's Shorthand is well within the capacity of any average person, neither exceptional ability nor unlimited perseverance being required to master this simplest of all systems.

HARROD'S OFFER £625 TO DUTTON SHORTHAND WRITERS

Messrs. Harrod's, Ltd., the famous West End firm, conduct their own staff-training department on the most modern lines, ensuring accuracy without waste of time and effort. Addressing 125 Dutton Shorthand students at the inaugural evening session on September 24th, 1918, Sir Woodman Burbidge offered £5 to every employee reaching 100 words per minute. By such encouraging inducements do Messrs. Harrods obtain the goodwill of their huge staff.

A 24-PAGE ILLUSTRATED BOOKLET

—"All About Dutton's Shorthand" — containing specimen lesson, comparison of Dutton with other systems, facsimile reporting notes, etc., together with particulars of Day and Evening Classes, conducted at the London Branch, 92 and 93, Great Russell Street, W.C.1, and of the Special Postal Course of Tuition, will be forwarded to every reader of "Canada" sending two stamps to—

7 o'clock Safety Razor.

The only Safety Razor at less than one guinea that can be stropped without removing blade.

A really dependable razor at a popular price. It opens flat, and can be stropped without removing the blade. This construction also overcomes the difficulty of cleaning, which is the bugbear of so many safety razors.

Strongly made, heavily silvered, and with blades that cannot be surpassed, it is used by many men who could afford a far more expensive razor, but prefer the simple efficiency of the "7 o'clock." The Standard Set consists of heavily silver-plated stropping razor, six finest lancet steel blades, the whole in handsome case, with strop in hinged partition, and the price is 10/6.

Of all high-class dealers throughout the world.

THE SILENT NAVY.

WHEN the Armistice terms were announced there was much speculation, and even some apprehension, on account of the meagre information given as to the terms imposed by the British Navy. Marshal Foch had imposed drastic and far-seeing terms on the enemy with regard to his army and its artillery and transport, but the terms demanded by the Navy appeared vague. Even in this last culminating action in the Great War the silent Navy fully lived up to its reputation. It was only by degrees that the full nature of the terms became generally known. The extraordinary sights that have been witnessed on the North Sea during the last few days have in some ways been the most dramatic in the whole history of war on this planet.

The Navy is so bound up with the might of the British Empire and the traditions of its people that although predominantly manned and paid for by the Homeland, it is regarded as a portion of the birthright of every citizen in the Empire. The British Navy, with its old and great traditions, has long been the highest exponent of chivalry and complete devotion to duty. It has been the model for all other naval services, and has also been the great sure bulwark against tyranny, piracy, and slavery. We can all sympathise with the feeling of the officers and men who day and night during all these long years have been hoping and praying that they might engage their enemy under any odds. But when the Hun came out at last, it was for ignominious and abject surrender, and sympathising fully with the desires and spirit of the Navy, we cannot but be thankful that the crowning victory should have been so bloodless. For the Hun the general feeling is that so grossly has he broken with every tradition of the sea or of clean warfare that it were better that every ship and every man lay at the bottom of the North Sea. But in this cleansing we should have lost brave and precious lives, and these, by God's providence, have been saved for their country and the Empire.

Little has yet been told of the incessant vigil and the continuing daily effort of every branch of the Naval Service since the first moment we were at war. Had we made war as the Huns do, we should have attacked the German High Sea Fleet by surprise and declared war afterwards. As it was, we throttled him in his ports, cut off his supplies, and met, and eventually overcame, his submarines. Unlike our armies, which had long spells of inactivity, there are no winter quarters for the Navy. The fate of the Allies, in fact, the liberty of the world, depended on the unceasing vigilance and prevision of the British Navy. One serious blunder or omission to provide for contingencies, and the enemy might have so damaged our communications as largely to paralyse our efforts and those of our Allies. Great as has been the achievement of the land forces of the Empire, and splendid as have been the efforts of both men and women in the munition factories and every other kind of war work they have been called to undertake, the fact remains that our great and silent Navy made possible the triumph of the others.

SOME GRIEVANCES.

IT is impossible to find space this week for even a tithe of the letters we have received from officers complaining of hardship or of parsimonious treatment. There are good grounds for many of these complaints, which we feel sure the authorities themselves realise, and some of them we know to be at present under favourable consideration. For instance, the restriction of three months' discharge pay only to those who take their discharge in Canada, will, we understand, be removed, and the same broad spirit will, we have no doubt, be witnessed in the treatment of other grievances which are felt by officers and men in the O.M.F.C. In the case of the three months' discharge pay, it was in the interests of Canada that her citizens should return, and that the money received should be spent in the Dominion; but, though the policy was sound, circumstances have been too strong, and it has been found only fair to remove this restriction. The justice of making it retrospective should be obvious.

The Government and people of Canada have never shown a niggardly spirit in the treatment of their citizen soldiers, and there is a genuine and widespread desire to redress just grievances; but in the past there has been some undue delay, and, now that demobilisation has commenced, what is to be done should be done quickly.

Now it is manifestly reasonable that the gratuity on discharge should bear some proportion to the length of service. Take, for comparison, a captain of infantry (Imperials) who joined on November 1, 1914. He will receive on discharge a gratuity of approximately £320, made up of four months P. and A. for the first year, and two months P. and A. for subsequent years or parts thereof; but the Canadian officer of the same rank and service only receives £109, and this in three monthly instalments.

Another grievance in the case of a married officer is that a large proportion of the discharge gratuity would be absorbed in the return fares of his wife and children, whereas officers in the Imperial Service who came from overseas will be given free transportation to their port of embarkation for themselves and their dependents. We are sure that the glaring discrepancy between the gratuities on discharge paid by the Imperials and by the Canadians will eventually be rectified, as it is opposed to the good sense of the Canadian people, but the discrepancy should be rectified now, without delay, otherwise it must work an undeserved hardship on many.

* *

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

The Victory Loan. The result of Canada's Victory Loan has been exceedingly satisfactory. The minimum amount aimed at was $300,000,000; it was hoped that $500,000,000 would be reached. The total amount subscribed is over $676,000,000. The result is all the more gratifying when the prevailing conditions are taken into consideration. The campaign was interfered with to some extent not only by the signing of the Armistice and the ensuing celebrations, but also by the widespread influenza epidemic.

Well may Sir Thomas White hail the loan as a triumph for the Canadian people, and declare, "The announcement that Canada has more than subscribed her last and greatest Victory Loan will profoundly impress the world as to our economic soundness and financial strength after more than four years of war."

* * *

The Record of the Corps. In acknowledging the congratulations of the Canadian Press Association, General Currie stated among other things that the casualties among the rank and file were the smallest in proportion to its strength of any force in the British Army. This is a record of which any commander would be justly proud. When we consider how many major engagements the Corps has been in, and its great fighting record, the fact that it has suffered the minimum losses is the more amazing.

The credit for this is due largely to its commander, for the care with which attacks were rehearsed and prepared. The staff work must obviously have been very good to obtain such results, and the good leading and discipline of the men equally contributed to achieve victory at the smallest cost. Knowing what the Corps has accomplished, no statement could be more satisfactory and pleasing to the people in Canada than this, which announces the price of victory.

* * *

The New British Policy. The manifesto issued to the electors of the United Kingdom by the leaders of the Coalition naturally does not contain much of direct interest to Canada except the reference to Colonial preference; but all thoughtful Canadians must be keenly alive to the importance of the policy of the Mother Country in regard to national reconstruction. The prosperity and contentment of the heart of the Empire is of vital concern to all the Dominions.

The principle of preference within the Empire being now accepted and announced by Great Britain, it remains for the principle to be developed. State-aided emigration, an efficient trade commissioner service, Government aid to the development of the natural resources of the Empire which in any way affect key industries are some of the directions in which Imperial preference can be fostered.

* * *

A Suggestion from B.C. The Victoria Branch of the Navy League in British Columbia makes the timely suggestion that a number of the ships to be taken from Germany at the Peace Treaty should be allocated to Canada to form the nucleus of the Canadian Navy. There is no doubt Mr. Hughes has ear-marked some of these ships for Australia, so we are glad that this suggestion has been made from British Columbia. An efficient fleet at Esquimalt is highly desirable, not only in the interest of Canada alone but of the Empire.

* * *

Before and After Demobilisation. Problems affecting our soldiers, both before and after demobilisation, are engaging the close attention of statesmen alike at Home and Overseas at the present time. The conference at Ottawa, attended by the Provincial Premiers, is likely to have an important bearing on the future of the ex-Service men, a large proportion of whom have signified their desire to take up farming. The training in various branches of civil work provided by the Canadian authorities is commendable from every point of view.

Incidentally, it is interesting to note that the institution of Overseas training farms in Great Britain is advocated in an article written some time ago for The Ex-Service Man by that veteran friend of the discharged soldier, Mr. E. T. Scammell. The Imperial authorities might well not only take a leaf from the Canadians' book in this respect, but link themselves up with their work. Canada has, of course, first of all to provide for her own valiant fighters, but afterwards she has to look to the Mother Country for immigrants capable of developing her rich resources. It would be of mutual advantage if an arrangement could be come to with the British authorities for training members of the Imperial Forces on the Canadian farms in this country, when these have been vacated by the Canadian soldiers.

Problems of the After-War. Every Government in the Empire is considering ways and means of getting its men back to civil life. This problem is sufficiently difficult, but the far more perplexing one is what will be the attitude of the long-service man towards civil life? Men who have been through three or four years of intensive warfare on the Western Front are changed men, so thoroughly altered is their outlook on life. Things that once seemed to them worth while have largely lost their attractions. They have a new standard of values, and friends and comradeship are more to them than pecuniary gain or self-advancement, while personal initiative and originality have been blunted by the stress of war and its discipline.

It may be that many who previously led sedentary lives will choose the open air, but it is doubtful whether they will be willing to go into sparsely settled districts or be separated from their pals. These problems need very careful investigation and thought before any scheme of demobilisation can hope to be successful.

* * *

Canada's Munition Workers. The employment of Canada's munition workers is coming to an end at a time of year when their opportunities of securing new work are far from plentiful. As in the Mother Country, however, the Government is looking after the interests of these employees, and the Imperial Munitions Board are endeavouring to reduce the work gradually, in order that there should be as little disturbance to industry as possible.

One of the industries calling for a large supply of labour in the winter is lumbering, and the Canadian Lumbermen's Association is endeavouring to enlist suitable munition workers as they are discharged, hoping in this way to transfer 10,000 men from war industries to the lumber camps. A more important development, in view of its bearing on the future, is the projected sale of the Munition Board's six factories to private interests, with a view to the establishment in Canada of new industries previously controlled by Germany, notably the chemical trade.

* * *

Newfoundland's High Commissioner. Newfoundland has signalised the conclusion of the war, as well as her recent promotion to the status of a Dominion, by the appointment of a High Commissioner in London. This is a step which has been anticipated, and the name of Lord Morris, who has been doing such excellent publicity work for Newfoundland in the Mother Country, has been mentioned in connection with it.

Sir Edgar Bowring has justified his appointment, both as the president of a prominent shipping company and as Newfoundland's representative on the Dominions Royal Commission. In his new capacity he should be able to be of great service in furthering the development of the rich natural resources of his native country.

* * *

British Columbia's New Representative. The new Agent-General for British Columbia is fortunate in taking up his duties at a time when there is a great revival in the interest taken in the opportunities which his Province can offer to settlers and investors. Before leaving, he made an extensive tour to look into the situation in the lumbering, mining, and fruit-growing areas, and is therefore in a position to speak with official authority on the present situation and future prospects. So numerous are the personal and written applications from military men as to the opportunities for land settlement that we understand it is his intention to open a special bureau to deal with such enquiries.

On page 311 we publish an interview with Mr. Wade which will interest the many who are personally concerned in one way or another in the future of British Columbia. Mr. J. H. Turner, who has for so many years officially represented the Province in the United Kingdom, now finally retires from a position which he has occupied with a dignity and success which have not only benefited his beloved Province, but have earned him general esteem and good wishes, both in Canada and Britain.

* *

It is estimated that Canada has 28,433,000 bushels of potatoes available for export.

Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Winston Churchill, Minister of Munitions, have despatched messages to Sir Joseph Flavelle, Chairman of the Imperial Munitions Board of Canada, expressing Britain's gratitude to the Dominion for the invaluable help given by her in producing munitions of war during the past four years.

The Secretary of the War Office announces that in order to provide the men for overseas garrisons and the necessary reserves at home, it has been decided that men (between 19 and 35, fit for general service) may extend their service for general service in the various armies for periods of approximately two, three, or four years respectively from the date of extension.

CANADIAN MINISTERS IN LONDON:

The Canadian Ministers and their staffs have had a busy week in London. Among their official engagements have been several meetings of the War Cabinet. The Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, has now arrived, as has also Mr. Lloyd Harris, chairman of the Trade Commission.

Sir George Perley gave a dinner at the Marlborough Club on Tuesday, November 19, in honour of Sir Robert Borden and the Canadian Ministers accompanying him. The guests were :—

Sir Robert L. Borden, Sir George E. Foster, Hon. Arthur L. Sifton· Mr. D. Lloyd George, Mr. Bonar Law, Viscount Milner, Mr. G. N. Barnes, Mr. Walter Long, Lord Cave, Sir Albert H. Stanley, Mr. G. H. Roberts, Sir Joseph P. Maclay, Sir Auckland Geddes, Viscount Northcliffe, The Lord Mayor, Mr. Felix Cassel, K.C., Vice-Admiral Sir Rosslyn Wemyss Sir Eric Geddes, Sir Laurence N. Guillemard, Sir H. Llewellyn Smith, Mr. N. F. Warren Fisher, Sir Nathaniel J. Highmore, Lord Emmott, Major the Hon. Waldorf Astor, M.P., Sir Reginald H. Brade, K.C.B., Sir Algernon Firth, Mr. Stanley Machin, Mr. L. C. Christie, Mr. Frank P. Jones, Dr. J. W. Robertson, Lt.-Col. O. M. Biggar, Mr. W. M. Hughes. Sir Edmund E. Nott-Bower, Mr. W. L. Griffith, and Mr. P. M. Draper.

The Imperial Government has placed a suite of offices at 2, Whitehall Gardens at the service of the Ministers and other members of the Canadian Delegation during their stay in England.

* *

Arrangements are being made for the extensive advertising of Canada by means of the cinema.

Principal Grant, of Upper Canada College, suggests that all sons of graduates killed in action should be educated free of charge.

The Royal Newfoundland Regt. was represented in the procession when the King of the Belgians entered Brussels on Friday of last week.

Col. H. M. Tory, describing the Khaki University of Canada before the Royal Colonial Institute on Tuesday, stated that henceforward from 1,000 to 1,500 men would be employed in instructional work.

DEMOBILISATION AND POST-WAR PROBLEMS.

10,000 Canadians on Their Way Home.

Orders were issued from Ottawa last week for the demobilisation of the forces in Canada. The force will be reduced to absolute domestic requirements. All railway employees are to be discharged immediately, as the railways badly need men.

It was also announced that 10,000 soldiers of the O.M.F.C. would sail for Canada before the end of the present month.

All "B" category men in the O.M.F.C. are to be immediately returned to Canada, and all available transport is to be utilised for this purpose. Many men have already returned, and their places in administrative offices taken by "A" men.

Last week an important conference, attended by the Provincial Premiers, opened at Ottawa, to discuss demobilisation, soldiers' settlement, agricultural development, and other important questions.

One of the first subjects discussed was the transfer of the national resources of the Prairie Provinces from Federal to Provincial control. The Hon. J. A. Calder, Minister of Immigration and Colonisation, submitted a plan for enlarging the scope of the soldier settlement scheme by the acquisition of undeveloped lands privately owned.

SOLDIERS' WIVES AND CHILDREN.

Arrangements for Return to Canada.

Further evidence of the practical interest taken in the welfare of the Canadian soldier by the Overseas military authorities appears in an arrangement just completed, by which the wives and children of Canadians are to receive accommodation for return to Canada by specially arranged sailings.

Arrangements have been completed, with the consent of the Admiralty, which will enable a large proportion of these military dependents to go back to Canada prior to the demobilisation of Canadian troops, provided immediate application is made for this privilege.

The numbers to be provided for are much larger than had been anticipated, but as it is now known that those who do not take advantage of the present opportunity may have to remain in Great Britain for a year or more after demobilisation begins, it is believed that a very considerable proportion will be glad of the opportunity of being at home in Canada to welcome their soldier husbands on their return.

The New Department.

A new department has recently been authorised known as "The Military Dependents Branch," which has taken over the responsibility of all necessary arrangements for providing rapid and early return to Canada of these relatives of our Canadian Forces. Offices have been opened at British Columbia House, 1, Regent Street, London, and every facility is provided by which information is furnished, accommodation allocated, and at each sailing period the staff of steamship companies and of Canadian railroads are on hand to sell transportation right through to destination in Canada. An interview with the officer in charge elicits the information that every dependent of Canadian soldiers will receive this week cards to be filled up with the necessary information for embarkation and a circular letter explaining the present situation, as well as pointing out the advisability of taking advantage of the opportunity to get home while ships are available. It has been announced that when general demobilisation of the Canadian Army commences that women and children cannot proceed on transports which carry troops, and this announcement has stimulated the present activity.

The effort is meantime being made to find accommodation for wives and children on the same ships upon which soldiers now in England are returning provided they are under orders to proceed at once, but this special arrangement must naturally be of short duration only. Every arrangement for the comfortable accommodation of wives and children returning prior to their husbands has been made.

Accommodation is being allocated in the order that applications are received. This has been found necessary, as the accommodation available may be more limited than the numbers now in the British Isles.

Imperials' Wives and Families.

The wives and families—also widows and orphans—of officers and other ranks who have come overseas and joined the Royal Navy, the British Army (excluding Dominion and Colonial Forces), or the Royal Air Force, will be given a free passage back to the country whence they came. Applications must be sent in as soon as possible, and, in any case, before January 31, 1919, to the Officer i/c Repatriation Records, Winchester, specifying the particular branch of the Service.

The assistance will include free railway journeys to the port of embarkation, and free rail and boat accommodation from the port of disembarkation. Officers' wives and families will have to pay the usual charge for messing on board ship, but there will be free messing for those of other ranks.

ON THE MARCH TOWARDS THE RHINE.

Canadian Corps More Than Half-way Towards Its Objective.

THE Canadian Corps is steadily advancing towards the Rhine, having now covered more than one-half the distance between Mons and the objective to be occupied in Germany.

The Corps is advancing on a ten-mile front, with the Canadian cavalry force in the van. The march is being made by easy stages of two days, advancing and then resting two days.

Everywhere the troops are being received with unbounded enthusiasm by the civilian population of Belgium. The entire Corps, fully reorganised and equipped during its week of rest in and around Mons, has created the most favourable impression as a thoroughly disciplined and efficiently administered force.

Companies of the Canadian Forestry Corps and Railway Troops are on the way to Germany. The Canadian Y.M.C.A. is accompanying the troops.

During their occupation of Mons and the other parts of Belgium the Germans tried hard to impress on the Belgian inhabitants that the British Army was little short of an undisciplined mob and the Canadian Corps was a rabble force of the worst type. This information was disclosed (says Mr. Fred James) by the Mayor and civic dignitaries of Mons the other evening when they were the guests at dinner of some of the senior officers of the 3rd Canadian Division.

"After the Canadians entered Mons we began to realise how calumnous were the lies the Germans had circulated," said the Mayor. He confessed that the people of Mons were agreeably surprised at the discipline and general good behaviour of the Canadians. The great review of 10,000 troops by General Horne four days after the Armistice came into effect gave a final answer to the German propaganda.

Mons Medal for Canadians.

Before leaving Mons (says Mr. J. F. B. Livesay), Lt.-General Sir Arthur W. Currie was presented by the city authorities with a medal in gold, specially struck in his honour, and inscribed as an appropriate souvenir of the liberation of the city by the Canadian Corps. Replicas will be distributed among the Canadian troops who took part in the capture of Mons.

The few days previous to the beginning of our march to Germany were energetically devoted to re-equipping and general organisation.

A great reception was given the First Canadian Division on its entry into Nivelles, a city of considerable size, from whence the present Corps line runs down towards Charleroi. Leisure has been given for visits to Waterloo and the historic battlefields of the surrounding area.

The Canadian Corps was further honoured through the sending of a contingent of Canadian officers to be present at the official entry of the King and Queen of the Belgians into Brussels on Friday.

THE CANADIAN CASUALTIES.

According to official statements issued from Canadian Headquarters, the total casualties in the Canadian Overseas Forces to November 5 totalled 213,268, of whom 56,047 were killed in action or died from various causes. As the Canadian Corps was actively engaged up to the morning of the Armistice there are additions to the list yet to be received. The official figures are as follows:—

Killed in action	35,128
Died of wounds	12,048
Died of disease	3,409
Presumed dead	4,620
Missing	842
Total dead	56,047
Wounded	154,361
Prisoners of war	2,860
Total casualties	213,268

SIR ROBERT BORDEN'S TRIBUTE.

Warm Congratulations to all Ranks.

Sir Robert Borden has sent the following message to the Canadian Forces through General Currie:—

Having sailed before the conclusion of the Armistice, I take this, my first, opportunity after arriving in Great Britain, to send my warmest congratulations to all ranks of the Canadian Forces overseas.

Your major task is finished, completely and triumphantly. Never have men had greater reason for honest pride of achievement than the soldiers of Canada; never has a country had more just cause for pride in her sons than our Dominion. Liberty and right are once more vindicated, and in that fulfilment, especially in the last decisive period of the struggle, Canadians have shared in the foremost posts of honour. This position has not been won without sacrifice, and in this hour of triumph the people of Canada recall with you in solemn and reverent memory your fallen comrades, whose dauntless spirit will remain as an inspiration and an example to the nation for ever.

The Canadian Army Corps has been selected to share with the other armies of the Britannic Commonwealth a further post of honour in the task of securing the fruits of victory. You will acquit yourselves on this mission, as in the past, with honour to yourselves and to your country.

The Canadian people await your home-coming with a welcome that they hope may in some measure express to you their unending gratitude and the boundless admiration with which they have followed your heroic course through all the weary years of war.

Longing for Home

Sir Thomas White, Acting Prime Minister, has received the following reply from General Currie:

From the doubly historic battlefield of Mons, and on the eve of its departure for the Rhine, the Canadian Corps acknowledges with the deepest gratitude your message sent on behalf of the people of Canada.

THE LAST CANADIAN TO BE WOUNDED.

He was hit 15 minutes before the Armistice commenced, and is here shown in a Canadian C.C.S. in Valenciennes.

Canadian War Records Photograph.

We join with them in humble and grateful thanks to God for the glorious victory which has been vouchsafed to our arms. Our hearts go out to those to whom remains only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, who were sacrificed in the noblest cause for which men have ever died.

Weary with the work of destruction, we long for the time when we shall be homeward bound to take up again with clearer conception the responsibilities of our duties as citizens in the fairest land in the world—our own beloved Canada.

Corps' Proud Record

Mr. J. H. Woods, chairman of the delegation of Canadian editors who visited Great Britain a few months ago, has received the following cable from Sir Arthur Currie:—

The Canadian Corps warmly appreciates the congratulations of the Canadian newspaper delegation. Tell the people of Canada that the Corps is more than proud of its efforts to satisfy those at home.

In the last two years' strenuous fighting the Corps never lost a gun, never failed to take its objective, and has never been driven from an inch of ground after once it had been consolidated, while the casualties among the rank and file bear the smallest percentage in proportion to its strength of any force in the British Army

The Burgomaster of Mons has sent a cablegram to the Duke of Devonshire expressing his appreciation of the liberation of the town from Hun tyranny at the hands of Canadian troops.

The Rev. T. Hunter Boyd, of the Canadian Presbyterian Church, delivered the address at a Czecho-Slovak thanksgiving service at Crown Court Scottish National Church, Covent Garden, last Saturday.

Cpl. George Cowie, 16th Bn., of Winnipeg (attached General Staff, Argyll House), was married at Holy Trinity, Marylebone, on Saturday last to Miss Hannah Homer. Pte. W. McArthur, R.H.C., acted as best man.

CANADIANS IN RUSSIA.

C.F.A. Assist in Heavily Defeating Bolsheviks.

A communiqué issued by the War Office states that the Canadian Field Artillery took a fine part in a heavy defeat of the Bolsheviks on the Dvina River of the Archangel front during Armistice Day.

The report states that the enemy attacked the Allied position in front and flank. A well-executed counter-attack by American and British infantry drove them back with very heavy losses, and the fine work of the Canadian Field Artillery, who kept their guns in action though the enemy were close up to the emplacements, materially assisted in this defeat of the enemy.

Life on the Dvina.

A letter from a Canadian officer serving with the forces on the Dvina gives an excellent idea of the nature and conditions of the expedition, which is of a cosmopolitan character, as may be gathered from the fact that among those sitting at the General's table for meals are a British General, a Canadian General, a Russian Colonel of the Guards whose regiment mutinied when the Bolsheviks came into power, a Russian naval captain whose ship was at Helsingfors when the revolution broke out, a French Major, and a Japanese Colonel of the General Staff. He says :—

We came by train here—10 miles down the railway. We were greatly surprised to find huts nearly ready for us. We had to sleep on the floor, and it was cold, but we have all been busy—officers and men—hard at work. The men have one building and we have another similar one—long, narrow, board buildings, and we are double-boarding, and filling in with stuff between the walls. We have built bunks, and are getting quite comfortable. A—— is making a kennel for the 200 dogs when they arrive.

Later, I believe, we are to go some way down the line, where, I expect, we will make our H.Q. for our particular job. They say it is not at all a bad place, and there is timber there. Here it is not big enough for firewood—very rocky ground—something like the north shore of Lake Superior. The weather is fine October weather—very bracing. We get communiqués every day from the wireless up the line.

I have seen ptarmigan and Arctic hare, and one of the men saw a bear this morning. We are sending men out to shoot and fish. A British officer got a 42-lb. salmon the other day after five hours' play. We mess in a box-car, and hard tack is bad on the teeth, but we are completing an oven, and will get bannocks. Our men are healthy and very cheery—and in great demand, as they can turn their hand to anything.

This part of the country is poor—no crops, no mineral—but farther down the line there are lots of fine timber, and, I hear, copper, lead, silver, and iron. The men get on well with the people here, and some were at a dance last night.

If the Field Comforts or Red Cross send anything to us, cheap cigarettes are the best thing, as we can barter with the natives with them, and it is much better than money. A man with sugar is wealthy.

The Northern Lights are wonderful.

P.S.—We put up a good flagpole and had a parade and hoisted the Canadian Flag, while the pipes played the "Maple Leaf" and then the "Cock of the North."

The Siberian Expedition

Swords will be worn by officers of the Siberian Force, says the Daily Record, and a brass band will be sent from Toronto.

In connection with the despatch of a Canadian Contingent from Canada to Siberia, the Royal Bank of Canada has arranged to open a branch in Vladivostock, Mr. D. C. Rea, manager of the Toronto branch, and a staff having already left Canada, via Vancouver, for that purpose. The permanency of the branch will depend on trade developments in Siberia when conditions become normal.

CANADIANS' CLAIM AGAINST CENTRAL POWERS.

The Government has directed the preparation of a list of claims by Canadians against the Central Powers arising out of the illegal methods of warfare practised by the enemy during the war (says an Ottawa cablegram to the Daily Record). The claims arise chiefly through the torpedoing of ships, and relate to loss of life as well as to loss of property.

A further list will also be made out, covering claims for damages following breaches of contracts with neutrals owing to the action of the enemy.

General Peyton March announced at Washington last Saturday that the total casualties of the American Expeditionary Forces up to the signing of the armistice were: Dead, 53,169; wounded, 179,625; prisoners and missing, 3,323. The Americans have taken 44,000 German prisoners and 1,400 guns.

The illness and enforced retirement of Lord Beaverbrook from the Lloyd George Ministry constitutes a loss to the Imperial service and to Canada, for whose interests overseas he has loyally and consistently laboured. We hope sincerely that this interruption to a high career will be of slight duration. -Montreal Star.

OFFICERS KILLED AND DIED.

Overseas Military Forces of Canada.

Lt. A. Roy Adams, C.F.A. (died of wounds at the 3rd London General Hospital), belonged to Calgary, where he was a civil engineer. He enlisted as a private in June, 1915, and had seen long service. His wounds were received in September.

Capt. Edward Osler (Tod) Bath, 15th Bn. (died of influenza and pneumonia at the Endsleigh Palace Hospital, London, on November 23), was the youngest son of Mr. P. A. Bath, of Oakville, Ont. Capt. Bath, who was a repatriated prisoner of war, had only reached England a fortnight ago, and his death was undoubtedly due to the rigours of captivity. The interment took place at Brookwood Cemetery on Thursday, the 28th inst.

Lt. Thomas Collins, C.M.G C. (killed on October 2), had resided for several years at Broadview, Sask., and leaves a widow and three young children.

Lt. C. F. W. Duff, C. Ont. (killed), was at first reported missing. The eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Duff, of Cookstown, Ont., he enlisted with the 126th Peel Regiment.

Lt. Charles Innes Giles, M.M., 20th (C. Ont.) Bn., killed, was the son of Mrs. A. Giles, of 68, Wroxeter Avenue, Toronto. Enlisting early in the war, he had a fine record of service, and had been wounded, awarded the M.M., and then given his commission.

Lt. John B. Gould, N.B. (killed on October 21), was formerly an employé of the T. Eaton Company, at Winnipeg. He enlisted with the "Little Black Devils." Lt Gould was at first reported wounded.

Lt. A. Newton Gurney, C. Ont. (died of wounds), was the son of the late Mr. Charles Gurney and Mrs. Gurney, 60, Arkledun Avenue, Hamilton. He came overseas in May, 1916, and after receiving wounds was given three months' leave in Canada. He returned to France last summer.

Lt. Donald Stodart Gwyn, M.C., R.C.D. (killed on the torpedoed Leinster on October 10), was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Gwyn, of Sherbrooke, P.Q. Deceased, who had just attained his 22nd birthday, was awarded the M.C. early this year for gallantry during a raid on the enemy trenches.

Lt. E. B. Henderson, C. Ont. and R.A.F. (died on November 3 at Bulstrode Nursing Home, London, of influenza and broncho-pneumonia), formerly held a captaincy in the 21st Militia Regiment at Windsor, Ont. He was an observer officer in the R.A.F.

Lt. Walter H. Jamieson, C. Ont. and R.A.F. (died in France on October 28 from pneumonia), was the third son of the late Rev. W. S. Jamieson and Mrs. Jamieson, of Toronto. At the time of his enlistment he was a broker, and after serving with the 220th Bn. he was seconded to the R.A.F. as a balloon officer.

Lt. Victor Leese, M.M., Man. (killed), was formerly a student of Robertson College and the University of Alberta, and was a young man of considerable literary promise.

Lt. David Livingstone, 1st C.M.G. Brigade (killed on October 10), was formerly a law student at Dalhousie University, N.S., and was well known in Winnipeg, where several members of his family resided. His parents, who have now lost three sons in the war, live at Black Brook, N.S. Capt. R. Livingstone, N.S. Regt., the surviving son, is still in France.

Capt. (A/Major) Winfred Smythe Macdonell, C.A.M.C. (died of broncho-pneumonia at his residence at Golder's Green on November 15), had been since the first of the year D.A.D.M.S. at C.A.M.C. Headquarters, 133, Oxford Street, W. Born in 1888 at Port Hood, N.S., deceased graduated at Dalhousie University, in 1910, and was a general practitioner at Sydney, N.S. He served seven months in the Royal Navy and a year in the R.A.M.C. (part of the time in France) before joining the C.A.M.C. Deceased, who was a most popular officer, married Miss Celeste Lombard, of Digby, N.S., about six years ago, and is survived by his widow and one child. The funeral took place at Brookwood Cemetery on November 21, and was largely attended, among those present being Surgeon-General Foster, Col. Chisholm, and a number of officers and men from the C.A.M.C. Headquarters.

Lt. T. J. Moulds, M.C., 3rd (C. Ont.) Bn., died of wounds, was formerly an employé of H. S. Howland & Sons, Toronto. Enlisting in the original 3rd Bn., he rose to the rank of company sergeant-major, and as a warrant officer won the M.C. He received his fatal injuries a few weeks after receiving his commission.

Capt. Sterndale J. Murphy, 3rd (C. Ont.) Bn., killed on October 14, was a well-known Toronto sportsman. He came overseas with the 208th Bn. He was 31, and his mother resides at 56, St. George Street.

CANADA'S OVERSEAS MILITARY FORCES.

Million-Dollar Mark Passed in O.M.F.C. Subscription to Victory Loan Pay of Civil Servants.

OFFICERS in England are invited to a party to be given by the Countess of Harrowby at 17, Grosvenor Gate, S.W.1, on Christmas Day, from 8 p.m. to midnight. The party will consist of a variety entertainment, tea, supper, and dancing.

A total subscription of $1,160,900 was received from units of the O.M.F.C. for the Canadian Victory Loan (1918). This amount included totals of $301,850 from Witley, $223,250 from France, and $155,250 from Seaford. The subscription lists closed on November 16. Before the lists closed Sir Edward Kemp, Overseas Minister of Militia, purchased $250,000 worth of bonds.

Canadian Army's Nest-Egg.

There is stated to be a sum of approximately $16,000,000, in the shape of deferred pay, standing to the credit of soldiers in the books of the Receiver-General at Ottawa.

Of 230,000 members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, 105,000, or 43.9 per cent., have expressed their desire to take up farming.

The total military personnel furnished by the O.M.F.C. (Great Britain and France) for the establishment of the Khaki University of Canada is 95 officers and 145 other ranks.

Canadian War Records Photo.

As from November 14, the issue of free railway warrants in Great Britain to members of the O.M.F.C. has been discontinued.

In future, all indents for new forms dealing with the subject of discharged men must be submitted to the Secretary (A.G.5), H.Q., O.M.F.C., for approval before being transmitted for printing.

A Routine Order respecting the disposal of Regimental Funds on demobilisation appears under date November 22.

Officers interested in hygiene are invited by the Council of the Royal Sanitary Institute (90, Buckingham Palace Road, S.W.) to make use of the equipment, library and museum of the Institute.

The Pay of Civil Servants in the O.M.F.C.

The operation of the various Orders-in-Council respecting Civil Service pay has been postponed until May 1, 1919. Civil Servants on leave from their departments will, therefore, continue to enjoy such Civil Service salaries as they were entitled to receive prior to the Order-in-Council of May 21, 1918, according to the terms under which they were permitted to join the C.E.F. Separation allowance is not payable in any circumstances to the dependents of Civil Servants drawing military pay plus full civil salary. In the case of those receiving the difference between the amount of their military pay and civil salaries, no separation allowance will be paid unless their Civil Service salary is less than the rate of separation allowance for their rank, in which case only the difference would be paid. The dependents of those in receipt of military pay only will be entitled to separation allowance, the same as any other officer or man in the O.M.F.C.

No. 1 Company (O.C., Capt. Hutchinson) of the Canadian Forestry Corps, situated in the 9th District, celebrated the Armistice by a "speech, song and music feast," under the chairmanship of Capt. (Rev.) W. C. Riddiford. No. 9 District has been situated in the war area since its organisation. Only the night before the signing of the Armistice No. 2 Company had two men and six horses killed by German shells, close to the Hun mill they were operating, while No. 29 lost a horse through its stepping on a bomb.

THE PIVOT AND THE BACKBONE—BRITAIN

In order that we should have a right perspective, it is as well to consider just what the island of Great Britain has really meant and stood for in this war. To Canadians, who have so well "measured up" to the standard of their forbears, this Old Country point of view, which appeared in the November issue of "Sperling's Journal," will be read with satisfaction for its truth, and with an additional thrill in the common pride of race.

It will be a long time before any Power ventures again to attack the British Empire. Once more these islands, intimately connected with Europe, yet not a part of the Continental system, have faced, and have been the foremost instrument in foiling, the recurrent plot to subject Europe to the domination of a single national will. That overlordship which we denied to Spain and to Napoleon we have now, after a tough struggle, wrested from the more formidable grip of Germany. We have not done it alone, but without us it would never have been done at all. We have been the pivot and backbone of the whole Alliance. There has not been a moment in the past fifty months when Germany could not have won if only she could have broken the British will and overcome the British Navy. The more fully the truth of the war comes to be revealed the more dazzling will appear the splendour of British achievements. Yet the outer universe of Allies and neutrals is still far from appraising them at their just value, and even our own people are only half and rather shamefacedly aware of what it is they have accomplished. Our old and deceptive trick of taking what we do well for granted and saying nothing about it, while we shriek our blunders from the housetops, has never imposed on opinion so successfully as during this war. We are by all odds the worst advertisers in the world. We are the most inveterate self-detractors in the world. We are the most persistent grumblers in the world. Nothing that other people say about Englishmen can ever hope to equal what Englishmen say about themselves. And being a strong, rebellious, self-sufficient people, tirelessly given to speaking out, we have naturally found in the dislocations and drama and surprises of the war an endless theme for self-depreciation.

German Boasts and British Silence.

Compared with the silence of Prussia—a silence never deeper than when concealing some untoward incident, some prodigious miscalculation—our British turmoil has seemed a token of confusion and inefficiency. But in reality it has been just the rough, wholesome, democratic way of doing things. That is how all self-governing peoples who are used to free speech and who are not used to the discipline of universal military service must inevitably act when caught in a great crisis and obliged to shift the whole basis of public and private life in order to strip themselves for a fight for existence. The Prussians from the first day of the war have shown themselves consummate masters of the art of magnifying all their successes and minimising all their failures. Mirabeau more than a hundred years ago declared and declared truly that war was the national industry of Prussia. But Prussia since then has supplemented that industry with another—the manufacture of opinion: and not merely German opinion but foreign opinion. It is almost ludicrous to recall how often she has succeeded in deluding dispassionate and even hostile onlookers in neutral lands. At this game of words and appearances and making out a case she leaves every one of the Allies, and, indeed, all of them combined, very far in the rear. Comparatively few outsiders have had the discernment to cut all Prussian boastings and all British lamentations in half and to realise that when the Prussians are silent it is a sign of failure and that when the British are silent it is a proof that all is going well. Just as our intelligence service—which is easily the best not only at all the fronts but behind them—works, as a secret service ought to work, in secret: just as, instead of the flashy prominence of a few men here and there, we have been quite content to shelter behind the anonymous but incontestable superiority of our Flying Corps as a whole; just as we have never advertised our submarines or lifted for more than a moment the veil that shrouds the Fleet—so we have never trumpeted the magnitude of our national effort, have hardly attempted to set it forth as an intelligible and connected narrative, and have left others to praise it or belittle it pretty much as they pleased without either guidance or protest from us.

A Great Tower in the Deep.

The only occasion we can recall when the might of Britain as the axle on which all else depends was hinted at with anything approaching an adequate plainness, was in a speech delivered by Mr. Lloyd George some eighteen months ago, soon after his return from the Allied Conference at Rome. "There is one thing," he said, "that struck me and that strikes me more and more each time I attend these conferences and visit the Continent—I mean the increasing extent to which the Allied peoples are looking to Great Britain. They are trusting her rugged strength and great resources more and more. She is to them like a great tower in the deep. She is becoming more and more the hope of the oppressed and the despair of the oppressor, and I feel confident that we shall not fail the people who have put their trust in us." It is true that if we have been able to do more than any of the Allies, it is partly because we have suffered less, because we have been spared the well-nigh mortal blow of an invasion of our territory, and because time was vouchsafed to us in which to develop and organise our power. That must never be forgotten. But neither should anyone be oblivious of the massive and deadly ends to which we have turned an immunity that was not a condition of the struggle but that had to be won by a supreme effort as the reward of years and decades of vigilant prevision.

The Ubiquitous, Unshakable Navy.

A Mahan of the future will need no other example than this war to point the realities of sea power. Everything that naval supremacy means or can ever mean has been taught in the past four years in a fashion that he who runs may read.

But for the British Navy France could never have been succoured by the help of millions of men pouring across the Channel and the Atlantic and indeed all the seven seas to the central battlefields. But for the British Navy we could never have conducted simultaneous campaigns in Egypt, East Africa, the Cameroons, South West Africa, the Balkans, and Mesopotamia. But for the British Navy Germany's colonies would never have been torn from her grasp one by one, and Germany have been rendered impotent to rescue them. But for the British Navy the Belgian Army could never have been re-armed, reconstituted, and re-equipped, or the Serbian forces similarly saved and re-made: nor could Russia have been munitioned nor could Italy have overcome her natural deficiencies, nor could France have remained a great manufacturing nation, nor could the distant power of America have been made effective, nor could the Allies have imported freely what they needed from the neutral world. To what ubiquitous and unshakable power, stretching from Iceland to the Equator and back again, guarding all oceans, girdling the whole world are these miracles due? They are due to just one thing—the British Navy. Because of the British Navy, Germany has been a beleagured garrison, her strength steadily, ceaselessly sapping away, her people languishing physically under the stress of the blockade, and financially and economically under the total loss of her foreign trade.

The Island Arsenal.

But sea-power is not the only, though it is by far the greatest, of the contributions that have made Great Britain the mainstay of the Alliance. We have been its bankers as well as its guardians on the sea. All our accumulated wealth has been placed without stint at the service of the common cause. And besides that we have been its main arsenal and workshop. Talk of German efficiency and German organisation! There has been literally nothing in Germany's conduct of the war that for sheer genius and flexibility equals the industrial transformation that the past fifty months have wrought in Great Britain. If the full tale is ever told of what we have thereby been able to do for the Allies in the way of ships and coal and steel and munitions and metals and explosives and machinery and clothing and medical necessaries and miscellaneous supplies, it will astonish the world. And on the top of all this we have converted ourselves into a military power of the first rank, have single-handed knocked out Turkey and immeasurably added to our prestige and power throughout the East, while on the Western front and especially in the last few months, our troops have passed from victory to victory with a sustained sweep that is certainly without parallel in this war, and therefore in any war. Such a variety of decisive services has been rendered and could have been rendered by no other Power. On land we have achieved at least as much as any of the Allies; at sea we have held the whole fortunes of the Alliance in our hands; financially and industrially all who have been fighting on the side of Great Britain have turned to her as to an inexhaustible treasure house and have rarely turned in vain. The record we may fairly claim, is unique. And it has been capped and reinforced by the unquestioning confidence of all our Allies in British staying-power. To them the thought simply never presented itself that Great Britain would or could give in. They rested on our national character with absolute faith in its unconquerable tenacity. That trust we have not betrayed. We have, indeed, so met its demands that the days through which we are now passing may justly be thought and spoken of as the most glorious in British history.

STORIES OF THE WAR.

Many Canadians serving with Imperial units on sea, on land and in the air, as well as in the O.M.F.C., have good stories to tell. The Editor will be glad to consider and pay for such articles as are suitable. In view of early relaxation of censorship restrictions articles should be sent in without delay.

FINAL C.T.S. COURSE.

Military Institution Which was the Model of its Kind.

Probably no similar institution has had such a useful existence during the war as the Canadian Training School, which last week closed its doors on the final class of cadets who will receive commissions in the O.M.F.C. The School establishment was authorised in March, 1917, under the command of Lt.-Col. A. C. Critchley, D.S.O., and was intended to form a military "co-partnership" with the Corps School in France.

From its inception the C.T.S., unbound by the red-tape of tradition and lucky in its youthful and energetic Commandant, began to attract favourable attention. High military officers came, saw, and approved; even officialdom, from its secluded quarters in Whitehall, was compelled to "sit up and take notice," and when Col. Critchley stepped into his new position as head of the R.A.F. Cadet Brigade he had evolved and perfected an organisation which was a model of its kind.

Lt.-Col. A. Douglas Cameron, M.C., of Winnipeg, who had succeeded Col. Critchley as Commandant of the Corps School, then became head of the C.T.S., and under him the School retained its high standard of efficiency. One of the greatest assets of the C.T.S. has been its official magazine, Chevrons to Stars, first started in April, 1917, under the editorial charge of Capt. B. C. Quinan and Cadet N. Duncan, and later made doubly interesting by the pen-and-ink work of Lt. Ernest Le Mesurier. The magazine has always preached the need for an esprit de l'école. The hundreds of smart young Canadians who claim the C.T.S. as their military Alma Mater have imbibed deeply of that spirit.

Bexhill says "Goodbye" to Canadians.

The consistent kindness of the people of Bexhill was referred to last week, when several functions took place, with the C.T.S. officers and cadets as the guests of the Mayor and Mayoress. On the Thursday the School assembled for the valedictory address by the Commandant (Lt.-Col. N. Gentles, D.S.O.). The gathering was also made the occasion for the presentation of trophies won during the course. Capt. Arthurs, M.C., received on behalf of "F" Company the cup for the best all-round company; "F" Platoon (represented by Cadet Coles) won the platoon cup, and the individual championship cup was won by Cadet Thompson. Cadets Coles and Dougall received cups as runners-up.

The same evening the Mayor and Corporation of Bexhill gave a complimentary ball to the Commandant and officers at the Town Hall. In welcoming his guests, the Mayor said the white rose of peace had its thorn which would sting them for many a day—the sting of parting. Col. Gentles thanked the Mayor for his hospitality, which he characterised as the crowning point of the unfailing kindness shown to the Canadians by the citizens of Bexhill. He believed that the war had accomplished a great union of hearts between the Mother Country and her daughter, Canada. Bexhill citizens in particular would ever remain to them the memory of kind and hospitable English people, who had offered the open hand of good fellowship to their brothers from across the seas.

Duke of Connaught's Inspection.

On November 20 the Duke of Connaught, accompanied by Lt.-Gen. Sir Richard Turner, V.C., Chief of the General Staff, O.M.F.C., Lt.-Col. Pat Edwards, D.S.O., and Capt. W. Nickle, M.C., A.D.C., paid a visit of inspection to the School, and lunched with Lt.-Col. Gentles, the officers, and cadets. After the inspection (see photographs on centre double page), the Duke presented the following decorations to the cadets named :—

BAR TO D.C.M.—444949 Cadet M. N. Jordan, 25th Bn.

D.C.M. 550208 Cadet P. A. Lilster, 8th Bn.; 648006 Cadet W. A. Millen, 38th; 811729 Cadet R. L. Harper, 28th; 150983 Cadet H. T. Jones, 16th; 69140 Cadet E. Comeau, 26th.

THE 14 POINTS OF PELMANISM.

USEFUL SUMMARY OF FACTS.

IN view of the enormous interest in Pelmanism shown by all classes of men and women, the following brief summary of facts is given for the benefit of those who have not followed closely the announcements of the Pelman Institute which have already appeared.

Pelmanism appeals to everybody.—There is no man or woman who cannot gain by adopting this remarkable System. This fact is readily apparent to everybody who takes the trouble to examine the wonderful evidence which the Pelman Institute offers to all applicants (see below). If you are not already a Pelmanist you should at once write for the free literature which is offered.

But first read carefully the following plain facts:—

1. Over 400,000 men and women of all classes have now adopted Pelmanism.—These include literally every class and rank: clerks, managers, soldiers, sailors, generals, admirals, peers, peeresses, shop-assistants, salesmen, accountants, barristers, solicitors, doctors, clergymen, journalists, artisans, engineers, typists, secretaries, manufacturers, bankers, etc., etc.
2. Large numbers of these have increased their incomes by 100 p.c., 200 p.c., 300 p.c. and even more, as a direct result of Pelmanism. Thousands of others have gained important positions or speedy promotion. In the Army and Navy some hundreds of officers openly attribute their promotion (and in many cases their M.C., D.S.O., etc.) to Pelmanism.
3. No man or woman has yet failed to reap great benefit from Pelmanism, provided that the System has been conscientiously followed. Sweeping as the assertion may seem, it is yet an admitted fact that "progress by Pelmanism" is certain if the Course is properly followed.
4. No hard study is required. The course is exceedingly interesting and takes but a few minutes daily. Most people find that half an hour daily for a few weeks enables them to master the System, which is taught entirely by correspondence and which can be followed anywhere. It does not in any way interfere with your usual daily work, but helps you in it, making your work easier, quicker, better, and far more productive.
5. Benefit begins with the First Lesson. This is testified to by thousands of letters in the records of the Pelman Institute, many of which record promotion and increases as a direct result of Lesson I.
6. The benefit is life-long. A few weeks of study (a few minutes daily) produces a betterment of your mind and your ability, which make for your advantage all your life.
7. There is nothing artificial in Pelmanism: it develops your natural powers upon natural lines. The Pelman System exercises and disciplines all your faculties, bringing them to full strength and enabling you to show greater ability in everything you apply yourself to.
8. It brings out latent powers and talents. Testimony upon this point is simply overwhelming, thousands of men and women writing to say that they now find themselves able to do better work and to occupy far more responsible positions (with correspondingly bigger incomes) than they ever dreamed themselves capable of.
9. Anyone can understand Pelmanism. There is nothing technical or difficult in it; anyone of average (elementary) education can quite easily master it.
10. The cost is very small. Many Pelmanists write that the Course would still be wonderfully cheap at ten times its present cost. Enrolment may still be secured at one-third less than the regular fee.
11. Employers are quick to appreciate the services of Pelmanists. Many firms pay for the enrolment of their staff, large firms having thus enrolled 70, 100, 145, and 165 of their staffs at one time!
12. Pelmanism is now indispensable to every man and woman, no matter of what age, status, or occupation. That fact is warmly attested by all of the many famous educationists, M.P.s, authors, editors, and public men and women who have investigated the work and results of the Pelman Institute. No such important body of independent testimony has ever before been gathered in support of an efficiency movement. That fact alone is conclusive.
13. Pelmanism is world-wide. There are Pelman students in every corner of the British Empire, and many of these are so eager to commence the course that they cable at great expense from the Farthest East, from India, Africa, etc., for the "little grey books" to be sent out.
14. Every statement or claim published by the Pelman Institute can be verified by any bona-fide inquirer. Critical investigations have from time to time been made by great journals like Truth, Public Opinion, John Bull, British Weekly, etc., and have invariably resulted in warm editorial appreciations of the System. The Directors of the Institute have always welcomed investigation by the public, as the better the facts are known the more surely does enrolment follow. The Institute is, in sober truth, doing a great work of national importance, and every man and woman should know at least the elementary facts about this wonderful movement.

What Pelmanism is Doing.

Pelmanism is enabling Business men and women to increase their income-earning capacity by 100 per cent., 200 per cent., and in some cases by even 300 per cent.

> "Thanks to the Pelman training I have been transferred, and have made such good progress that my salary is now double. I proposed, and carried out, a loose-leaf costing system that has been an absolute success. The Pelman System has been my faithful friend," writes a Clerk.

Pelmanism is helping Professional men and women to achieve better results with less effort, to enlarge their incomes, to increase their prestige, and to secure rapid advancement.

> "I have found the Course particularly useful in my business; it has helped me to advise far more usefully, and to deal with professional work and problems far more efficiently. Altogether I have no hesitation whatever in recommending the Pelman Course as a wonderful tonic to the mind. No one who practises the System perseveringly can possibly fail to receive great benefit," writes a Solicitor.

Pelmanism is proving of the utmost value to Soldiers and Sailors, enabling them to develop just those qualities which lead to promotion and forming, in addition, a most fascinating mental recreation.

> "As a direct consequence of lesson 2 I have got a step in rank," writes a Lieut.-Colonel.

Pelmanism is enabling many people to learn Foreign Languages in one-half to one-quarter the usual time.

> "By a judicious use of the rules given in lesson 4 I have been enabled to learn (without any extraordinary effort) during the past week as much French (grammar and vocabulary) as would have taken a month's hard work to learn previously," writes a Student.

Pelmanism is helping men and women to avoid mistakes and errors of judgment.

> "You may be interested to know that lesson 2 has been the means of saving me from pursuing a certain course in business which would have proved disastrous. The teachings of lesson 2 pointed out to me that I would make a grievous error did I follow out the plan I had in view," writes a Business man.

Pelmanism is widening the mental horizons of men and women, and driving out all those factors which make for mental fatigue, inertia and stagnation.

> "The Course has prevented me becoming slack and stagnating during my Army life—this is a most virulent danger, I may add. It inculcates a clear, thorough, courageous method of playing the game of life—admirably suited to the English temperament, and should prove moral salvation to many a business man. 'Success,' too, would follow, but I consider this as secondary," writes a Soldier.

Now write for a free copy of "Mind and Memory," in which the Pelman Course is fully described and explained and which also contains a full synopsis of the lessons of the Course. With this you will also receive an unabridged reprint of "Truth's" sensational report on Pelmanism, and particulars showing you how to secure the complete Course for one-third less than the regular fee. Address your application to the Pelman Institute, 21, Pelman House, Bloomsbury Street, London, W.C.1

Christmas

THE Goldsmiths and Silversmiths Company have made a great effort to offer Christmas stocks of the most varied and complete description for the selection of Gifts. Buyers should, however, be warned to make an alternative choice, if possible, in the case of short supply, as the demand for advertised articles is expected to be exceptionally large. Such shortness of supply would only be the result of War conditions. All articles are of highest quality and the best value.

Selections will be sent for approval, if desired, carriage paid, and at the Company's risk, or a Christmas Catalogue may be had post free on application.

"RED TRIANGLE" TOURS.

Cessation of Hostilities Gives Increased Scope to "Y" Leave Department.

LIKE the Khaki University, the Y.M.C.A. Leave Department comes more fully into its own with the cessation of hostilities on all Fronts. The Leave Department was born of necessity; to-day it has attained a vigorous growth commensurate with the needs of the Canadian soldier on leave. For a year or thereabouts it has been doing work the value of which will be determined only by the passage of time. The war provided many Canadian soldiers with their first opportunity of seeing Britain; and the Leave Department seized on that opportunity to enable Canadians to appreciate the "Tight Little Island" from whose stock they themselves had sprung.

Through the activities of this particular branch of the Y.M.C.A. the Canadian soldier has had the chance of seeing England and Englishmen and women. To a certain extent he could have done this whilst in the training camps, but his viewpoint would then have been tinged with parochialism. England cannot be adequately judged by a section of its people; nor in fairness to the country and its people can a standard of values be set by the soldier's limited acquaintance within the area of his training camp. "We strongly urge and advise you to get out and see the beauties of the Old Country," is the burden of the advice given to the soldier by the Leave Department. That advice is sound, and hundreds of men have already taken advantage of it. They have taken one or more of the fourteen "Red Triangle" tours, and discovered that the people of Britain possess, concealed beneath their outward spirit of phlegm, a warm-heartedness and hospitable nature which responds willingly to any overtures of friendliness by kinsmen from Overseas.

LT. J. FRED MOUNTAIN.
In charge of the Leave Department.

A/BDR. P. BATEMAN, R.G.A.
C.P.R. Passenger Department, London. (Killed).

The result is that these Canadian soldiers will go back and tell, not of one section of the people whom they met near the big training camps and perhaps found wanting in the characteristics which we are wont to associate with the English people, but of the larger spirit which is symbolical of all that is best in the nation. Firstly, entertainment and a "good time," and secondly, the education of travel and enlightenment on many points, arise from these "Red Triangle" Tours, on which men from Overseas meet their kinsmen of the Mother Country under conditions when all reserve vanishes and ideals which have been born of the freedom of the Flag are strengthened by the removal of prejudices arising out of the accident of distance.

"Red Triangle" Propaganda.

The "Red Triangle" Tours are the natural successors to Cook's peace-time itineraries. So thoroughly has the Leave Department organised its activities that propaganda may be said to veritably dog the footsteps of Canadian soldiers from the time they first get into uniform. The men are told of it in the Canadian camps, and again on the transports they are made acquainted with the possibilities of the scheme by Y.M.C.A. officers who accompany the drafts. On arrival in this country the recruit who finds his way into the Y.M.C.A. huts (and who does not?) runs up against lecturers who again drive home the advantages of the "Red Triangle" Tours. Well-arranged pamphlets, containing an application form for detailed information, everywhere meet his eye.

Shore leave gives the soldier his first opportunity of testing the scheme. The application form is filled up, handed to any Y.M.C.A. officer in camp, and is despatched to the London centre. Every such enquiry is answered the day it is received, and whilst the soldier is still full of anticipatory delight he receives full information as to his route and the approximate cost of the holiday. The tours are undertaken at the soldier's own expense; to offer him the whole thing free of charge would be impossible, and, even if possible, would encroach on his independence. Up to the present, however, Pte. Jack Canuck's outlay has been limited to his expenditure on meals and lodging, the big item of railway fare having been eliminated by the previous warrant which is (or was) an "issue."

The tours are not "personally conducted." That is a tactful step, because a man on leave naturally desires free, untrammelled scope to enjoy himself. Introduction cards are supplied the men for use in each of the places visited. The Leave Department has its own representative in Edinburgh, and in every other city and town are responsible men, good friends of the Y.M.C.A., and, therefore, of the soldier also, who are always available for local information. Thus throughout the country there has been forged a chain of good-fellowship which links up the Canadian soldier with kindly, hospitable folk who are more than ready to extend a welcome to their distant kinsmen. Men come back from these tours so enthusiastic at the hospitality and the home life of their new-found friends that they themselves become the best propagandists. Their pleasant experiences, retailed in French billets and English training camps, invariably bring a flood of enquiries to the Beaver Hut, and so the good work goes on apace, gaining momentum and popularity week by week.

A Brief Respite from Army Routine.

Nor do the fourteen tours, which embrace the chief centres of historical interest in Britain, put a limit on the places to be visited. A man has only to name his wishes to be put in the way of visiting any town or district in the whole of the British Isles. Reliable information as to the sights to see and houses to stay at are procured at short notice; in brief, the Leave Department will, if it is humanly possible, "find anything for anybody." Such is the Y.M.C.A. "spirit of service," but Canadian soldiers need not be told of that—the "Y" work in France is the best advertisement of its efforts to serve.

Does a Canadian soldier, with prospects of leave, desire to get away from the daily routine of billets, barracks or camp, he can be suited. Acting in conjunction with the Co-operative Holidays Association and the International Hospitality League, the Leave Department can find such a home for any man. "You will be Tom Brown, or Jack Canuck, not Private Iddy-Umpty," the soldier is told. He becomes for a glorious week or two just "one of the family." He can choose his location from a thousand homes, become an honoured guest in a private family or "one of the bunch" at a C.H.A. guest house among the Derbyshire hills, in the Lake district, the Yorkshire dales, or at the seaside. The cost is purely nominal in every case, and a Canadian private's "dollar-ten" will cover his daily outlay outside personal expenditures.

In addition to touring, there is always a full, attractive London programme. A number of group leaders, who place themselves at the disposal of the men for trips in and around the Metropolis, act as guides. In London, as elsewhere, "there is something doing all the time"—house parties, dances, theatres—and the soldier pays his own way as he goes. There is absolutely no patronage—a thing abominated by every self-respecting Tommy.

The soldier on leave from France—and leave is now in full swing—goes first to the Kit Store and Viséing Office at 46, Grosvenor Gardens, close to Victoria Station. At this "clearing house," which owes its origin to the Leave Department, the soldier can have his kit stored and his pass checked, and then he is free to start out on the "good time" he has so well earned. A representative is also at the Visé Office at 3, Southampton Street, Strand (close to the Beaver Hut), where all information is available.

Christmas Day as "Canada's Day."

The Leave Department is in charge of Lt. J. Fred Mountain, an officer well known to Hamilton men. Mr. Mountain is planning a big scheme for Christmas week, therefore men in France who are expecting leave should read this article with interest. He is asking the Mayors of certain South Coast cities and towns to arrange civic receptions for all Canadian soldiers in their areas on Christmas Day, and to let that day be known, for this year, as "Canada's Day." Arrangements will then be put in hand to despatch parties of men to such towns on four or five days' leave.

Another scheme of great educational importance is now occupying Mr. Mountain's attention. He is endeavouring to arrange for visits of inspection by soldiers on leave of all the chief industries of the country. Whatever a man is peculiarly interested in, whether it be agriculture, structural and mechanical engineering, shipbuilding, woollen and textile manufacture, or what not, facilities for visiting such factories and works will be given him. It is a great educational opportunity, and a man has only to put forward his request to be suited.

CANADIAN AIRMEN AND DEMOBILISATION.

The C.A.F. and its "Presentation" Machines.

All Canadian officers in the Royal Air Force (including those seconded or attached) who wish to be demobilised and return to civil life should make immediate application through their commanding officer. Officers so demobilised will be returned to Canada by the British Government, but any officer who resigns his commission will be required to pay his own passage back to Canada

Meanwhile, the two squadrons at present constituting the Canadian Air Force will remain in England to complete their training, on the conclusion of which the question of their transfer to Canada will be considered. It is probable that these two squadrons will constitute the peace-time strength of the Canadian Air Force, pending developments as their utility for national purposes is demonstrated.

When the C.A.F. returns to Canada for service it will probably take with it a number of machines which have been purchased with money subscribed by Canadians and by the people of Canada. It is understood that the Imperial Air Fleet Committee, through whom four machines have been presented, will return these machines (or, in lieu of them, other machines) to the Canadian Air Force. Similarly, there are now in use by the Royal Air Force about ten machines, which on the declaration of peace will, it is understood, revert to the Canadian Air Force. It would be a happy inspiration if these machines could be returned to the Canadian Air Force ere that organisation sets sail for Canada.

WORKMEN FROM OVERSEAS.

All British subjects who, since the beginning of the war, have come to the United Kingdom for employment on Government contracts and have, so far as possible, worked continuously in such employment, will be entitled to free conveyance to the country from which they came. The wives and children of these workmen (boys under 18, girls under 18), if in this country, will also be provided with free conveyance. Forms of applications will be obtainable at all Employment Exchanges on and after Thursday, November 28, 1918. Workmen whose contracts already provide for free conveyance should complete the form in order to ensure that a passage will be available for them. The Minister of Labour cannot undertake to deal with applications received after December 31 next.

CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Mr. F. C. Wade on the Province's Leading Industries.

Mr. F. C. Wade, the newly appointed Agent-General for British Columbia, arrived from Canada last Saturday, and was accompanied by Mr. W. A. Blair, who has been appointed by the Provincial Government secretary to the Agent-General's headquarters in London, 1, Regent Street, W.

Speaking to a representative of Canada, Mr. Wade said that before making any statement as to details of the steps which the Province is taking in regard to the settlement of returned soldiers, he preferred to wait the result of the conference at Ottawa between the Provincial Premiers and the Dominion Cabinet. "It does not appear to be generally known, however," continued Mr. Wade, "that a law already exists in my Province which authorises the expropriation of land by the Government."

The Demand for Lumber.

Dealing with the lumber situation, Mr. Wade said: "The war demand for spruce and waste spruce lumber has drawn world-wide attention to its value for other purposes than aeroplanes. The enormous increase in consumption of our lumber in Eastern Canada is shown in the reports of our Timber Commissioner, Mr. Beale, who is now in England. For example, prior to 1914 the Eastern Provinces took from 25 to 30 million feet annually, while the indications are that in the current year they will receive 150 million feet. It is of interest to note," continued Mr. Wade, "that leading architects in the older Provinces, in making their specifications, have learnt to appreciate our timber so highly that they call for its use. Generally, of course, the world demand will affect us, and the devastated areas of Europe will draw upon our supplies; but as our present saw crop of 500,000,000 feet is only one-fifth of our annual growth, and as our entire stand is estimated at 400,000 million feet, it is obvious that our Province is equal to any demand.

VANCOUVER ISLAND TIMBER.

Mineral Development.

"The abnormal demand for lead, copper, and zinc has, of course," said the Agent-General, "meant great activity and interest in our mining areas. Our copper export in 1917 was valued at $16,038,256, lead $2,951,020, zinc $3,166,259, gold $2,367,190, and silver $2,268,749. Much prospecting is being done by United States capitalists on a thoroughly business, systematic basis. The activity in steel shipbuilding has created an urgent demand for the development of our iron resources. The existence of iron ores on the west coast of Vancouver Island and on the mainland has long been known. For some time United States capitalists have been shipping ore from Texada Island to smelters across the boundary line. Recently the Dominion Government has agreed to take over all the iron ore that can be produced within a period of years, and the Provincial Government is giving a bounty to facilitate production. The Coughlin shipyards at Vancouver have been turning out 8,800 ton steel ships, and have now one of 10,000 tons on the stocks; besides there are other orders which will keep this industry busy for a long period. The Dominion Government having adopted an extensive shipbuilding policy to provide ocean-going fleets to co-operate with our transatlantic railways will tend to ensure stability for this great industry in our Province.

Fish and Fruit Industries

"As to our fisheries, of course," continued Mr. Wade, "it is common knowledge that British Columbia leads. Our salmon pack in 1917 was valued at $12,000,000, while this year the weight of halibut landed is estimated at 23,000,000 lbs." Mr. Wade remarked that, owing to the falling off in the Fraser River salmon catch, steps would probably be taken to more rigorously preserve the fisheries all along the B.C. coast.

Turning to discuss the fruit industry, Mr. Wade said: "It is, I believe, on a better basis than it ever has been, partly owing to the perfecting of the organisation of the United Fruit Growers' Association, and also to improvements in packing, shipping, chilling, and refrigerating methods, while handling, transport and rates are on a more satisfactory footing. On August 27 last, when I was in the Okanagan Valley, 36 refrigerating cars and 16 'driers' were shipped out of Vernon in one day, and 2,400 tons of fruit had been shipped in the previous three weeks."

For the present Mr. Wade is staying at the Regent Palace Hotel.

CO-OPERATIVE LUMBERING FOR SOLDIERS

Arrangements for employing 1,500 returned soldiers in lumbering in British Columbia are almost completed, under which mills will be operated on a co-operative basis, with soldiers having a full share in the management (says the Toronto correspondent of the Times). A Federal Charter is being sought for a Returned Soldiers' Co-operative Lumber Co., with an authorised capital of $10,000,000 and a paid up capital of $1,500,000.

Each soldier will be expected to take $100 worth of stock, and only returned men will be employed in the mills, camps, and agencies which the company proposes to establish throughout Canada, the United States, Europe, and elsewhere. Workers will live in community in settlements, and will be paid current lumbermen's wages. The company has secured an option on eight large sawmills in British Columbia with a capacity of 150,000,000 ft. yearly on timber limits aggregating 5,000,000,000 ft.

Sir Douglas Cameron, president, and Mr. Thomas Meredith, general manager of the company, will leave Vancouver shortly for England, where they will make personal selections from amongst the war veterans.

The Duke of Connaught, in opening the Royal British Colonial Society of Artists' exhibition at Burlington House on Monday, said that in Canada there was a great amount of latent talent, which only wanted bringing out. Sir George and Lady Perley were among those present.

Mr. Donald Macmaster, K.C., in his election address as Coalition candidate for the Chertsey Division of Surrey, lays stress on the necessity for national unity and the imperativeness of paying our debt to our defenders; and advocates, among other things, co-operation in civil life, no dumping of foreign goods or aliens, and the retention unimpaired of the right of the United Kingdom and of the Dominions to regulate tariffs, taxes, and economic arrangements generally. He insists upon the need for retaining our grip on our enemies, and making a strict reckoning with Germany and her Allies.

CANADA LODGE

The regular meeting of Canada Lodge was held on Tuesday at Freemasons' Hall, at which a large number of brethren were present. In addition to the passing and initiation of candidates and the election of a number of joining members, the consecration of the Cabot Lodge at Bristol on November 30 was announced, and in view of its special ties with Canada, it was voted to present the new Lodge with a suitable banner as a gift from Canada Lodge.

At the dinner which followed the evening's work, the W.M., Bro. Hugh S. Carmichael, referred to the happy auspices under which they met, with the armistice signed and peace in sight, and this feeling was reflected in the spirit of the members and their guests. Various speakers in the course of the evening referred to the increasing importance of the bond of Masonry, and the good work done by Canada Lodge during the war. Col. Dennistoun, D.J.A.C., in striking words spoke of the ties of race and tradition, and urged that all citizens of the Empire should take the lessons of the past to heart and never again be caught so unprepared to protect their Empire and their heritage of freedom.

The next regular meeting of the Lodge will be held on the fourth Tuesday in February, and it is likely to be a most memorable and important occasion

DISCHARGE ALLOWANCES.

To the Editor of "Canada."

DEAR SIR,—As far as I have heard, officers who have returned to Canada for discharge have, on discharge, received three months' pay, and in the case of married officers three months' separation allowance. It hardly seems fair that those who joined up in 1914 should only receive the same as those who joined in 1917.

There are rumours of the Government granting the soldiers land, which is all right for those who wish to take up farming; but what about the business men, men who have given up everything and have no business to go back to, whose business went when they joined up? Three months' pay won't start a man in business again. I am told by Imperial officers that they will get 124 days' pay for the one year and 62 days' pay for each subsequent year, besides which they have been getting a wound gratuity, or "blood money" as it is called, which we Canadians do not get.

Take my own case. I was shot through the lung in 1916, and although fit in a way, I shall never be as fit as I was. Am I to get no compensation for my loss of health? I am only one of many in the same condition.

I know there are a certain number of officers who want to take their discharge in this country. They are naturally very anxious to know how they will stand financially.—Yours, etc.,

WOUNDED OFFICER

THE 1914-15 STAR

To the Editor of "Canada."

DEAR SIR,—In awarding the 1914-15 Star to "officers and other ranks who served in any theatre of war prior to December 31, 1915," does this not also apply to Canadians who were stationed in the bombed areas on the South Coast of England during the Zeppelin raids in the fall of 1915, etc.?

Arriving in England in the early summer of this year, they were prevented by executive or other duties from going immediately to France, but were nevertheless in "a theatre of war," with its resulting dangers, as much as they would have been in many parts of France, and consequently should be as much entitled to this distinction as others who were more fortunate in being detailed for French service.—Yours, etc.,

ONE OF THEM.

[Detailed regulations for the Star have not yet been announced.—EDITOR, Canada.]

Some of the points raised in these and other letters are dealt with in our editorial columns.

LONDON, Tuesday.

In the Canadian section there has been a fair volume of support. Among the gilt-edged issues of the Dominion the 4½ per Cents. and the Fours have not varied, but the 3½ per Cents. at 74 are a point to the good. Montreal 4½ per Cents. at 84 have also risen 1.

Among railroad stocks Canadian Pacifics are up to 181 again after being lower. Current earnings are indifferent. There has been very little doing in Grand Trunk stocks, but junior issues register improvements of ⅛ to ¼ Grand Trunk Pacific 4 per Cent. Debs. are 1 up at 63.

Hudson's Bays, among land shares, have settled back ⅛ to 8⅝, but lower-priced shares have held their ground.

As regards industrials, Dominion Steels have fallen back 2½ to 62½, but Canada Car issues have been steady, and Canada Cements hold around 71. Lake Superior shares retain their recent improvement to 19. Cities Services at 131 are 1 better, and Brazilian Tractions at 58 mark a similar gain.

Canadian silver mining shares have been quietly firm. Mining Corporation of Canada at 11s. 3d., though under best, is 6d. up on balance.

OUR TORONTO LETTER.

TORONTO, November 9.

After being very quiet during the earlier part of this week, the security markets showed some improvement towards the close. A distinct tendency towards broader and more active trading is attributed largely to the excellent progress of the Victory Loan.

Throughout the week Brazil Traction has been the most prominent stock, both in Toronto and Montreal, the markets evidently taking a hopeful view of the company's prospects when a return to peace conditions brings about an improvement in the Rio exchange rate. Little interest has been shown in the steel stocks, despite the confident statement which is being made that the directors of Dominion Steel have decided to increase the dividend on the Common stock from 5 to 6 per cent. per annum. It is stated that the actual announcement of this increase may be deferred until the Victory Loan is closed. In the last day or two there has been some activity in the Power group, Montreal Power and Laurentide Power both improving; Ogilvie and Maple Leaf among the milling stocks and, elsewhere, Steamships Common and Cement have shown some strength. Brazilian Traction has continued active, but weaker, and Barcelona is also lower. After being inactive for some weeks Russell Preferred changed hands again recently at 80.

It is announced that the Nova Scotia Steel & Coal Co.'s net profits for the nine months to September 30 amounted to $2,743,125, which is more than $400,000 in excess of the net profits for the whole of 1917. It is suggested that the company's surplus earnings for 1918 should be about $2,500,000, which would be equal to about 17 per cent. on the Common stock.

Among current prices, Dom. Steel is 62½; Steel of Canada, 62; Cement, 63¾; Can. Loco., 64¾; Can. Car. Pref., 84; Can. Gen. Electric, 104½; Civic Power, 84⅜; Steamships Com., 47¼, Pref. 77; Brompton, 59; Spanish River Pref., 57½; Maple Leaf, 136; Ogilvie, 199; St. Lawrence Flour, 90; MacDonald, 19; Brazilian, 56; Barcelona, 14⅞; Dom. Canners Pref., 70.

The standard mining exchange closed the week with a fair display of strength. Among the gold stocks Hollinger, by selling up to $5.90, reached its highest level since February, 1917, just before the dividend was cut off. The announcement of a subscription of $1,750,000 by Hollinger to the Victory Loan is regarded as an indication of the company's strong financial position, and a suggestion is current that something more than the ordinary dividend may be hoped for by the shareholders. Dome Mines, after its recent advance to $15, is now quieter, and is quoted slightly below that figure. McIntyre also has improved to $1.80, while among the lower-priced shares Davidson is higher at .51, and Porcupine Crown at .29, Newray at .18¼, and West Dome at .17 all show improvement.

The silver shares have also been active and strong. Nipissing, which has subscribed $1,000,000 to the Victory Loan, changed hands at $8.75, and McKinley at 46½, Crown Reserve at .27, Beaver at 34½, and Temiskaming at .32 have been in some demand.

Barcelona Traction Light and Power.—Coupon No. 7, due December 1 on 7 per Cent. Prior Lien "A" bonds, will be paid December 2 at the Bank of Scotland, 30, Bishopsgate, London, E.C.

Royal Bank of Scotland.—The net profits of year to October 12 last, after providing for all bad and doubtful debts, amounted to £310,503. The midsummer dividend was at rate of 10 per cent. per annum, and it is now proposed to pay a similar dividend at Christmas, less tax; written off bank buildings and heritable property, £20,000; to pension reserve fund, £30,000; added to rest £115,503, making it £1,030,471.

CANADA'S VICTORY LOAN SUCCESS.

A War Stamp Saving Campaign.

The complete returns of the Victory Loan campaign give a total of over $676,000,000. The announcement was made at a great meeting held in the Massey Hall, Toronto.

The subscriptions by Provinces, in round figures, were:—Ontario, $329,000,000; Quebec, $175,500,000; Manitoba, $43,650,000; British Columbia, $35,500,000; Nova Scotia, $30,500,000; Saskatchewan, $24,000,000; Alberta, $18,000,000; New Brunswick, $16,500,000; Prince Edward Island, $2,700,000. Montreal contributed $146,000,000, beating Toronto by about $1,000,000.

A war stamps saving campaign is now being inaugurated, the stamps giving an interest rate of over 4½ per cent., and being redeemable in January, 1924.

BANK OF MONTREAL REPORT.

Notable Expansion in Figures.

The Bank of Montreal comes out with its annual statement at a time when the strength shown must lend considerable confidence regarding the manner in which the Dominion will be able to pass through the period of readjustment (says the Montreal correspondent of the Times). With total assets in excess of 550 million dollars and liquid assets in excess of 370 millions, the Bank of Montreal in reality becomes a national institution that enables manufacturers and the commercial interests of the country to realise the resources at the back of Canada.

How great has been the progress made during the past few years can be appreciated from the fact that in the first year of the war the total assets stood at $289,562,678, while to-day they have increased to $558,413,546. Liquid assets alone now stand at $370,351,000, being 80 millions above what the total assets were at the outbreak of war. Steady expansion was enjoyed during the past year, even allowing for the absorption of the Bank of British North America. A year ago the total assets were $403,980,236. The liquid assets now equal 71.28 per cent. of the total liabilities to the public.

The measure of the assistance lent to the Dominion and Imperial Governments is reflected by Dominion and Provincial Government securities of a value of $46,870,586, compared with $28,578,322, and in the Canadian municipal securities, and British, foreign, and Colonial public securities, other than Canadian, amounting to $52,085,835, against $33,455,254.

The general statement of assets and liabilities shows that interest-bearing deposits total $345,552,764, compared with $246,041,786; and deposits not bearing interest $124,175,047, against $71,114,641. Loans and discounts have increased from $119,440,229 to $177,132,212. The net profits were $2,562,720, equal to 16.01 per cent., as compared with $2,477,969. After payment of dividends and special appropriations the amount carried forward is $1,901,613, compared with $1,664,893. The capital remains at $16,000,000. Provision for the purchase of the Bank of British North America is evidently provided for in the increase in non-interest-bearing deposits.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT RAILWAYS.

All Roads Now Under Same Board.

The Hon. J. D. Reid announces that an Order-in-Council has been passed transferring the management and operation of the Canadian Government railways, which comprise the Intercolonial and its branch lines and the National Transcontinental, to the Board of Directors appointed to manage the Canadian Northern system (says the Daily Record).

This transfer will place all the railways owned by the people of Canada under this Board, the personnel of which is increased by the following additional members:—Mr. Thomas E. Cantley, New Glasgow, N.S.; Mr. A. P. Barnhill, St. John, N.B.; and Sir H. Laporte, Montreal.

It is understood that Mr. C. A. Hayes, who has been general manager of the Intercolonial, will become traffic manager of the whole national system, and that Mr. F. P. Brady, at present general manager of the National Transcontinental between Winnipeg and Quebec, will be appointed general manager of all Eastern lines, with Mr. L. S. Brown, general superintendent of the Intercolonial, chief operating officer of that section of the road.

CANADIAN LOANS TO GREAT BRITAIN.

The Dominion Government has submitted to the British authorities a memorandum offering extensive credits in Canada for the purchase of materials to be used in the work of reconstruction in Europe (says the Morning Post's Ottawa correspondent). In return for the credit expended here the Dominion Government will accept the securities of the International Commission, backed by Inter-Allied credit, if one or more nation should be concerned. The interest to be received will be equivalent to that paid on domestic loans.

THE EASTERN TOWNSHIPS OF QUEBEC.

Mr. E. L. Stewart Patterson, Superintendent of Eastern Branches of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, who resides at Sherbrooke, P.Q., is staying at Morley's Hotel.

Speaking to a representative of Canada, Mr. Patterson said: "Sherbrooke has turned out more munitions per capita of population than any other place in Canada. It had extensive suitable plants prior to the war, and the additional labour required was largely supplied by the farms and country districts—a fact which will simplify the work of reconstruction now the war is happily over. General conditions in the Province of Quebec have benefited during the war; farmers have prospered; all labour has been employed at high wages; and leading industries have been stimulated, such as dairying, lumber, pulp, asbestos and copper; the production of chrome iron has also shown marked development, and several new pits have been opened in mining areas. At the growing port of Three Rivers and other points shipbuilding has been very active.

"The finances of the Province are in good shape," continued Mr. Patterson, "and the policy of the Government in assisting local municipalities to improve the roads on a systematic plan has been of general benefit in the rural districts and to the Province generally."

Mr. Patterson alluded to the great extensions made at Bishop College School, Lennoxville, thanks to the generosity of Mr. J. K. L. Ross, which, he says, will make it the best equipped public school in the Dominion, if not in the world.

Ontario after the War—WATER POWER.

The whole industrial success of Ontario may be said to depend upon the development of its water power.

The water power of Ontario is cheapened and made generally available by Government control and operation, and nearly every city and town in Ontario has already been provided with hydro-electric power both for lighting and manufacturing purposes.

The importance of this phase of development may be realised from the fact that Ontario to-day has 16,000 factories depending upon water power, with an annual output amounting to $579,000,000.

The enormous reserve of Ontario's water power may be realised from the fact that, of the many millions of horse-power available, only about 10 per cent. has, up to now, been brought under control.

FROM EAST TO WEST

ONTARIO PROVINCE.

OTTAWA.—Progress in connection with Canada's shipbuilding programme is being seriously hampered by the shortage of steel supplies for the yards.

— The Hon. F. B. Carvell states that, while there should be no hesitation in proceeding with essential public works, post-war conditions would require urgent economy. Work on the Welland Canal will be resumed as soon as conditions permit, also on the Federal part of the Toronto Harbour Development cheme, and at St. Charles, Quebec.

TORONTO.—Six hundred of the 2,000 members of the Law Society of Upper Canada donned khaki during the war, of whom 98 died as a result of wounds or illness.

——Demobilisation barracks are being erected by the Dominion Government in McClellan Avenue here. The buildings, 24 in number, are of a temporary nature, and will accommodate 3,500 people.

——The centenary of the Methodist Church in Toronto was celebrated by a mass meeting in the Metropolitan Church, at which addresses were delivered.

BRANTFORD.—The population is now 28,725, an increase over last year of 1,061.

COBALT.—Never before in the history of the Cobalt silver area did mining operations, the whole district considered, appear to be carried on with such complete harmony between the employees and the employers. The high price of silver and the war bonus are responsible for this situation.

WINDSOR.—The population has increased 1,280 in a year, while the assessment has jumped to $31,105,579, or an increase of $1,473,753, as compared with last year. The business section of the city shows the largest advance in assessment values.

BELLEVILLE.—Ex-Mayor H. F. Ketcheson has received a letter from Mayor Roscoe Vanderwater, O.C. 2nd Battalion, C.E.F., stating that six German guns captured by his battalion had been presented to the city of Belleville by this unit on behalf of Lt. D. A. Cameron, M.C., Lt. R. M. Porter, Lt. R. B. Cooper, Sergt. W. W. Jack, M.M., and Major R. Vanderwater, D.S.O.

— Major R. D. Ponton, of this city, has been elected vice-president on the Dominion Executive of the Great War Veterans' Association and representative for the Province of Ontario. The Corby Company has given the local Association the use of its building here.

MIDLAND.—On October 24 the ocean-going freight s.s. War Fiend was launched from the shipyards of the Midland Shipbuilding Company, in the presence of several thousand people. Mrs. D. L. White, wife of Mayor White, the president of the company, named the vessel. This was the first launching of the company, and incidentally the first steel vessel to be constructed in Midland.

FORT WILLIAM.—The expansion of public utilities here during the past nine months has been marked. The telephone service shows a net gain of 131 subscribers and 24 extensions. The electric lighting department shows a net gain of 209 lighting services, 41 heating and cooking services and 6 motor services.

QUEBEC PROVINCE.

QUEBEC.—One of the first official functions of the new Lt.-Governor, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, was to approve the nomination of Dr. Desloges, Montreal, to the newly-created position of General Medical Superintendent of Public Asylums.

—Sir Charles Fitzpatrick has asked for the restoration of the chapel at Spencer Wood, which was closed when Sir P. E. LeBlanc was appointed Lt.-Governor.

——Mr. A. Verret has been appointed postmaster of this city, in succession to the late Mr. Joseph Turcotte. Mr. Verret has been assistant postmaster for some years.

——Additional damage, which will increase that already done by many thousands of dollars, was caused here when the flood-tide rose still higher and swept over the lower section of the city again.

Mr. Justice Lemieux has decided that the Province of Quebec may collect taxes on all successions, including legacies made outside the Province by residents.

One individual liable for conscription in this city paid $1,500 for a classification which would exempt him from military service.

MONTREAL.—McGill University will erect a monument to students and graduates who fell in the war.

The Royal Trust Company has applied for probate of the will of Mr. John Auld, manufacturer, who left estate valued at $598,868.

Customs receipts for October amounted to $3,276,874, as against $3,047,352 for the same period a year ago. Inland Revenue October receipts totalled $2,286,748, as compared with $1,632,861 for the same month in 1917.

The s.s. War Joy, the sixth 7,000-ton steel cargo steamer to enter service this season from the shipyard of Canadian Vickers, Ltd., was launched on October 29. With the completion of these vessels for the British Ministry of Shipping, Canadian Vickers will now concentrate entirely on eight cargo vessels for the Canadian Government.

NOVA SCOTIA.

HALIFAX.—The Deputy Provincial Secretary, Mr. Barnstead, is making up a final list of those who lost their lives in the explosion last December. The known deaths are over 1,600. There are still nearly 100 persons who have not been heard of, but investigations are being made in connection with the Relief Commission, and it is expected a number of these will be located.

A Cumberland County man, who was largely interested in fox companies before the collapse of the boom, when the whole business was on the breeders' basis and a system of pyramiding was universally practised, says that what fox business there is now is absolutely on the pelt basis. The old system is completely a thing of the past.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

FREDERICTON.—The potato crop in this Province is estimated at 8,650,000 bushels, compared with 5,000,000 bushels last year.

ST. JOHN.—The winter port season here was inaugurated by the arrival of the C.P.R. liner Montcalm. A very busy season is expected by the officials.

MANITOBA PROVINCE.

WINNIPEG.—Up to the end of August there were 3,949 births in Winnipeg during 1918, as compared with 3,473 for the corresponding period of 1917.

——Seventy miles of railway are being constructed into the copper district of The Pas, and $2,000,000 will probably be allotted for this purpose.

——Major-General C. H. Powell, of the Imperial Army, British Red Cross Commissioner to Siberia, and Head Matron Edith Sheriff-MacGregor, who together are to head the British Red Cross establishment in Siberia, inspected the headquarters and arrangements of the Canadian Red Cross Society here, en route to Vancouver and Vladivostok.

——Sunflowers are being used here for fuel. The stalks when dry are as hard as maple wood and make a hot fire.

——A $200,000 structure is to be erected at the north-west corner of Pritchard Avenue and Arlington Street, and will be used for a church, theatre and meeting-house for the Ukrainian population.

The Canadian banking system has been criticised (says the Times) for withdrawing money from the smaller towns and sending it to the cities for the use of large industrial concerns.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

N.B.—All letters asking for information or advice must contain an enquiry coupon from the current issue of "Canada," except when the enquirer is an annual subscriber.

Detailed replies by letter are not made except to annual subscribers. Non-subscribers desiring detailed or exhaustive replies by letter must enclose a P.O. for 5s., which will cover three questions.

Copies should be kept of questions, and these should be numbered when more than one is asked.

Enquiries regarding investment matters should be marked "Financial" on the left-hand top corner of envelope.

The fullest particulars of special investment opportunities in Canada mentioned from time to time in the column headed "Investment Notes and Opportunities" are supplied on request to readers who are annual subscribers.

FROM EAST TO WEST.

SASKAT-CHEWAN.

REGINA.—The civic utilities show a deficit of $61,331, of which the street railway total is $42,405.

——The city farm produced 5,100 bushels of wheat this year, for which the sum of $9,117 was realised.

——Mr. W. M. Graham, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, has sold to Gordon, Ironside & Fares 700 fat steers, raised by the Indians of the File Hills reserve, receiving $120,000 for the consignment.

——Mr. J. L. Peacock, a rancher north of Lamont, has sold his holdings to Mr. Dan. Newton, of Lamont, Wash., U.S.A.

For the first time in their history Saskatchewan villages will this year prepare "Voters' Lists." Previously the assessment roll served this purpose, but the giving to women generally and to the wives of electors the vote at municipal elections has made necessary the compilation of a proper voters' list.

——During the discussion at the Conference here of Provincial representatives of British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba, and Saskatchewan with the Hon. J. A. Calder relative to the immigration policy of Canada and the Provinces, it was decided that each Province should evolve its own policy, to be carried out with the financial assistance of the Federal Government. The Federal Government will carry out all propaganda work outside of Canada.

——The Provincial Legislature is to meet on December 3.

SASKATOON.—The Strand Theatre has been purchased for $20,000 by Major Graham, of Regina.

——Mr. Geo. M. Weir will become Principal of the Normal School when released by the military.

PRINCE ALBERT.—A sheriff's officer here was shot and killed last week while endeavouring to arrest Dr. Gervais, the alleged leader of a group of draft evaders.

ALBERTA PROVINCE.

EDMONTON.—To discontinue the use of the Edmonton armouries for drilling purposes and convert it into a hospital for returned soldiers is the plan that the Hon. Dr. J. D. Reid, Minister of Railways, will recommend to the Cabinet on h return to Ottawa.

Twenty-one school districts have been established in the Peace River districts during the past six year

Women students at the Alberta University this term comprise over 40 per cent. of the total registration. Ten women are registered for the full course in medicine

The last girder has been completed on the great railway bridge across the Peace River at Peace River, under construction since January, 1917. On the other side of the bridge the grade is ready for 70 miles. The opening of the line will give facilities to farmers who, this year, raised 5,000,000 bushels.

A branch line will likely be built from the main line of the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia railway to Grouard, a distance of about eight miles. With such a line the fisheries of Lesser Slave Lake and neighbouring waters could be developed on a much larger scale, and, it is said, 800,000 pounds of jack fish could be taken every spring.

——Members of the Military Medical Review Board found, on a visit to the Peace River country, that the wheat crop there in many settlements yields from 30 to 50 bushels to the acre and oats 80 to 90 bushels.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

VICTORIA.—The total coal production for the month of September in this Province was 164,460 tons, a decrease of 75,777 tons, as compared with the August output.

Mr. W. P. Hinton, vice-president and general manager of the G.T.P., has just completed a tour of the Pacific Coast points. He says that great strides have been made in shipbuilding in the coast since his last trip, and predicts that the renewal of the wooden shipbuilding industry at Victoria will be the making of the port industrially and commercially.

VANCOUVER.—The Premier, the Hon. John Oliver, announces that the new electoral law of the Province will give a vote only to citizens who have not been exempted from war service for religious belief or similar cause. This will particularly affect the Mennonites and Doukhobors.

——The Y.M.C.A. Canadian National Council has offered to give $100,000 towards the fund of $450,000 required to finish and furnish the Y.M.C.A. building here.

PRINCE RUPERT.—The G.T.P. has built a spur into the coal mine at Telkwa on the Bulkeley River near Smithers, and regular shipments are now being made, this port and Prince George being the chief markets.

THE PROVINCE OF PROSPERITY.

Vast natural resources and an industrious, thrifty, and enterprising population have brought unexampled prosperity to this Province.

No Province of the Dominion offers more startling opportunities for the investor. Immense water powers, now running to waste, will produce electricity for industrial purposes in unlimited volume; vast forests will supply an enormous cut of timber and wood pulp; rich mineral deposits hold out alluring opportunities to the prospector; extensive tracts of fertile land suitable for general farming and dairying await settlement. Next to its lands and forests, the Fish and Game of the Province are among its most valuable assets, providing splendid commercial opportunities and incomparable sport. Quebec is the Sportsman's Paradise, the Holiday-maker's Elysium, and a land of opportunity for all.

'7 o'clock' Safety Razor.

The only Safety Razor at less than one guinea that can be stropped without removing blade.

A really dependable razor at a popular price. It opens flat, and can be stropped without removing the blade. This construction also overcomes the difficulty of cleaning, which is the bugbear of so many safety razors.

Strongly made, heavily silvered, and with blades that cannot be surpassed, it is used by many men who could afford a far more expensive razor, but prefer the simple efficiency of the "7 o'clock." The Standard Set consists of heavily silver-plated stropping razor, six finest lancet steel blades, the whole in handsome case, with strop in hinged partition, and the price is 10/6.

Of all high-class dealers throughout the world.

THE VOICE OF CANADA.

SPEAKING before the American Society in London at the Thanksgiving Day dinner, Sir Robert Borden admirably expressed, in carefully chosen words, what we are convinced is the voice of Canada in regard to its attitude towards the Hun. Canadians living have kept faith with the Canadian dead in France and Flanders, and the spokesman for the Dominion, addressing this American audience, and through them the whole of the two great English-speaking peoples, uttered the prayer that Canada would continue to keep faith with them to the very end. To do this fully and justly, the deliberate and brutal savagery of the Hun must be remembered, and it is, he strongly urged, now the task of the Allied nations to see that Germany shall never forget the lessons of this war.

Speaking on behalf of Canada to its great southern neighbour, he expressed a strong and eager hope for the consummation of the League of the English-speaking Peoples, which is, after all, the keystone of the much-talked-of League of Nations. He reminded his audience that "heroic France would not to-day bleed at every vein if Great Britain and the United States had in July, 1914, given Germany their joint warning." All that prevented the peace of the world being maintained at that crisis was a want of vision by the rulers of the two peoples, and the worn out jealousies of long past years kept alive and rankling by inaccurate school books. Sir Robert Borden, representing Canada, the natural link between the United States and Great Britain, made a fine plea that the two most powerful democracies of the world should "let no minor consideration, no petty rivalry, no unworthy distrust divide those who, united, can command the world's abiding peace."

Sir Robert Borden, who so worthily represents the voice of Canada to the Press and public of the Mother Country, will, we may be sure, as worthily speak for Canada in the deliberations which will settle the terms of peace, and he will not be forgetful of the continuing infamies of the Hun. Even to-day we are only learning the full blackness of their heartless atrocities. The Times special correspondent records that there has been nothing viler in Germany's conduct in this war than her treatment of her sick prisoners in hospital at the time of the Armistice. These mutilated and suffering men were left entirely to themselves, and in some cases five days elapsed from the time the Germans left and our medical officers arrived. The Canadian people are unanimously behind their Premier in his strong and fixed resolve that the Hun must be forced "to learn the lesson of this war so thoroughly as never to forget it."

THE SOLDIERS' HONEYPOT.

BY a wise, though no doubt frequently anathematised, restriction of the Canadian Government a proportion of the pay of her citizen soldiers was retained until their discharge when their work was completed. During four years the deferred pay of nearly half a million men has rolled up into a very substantial sum, and this very attractive honeypot has doubtless been exercising the brains of the get-rich-quick promoter and other unscrupulous gentry. In the old days when treaty money was handed out to the then highly unsophisticated Indian the schemers and fake pedlars were always buzzing round the distributing point.

This big soldiers' honeypot will surely attract a great crowd of noxious flies. It is the duty of the Government to protect its returning soldiers, as it is the duty of the Press to warn them in advance and to scrutinise with the utmost care every proposition which is brought forward offering investment for the soldiers' deferred pay.

All kinds of propositions will be launched inviting the men to become workers and shareholders in various industrial enterprises on co-operative principles. The idea sounds attractive, and where there is no watered stock, promoters' profits, or purchase of worn-out and obsolete plant, co-operation for skilled workers where they can employ their small capital as well as their labour may prove successful. But under the guise of philanthropic co-partnership all kinds of industrial failures will seek resurrection. The soundest advice to the soldier who is coming into possession of a few hundreds of hard-earned dollars is to "go slow." He can invest his money in bonds at 6 per cent., while he takes some civil job of work and makes up his mind at leisure with his pals how he can best invest his small nest-egg.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

Playing at Politics. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Walter Scott are getting busy with the old game of party politics before even waiting until the Peace Congress has met. And Mr. Bob Rogers, not to be outdone, has announced that the political truce is over, and he proposes to get the party machine nicely oiled up.

The old party politicians are evidently just the same in Canada as they are in England: they cannot realise that the world war has effected a fundamental change in national consciousness, and they are proceeding with their own pretty little plans, quite ignoring the influence and power of the citizen-soldier. These have yet to be heard from, as they are still muzzled, but they have very definite views and a unity of purpose and disciplined power of co-operation which will ultimately assure the achievement of the reforms they desire.

* * *

A Labour Manifesto. Canadians are vitally interested in the result of the forthcoming election in the Mother Country and the policies that will evolve therefrom. The manifesto issued by a certain section of Labour leaders, who pretend to speak for Labour as a whole, contains many desirable objects which will receive universal acceptance, but mingled with them is much disingenuous eye-wash calculated to attract the thoughtless and most ignorant of the proletariat. Canadian working men would reject with jeers any demagogue who asked them to believe, for instance, that the dumping of cheap goods in Canada made by Asiatic labour can be better prevented by "international Labour legislation" than by a protective tariff. Every possible bait is thrown out in this manifesto to attract cupidity and to encourage the belief that the loafer is entitled to maintenance at the expense of the frugal and prosperous.

Democracy is asked to believe that this Labour programme, which includes Ramsay Macdonald, Arthur Henderson, J. McGurk, and others who have shown such a strange tolerance—one might almost say admiration of the Russian Bolsheviks will, if adopted, build a new world. It would, indeed, be a new world, but one too strange for the great bulk of the seven million Britishers in khaki to enjoy or to accept. The logical carrying out of this precious manifesto would leave no room for the humble but necessary policeman. If democracy in the Old Country is really so ignorant and credulous as seriously to accept the whole of this mock Labour manifesto as an enlightened and practical plan of government, their kinsmen overseas can only conclude that in the hour of victory they have lost their common sense.

* * *

Our Soldiers' Graves. The policy announced by the Imperial War Graves Commission seems the best that could be devised, both on the grounds of sentiment and practicability. The isolated graves must necessarily be removed and concentrated in some suitable and central spot in the area, and the adoption of some uniform monument to our gallant dead is also obviously wise.

Even were it possible, it would not be wished that the bodies of our dead should be brought back from the field where they fought their last fight in the great Crusade. This being generally accepted, the other decisions of the Graves Commission naturally follow as the most desirable and becoming.

* * *

Via the Far East. Now that demobilisation is so near at hand, we are receiving a great many letters from Canadians offering suggestions and asking questions. Unfortunately our space is still too limited to make it possible for us to publish more than a small proportion of these.

By a curious coincidence two letters arrived this week from Canadian officers in the Imperial Forces making the same suggestion. Instead of returning to Canada by the Transatlantic route, they would like to travel viâ the Far East. From a personal point of view the idea has, of course, a great deal to commend it, and it might be of advantage from the standpoint of Canada's future commercial development. We fear, however, that the authorities will pronounce it impracticable, at the present time at any rate.

* * *

America's Part. The services rendered to the Allied cause by the American Forces in the closing days of the war have been very considerable, and they have been the subject of high appreciation on the part of our statesmen. The Americans have had to make their sacrifices also, their casualties amounting to over 262,000. But in both directions there can easily be exaggeration.

As Mr. Roosevelt points out, in neither respect can his countrymen's part be compared with that of the Allies. Of the terrible sacrifice which has enabled us to win the victory, America has contributed just about 2 per cent. Mr. Roosevelt justifiably believes that their intervention was decisive, but he rightly points out that while the part played by America in the closing months of the war was a gallant one, it was not in any way a leading part, and it was played only by acting in the strictest agreement with our Allies and under the joint High Command. And, with Mr. Wilson's visit to Europe in sight, he urges that America should take precisely the same attitude at the Peace Conference.

* * *

The Work of the Munitions Board. Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Churchill have telegraphed to Sir Joseph Flavelle, as Chairman of the Imperial Munitions Board of Canada, warm congratulations upon the work achieved under its direction during the last three years. "Great work, which has been of signal assistance to the British Empire and to the Allied cause," is Mr. Lloyd George's characterisation, and Mr. Churchill pays a personal tribute to the Chairman's great ability, energy, and organising power.

The record of Canada's munition work is truly remarkable. Before August, 1914, no Canadian manufacturer had ever made a shell, cartridge case, or fuse. During the war some 1,000 contractors have been working under the Board. Their production has embraced 60,000,000 shells (made up of 670,000,000 components), other shell components using up 1,800,000 tons of steel (75 per cent. of Canadian production), and 100,000,000 lbs. of high-grade explosives and propellants.

The value of orders placed by the British Government through the Imperial Munitions Board was £240,000,000, of which £200,000,000 have already been executed. In payment of this, £80,000,000 was furnished by the Imperial Government from sources outside Canada, and £120,000,000 was lent to the Imperial Government by the Dominion Government and by the banks in Canada. The "great army of workers," whose services Mr. Lloyd George acknowledges, consisted of 350,000 persons, of whom 30,000 were women.

* * *

Huns and Hospital Ships. There is little fear of the Huns' atrocities being buried in oblivion, but our Foreign Office has taken a proper step in placing on record, for the benefit of Allied and neutral countries, the full particulars of the torpedoing of the four British hospital ships sent to the bottom by German submarines. These rank among the worst of all Hunnish crimes, and Mr. Balfour well characterises them as "inhuman, illegal, and faithless deeds."

The torpedoing of the Llandovery Castle on June 27 last was perhaps the most malignant of the series. Out of 258 on board there were only 24 survivors. It was not the fault of the German commander that even these were left alive, for the evidence clearly pointed to his intention of sinking the ship without leaving any trace. The various attempts at justification only served to show, as is emphasised in the report, that it was a settled plan of the German High Command to destroy hospital ships on any or no evidence, without exercising the right of visit and search. "The attack was made," says Mr. Balfour, "in violation of the principles of humanity, of the rules of international law, and of the solemn promises given by the German Government themselves during the war." "Remember the Llandovery Castle!" was the Canadians' battle cry when they made their great attack east of Amiens. They are not likely to forget.

* * *

Co-Partnership in Lumbering. A report has been cabled over to The Times from Vancouver that a number of saw-mills in B.C. are to be amalgamated and returning soldiers are to be invited to invest their deferred pay in shares of the company while they work in the company's yards. At the present time the demand for lumber on the Pacific Coast is so good that properly equipped and well-situated yards possessing accessible and valuable timber areas are in no need of outside capital for their operation.

The lumber business is notoriously one of the last in which a man of small capital should be advised to invest. The man with a long purse who can afford to wait for his returns, and is therefore not forced to cut at times of market depression, eventually comes out on the right side. But those who require regular and certain returns on their capital are not wise to put their money into the lumber business, though they may advantageously sell their labour to a lumber company.

* * *

A Canadian Bank in Paris. The 101st annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal which took place on Monday last will be memorable for the announcement that the bank will shortly open a branch in Paris. It is a move which is significant not only of the progressive policy of the bank, but also as an indication of the development of the trade relations of the Dominion with the Allied countries in Europe which it is confidently expected will be a natural result of the war. The part which Canada has played towards bringing the war to a successful issue by its contributions of armed men and food supplies, great though it has been, did not come as such a general surprise as did the magnitude of her output and export of munitions and manufactured articles.

The opportune and important step taken by the Bank of Montreal is an indication that astute business men in Canada expect to obtain their share of the orders for materials and supplies needed in the reconstruction of the devastated areas and permanently to establish a growing volume of trade intercourse with Europe. The extended facilities which the action of the Bank of Montreal will offer to the Canadian tourist and commercial traveller in France are so obvious that it would not surprise us if other of the great financial institutions in the Dominion followed the energetic lead given them. The announcement of the promotion of the senior London representative of the bank in London, Mr. G. C. Cassels, to the rank of an Assistant General Manager is a further indication of the increasing responsibilities and importance of the office.

Two Pressing Matters. Two things that seem to us to require the immediate attention of the Government are first the matter of officers' gratuities on discharge and the transportation of their dependants. These men are most unquestionably entitled to the most generous consideration. Canada owes them an irredeemable debt, and it is unthinkable that any of our gallant men should return to their homes embittered by Government parsimony. The facts we gave in last week's Canada show that the Mother Country is far more generous in its treatment, although its people are far more heavily burdened with debt.

The second matter requiring attention is to provide without delay a branch office in London of the Department of Trade and Commerce, staffed by experts from the purchasing staff of the O.M.F.C., who have learnt how to negotiate with other Government officials and will be in a good position to get a full share of the immense reconstruction orders that will soon be placed in Europe.

* *

THE KING AND CANADA'S VICTORY LOAN.

The King has cabled to the Governor-General the following message:—

"I have learnt of the magnificent success of the Victory Loan with the greatest satisfaction and pride. Please convey to the Government and people of Canada my most sincere congratulations upon so splendid a demonstration of the maturity of the financial strength to which the Dominion has attained."

* *

SIR CHARLES ROSS'S BIG CLAIM.

Sir Charles Ross, former owner of the Ross Rifle Factory, has asked permission to sue the Dominion Government for nearly $19.000.000 for compensation for the expropriation of his factory (says the Ottawa correspondent of the Times).

Sir Charles asks for $10.000.000 damage for loss of contracts with the Imperial Government, and the remainder for plant and machinery. He contends that the Order in Council expropriating the factory was ultra vires.

A LETTER FROM CANADA.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Montreal, November 14.

"The aftermath of War"—that is the phrase now heard all around, and it expresses the new atmosphere, which everyone recognises is laden with a thousand and one problems as difficult as those which lay before the Allies a year ago. So far there is little sign of the suspension of war conditions. The Federal Government has issued a statement concerning demobilisation to the effect that discussion of the subject is premature, in view of the fact that the country is still at war and that Canadian troops are at this moment advancing into enemy territory. Orders have been issued to discontinue sending out call-up notices, but courts-martial are still sitting, and are proposing to deal with those who failed to respond to the call. The censorship still holds sway at Ottawa, though Washington is abolishing it. An important conference on transportation matters took place at Ottawa this week, when the Minister of Railways (Hon. J. D. Reid) met the heads of the three great railway systems, together with Major-General Mewburn. It was decided to appoint a permanent committee, which will be quartered in the capital, to look after this matter. It is estimated that 35.000 women and children have to be brought over from Great Britain, and it is contemplated getting them over before the military transportation begins.

On top of the Victory Loan will come another "drive" for $1.400,000, which is to be mainly for the Canadian Red Cross Society, this Society taking $1.000,000, and the Canadian Navy League is to get $300.000, while the Canadian War Contingent Association is to have $100.000. It is urged that the cessation of hostilities in no way annuls the need for this appeal, as all these organisations will be busy for long enough yet.

Commercial and Industrial Activities

In the world of commerce and industry there is considerable movement. The Imperial Munitions Board is in communication with the British Ministry of Munitions with regard to the cessation of munition-making, and a scheme is being evolved by which the process will be gradual, so that the labour market will not be seriously dislocated. Wherever possible, manufacturing will be kept up if the goods in hand can be diverted to some useful purpose. In this connection the Government's shipbuilding plans will be a boon, and it is also expected that ships which are under construction or under contract for the French Government will go on. The Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Minister of Marine, took an optimistic view when speaking at a Victory Loan gathering this week. He expressed his conviction that the Dominion will not only maintain its present trade, but will increase it a hundredfold, both in domestic and foreign markets. In referring to the fact that the Government's shipbuilding plans would largely meet the dislocation of labour caused by the cessation of munition-making, he stated that nine more contracts for ships were to be signed by the Canadian Vickers Company, Ltd., in a few days. He estimated that the shipyards would be able to take care of between thirty and forty thousand people. The Montreal Chambre de Commerce (French) has already raised a cry for the Georgian Bay Canal to be taken up again, this scheme, too, being urged as one that will help in the solution of the returned soldier question. The same organisation also is considering the part which Canada may now take in the Lyons Fair.

Bureau of Public Health.

The announcement that a National Bureau of Public Health will be established by the Federal Government comes at a time when the need of such a bureau is very badly felt. The leading cities and the Provinces have done their utmost in striving to grapple with the Spanish influenza, but there has been a certain lack of co-ordination such as is desirable under the circumstances. The Provinces, for instance, have no power to deal with immigrants and passengers from over the border, and yet this traffic must have constituted a danger. It was recently shown that a Canadian soldier suffering from this complaint in New York was advised to get to Montreal, where he would be dealt with. A Federal Health Bureau would probably have arranged to have passengers examined at the main railway points. In the campaign against tuberculosis there is also room for uniform and united action. A weekly French paper has protested, on the ground that the autonomy of the Province is endangered.

The basement of British Columbia House, Regent Street, W., has, at the instance of Mr. F. C. Wade, Agent-General for the Province, been transformed into a dormitory for the use of Canadian soldiers on leave.

General Logie, who commanded the Ontario Military District throughout the war, will (says the Times) shortly assume his duties as Judge of the Supreme Court of Ontario, and will be succeeded in the military command by Col. John A. Gunn, C.M.G.

CANADIAN TROOPS IN GERMANY.

General Currie's Special Order of the Day.

SIR ARTHUR CURRIE, in a special Order of the Day to Canadian troops forming part of the Army of Occupation, says (writes Mr. J. F. B. Livesay, the Canadian Press correspondent) :—

"It is of capital importance to establish in Germany the sense of your overwhelming moral and physical standing, so as to complete by the presence of your potential strength the victories you have won on the battlefield. You must continue to be and appear to be that powerful hitting force which has won the fear and the respect of your foes and the admiration of the world.

"Attempts will be made by insidious propaganda to undermine the source of your strength, but you, the soldier citizens of the finest and most advanced democracy in the world, will treat such attempts with the contempt they deserve. You know what self-imposed, stern discipline has made you—the hardest, most successful, and cleanest fighters of this war.

"I trust you, and the people at home trust you, while the memory of your dead comrades demands of you to bring back that glorious record pure and unsullied to Canada."

SIR ARTHUR CURRIE AND HIS SOLDIERS' RECORD.

In response to the Prime Minister's congratulations to Sir Arthur Currie on the signing of the Armistice, the Corps Commander telegraphed :—

> To receive our country's "Well Done" fills us with pride and helps us not to forget, but to remember most poignantly the hardships, the dangers the anxieties, and the sufferings now happily passed. In the mighty struggle for freedom and for right the world knows that Canada did her share. The record of the soldiers of our great Democracy is one unsurpassed in the annals of war. I have every faith that the traditions of high ideals, courage, self-restraint, and generosity that our own superb troops have forged on the battlefield will be a moral asset of immense value to the Commonwealth, when, after the final march past, our proud soldiers, laying down their arms, will resume with energy and determination their constructive tasks as free citizens of our great country.

FIRST CANADIANS IN MONS.

"It may interest you to know," writes an officer of the Royal Canadian Regt., "that although it is a moot point as to whether the R.C.R. or the 42nd R.H.C. set foot in Mons first, yet Lt. W. M. King, of the R.C.R. and his platoon reached the Grande Place at 3 a.m. on November 11, and were met by the Deputy Burgomaster. Lt. King signed the Golden Book of Mons first. This book was given by King Albert to the city in 1914, and he signed it, telling them that nobody else was to sign the book until the town was retaken from the Germans. The honour fell by good fortune to the senior battalion of Canada."

* *

A MONS SOUVENIR.

We have received from a C.F.A. officer an interesting historical and journalistic souvenir from Mons, a two-page "Bulletin d'Information," published by La Liberté of date Nov. 17. It is the first newspaper published in the town since the German occupation four years ago, and its first article pays "a testimony of gratitude and affection to our valiant liberators" which gives "glory to this heroical Canadian Division, whose name will remain engraved in the annals of our city and the history of the Belgian nation." There are also some "Notules sur nos Amis les Canadiens," in which the French-Canadians receive special attention; and appreciation is expressed of the appointment of Capt. Cinq-Mars as Town Major.

CANADIAN DEMOBILISATION.

Return of Casualties and Troops from France.

General demobilisation of the fighting forces cannot, of course, commence so long as the troops are required, but it is the intention of the Overseas Military authorities to send back in the meantime to Canada all the casualties fit for discharge from hospitals and convalescent homes, and men in various branches of the service in England and in France whose services are no longer required by reason of the signing of the Armistice. Through the carrying out of this policy, the fighting men can be returned with the least possible delay when the scheme of general demobilisation begins.

Under the arrangements made by the Overseas Ministry with the British Ministry of Shipping for ship accommodation when general demobilisation commences, the return of the main body of Canadian troops to Canada after that time will be surprisingly rapid. It is considered that, allowing for every possible contingency, within a year every Canadian soldier should be back in his home in Canada.

"While it must be conceded that the problem of demobilisation is not an easy one," stated Sir Edward Kemp, the Overseas Minister, "yet there are no insurmountable difficulties in the way of carrying out the programme in such a manner as will meet with the approval of all units of the Forces."

Order of Return.

Speaking at the Victory Loan celebration in Hamilton last week, General Mewburn, Minister of Militia, said that married men and widowers in the Canadian Expeditionary Force would be the first to come home, and then single men according to length of service oversea. There would be no priority, and the Minister declared that he could not conceive of any officer who would wish to come back before his men.

Demobilisation, he continued (says the Times report), depended upon two factors—railways and shipping. The maximum number that could be handled was 8,000 per week, or 32,000 per month. The men would be brought back in groups of 500, and it was expected that it would take only one day to turn them into civilians. They would be permitted to demobilise in any part of the Dominion, which meant that me enlisted in British Columbia whose home was in Ontario would be demobilised in Ontario.

The immediate problem before the Government was the return of 40,000 women and children, the dependants of Canadian soldiers in England. There were 2,000 widows of Canadian soldiers in England, a large number of whom had never seen Canada. For those who were destitute the Government would provide transportation.

Steps were being taken to secure the release of Canadian prisoners in Germany, so that they could return to England and be brought back with the Canadian units to which they belonged. There were 32,000 wounded Canadians in England and 10,000 in France, but not all were severe cases.

General Mewburn suggested that when men returned they should immediately identify themselves with the Militia units to which they had previously belonged.

Priority Groups.

For purposes of demobilisation, the O.M.F.C. has been divided into 34 service groups. These groups will provide a system of priority of return to Canada of officers and other ranks who have been longest away from home. For these purposes, the period of the war has been divided into 17 periods. Groups 1 to 17, inclusive, are composed of married men, or widowers with children. The remaining groups are composed of single men, or childless widowers. In the Service Book record of each officer will be entered his particular group, and in the case of other ranks, in the blank form in A.B.64. In order to facilitate the employment of discharged soldiers in Canada, a system of "occupational groups" has been inaugurated, and particulars of the group to which an officer or man is allocated will also be shown in his book. The composition of each occupational group will be given in detail in a subsequent Routine Order.

"CANADA" has secured the serial rights of a most interesting and thrilling war story, dealing with the life of two soldiers in the Canadian Corps.

WRITTEN by a soldier for soldiers, the author describes life in camp in England, at the Front, and as a prisoner of war in Germany, with accuracy and humour.

THE first instalment will appear in our next issue, therefore orders for copies should be placed at once with your newsagent or the publisher of Canada.

THE FORESTRY CORPS.

Tributes to its Work and its Chief.

On Saturday last a dinner was given by the officers of the Canadian Forestry Corps to their chief, General McDougall, and owing to the happy auspices under which they met it was the cheeriest gathering of Canadians in khaki that has come together for a long time. The Corps has done its work and delivered the goods,'' and has played a really important part in bringing about the victory of the Allied arms.

The speeches at this very successful gathering were of a high quality, and opinions were expressed and hopes were voiced by representatives of both the British and Canadian Governments which must materially assist to strengthen further the feeling of kinship and mutual pride between the Mother and the Eldest Daughter in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

General McDougall, in his humorous and witty way, narrated the beginnings of the C.F.C., from his earliest interviews with Sir Sam Hughes to his grapple with the British authorities, who, once they began to understand each other, ceased to find points of difference, and the C.F.C. commenced to saw wood. Exactly how much these extemporised sawmills, scattered from the North of Scotland to the Pyrenees, turned out will be duly set forth in the official records, but one instance of how the Corps rose to an emergency was mentioned by Sir James Ball, Timber Controller to the Board of Trade. When the Hun in the flush of his spring advance this year was on the road to Paris and the Army asked for 150,000 tons of timber from this country, three-quarters of this demand was allocated to the C.F.C., who delivered the whole allotment ten days ahead of time.

FORESTRY OPERATIONS IN FRANCE.

The popular chief of the Corps had many well-deserved tributes paid to him in the course of the evening, both by Sir Albert Stanley and Sir James Ball, whose departmental requirements he so unfailingly supplied, and also by his own fellow-countrymen, who knew the man and his work. His success may be ascribed to his wise choice in the selection of practical men to control departments and by his foresight in making arrangements for possible contingencies. Had General McDougall not taken big views and not purchased in advance large quantities of machinery and supplies it would have been quite impossible when the crisis came that demands could be met.

Interesting Facts.

In the course of the evening many interesting facts in connection with this branch of war work transpired. During the most serious period of the submarine campaign, when the War Cabinet were deciding the most valuable form of assistance Canada could give, whether men for the front line or for Forestry operations, it was the latter who were chosen, and by their means tonnage was released which was equivalent to 15 million daily rations. The credit also belongs to the heads of the C.F.C. for bringing about an international Committee for the centralisation of timber supplies to the Army before the centralisation of strategy was placed in the hands of the Versailles Council. Units of the Forestry Corps which had been extending their operations extensively in engineering lines have contributed to a large portion of the construction of aerodromes in Great Britain, and six of the companies operating in France were selected to advance with the R.A.F. in the Army of occupation.

Through his officers who had met to do him honour, General McDougall sent a warm and sincere message to every man in the Forestry Corps, expressing his appreciation of their services, and assuring them that they could go home to Canada in the sure knowledge that wherever they had been employed, whether distant from or near to the firing line, they could all feel they had fully done their duty and contributed their effort towards victory.

Two speakers mentioned of their own personal knowledge how keen an interest the King had taken in the work of the Canadian Forestry Corps, and how thoroughly he had kept himself informed of the growth and extent of its operations.

In addition to the interesting speeches from those mentioned and from Hon. C. J. Doherty, Professor Hewins, and Sir George Perley, some excellent songs were given, especially one composed by Lt. Nat Ayer, on the Canadian Forestry Corps, which was received with tumultuous applause, but which, alas! is not yet passed for publication!

The saws and axes of the C.F.C. have cut deep into the forests of the Old Country and of France, but the memory of the officers and men will be long cherished in kindly friendship by the inhabitants of every district where these necessary war clearings have been made.

CANADIAN MINISTERS IN LONDON.

The Canadian delegates to the Imperial War Cabinet and Peace Conference have had a busy week, their time being chiefly taken up with conferences. On Thursday of last week Sir Robert Borden attended an important meeting of the War Cabinet. He also had a conference with the chairman of the Canadian Trade Commission in London and with the vice-chairman of the Canadian War Trade Board. In the evening of the same day he attended the Thanksgiving Day dinner of the American Society. Meetings of the War Cabinet were also held on Tuesday.

Lt. C. H. Payne, C.M.G.C., who was private secretary to Sir George Foster in Canada, has been recalled from France to resume his duties with the Minister of Trade and Commerce, having been loaned for that purpose by the Canadian military authorities.

* *

CANADA'S OVERSEAS FORCES.

Official figures state that when Canada entered the war on August 4, 1914, she had a permanent force of only 3,000 and an Active Militia of 60,000. When hostilities ceased on November 11 last, Canada had sent overseas 418,980 soldiers (says the Ottawa correspondent of the Daily Record).

On September 30, 1918, the Canadian troops in France numbered 156,250. Canadians engaged in the United Kingdom and France on railway and forestry work numbered about 50,000.

Some 14,000 or 15,000 men were raised and trained for the R.A.F. in Canada, in addition to many who joined the Air Force after going overseas.

OFFICERS KILLED AND DIED.

Overseas Military Forces of Canada.

Lt. Eric M. Abendana, Eng. (killed on October 16), was a Science (1914) graduate of Toronto University. He belonged to London, Ont., where he received a commission in the 7th Field Company in November, 1915.

Lt. Walter J. Batchelor, Que. (died of broncho-pneumonia at No. 20 General Hospital, Camiers, on October 29), came overseas with a Montreal Grenadier Guards unit as a corporal, and received his commission in April, 1917. He was 25.

Lt. James Baird, 87th Bn. (died of wounds on November 23 at No. 8 General Hospital, Rouen), was the son of Mr. George Baird, printer, of 11, South Street, St. Andrews, Scotland, and was 24. He enlisted early in 1916, and received his commission the following year.

Capt. William Ernest Boyce, C.A.D.C. (died at No. 14 C.G.H., Eastbourne, on November 11 of influenza and lobar-pneumonia), belonged to Rawdon, P.Q., and was 30. He came overseas last June, and had been serving at Seaford.

Lt. H. C. R. Clark, M.C., 7th (B.C.) Bn. (died of wounds on November 20 at No. 20 General Hospital, Camiers, France), was the son of Mrs. A. L. S. Clark, of Collingwood, B.C. Formerly a student with the Vancouver legal firm of Bowser, Reid & Wallbridge, he volunteered for service the day after war was declared. Wounded and gassed at St. Julien, he subsequently contracted pneumonia, but refused his discharge. He was taken prisoner in October, 1915, but returned to his unit within eight days. He was given his commission in 1916, and at Vimy Ridge won the M.C. On two occasions his mother received telegraphic information that her son had been killed.

Lt. R. Chester Dean, 26th (N.B.) Bn. (killed), enlisted at St. John in November, 1914, and served in France two years with the signalling section. He returned to England in August, 1917, to qualify for a commission. At his course at Bexhill he secured second place among the cadets. Deceased returned to his unit in France last August. A brother, Lt. R. H. Dean, is now at the 13th Reserve at Witley.

Lt. George Wilfred Duggan, M.C., F.G.H., secd. R.A.F. (died on November 12 as the result of injuries sustained in an aeroplane accident on Boscombe Downs), came overseas with the Fort Garry Horse from Winnipeg. His father, Mr. E. H. Duggan, lives on Huron Street, Toronto. Lt. Duggan's M.C. was gazetted in September, 1917, for "daring and successful reconnaissances on four successive nights right up to the enemy's wire, eventually leading a torpedo party into the enemy's front line, and later commanded a party which blocked a counter-attack." Deceased had only recently been seconded to the R.A.F.

Capt. Harry Dunlop, M.C., C.A.M.C. (died of wounds on November 2), was mortally wounded by a shell near Valenciennes. Deceased, whose sister and three brothers are all on service, received his B.A. in 1905 and M.D. in 1908. At the beginning of his Arts course at Queen's University he won a scholarship in mathematics, and at the end of his medical course was awarded the Chancellor's Prize for the highest standing in his class through the whole course. He afterwards did post-graduate work in New York City, practised for a time in Duluth, and in 1912 took an appointment in Peru, where he remained until 1915, when he joined the C.A.M.C. In France 18 months, his services were chiefly utilised as a regimental medical officer, and he was M.O. of the 102nd Bn. during the Passchendaele, Amiens, and Cambrai "shows." He received the M.C. for gallantry near Beaucourt-en-Santerre last August. Capt. Dunlop married, in March last, Miss Rachel Thayer, of Norwich, Conn., U.S.A., whom he had met whilst in Peru.

Lt. John Elliott, Man. (killed) was one of the first Vancouver men to enlist in the 16th Bn. Deceased, who had been twice wounded, was formerly in the Vancouver City Police.

Lt. Wm. E. Foxen, 50th (Alta.) Bn., died of wounds on November 13, was referred to in our issue of November 23. When war broke out he was farming in Ontario, and came over with the First Contingent. He went through the battles of St. Julien and Festubert (April-May, 1915), and later became a despatch rider. Obtaining a commission, he returned to the Front, and was wounded early in 1917. He then served for a time with the Forestry Corps, returning to France this year and being fatally wounded on November 1.

[illegible] Hodgson, P.P.C.L.I. (died o[illegible]ember 5 of pn[illegible] and influenza, contracted whilst on leave from France), was formerly manager of the Murray Mather [illegible]. Enlisting with the 92nd Bn., he went to France as paymaster of the 134th in May, 1916, and subsequently transferred to the "Princess Pats." Deceased was a graduate of Toronto University and leaves a widow.

Lt. Frank W. E. Hopgood, Que. and R.A.F. (accidentally killed at Shoreham on October 14), came overseas as a private in the 77th Bn. After two years' service in France he was seconded to the R.A.F. Deceased belonged to Ottawa.

Lt. T. E. Logan, N.S. and R.A.F. (accidentally killed in an aeroplane accident in Canada on November 22), belonged to Canning, N.S. He was gazetted a flying officer last March, and was wounded the same month.

Lt. A. Liddell McLean, M.C., D.C.M., Que. (killed), was the elder son of Capt. A. McLean, of Lachine, P.Q. He was treacherously shot by one of a party of Germans who were advancing with their hands up in token of surrender. Deceased came overseas as a private in the original 14th Bn., was awarded the D.C.M. in May, 1915, given his commission in June, 1916, and awarded the M.C. for his gallantry at Hill 70. His widow is engaged as a worker at the Canadian Red Cross headquarters in London.

Capt. Huntley W. MacPherson, M.C., R.C.H.A. (killed on October 10), was the son of Lt.-Col. Duncan MacPherson, of Besserer Street, Ottawa. A graduate of the R.M.C. at Kingston, he came overseas with the First Contingent, was twice mentioned in despatches, and received the M.C. for gallantry last March.

Lt. Louis R. Maioni, Eng. (died of wounds at No. 33 C.C.S.), enlisted in the infantry early in the war. His widow lives at 179, Coxwell Avenue, Riverdale, Toronto.

Lt. Edward Thomas Mennie, M.C., E. Ont., died on November 7 of wounds received six days previously, belonged to Ottawa, where his widow resides. Deceased, who came overseas with the 207th Bn. and was transferred to the machine-gun section of an Ottawa unit in the Field, was previously wounded on September 19, on which occasion he was awarded the M.C. for gallantry.

Lt. J. W. Montgomery, Sask. (died of wounds on October 26 at the 2nd Western General Hospital, Manchester), enlisted in the 217th Bn. and came overseas in June last year. He was wounded in the knee in September. Deceased was formerly with the Moosomin (Sask.) law firm of Mundell, Procter & Frith, and was a prominent athlete. His parents reside at Virden, Man.

Capt. Antoine Gaston Philippe (Prince of Orleans and Braganza), M.C., R.C.D., died at Edmonton Military Surgical Hospital, London, on November 29 as the result of injuries received in a flying accident on November 26. Prince Antoine, who was employed on liaison duties at the Ministry of Munitions, was coming to London from France with despatches, when, owing to fog, his pilot had to make a forced landing at Old Southgate, Middlesex. The machine collided with a cottage, the pilot was killed, and the Prince was, as it proved, mortally injured. He joined the British Army at the outbreak of war, being then 33 years of age, and, after serving on the Staff, he became intelligence officer to the Canadian Cavalry Brigade and A.D.C. to General J. E. B. Seely. He was awarded the M.C. for an act of exceptional gallantry on May 25, 1917, while making a reconnaissance of the enemy positions. Deceased was the youngest son of the Comte d'Eu, and a great-grandson of Louis Philippe, King of France. His eldest brother, Prince Pierre, and ex-King Manoel were at his bedside when he passed away. The body has been deposited in the family vault of the Orleans family at Dreux.

Lt. Hugh Macmillan Pattison, E. Ont. (died of wounds), belonged to Toronto, where his mother, Mrs. M. C. Pattison, resides at 1534, Yonge Street. Deceased, who was 31, and was educated at George Watson's College, Edinburgh, received his Militia commission in the 15th Regt. in November, 1915. He came overseas with the 155th Bn., and went to France in November, 1916, being there transferred to the 21st Bn. Lt. Pattison was formerly in the employ of the John Macdonald Company.

Major A. Charles Ruttan, Man. (died of influenza and pneumonia at his home in Winnipeg on November 2, whilst on furlough), was 40, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Ruttan. A graduate of Queen's University, deceased had since 1899 been Western manager of James Richardson & Son, grain and forwarding merchants. He was also secretary and director of the Lake Shippers' Clearing Association, and a director of the Winnipeg Grain and Produce Clearing Association. In 1906 he married Beatrice, the youngest daughter of Mr. J. P. Robertson, Provincial Librarian of Manitoba, by whom, with four children, he is survived. He assisted Lt.-Col. Morley to raise the 144th Bn., and came overseas in September, 1916. He was seconded to the Imperial Army, and served for eight months as area commandant at Ypres. He then had charge of a musketry school, and during the German March offensive he commanded a Labour battalion in the heavy fighting around Neuve Eglise. The death of Major Ruttan caused profound grief amongst his large circle of military and business friends.

Lt. Joseph Gore Shepley, Eng. (died of influenza and lobar-pneumonia at Eastbourne on October 26), was the son of Mr. L. M. Shepley, Amherstburg, and was 29. A Science student of Toronto University, he had been in England only a short time. His widow lives in Toronto.

Lt. Reginald Gordon Spear, Sask. (died of wounds on October 23), was the son of Mrs. W. J. Spear, of North Vancouver. Lt. Spear had been in France for over two years, was wounded at Lens in June last year, and again during the last big drive. On the latter occasion he was incorrectly reported killed.

Major Thomas Wardlaw Taylor, M.C., 43rd (Man.) Bn., killed on October 24, was second in command of his unit. Deceased was the son of the late Capt. Taylor, of the R.N.W.M.P., of Moosomin, Sask., and was known to his friends as "Moosomin Tommy." Coming overseas with the rank of sergeant, he made rapid advancement, and about 15 months ago was awarded the M.C. for initiative, coolness and bravery under fire.

Imperial Forces.

Major A. H. Aglionby, R.G.A. (died of wounds received on November 7), was the son of the Rev. Dr. Aglionby, Vicar of Newbold Pacey, Warwick, and was 33. He was educated at Westminster and Oxford University, and prior to the war was teaching at Port Hope, Ontario.

Lt. J. M. G. Bell, M.C., R.A.F. (died of wounds), came overseas from Victoria, B.C., in August, 1914, as a gunner with the original draft from the 5th C.G.A., and subsequently obtained a commission in the Air Force. He had been wounded twice previously.

Lt. W. Burt Bickell, R.A.F. (died of wounds received in an aeroplane accident in England), belonged to Toronto, where he was well known as an athlete, being rear-commodore of the Toronto Canoe Club, and was 25. He enlisted in April, 1917, and, after obtaining his commission, came overseas the following August, but, owing to an operation, was sent back to Canada on sick leave, returning to England last April. He was formerly employed as driver to Sir James Whitney, after whose death he entered the Works Department at Toronto. A brother, Lt. Tom Bickell, was killed a year ago at Passchendaele.

Capt. Charles Mansel Burmester, S.W. Borderers, attd. King's Shrops. L.I. (died of wounds on October 8), was the son of the late W. S. Burmester, of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers. He was educated at Dulwich College, and served in the South African War, receiving the Queen's Medal with four bars. In 1909 he went to British Columbia, and founded and edited the Old Countryman of Vancouver, B.C. He joined the 16th Canadian Highlanders in August, 1914.

Capt. B. Buss, Buffs (E. Kent R.), died of wounds, was the son of Mr. E. Buss, of Fort Street, Victoria, B.C., but never made his home in Canada, though he visited his parents there some four years ago. He was wounded in 1916 while leading his men against the Turks at Sheik Saad. Three brothers also joined the Forces.

Sec. Lt. Roy O. Campbell, R.A.F., who was reported missing on August 27, is now reported killed on that day. He belonged to London, Ont., where, prior to the war, he was interested in the Boy Scout movement and was a N.C.O. in the 1st Hussars, being one of the Canadian soldiers who represented the Dominion at the Coronation of King George. Enlisting with the 6th Field Battery, he came overseas in October, 1914, and later transferred to the Air Force. His mother lives at Kincardine, Ont.

Capt. John E. Greene, R.A.F. (killed), was the son of Mrs. L. J. Greene, of Sherbrook Street, Winnipeg, and came overseas with the R.N.A.S. in January, 1917. He had thirteen German aeroplanes to his credit.

Sec. Lt. Arthur George Hunt, Guards M.G. Regt. (killed on November 4), was the youngest son of Mr. F. W. Hunt, of King Street, Portman Square, London, and was educated at Westminster, later going to Canada. On the outbreak of war he joined the Seaforth Highlanders at Vancouver, transferring in England to the Irish Guards, and later to the Guards M.G. Regt., with which regiment he went to France.

Sec. Lt. Harry B. Ward, R.A.F. (died of wounds), was well known in Antigonish, N.S., where he spent a year or more prior to his enlistment. He came overseas last August.

Lt. Claude Melnot Wilson, D.F.C., R.A.F. (reported missing on October 14 and now reported killed on that date), was the son of Mr. C. H. Wilson, of the Wilson Furniture Co., Winnipeg. He was born at Kildonan, Man., 20 years ago, but most of his life was passed at Vancouver, where he enlisted in the 68th Battery in September, 1916, transferring subsequently to the Flying Arm, and coming overseas last January. His only brother is also in the R.A.F.

Lt. John Harold Witham, R.A.F. (accidentally killed on November 25 when he made a forced landing at Old Southgate, Middlesex), was 26, and the son of Mr. J. E. Witham, of Halifax, Yorks. Deceased came overseas with the C.F.A. and was transferred to the R.A.F. in June, 1917. He went to France last summer and had recently been engaged as a "ferry pilot" between England and France. At the time of his death he was returning to England with Capt. Prince Antoine of Orleans (R.C.D., seconded to the Ministry of Munitions), and having to make a forced landing, owing to a thick fog, collided with a cottage. He was killed, and the Prince subsequently died of his injuries.

WOUNDED, MISSING, AND PRISONERS.

Overseas Military Forces of Canada.

Lt. James H. Croskill, R.C.R. (N.S. Regt.), missing, is the son of Mr. George H. Croskill, of Halifax. He came overseas last spring.

Lt. J. I. Dugan, D.C.M., Que. and R.A.F., who was slightly injured in an aeroplane accident on November 25, is in the Station Hospital, Gormanston, Ireland. Lt. Dugan's D.C.M. was gazetted last January, he being then a lance-sergeant (No. 803009) in the infantry. Though attacked on both flanks [after capturing his objective] he held the position until only himself and another man were left. He then fought his way back, bringing in a wounded comrade, and later recaptured the position by a counter-attack.

Imperial Forces.

Sec. Lt. James M. Brown, R.A.F. (wounded on August 29), is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Brown, of Tenth Avenue West, Vancouver.

The Canadian Government railway system now extends to 14,000 miles.

Pte. Henry Charles Hefty (24), 10th Battalion, a patient at Clarence House, Roehampton, suffering from a gunshot wound in the thigh, was crossing High Street, Putney, last Monday, when he was run over by a motor-car and killed.

Speaking at the Canadian Officers' Club last week, Sir John Leigh said he was bold enough to think the Canadians had come to see that the aged grandparent was not quite so decrepit and played out as the children of light in the New World might sometimes be tempted to believe; while Englishmen had realised in a way they had never done before how much the strength of the Empire and of all free nations depended on the vigorous manhood of Britain beyond the seas.

SPECIAL OFFER

To Soldiers Returning to Canada.

ALL MEMBERS OF THE O.M.F.C. may, before their return to Canada, send subscription orders for "CANADA" to the Publisher, in London, AT THE BRITISH SUBSCRIPTION RATE. Then, if before they actually depart from England they will advise us by postcard of their Canadian addresses, "CANADA" will be sent to them regularly without any extra charge for postage. By this means subscribers will make sure also of not missing the issues of "CANADA" published during their journey.

AS soon as any reduction in the price of "CANADA" becomes possible through decrease in the cost of paper, etc., subscribers who accept the offer made above will be given the full benefit of such reduction by the proportionate extension of the periods for which they have subscribed.

SEE SUBSCRIPTION FORM ON PAGE 352.

"CANADA" is the only paper which keeps you in full and accurate touch with the O.M.F.C.

NEWFOUNDLAND AND PEACE SETTLEMENT.

The Prime Minister on the Kaiser.

The Right Hon. W. F. Lloyd, Prime Minister of Newfoundland, in an interview in London, said:—"In Newfoundland there is a feeling of determination that what has been won on the field shall not be lost in the Council Chamber. The popular Governments of the world must take great care that no autocracy again holds the power of the sword. The only safeguard is that this power shall be in the hands of the people. The people themselves, too, must come to an understanding among themselves by conferences and meetings as to what they want, and the military power must be retained, in order that the programme they decide upon is duly carried out. As regards the ex-Kaiser, he must not be lost sight of. Whatever happens, he must be under proper surveillance. He has been a danger and a menace to the whole world. He must be looked upon as a dangerous lunatic, and treated accordingly. The men responsible for the policy of frightfulness must be punished, and adequately punished."

CANADIAN RED CROSS SOCIETY.

Work to be Continued as Long as Necessary.

The Canadian Red Cross will continue to work with the same effort which has characterised their activities on behalf of Canada's soldiers overseas until January, 1920.

This announcement (says the Daily Record) was made by the Chairman, Col. Noel Marshall, following a meeting of the executive. He said that so long as there is a sick or wounded Canadian soldier in England or France the Society would render whatever comfort they could. The Society propose to look after the casualties as they are brought from England to Canada, and have also decided to offer assistance in restoring French and Belgian people to their homes.

Thanks from Liberated Towns and Villages

During the past three months the work of the Canadian Red Cross Society Overseas has exceeded that of any previous period. Besides all that has been done for the sick and wounded men, constant and prompt help has been given to the poor people in the territories recently evacuated by the enemy. Red Cross lorries, loaded with food and other supplies, have been sent up as fast as they could travel to relieve the people. Some of them were arriving in towns which the Germans were still leaving, and shells had not ceased to fall when the Red Cross began to unload its cases. In addition to all that they had suffered from privation and poverty, the populations of these unhappy towns were the victims of the influenza epidemic. It is certain that many lives were saved by the arrival of the Red Cross supplies of condensed milk, food for babies and invalids, soups, etc. The Canadian Field Ambulances have been caring for the sick civilians and issuing to them the supplies sent by the Red Cross.

Most grateful letters of thanks have been received by the authorities of the various towns and villages, and these letters are being forwarded to the Headquarters of the Society in Canada to be preserved.

The representative of the French Army at Arras expresses himself touched at "the kind and prompt way you have placed yourself at our disposal for the relief of our unfortunate compatriots from the evacuated villages." The Mayor of Denain, acknowledging the receipt of the foodstuffs, says:—"These rations have been shared out free, in the name of your Society, through the communal stores, according to the numbers in the families." The Mayor of Erre says:—"Since October 19, the day of the liberation of our village from the Germans, the Canadian Red Cross has kept the community supplied with food, in spite of great difficulties."

The Mayor of Somain expresses the town's "deepest gratitude for the great care and help of all kinds which the sick have received at the hands of your staff since the British and Canadian Army came into the town. Exhausted by four years of privation, all appreciate to the full this devotion, which will be the means of saving many lives."

The Mayor of Wallers (near Valenciennes) thanks the Canadian Red Cross for "having so kindly established a dispensary and supplied food for the relief of the victims of the brutal German bombardment of October 19-20." The Municipal Council of Valenciennes says:—"The Municipality will be happy to distribute to its citizens, who have suffered such long months of captivity and during the long period of bombardment, the provisions so much appreciated that have so willingly and generously been given, and for which we shall be eternally grateful."

A Three Months' Record

The people of Canada may well feel gratified to know what they have been able to do, not only for their own men, but for the Allies. During the three months of September, October, and November a total number of 24,219 cases have been received from Canada, and a total of 25,683 distributed as follows:—Units in England, 9,520; Boulogne, 6,730; American Red Cross, 107; Australian Red Cross (on loan), 572; Belgian Red Cross, 795; French Emergency Fund, 24; French Wounded Fund, 19; Italian Red Cross, 2,048; Serbian Relief Fund, 216; Serbian Red Cross, Salonica, 5,652.

The Parcel Department in London has had an extraordinarily busy three months, as will be shown by the following figures:—September parcels, 23,341; cigarettes, 970,710. October parcels, 24,165; cigarettes, 1,396,379. November parcels, 7,670; cigarettes, 709,006; and tobacco was given to the men who asked for it.

THE MAPLE LEAF CLUBS.

A cable has been received in London from Mr. Huntly Drummond, Montreal, stating that out of the funds raised in the special campaign (of which he was Chairman of the Committee) for the benefit of the Red Cross and other war relief associations, $50,000 has been allotted to the Maple Leaf Clubs. The Committee of the Clubs are endeavouring to secure suitable premises in which to instal another 50 or 100 beds, as there is not likely to be any relaxation of the demand by Canadian soldiers in London for such comfortable quarters as the Maple Leaf Clubs provide for some months.

Christmas

THE Goldsmiths and Silversmiths Company have made a great effort to offer Christmas stocks of the most varied and complete description for the selection of Gifts. Buyers should, however, be warned to make an alternative choice, if possible, in the case of short supply, as the demand for advertised articles is expected to be exceptionally large. Such shortness of supply would only be the result of War conditions. All articles are of highest quality and the best value.

Selections will be sent for approval, if desired, carriage paid, and at the Company's risk, or a Christmas Catalogue may be had post free on application.

When you get back to Canada see that "CANADA" is supplied regularly to your local reading room or club.

CANADA'S PRE-EMINENCE IN THE AIR.

First Seven "Aces" are from the Dominion.

During the war Canada never had an Air Force of its own True, by the time the Armistice was signed there were available two squadrons with their training nearly completed, but owing to the cessation of hostilities no distinctively Canadian squadron had fought under the Maple Leaf banner. All this time, however, Dominion aviators in the Royal Air Force were demonstrating how peculiarly suited Canadians were for the most dangerous branch of the Service. No. 203 Squadron (formerly known as No. 3 Naval Squadron, was under the command of Major (now Col.) R. H. Mulock, the officer personnel of which was entirely Canadian, was admitted to be one of the crack units of the Royal Air Force. Led by Major (now Lt.-Col.) Raymond Collishaw, of Nanaimo, B.C., who was ably seconded by Capt. (Flight Cmdr.) Arthur T. Whealy, of Toronto, this squadron piled up a record which threatened to leave all other squadrons far behind. It failed to achieve its purpose by a narrow margin only. During the past year, No. 203 Squadron destroyed no fewer than 230 enemy machines. That record is only surpassed by one squadron out of all those which constitute the Royal Air Force.

Outside this crack squadron, hundreds of other Canadian fliers were piling up individual totals of enemy machines officially destroyed. Lt.-Col. W. A. Bishop, V.C., with 72, and Major W. G. Barker, V.C., with 50, are cases in point.

Canadians will, therefore, await with interest the publication of the R.A.F. official averages. With brilliant British "aces" like Capt. Ball unfortunately removed by death, it is certain that Canadian airmen will be found to occupy a remarkably high place in those averages. Indeed, we believe that the first seven places in the R.A.F. list of successful air fighters now living are occupied by Canadians. Col. Bishop is the "ace of aces," with 72 machines officially destroyed, Lt.-Col. Collishaw ranks next with 60, and Major Barker is third on the list with 50. Among the first seven is also Capt. Whealy, who is credited with 36.

It is interesting to note that whilst the Canadian Corps captured the last few towns to be taken from the enemy, Canadian fliers co-operated in those victories. No. 203 Squadron had been identified with the Corps since the latter entered upon its great offensive early in August, and the Squadron participated in the Special Order issued by General Currie to the forces under his command on August 26, when he declared :—" The magnificent success achieved this day has paved the way for greater success to-morrow. Keep constantly in mind Stonewall Jackson's motto, ' Press forward.' "

Five Western Canadian C.O.s Awarded Second Bar to D.S.O.

SECOND BAR TO D.S.O

Lt.-Col. John Arthur Clark, D.S.O., 72nd Bn., B.C. (Vancouver.)

When one of his companies was held up by machine-gun fire from a wood, he led his men forward and by skilful tactics captured the machine guns with their crews. Two days later, when his men were again checked in front of a village, he dashed to the front, and led them to their objective, saving many casualties by his skill and fearlessness. (D.S.O. gazetted June 4, 1917.) (1st Bar gazetted August 16, 1917.)

Lt.-Col. William Wasbrough Foster, D.S.O., 52nd Bn., Man. (Victoria).

After two unsuccessful attacks on a village he made a daring reconnaissance to locate enemy machine guns; and then having organised two raiding parties he led one of them personally, while the other made a feint attack on a flank. With his own party he accounted for several machine guns and the eventual result of this third attack was the capture of the village, the defeat of an enemy counter-attack, and the capture of 250 prisoners by his battalion. In the evening he handed over his advanced line to a relieving battalion. He rendered most valuable service. (D.S.O gazetted November 25, 1916.) (1st Bar gazetted January 18, 1918.)

Lt. Col. James Kirkcaldy, D.S.O., 78th Bn., Man. (Brandon).

When one of his companies was held up by machine-gun fire, he took charge and overcame the opposition. Later, by aggressive fighting, he got his battalion well forward, and formed a defensive flank, using a rifle himself and directing machine-gun and trench-mortar fire, and drove the enemy from their positions. His courage and fighting spirit were an inspiration to all. (D.S.O. gazetted January 1, 1917.) (1st Bar gazetted June 3, 1918.)

Lt.-Col. William Smith Latta, D.S.O., 29th Bn., B.C. (Vancouver).

Throughout three days' fighting he led his battalion in an attack against a village, outstripping the troops on his left, as well as the guns and tanks. In this difficult situation he handled his battalion with such skill that he reached his final objective with comparatively small loss. He has at all times displayed fine leadership in action until severely wounded. (D.S.O. gazetted June 4, 1917.) (1st Bar gazetted June 3, 1918.)

He led his battalion with great ability and determination in the attack and capture of a strongly held enemy position. Later, during an enemy counter-attack, he made a reconnaissance of the greatest value, and although both his flanks were in the air he skilfully disposed his men so that they were protected and the counter-attack driven off with heavy loss to the enemy. (D.S.O. gazetted January 1, 1917.) (1st Bar gazetted June 3, 1918.)

BAR TO D.S.O.

Lt.-Col. Reginald Danbury Davies, D.S.O., 44th Bn., Man. (Claresholm).

Realising the importance of the capture of a village when the advance had been held up by wire and very heavy machine-gun fire, he collected all men available and led a dashing assault and overcame the enemy resistance. He personally led a tank through the village, and after completing its capture he pushed out and consolidated a line beyond, and he led it for two days when he succeeded in joining up with the battalion on his right. By his splendid example and leadership he contributed greatly to the success of the operation. (D.S.O. gazetted April 17, 1917.)

Lt.-Col. Herbert John Dawson, D.S.O., 46th Bn., Sask. (Kingston).

Thanks to his perfect organisation and control his battalion secured their objectives, making an advance of some 2,500 yards. Later, when an enemy counter-attack was developing, he made a daring reconnaissance, and transmitted his report to brigade headquarters. As a consequence of this report it was possible to make such disposition as subsequently entirely defeated the purpose of the enemy. Throughout he showed great coolness and initiative. (D.S.O. gazetted June 4, 1917.)

Lt.-Col. Edward Spencer Doughty, D.S.O., 31st Bn., Alberta (Calgary).

In an attack on a village, when neither tanks nor guns were in a position to assist, he successfully occupied it. After which, observing a counter-attack in course of preparation, he collected two companies, and meeting the enemy as they advanced, beat them off with heavy casualties. His energy and cheerfulness were a great asset to his men. (D.S.O. gazetted September 24, 1918.)

Maj. the Hon. Francis Egerton Grosvenor, D.S.O., M.C., 29th Bn., B.C. (Bde. Maj., Hdqrs., 6th Infy. Bde.), (Vancouver).

He first made a valuable reconnaissance on horseback under heavy fire, enabling the brigade to take up an advantageous position. Subsequently, after the capture of a village, he rode all along the line, assisting the commanders to consolidate, and bringing in valuable information of the situation. It was largely due to his energy that the brigade carried out the whole operation without a hitch. (D.S.O. gazetted January 1, 1918.)

Maj. and Bt. Lt.-Col. (Temp. Brig.-Gen.) James Howden MacBrien, C.M.G., D.S.O., R.C.D., G.O.C. 12th Infy. Bde. (Toronto)

He successfully captured the whole of his first objective, and under heavy machine-gun fire reconnoitred his line and directed further operations, thereby assisting very materially the advance of the flanking units He has at all times by his courage and ability given to his brigade a wonderful inspiration of determination and aggressiveness. (D.S.O. gazetted June 23, 1915.)

Maj. Douglas Herbert Campbell Mason, D.S.O., 3rd Bn., 1st C. Ont (Toronto).

This officer in command of an attack against a village cleared the enemy out, and advanced to some high ground east of it, reconnoitring and taking up a commanding position. His handling of the situation was responsible for the success of the operation. (D.S.O. gazetted August 19, 1916.)

Lt.-Col. Lafayette Henry Nelles, D.S.O., M.C., 4th Bn., 1st C. Ont. (London, Ont.)

This officer led his battalion in an attack on two villages, moving across open ground under heavy fire. Although wounded in the leg by machine-gun fire, he continued in command until the close of the fight, encouraging and inspiring his men. (D.S.O. gazetted June 3, 1918.)

Lt.-Col. (Temp. Brig.-Gen.) Victor Wentworth Odlum, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., 7th Infy. Bn., B.C., G.O.C. 11th Infy. Bde. (Vancouver).

He personally superintended and carried out a difficult operation under heavy shell fire, inspiring his battalion by his continual resource and intrepid leadership. When his advance was temporarily held up, he organised the details of the successful final attack. He has always shown marked gallantry and initiative. (D.S.O. gazetted December 23, 1915.)

Lt.-Col. Joseph Bartlett Rogers, D.S.O., M.C., 3rd Bn., 1st C. Ont (Toronto).

Whilst directing the attack of his battalion, a heavy mist obscured the operations, and he suddenly found his party confronted by about 60 of the enemy, who had been passed by. He promptly collected the details and led them across the open against the enemy. His conduct in face of an awkward situation was an example to all. (D.S.O. gazetted July 18, 1917.)

Lt.-Col. Albert Walter Sparling, D.S.O., 1st Bn., W. Ont. (Saskatoon).

This officer personally directed his battalion in the attack on two villages, and, advancing boldly across open ground under heavy machine-gun fire, encouraged and inspired all ranks in the performance of their duty. (D.S.O. gazetted July 26, 1917.)

Maj. Cecil Valentine Stockwell, D.S.O., 3rd Bty., 1st Bde., C.F.A.

He went forward with the infantry and established an observation post in a village when the enemy were still in it. From this point he directed the fire of 400 rounds from his battery into the retreating enemy with excellent effect. He continued to observe and control fire, although his post was subjected to heavy bombardment and received direct hits. By his daring the advance of the infantry was greatly facilitated (D.S.O. gazetted January 1, 1918.)

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE ORDER.

Maj. James Basevi, 2nd Bn., C.M.G.C. (Carstairs, Alta.)

He commanded four machine-gun batteries in conjunction with the infantry advance. When the entire brigade staff were either killed or wounded by a shell burst, he took charge and carried on until the arrival of a fresh staff. His initiative in meeting the emergency, and the way he managed the fire power of his batteries, were of the greatest value.

Rev. Alexander MacLennan Gordon, M.C., Chaplains Service, attd. 4th Division (Kingston).

During heavy fighting in the advance he was continually exposed to great danger while attending the wounded in the firing line. While performing his duty he was severely wounded by a machine-gun bullet.

Maj. John Andrew Hope, M.C., 46th Bn., Sask. (Perth, Ont.)

After a strong enemy counter-attack he carried out a most valuable reconnaissance under heavy fire, reorganised the line, established touch with the enemy along his whole front, and cleared up a difficult situation. He showed marked initiative and disregard of danger.

Lt.-Col. Herbert Leo Keegan, 47th Bn., W. Ont. (Elbow River, Alta.).

In conjunction with another battalion he stormed and successfully captured enemy positions through uncut wire. Throughout the engagement, fought with his right flank exposed, he displayed marked courage and cheerfulness, and in face of the greatest difficulties advanced and held ground gained for three days.

Lt. Arthur Rubin Kilborn, M.M., 78th Bn., Man.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty as scout officer during four days' operations. Under heavy fire he maintained liaison between the companies and battalion headquarters, his accurate information enabling the positions to be readjusted in the face of obstinate resistance. When the left of the attack was threatened he collected some details, and fearlessly exposing himself, shot two officers at close quarters and restored the situation.

Capt. (Actg. Maj.) William Harold Kippen, 3rd Bn., 1st C. Ont. (Toronto).

During an attack, after the second in command had been wounded, this officer twice saved a critical situation, first by seizing a trench, and later by clearing out a nest of four machine guns in a sunken road. On reaching his objective he skilfully arranged for its consolidation. His energy and determination were responsible for the success of the operation

Maj. Donald Bruce Martyn, M.C., 44th Bn., N.B (Maple Ridge, N.S.)

During a bombing attack, noticing that one of the attacking parties of another battalion had taken the wrong trench turning, he immediately went forward, and, finding the senior officer had been wounded, took charge and led the party into the correct trench against large numbers of the enemy, of whom he mowed down a company and captured over forty. He remained with the party for over ten hours, during which time he withstood two violent counter-attacks and consolidated the positions captured. He showed marked courage and able leadership.

Capt. (Actg. Maj.) Guy McLean Matheson, M.C., M.M., 25th Bn., N.S. (Hamilton).

This officer led his company in the attack, and later, when his C.O. was severely wounded, took command of the battalion and skilfully consolidated the position gained. The following day, in directing the advance of the front line, he was severely wounded, but continued on duty for 24 hours. His courage and coolness set a fine example.

Capt. David William McKechnie, No. 6 Fld. Amb., C.A.M.C. (Montreal).

While preparing an advanced dressing station in a village, it was subjected to an intense bombardment, but he remained at his post dressing the wounded, and refused to take underground cover

Maj. Alexander Ogilvie McMurtry, 4th By., 1st Bde., C F.A. (Toronto

When the infantry were held up by machine-gun nests he went forward with a section of his battery and took up a position in the open, and though subjected to machine-gun fire, he was able, by using open sights, to disperse the enemy, thus clearing the way for the infantry advance. His coolness and resource throughout the operations were most marked

Capt. Roger Stevenson Moore, 29th Bn., B.C

He led his company splendidly through heavy fire and captured 16 machine guns and an enemy strong point. His fearless example carried his company forward against all odds, and was successful in helping his flanks to advance

Maj. Stanley Graham Ross, M.C., 6th Fld. Amb., C.A.M.C. (Montreal).

On three successive days this officer was in charge of collecting posts and advanced dressing stations He accompanied the stretcher-bearers in the advance, to see that proper touch was maintained His coolness and disregard of danger under heavy fire had an excellent effect on the work of the bearer parties.

Maj. Clifford Sifton, jun., 4th Bde., C.F.A. (Toronto).

For conspicuous gallantry and determination in command of a composite battery, supporting the infantry advance. By making forward reconnaissances he succeeded in bringing his battery into action at close range against machine guns, tank guns and enemy strong points. His enterprise largely contributed to the success of the attack. Although shot through the wrist he remained at duty.

Capt. Arthur Frederic Simpson, 28th Bn., Sask. (Saskatoon).

Seeing that the attack was likely to become disorganised, he led his company in face of heavy fire through the attacking line, re-organised the other units, and carried the whole line forward. His bold and skilful leadership enabled other units who were held up to come on. He showed marked courage throughout the operations.

Col. Robert Mills Simpson, C.A.M.C., A.D.M.S., 2nd Div. (Winnipeg).

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in establishing, often under heavy fire, his advanced dressing stations and collecting posts, and personally superintending the evacuation of the wounded. When a sudden attack resulted in the capture of a village, he went up under fire and personally dressed the wounds of his men on the field, evacuating all by the evening His tireless work undoubtedly saved many lives

Lt. Hector Child Whitaker, 72nd Bn., B.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during four days' operations, when he was in command of the battalion scouts, obtaining and sending back excellent information as to the enemy strong points, thereby saving many casualties. He beat back the enemy outposts, and on one occasion captured a machine gun and crew. Subsequently he rushed a machine gun and crew single-handed, putting it out of action, although wounded in the face His judgment and dash were most praiseworthy.

Lt.-Col. John Wise, M.C., 25th Bn., N.S. (Halifax).

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in leading his battalion and gaining all its objectives During the attack he was severely wounded in the back, but his determination and indomitable spirit were responsible for the successes of his unit.

BAR TO M.C.

Capt. Percy N. Alexander, M.C., 2nd Bn., E. Ont. (Toronto).

This officer led his company skilfully in the attack, being instrumental in the capture of a village by his initiative in sending forward two platoons at a critical moment. When the O C of his company was wounded he took command, and, though severely wounded himself, continued to direct the attack until too weak from loss of blood. (M.C. gazetted November 14, 1916.)

Capt. Isaac Cubitt Raymond Atkin, M.C., 102nd Bn, 2nd C. Ont. (New Westminster).

This officer in command of a company had to clear a wood very strongly held by machine-gun posts. Moving by section rushes, he got within 50 yards of the wood, and then himself led a charge, capturing many prisoners, four trench mortars, and seven machine guns The capture of the wood was the key of the attack, and it was due to his fine effort that the operation was successful. (M.C. gazetted October 27, 1917.)

Capt. Percy Carruther Band, M.C., 2nd Bn., E. Ont (Toronto)

During a successful attack on two villages, he skilfully led his company against enemy machine-gun nests, and at a critical moment, when the advance was held up, advanced in front of the assaulting waves, and reviewed the situation. As a result the assault was successfully pushed and the objective gained. He displayed exceptional qualities of leadership throughout. (M.C. gazetted February 18, 1918.)

Lt. John Henry Barnes, M.C., 44th Bn., Man. (Winnipeg).—Died of Wounds

During an attack on a village, he accompanied the attacking parties repeatedly assisting officers in working to positions indicated. He handled the battalion scouts in the final attack, and fought with great dash and courage For the succeeding three nights he led patrols and helped to restore positions temporarily penetrated. He rendered valuable service. (M.C. gazetted March 4, 1918.)

Capt. Charles Austin Bell, M.C., 3rd Bn., Eng. (Toronto)

In spite of heavy shelling he took his company across "No Man's Land" and built a track into the enemy's territory. He was badly wounded in both legs and head, but the track, about two miles long, was ready for guns and transport in a wonderfully short time, and the success of the undertaking was due to his energy and fine example (M.C. gazetted January 1st, 1917.)

Capt. Hugh Cuthbert Heighington Brayfield, M.C., 8th Bn., Man

Soon after jumping off he was wounded, and shortly after knocked unconscious by a shell explosion, and left as dead. On regaining consciousness he regained his company at their first objective, and gave the officer who had taken over full instructions as to direction and boundaries, which ensured the success of the operation. He set a fine example in spite of the great pain he was in. (M.C. gazetted July 26, 1918.)

Capt. [illegible] Maj. Hugh Alexander Chisholm, M.C., 2nd Bn., 1st Ont. [illegible]

This officer led his company through a thick fog under heavy fire, and, on reaching the jumping off line, although the only company up, kept right on without waiting for orders. During the day his company captured eighty prisoners and seven machine guns. The next day he established an outpost line in a difficult situation. He showed good judgment and skill throughout the fighting. (M.C. gazetted August 19, 1916

L[illegible] Capt. [illegible] M.C. [illegible] Ont. [illegible]

[illegible] pushed forward 1,000 yards, and secured some high ground which [illegible] was taking up The following day he established an outpost line, and, pushing out patrols, captured one machine gun and eighteen prisoners (M.C. gazetted June 3, 1918.)

VICTORIA CROSS FOR CANADIAN AIRMAN

Other Aviators Honoured—Records of Brilliant Fighting Qualities.

THE announcement is made in a Supplement of the London Gazette, dated November 30, of the award of the Victoria Cross to the following officer of the Royal Air Force

Capt. (Actg. Major) William George Barker, D.S O., M.C., No. 201 Sqn. R.A.F.

On the morning of October 27, 1918, this officer observed an enemy two-seater over the Forêt de Mormal. He attacked this machine, and after a short burst it broke up in the air. At the same time a Fokker biplane attacked him, and he was wounded in the right thigh, but managed, despite this, to shoot down the enemy aeroplane in flames.

He then found himself in the middle of a large formation of Fokkers, who attacked him from all directions, and was again severely wounded in the left thigh, but succeeded in driving down two of the enemy in a spin.

He lost consciousness after this, and his machine fell out of control. On recovery he found himself being again attacked heavily by a large formation, and singling out one machine, he deliberately charged and drove it down in flames.

During this fight his left elbow was shattered and he again fainted, and on regaining consciousness he found himself still being attacked, but, notwithstanding that he was now severely wounded in both legs and his left arm shattered, he dived on the nearest machine and shot it down in flames.

Being greatly exhausted, he dived out of the fight to regain our lines, but was met by another formation, which attacked and endeavoured to cut him off, but after a hard fight he succeeded in breaking up this formation and reached our lines, where he crashed on landing.

MAJOR W. G. BARKER, V.C., D.S.O., M C.

This combat, in which Major Barker destroyed four enemy machines (three of them in flames), brought his total successes up to fifty enemy machines destroyed, and is a notable example of the exceptional bravery and disregard of danger which this very gallant officer has always displayed throughout his distinguished career.

Major Barker, who is still lying in a dangerous condition at No. 8 General Hospital, Rouen, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. J. Barker, of Warren, Man. Coming overseas with the 1st C.M.R. in 1915, he saw eight months' fighting ere securing his commission in the R.F.C. in March, 1916. After brilliant service as a fighting airman in France, he was transferred (in charge of a flight) to the Italian Front, where his exploits earned him the name of "Balilla" (a national hero). He was "touring" the Western Front as a "rover" when he engaged in the epic encounter which won him the V.C. A full account of his career appeared in our issue of November 16.

Major Barker was awarded the Military Cross on January 10, 1917; first Bar on July 18, 1917; the Distinguished Service Order on February 18, 1918; second Bar to Military Cross on September 16, 1918; and Bar to Distinguished Service Order on November 2, 1918.

("London Gazette" Supplement, December 3.)

BAR TO D.F.C.

Lt. (Actg. Capt.) Carl Frederick Falkenberg, D.F.C., Quebec R. (Quebec).

A gallant and skilful fighter who, since he was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, has destroyed four enemy machines and one balloon, and has also driven down two more machines out of control, making in all fourteen enemy aircraft and one balloon to his credit. He has further rendered gallant service in attacking ground targets and reconnoitring enemy lines (France). (D.F.C. gazetted November 2.)

Capt. William Henry Hubbard, D.F.C. (Toronto).

This officer has shown great bravery and devotion to duty both in destroying enemy aircraft—ten of which he has accounted for—and silencing anti-Tank guns. On September 27, flying at altitudes between 200 and 1,500 feet, he engaged and silenced many anti-Tank guns, thereby rendering valuable service. He at the same time completed a detailed and accurate reconnaissance of the area, locating the position of our troops. (France.) (D.F.C. gazetted August 3.)

Lt. Clifford McEwen, M.C , D.F.C., 15th Res. Battn. (Radisson, Sask).

A brilliant and courageous pilot, who has personally destroyed twenty enemy machines. Exhibiting entire disregard of personal danger, he never hesitates to engage the enemy, however superior in numbers, and never fails to inflict serious casualties. His fine fighting spirit and skilful leadership inspired all who serve with him (Italy.) (M.C. gazetted September 16; D.F.C. gazetted July 2)

DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS

Lt. (Actg Capt.) Frank Belway (Winnipeg)

A very gallant officer, who is always ready to volunteer for any dangerous duty. During recent operations he has repeatedly brought back most valuable information regarding the development of the situation, flying at very low altitudes and being subjected to heavy hostile fire. On August 25, during a patrol, he observed an enemy two-seater calling for flares; attacking this machine, he drove it off; the enemy infantry having lit their flares, Lt. Belway, descending to a very low altitude in face of heavy machine-gun fire, was able to obtain most accurate information as to the location of the enemy line. (France.)

Capt. Roger Amedee Delhaye.

A most efficient fighting leader to whose example the high standard of efficiency attained by his squadron is largely due He has led numerous offensive patrols, accounting personally for eight enemy machines. On all occasions he has shown high courage, ability and fine leadership (France.)

Lt. Meredith Ogden Haskell, R.F.A. (Montreal).

During recent operations this officer has rendered most valuable service in bringing back accurate information as to the position of our lines. In this service he has displayed great keenness and disregard of danger, persevering in face of hostile attacks in the air and heavy fire from the ground. (France.)

Sec. Lt. (Actg. Capt.) Horace Percy Lale.

A bold and courageous officer, who leads his patrol with marked skill and judgment. He has accounted for twelve enemy aeroplanes—five crashed, four shot down in flames, and three driven down out of control. On September 6 he led his patrol of nine machines to the assistance of some formations that were attacked by thirty or forty enemy aircraft; in the engagement he and his observer accounted for two Fokkers; eventually the enemy was driven off, five of their machines being destroyed and three shot down out of control. (France).

Lt. Roy Kirkwood McConnell (Victoria, B.C.)

This officer has accounted for five enemy machines—destroying two and driving down three out of control, proving himself a gallant fighting airman. He has also shown conspicuous bravery in attacking troops and transport. (France.)

Lt. Victor Henry McElroy, Can. Engrs. (Richmond, Ont.).—Since killed.

This officer has been conspicuous for his courage and determination in attacking enemy troops, transport, huts, etc., on bombing raids. Carrying out this service at low altitudes, his success has been marked, and he has inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy, his machine being frequently badly shot about owing to the heavy hostile fire which he had encountered. (France.)

Lt. (Actg. Capt.) Wilfred Reid May (Edmonton, Alta.).

This officer has carried out numerous offensive and low-bombing patrols, proving himself on all occasions a bold and daring pilot. He has accounted for seven enemy machines—two of these he destroyed in one flight. His keenness and disregard of personal danger are worthy of the highest praise. (France.)

Lt. Harold Arthur Sydney Molyneux, Can. Forces and 56th Squadron (Toronto).

During the August operations this officer rendered conspicuous good service on low-flying patrols, causing much damage and inflicting heavy casualties, showing brilliant dash and resolution. He is a bold fighter in the air, and has accounted for two enemy aeroplanes. (France.)

Sec. Lt. Frank Samuel Occomore (Edmonton, Alta.).—Since killed.

On August 31 this officer carried out a most successful contact patrol over the front of two divisions. The area was twice covered at an altitude varying from 150 to 300 feet, and most valuable information was obtained. During these operations the machine was subjected to very heavy machine-gun fire, being hit in twenty places, and it was also attacked by an enemy aeroplane. On other occasions 2nd Lt. Occomore has displayed the same courage and determination in carrying out reconnaissances, invariably bringing back valuable and reliable reports. (France.)

Lt. (Actg. Capt.) William Allan Scott, D.S.C. (Vancouver).

This officer has completed sixty-three raids and has dropped over fifty tons of bombs on various objectives, causing very material damage. The courage, keenness and skill Capt. Scott displays on these raids is remarkable, and affords a fine example to his squadron. (France.) (D.S.C. gazetted November 2, 1917.)

Lt. (Actg. Capt.) Stanley Stanger, M.C. (Point St. Charles, Montreal).

A dashing and determined leader who has frequently engaged enemy formations in superior numbers, inflicting heavy casualties. On October 4 he, in company with another machine, engaged six enemy aeroplanes: three of these were destroyed, Captain Stanger accounting for two. In all he has destroyed five enemy machines, displaying on all occasions great courage and skill. (Italy.) (M.C. gazetted September 16. 1918.)

Lt. (Actg. Capt.) Arthur Treloar Whealey, D.S.C. (Toronto).

This officer has shown a very high standard of efficiency. Untiring, and full of initiative, he sets a fine example to the younger pilots. During the recent advance he has carried out daring reconnaissances at very low altitudes, invariably bringing back valuable information. He is a bold fighter in the air, having accounted for five enemy machines. (France.) (D.S.C. gazetted April 26; bar to D.S.C. June 21.)

Lt. (Actg. Capt.) James Butler White (Vancouver).

A fine fighting pilot who has accounted for eight enemy aeroplanes He has led numerous offensive and low-bombing raids, and by his able and daring leadership has achieved great success with a minimum of casualties to his patrol. (France.)

Lt. Claude Melnot Wilson (Vancouver).

Bold in attack, this officer never hesitates to join in an engagement with the enemy, regardless of their numerical superiority. On August 18, with four other machines, he attacked a large hostile formation Five enemy machines were destroyed, Lt. Wilson accounting for one In all he has four machines and one balloon to his credit. (France.)

SEPARATION ALLOWANCES.

To the Editor of CANADA.

SIR,—It is with much satisfaction that the increases of separation and field allowances are notified in Canadian Orders, as also the officers' equipment allowance. Your efforts in making these achievements possible are worthy of remembrance with gratification.

I wish to ask the question, as an officer with a large family of eight, if it is fair to expect me to provide for my family on the same scale that an unmarried officer of similar rank is allowed? Canada wants my boys, and all other boys, but nothing is done by Canada yet to acknowledge this asset to her future success by encouraging the upbringing of children to become future Canadians.

The Imperial Army allows a special rate for each child in the soldier's family. Why should Canada be behind in allowing similar rates to her families?—Yours truly,

CANADIAN CAPTAIN.

LEAVE FOR MARRIED OFFICERS

To the Editor of CANADA.

DEAR SIR,—I have been wondering if, through the medium of your magazine, it could be advocated that leave be granted to the married officers and men in the Corps who have their wives and children in England?

The question may be raised, "Why were they not sent back?" but was it reasonable to expect us to send our wives and families back when they had come over to be with us, and most of us had sold up our homes in Canada? Then, again, many have been married over here, and would like to fix up the journey and be with their wives, as the Lord knows when they will get over when we start going back, and then another long separation.

Now the war is practically over, I do not see why married officers and men cannot be given a good leave with their families. —Yours, etc.,

LIEUTENANT.

CANADIAN AIRMEN'S GRATUITIES

To the Editor of CANADA.

SIR,—On enlistment by the Admiralty in Canada (through the Department of the Naval Service), certain Canadian airmen, myself among the number, were informed in a pamphlet issued to applicants for commissions in the R.N.A.S., that the Government guaranteed, at the expiration of service or on discharge, a bonus of £150 for each completed year of service. This period was to include the time spent in training as well as on active service. A large number of us had to pay our own expenses in learning to fly (many spent sums anywhere up to $1,000 during the six months of our training). In many cases the probationers' family were in poor circumstances and had hard work in raising the money necessary to keep their boys in training.

A large number of those officers have been killed, and their families have not yet received the gratuity promised and guaranteed by our own Government. Perhaps the publication of this protest will be the means of hustling matters a little.—I am, etc.,

ONE OF THE EARLY "BIRDS."

To the Editor of CANADA.

SIR,—A very unjust ruling appears to have been made by the Air Ministry regarding officers' gratuities on leaving the Service. The gratuity at present is based on the pay the officer receives the day he is discharged. In a large number of cases this will mean that, owing to being passed permanently unfit as pilot and observer, as the result of wounds or illness contracted while on active service, the gratuity given will be far less than it would otherwise have been.

For example, in my own case I was receiving up to August last 21 per day while now I am only receiving 11s. 6d. a day, a medical board having passed me as unfit for further flying. I am told officially that the gratuity would have been based on 13s. a day if I had received my discharge in August, but that now it will be calculated on the 11s. 6d. a day I now receive as an administrative officer, and therefore the two years' flying I have done will count for nothing. I returned in August, 1914, from the farther end of Canada to join up in the Old Country the Old Country appears to me to be treating me most unfairly. There must be many far harder cases than my own.—I am, etc.,

FLYING OFFICER JUST DISCHARGED.

[This ruling of the Air Board is of interest to Canadians, who form some 35 per cent. of the flying personnel. The grievance voiced by our correspondent is more apparent than real, because it was surely at his own choice that he accepted the appointment of an administrative officer when his health prevented further flying. Had he resigned when passed as "unfit" his gratuity would have been based on the higher rate of pay which he was up to that time receiving.—EDITOR, Canada.]

OFFICERS' ALLOWANCES.

To the Editor of CANADA.

SIR,—I heartily endorse the letter signed "Canadian Officer" in your issue of Nov. 23, 1918. As a married officer who came to France with the First Contingent and gave up everything to do my bit, the allowance suggested seems utterly inadequate.

Living in France is very high, and with assigned pay I have not been able to save anything. On discharge it will be necessary to purchase clothes, furniture and necessary implements, which, I understand, have "all disappeared" since I left my home in 1914.—I am, etc.,

A MARRIED CANADIAN OFFICER

To the Editor of CANADA.

DEAR SIR,—In your issue of the 30th ult. you have published an article headed "Some Grievances." In taking up this matter I can assure you that you have again won the gratitude of Canadian officers and men.

There is wholesale discontent amongst officers and men alike upon the proposed treatment of Canadian soldiers on discharge from the Army. It is not only the unfavourable comparison which they draw between the gratuities given by the Imperial, Australian and South African forces, but the unfairness of the scheme proposed, which treats the man who has served four years or so exactly the same as the man who has only served—say, one year.

Obviously a man who has been away from his profession or occupation for four years or over will take a great deal longer to re-establish himself in civil life than a man who remained in Canada for—say, two years, and re-organised his business or profession on a war basis, and then came overseas.

Then, again, the case of the married man with dependants temporarily in this country has got to be considered more seriously than it has been up to date. No idea of charity or destitution should be considered in deciding to pay for the return of the married men's dependants to Canada at the public expense. It should be given as freely and generously as the married men gave their services. I believe that it has been argued that officers and other ranks should have saved sufficient money from their pay to pay for the return of their dependents to Canada.

As the vast majority of the married officers and men have had to live entirely on their pay, the question of saving any considerable sum of money has been quite impossible, especially after paying the high rents and prices of food demanded in this country during the war.

Then, again, there is a large number of men who will not step out of military life immediately into civil employment. In the meantime these men have to live and keep their family, and in most cases re-equip themselves with civilian clothes and re-establish a home. This cannot be done under the present system of three months' pay and allowance.

Trusting you will continue to urge the Government to treat soldiers more generously on discharge.—Yours faithfully,

MAJOR.

Empire Journalists Participate in World's Record Passenger Flight.

The novelty of dashing through space at the comfortable speed of 100 miles an hour, and at an altitude of 6,000 feet, was the great privilege recently enjoyed by a representative of Canada. The whole world already knows of that flight, for the fact that a record number of 40 passengers were carried was in itself sufficient news-value to have the happening cabled wherever such means were available.

On the 15th ult., a representative number of newspaper men and women, members of the Empire Press Union, gathered, by courtesy of the directors, at the Cricklewood Aerodrome of the Handley-Page Works. Hitherto a veil of secrecy had been drawn over such establishments, and at this particular hive of industry, where 2,500 men and women are employed in the absorbing and interesting task of building aeroplanes out of 20,000-odd pieces of metal, wood, and canvas, the need for secrecy had been very necessary. Why, we were soon to know.

The trip through the building—the metal and wood working and the erecting shops—under the guidance of Mr. G. H. Cook, was interesting even to a non-mechanician, but it was when Mr. Handley-Page, who is urbanity itself, unfolded to us the full meaning of his firm's activities for the past two or three months that one's pulse beat a little faster at the thought of what might have been.

CAPT. E. R. TEMPEST.
D.F.C., M.C.

These two young airmen are the sons of Mr. W. F. Tempest, of Ackworth Grange, Pontefract. They were farming at Pardee, Sask., when the war broke out, and received commissions in the K.O.Y.L.I., both joining the Air Force. Major Wulstan Tempest received the D.S.O. for destroying the Zeppelin which fell at Potter's Bar in 1916. About that time one of his brothers, Major Wilfrid Tempest, was killed. Another brother, Lt. A. J. Tempest, K.O.Y.L.I., served with the C.M.R. in South Africa, and came over with the C.E.F.

A Creature of the Open Spaces.

At 12.30 a huge machine, its every stay and rib and other accessory having been thoroughly overhauled, left its birthplace for the aerodrome. There it lay passive; its four engines, with a nominal development of 1,400 h.p., had not then been tuned up. Before it and around it, but chiefly above it, lay its future home. For this was a creature of the open spaces, as eager to soar among and above the clouds as the strongest-winged messenger of nature. Possessing a span of 127 feet, the mechanical bird weighed seven tons as it stood, and twice that weight when loaded with the peculiar cargo for which it had been originally designed. As the machine rested immobile on the ground there was nothing sinister about it, nothing to suggest that had not our enemies been prompt to sign the Armistice terms, this messenger of the air, which can fly nearly 1,000 miles without stopping to replenish its petrol tanks, would have accomplished tremendous things. It was to have been a symbol of Britain's might, and now—it will show how far we have harnessed the forces of the air to our commercial needs!

At 12.30 the machine crept from its shed. At 4 o'clock a black, leathern-coated figure, helmeted and begoggled, ambled across the flying ground to the inert monster. This was Clifford B. Prodger, of Grand Falls, Montana, U.S.A., who is as much at home in the ranges of space as he would be on the plains of his native State. As chief tester to the Handley-Page Company, Mr. Prodger has accomplished a great work during the war. His uniform has been the leather combination suit of the airman, his sphere of activity the wide spaces 'twixt earth and sky. His face begets confidence—the unflinching eyes, the firm mouth, and the strongly moulded nose belong to a man without fear. To hear Mr. Handley-Page's encomiums of this young pilot—he has had his flying certificates since 1912—is to learn something of his great commercial value to the country.

At 4.30 forty people, including ten ladies, all fur-clad from head to feet, clambered aboard the "bus," and, amidst the cheers of the crowd—scarcely heard through the roar of the engines—we started on our journey. The giant biplane rose as gently and as gracefully as an eagle might leave its perch on a pinnacle of rock, and we headed for Hendon. Faster and faster the propellers whirled, until from my vantage point amidships there remained only a blur of orange, emanating from the coloured portions of the stern propeller. That orange blur fascinated me throughout the entire trip, that and the roar of the engines as they drove the biplane through space parallel with the Edgware Road, and then over St. Pancras.

Below us was set a magnificent panoramic view, and, before we had attained an altitude of 6,000 feet, villas, farmhouses, and fields looked for all the world like units of a Japanese garden. One thing I remember clearly as having noted before we ran into banks of billowy fog, which unkindly cut off our vision of London when the latter lay at our feet—a railway train speeding along its path of steel. From my proud perch among the clouds the train had the appearance of a crawling insect. Before we struck the fog, I had the impression, as we flew along, that we were only crawling, and for a moment the fear was upon me that we were able to make only slight headway against the wind. (On our return I learned that our speed had been roughly 100 miles an hour.)

During our flight we had both the sunset and the light of the moon, and these, combined with the rolling banks of fog, and with twinkling lights springing up among the dwellings of men far below, gave one a never-to-be-forgotten impression. During the whole of our half-hour's flight there was not the slightest suggestion of instability. When over Buckingham Palace we turned for home (so I am told), but personally I did not notice the fact that we had made a turn, so perfectly steady was the machine. By the time we reached the aerodrome it was rapidly growing dark, but the machine made a fine landing, and we clambered out to give vent to our delight in rousing cheers for the pilot and for Mr. Handley-Page.

Then we were counted, and signed our names, and everyone, including Mechanic "Foch," who was carried "for luck," was happy in the knowledge that he had contributed to a world's record passenger flight. Afterwards, still in our flying suits, we were weighed, and later on, with a twin-engined bomber as a background, the party (which included men and women from Canada, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, India, and Hongkong) was photographed by flashlight.

"THE MESSAGE FROM MARS."

4th Division's Christmas Greetings in Book Form.

When the 5th Bn., in the December of 1915, published "A Christmas Garland"—an artistic brochure designed to be a memento of the war as well as a link with the people at home—it established a happy precedent. The 4th Division, commanded by a Quebec journalist (Major-General David Watson), has embraced this idea of a Christmas journal with similar results. "The Message from Mars" is a greeting from the officers, N.C.O.'s and men of the Division "to friends the wide world over," and will be cherished for all time by those who are fortunate to obtain a copy. The letterpress and half-tones, of which there is a profusion, are beautifully produced. The portrait in oils of "The Chief" (Gen. Watson), by Major Wm. Orpen, A.R.A., and the reproduction of Lt. Cyril Barraud's painting of "Mont St. Eloy," will be framed and "hung" well in many a home from the Atlantic to the Pacific

There is a striking frontispiece depicting a Canadian soldier (with the inevitable "souvenir"), accompanied by the toast :—

> "Our hearts where they rocked our cradle,
> Our love where we spent our toil,
> And our Faith, and our Hope, and our Honour,
> We pledge to our Native Soil."

Well-known writers like Rudyard Kipling, Percival Phillips, Boyd Cable, "Touchstone," and Herbert Russell (Reuter's Agency) have made excellent contributions, and Lt.-Col. Percy Bell, D.S.O., C.A.M.C., of Winnipeg, in breaking into print, proves what an all-round personality he possesses. The journal, it is understood, has been compiled under the direction of Capt. W. MacLeod Moore (A.D.C. to Gen. Watson), and the name of his sister, Miss Mary MacLeod Moore, the well-known Canadian journalist, appears among the list of contributors.

GALLANTRY IN THE FINAL DRIVE.

Capt. Christopher Matheson Finlayson, M.C., C.A.M.C., attd. 20th Bn., 1st C. Ont.

As medical officer of the battalion during an attack he did excellent work in attending to several wounded men under shell and machine-gun fire. His coolness and attention to duty, regardless of personal safety, were an inspiration to all. (M.C. gazetted September 24, 1918.)

Capt. Thomas Fisher, M.C., 25th Bn., N.S. (Montreal).

Although wounded in the face early in the operations, he led his men to the final objective, and superintended the consolidation of the position, remaining on duty for forty-eight hours. His leadership and example were beyond praise. (M.C. gazetted October 18th, 1917.)

Capt. Richard Walter Gyles. M.C., 46th Bn., Sask, (Brandon),

He led his company to the objective through heavy fire, and the following day, when in support, he led two of his platoons forward to cover the flank of the front line battalion and wiped out a strong enemy nest, killing fifteen of the enemy and capturing two machine guns. He showed marked courage and ability to command. (M.C. gazetted August 16, 1917.)

Capt. Oswald Horatio Hepworth, M.C., 29th Bn., B.C. (New Westminster).

He led his company with marked courage against heavy odds, and drove the enemy out of a village. His prompt work in dealing with machine-gun nests enabled the advance to be continued without hesitation. He was severely wounded. (M.C. gazetted September 16, 1918.)

Lt. Gerald Charles Huntingdon Lindsell, M.C., 47th Bn., W. Ont. (Kamloops).

He took his company to the assistance of a battalion which was held up while trying to enter a village on the right. He took his men to the left, and, after severe fighting, enabled the battalion on the right to push through their end. The village was then completely cleared, and a line established beyond. Throughout his conduct, leadership, and disregard for personal safety were outstanding. (M.C. gazetted February 4, 1918).

Capt. Angus Gillis Macauley, M.C., 2nd Bn., Eng. (Calgary).

As officer in charge of the water supply for the division area he personally made a reconnaissance of wells in the forward area, and, though wounded, continued to work under fire until relieved. He behaved splendidly, and brought in valuable information regarding roads, tracks, etc. (M.C. gazetted February 15, 1917.)

Capt. Ernest Hanbury Minns, M.C., 3rd Bn., 1st C. Ont. (Toronto).

He led his company forward, taking advantage of all available cover, and, when held up, walked among his men, encouraging them and directing the fire. Later, he was wounded in the neck, but thanks to his example the men carried on successfully after he was forced to report to the dressing station. (M.C. gazetted July 18, 1917.)

Capt. Stuart A Moore, M.C., 50th Bn., Alberta (ex.—R.N.W.M.P.).

He led his own and another company forward some 2,000 yards in face of determined resistance from machine-gun fire, and next day broke up a heavy enemy counter-attack, and, though forced to give some ground, fought every inch, and brought all wounded with him. He set a splendid example throughout to his command. (M.C. gazetted March 26, 1917.)

Lt. Henry Thomas Poste, M.C., 3rd Bn., 1st C. Ont. (Toronto).

This officer was severely wounded at the start, but upon his company commander being wounded he took command, and led it forward 8,000 yards to the final objective, overcoming a series of machine-gun nests. He was again wounded, and forced to retire, after setting a very fine example to his men. (M.C. gazetted February 18, 1918.)

Capt. Arthur Pritchard, M.C., 47th Bn., W. Ont. (Ottawa).

He led his company under heavy fire to the objective, and there drove off several enemy attempts on his lines, inflicting severe losses. By several daring patrol reconnaissances he gained touched with the unit on his left, and defeated attacks on these patrols, capturing a machine gun and crew. Throughout the whole operation he set a very fine example to his men (M.C. gazetted June 3, 1918.)

Lt. (Actg. Capt.) James Ward, M.C., D.C.M., C.F.A., attd. 4th Div T.M.B.

This officer controlled three trench mortars throughout the phases of the infantry attack on more than one occasion placing his mortar in front of the infantry to destroy machine-gun nests and enemy posts. Throughout he set a fine example of energy and determination. (M.C. gazetted January 1, 1918.)

Lt. William James White M.C., 28th Bn., Sask.

He led his men with great skill and courage in face of heavy fire, and twice went far forward to reconnoitre, with the result that he was able to bring his men into action with but few casualties. He was blown over by a shell, but continued to carry on until the operation was finished. (M.C. gazetted July 26, 1917.)

CANADIANS IN THE IMPERIAL FORCES.

BAR TO M.C

Sec Lt. Wilmot Johnston Baird, M.C., R.G.A., attd. 14th Hy. Bty. (Scarborough, Ont.)

During ten days heavy fighting his efforts were unceasing, and he carried out most valuable observation work, constantly visiting the front line to ascertain the situation and direct the fire of the battery. His courage and initiative were conspicuous, and the information he transmitted enabled hostile batteries in action to be engaged with great effect. (M.C gazetted September 16, 1918.)

MILITARY CROSS.

Temp. Lt. Alexander Culten Clark, 180th Tunnelling Co., R.E.

He led forward a party with the advancing infantry to search for land mines and traps in the streets of a town from which the enemy had been driven. He worked untiringly for three days under heavy fire, and removed a large number of explosive charges and mines. As a result of his initiative heavy traffic subsequently passed through the town without a casualty.

Temp. Capt. Orie Elgin Finch, M.D., R.A.M.C., attd. 2nd Battn. K.O. Scottish Bord. (Victoria).

He moved his aid post forward to close behind the front line, under very heavy machine-gun fire. Here he worked unceasingly in a trench for thirty-six hours bandaging and attending to wounded; and it was due to his fearless conduct and splendid energy that all the wounded were attended to in a short time.

Temp. Sec. Lt. Erle Bostwick Lowndes, Gord. Highrs., attd. A. and S. Highrs. (Toronto).

He led a patrol across 700 yards of difficult ground under partial cover from mist, and entered the enemy's lines, where he surprised two dugouts in turn and captured seven prisoners, whom he brought away, in spite of being fired on the whole way back.

THE COMING OF PEACE.

Prominent Canadians' Messages.

Among messages dealing with Peace problems and the outlook, received by the Financier, are the following from prominent Canadians:—

LORD SHAUGHNESSY.—The essentials of reconstruction are:—Justice without vindictiveness; wise counsel to secure the early establishment of stable government conformable to the people's wishes in distraught countries, the return of soldiers to civil life and their occupations as promptly as feasible, and the diversion to production and industry of the thought, energy and machinery so splendidly marshalled for war purposes.

SIR EDMUND WALKER.—Assuming the end of the Hohenzollerns and the creation of a league assuring justice to all nations, led by all English-speaking peoples united by agreement as a unit in enforcing the league, the nations of the British Commonwealth should prefer each other in trade, shipping and finance, and thus lighten the war burden. We owe less consideration to any of our Allies than we owe to each other.

LT.-COL. WILLIAM MOLSON MACPHERSON.—Common suffering has removed from our neighbours many misconceptions of the British peoples. We trust that the Anglo-Saxon nations, now acting in full sympathy, will, with their Allies, face the reconstruction and peaceful development of the world now depending on them with the same energy and spirit they displayed in the war, and with as satisfactory results.

SIR HERBERT S. HOLT.—England should insist on continuation of the laws under which British ships are built, manned and navigated; also the economic conditions under which British labour and capital have manufactured and sold goods in every part of the world; continue the open-door policy in China, extend liberal financial assistance to the British West Indies and other Colonies for the production of staple articles for which England is now dependent upon foreign nations, adopt mutual trade preference in favour of overseas Dominions and Colonies, and refrain from interference with overseas Dominions' self-government.

SIR WILLIAM MACKENZIE.—In my opinion, Canada enters upon the preparation for peace developments sound in heart and sound in resources. Having lived up to the British traditions of courage, integrity and industry during the great war, she will not desert those traditions in the reconstruction days that are to follow.

THE LONDON MARKET.

Stock Exchange Settling Days :—

CONSOLS PAY DAY, Thursday, Jan. 2.

Ticket Day.	Pay Day.
Wed., Dec. 11.	Thurs., Dec. 12.

LONDON, Tuesday.

Business on the Stock Exchange during the week has steadily contracted, owing to the operation of election influences, but there has been no deterioration in the tone of markets, though quotations have sagged off in some directions from neglect.

Canadian securites have met quiet support, but quotations have moved with narrowness and indecision. The gilt-edged issues of the Dominion have marked time. The 4½ per cents. hold at 95 and the Fours at 85. Among corporation issues Toronto 4½ per cents. have improved a point to 85. Edmonton Fives at 79 are rather better after allowing for the interest deduction.

In the railroad group Canadian Pacifics are unchanged around 177. The company's October statement recorded a small net increase of $31,000—a bagatelle. Grand Trunk net earnings for the same month increased £66,100, but Grand Trunk junior stocks are ¼ to ½ down. Grand Trunk Pacific 4 per cent. debs. at 65 are 1 better. As regards land shares, Hudson's Bays have been dullish at 8 9-16. Lower-priced shares mark little variation.

Industrial securities have met little attention, and are practically unaltered on balance. Canada Cements remain at 72 and General Electrics at 113½. Dominion Steels at 62½ are steady. Lake Superiors have marked time at 19. Brazil Tractions have not moved, but the pref. at 93½ is ½ down. The report of the proceedings at the annual meeting of the Cockshutt Plow Co. is distinctly optimistic, and will be dealt with in a later issue.

Canadian silver-mining shares have met slight realisations. Mining Corpn. of Canada at 10s. 6d. and Casey Cobalts at 3s. 6d. are both rather weaker.

OUR TORONTO LETTER.

TORONTO, November 16.

Last Monday the Stock Exchanges both in Montreal and Toronto took a holiday in celebration of the signing of the armistice. In Montreal the Exchange would have been closed in any case in honour of the Victory Loan parade, but the arrival of the great news turned all thoughts from business to rejoicing in the financial markets of Canada and the U.S. When the Exchanges reopened on Tuesday the continuation of the improving tendency noticeable at the end of last week indicated that markets had already discounted pretty thoroughly the ending of the war, while probably the restricting influence of the Victory Loan on trading was minimised by the very successful progress of the loan.

While Brazilian Traction provided the feature of trading the war group remained firm in face of the armistice news, and other issues recorded gains. Later, irregularity developed, and business contracted in volume, though price fluctuations in general have been small. Brazilian Traction, though continuing active, has lost part of the strong advance it made earlier in the week, and the steel stocks, after weakening in the middle of the week, are now stronger, in sympathy probably with the recovery in industrial stocks in New York. Expectation that the recently announced Government order for rails would be followed by one for equipment gave rise to a demand for Canadian Car towards the end of the week, and Canadian Locomotive has also been notably strong, as has also Asbestos Common, in regard to which there are expectations of dividend action. On the other hand, other stocks, as, for instance, Cement, Spanish River and Brompton are somewhat weaker.

Maple Leaf's directors, in announcing a 10 per cent. bonus on the Common stock payable in Victory Loan bonds, have repeated the course they adopted a year ago. The stock was active and strong preceding the announcement, but later lost a point of its advance. Following a meeting of the Canada Steamship directors in Montreal on Thursday it was announced that the much-discussed question of a Common stock dividend had not been raised at the meeting.

A revival in Toronto of a demand for bank stocks may be taken as indicating a realisation on the part of investors of the fine condition in which the Canadian banks emerge from the war period and the cheapness of these high-class securities at their present price. Among bonds a feature has been the strength of the 1937 War bonds at 96, while a 5 point recovery in Cedars Rapids 5 per cent. bonds, to 85, is also noteworthy. This rise is said to be due to a demand from the U.S., where a considerable proportion of the bonds are held.

Among current prices Dom. Steel is 60½; Steel of Canada, 59¾; Cement, 61; Can. Gen. Electric, 104½; Can. Loco., 65½: Can. Car, 33⅛; Steamships 44⅝, Pref. 76⅛; Brompton, 58½; Riordon, 117¼; Spanish River, 15½, Pref. 55; Lake of the Woods, 156; Maple Leaf, 140; St. Lawrence Flour, 92; Brazilian, 55½; Quebec Railway, 19; Asbestos, 33; Penmans, 80; Montreal Power, 83; Shawinigan, 116¾.

FROM EAST TO WEST

ONTARIO PROVINCE.

OTTAWA.—An official report received by the Hon. A. Meighen from Mr. W. M. Graham, Commissioner in charge of the greater production campaign on the Indian Reserves in the West, states that the campaign was a success, and that preparations are being made by the Indians for an even greater production next season.

——Sir James Lougheed states that Col. Hugh Clark, Parliamentary Secretary to the Department of Militia, has taken over the duties of Parliamentary Secretary to the Department of Soldiers Civil Re-Establishment, in succession to Mr. F. B. McCurdy.

—The Hon. A. K. MacLean, chairman of the Reconstruction Committee, states that the munition industries and other businesses which owed their existence solely to war conditions, will be busy with the increased demand for food, lumber, iron, steel, railway extensions and improvements and construction materials. There must, however, he added, be co-operation on the part of all Provinces, municipalities, and individuals.

——The Canadian building industry has been organised to meet the problems of reconstruction at a conference here.

——An organised labour delegation has urged on the Government the adoption of old-age pensions, compulsory sickness insurance, higher land taxes, pensions for widowed mothers and deserted wives, and minimum wage regulations.

——The Minister of Agriculture announces the appointment of Mr. C. W. Baxter, of Chelsea, P.Q., to fill the vacancy created by the death of Mr. Donald Johnson, Fruit Commissioner.

Mr. Edward Fitzgerald, assistant to the chairman of the Imperial Munitions Board, has been appointed vice-chairman of the Advisory Council of the Hudson's Bay Co., with headquarters at Winnipeg. Mr. Fitzgerald spent 20 years with the C.P.R., of which he was formerly Director of the Purchasing Department.

——Mr. H. J. Daly has been appointed Director of the Repatriation and Employment Committee of the Dominion Government.

TORONTO.—The Soldiers' Aid Commission for the Province has completed a session, when plans were considered for taking care of the 25,000 returned soldiers already in the Province and the thousands who will shortly be home.

——The plans decided upon include a course of training, especially in agriculture, and also the taking of a survey of the entire Province with a view of finding suitable properties for market gardening and farming. Market gardens will be established as close to large centres as possible. Over 1,300 returned men are taking a vocational training course at the present time.

Plans for the care of soldiers' children who are left fatherless or motherless have been adopted by the Commission, which has opened a new home for these dependents at 138, Avenue Road.

-Latest statistics to hand from Canada show that no fewer than 5,308 graduates and undergraduates of Toronto University are on service. The casualties have been: Killed in action, 517; missing, 12; prisoners, 35; wounded, 817. One graduate has gained the V.C., and 715 have been decorated.

The Empire Club's first aerial visitor was Brig.-General Charles Lee, C.M.G., of the Royal Air Force, at Washington.

—A carload of baled hay which was seized at Crane Hill contained $12,000 worth of liquor. Fifteen arrests were made.

During October there were 3,055 deaths from Spanish influenza in Ontario reported to the Provincial Board of Health

Fire has destroyed the main forging building of the British Forgings Co. near here; loss $200,000.

That Canadian distillers are opposed to a return of the old system of distributing alcoholic stimulants, and will aid the Government in enforcing the Ontario Temperance Act, is stated in a letter published in the Mail and Empire from Messrs. Hiram Walker & Co.

QUEBEC PROVINCE.

MONTREAL.—Mr. W. E. Bell has been appointed acting Divisional Superintendent of Telegraphs of the Grand Trunk Pacific for the Alberta and British Columbia lines, with headquarters at Edmonton.

——Thirty disorderly houses in this city have been raided by the police, who took into custody 284 persons; over 1,000 bottles of liquor were seized.

——A second police raid in the vice district of the city resulted in the arrest of 81 women and 36 men.

——Chief of Police Grandchamps has been dismissed by the Board of City Commissioners without any explanation.

——Capt. Andrew MacDuff, who was Staff Adjutant to the Director-General of Timber Operations in France and Great Britain, has been appointed secretary to the local branch of the Patriotic Fund.

——The Montreal Herald, which was first published 108 years ago, has suspended issue owing to the increased cost of publication.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

ST. JOHN.—A company, of which one of the members is Mr. S. E. Elkin, M.P., is preparing to commence the manufacture of aeroplanes in this city.

——A rough estimate of the value of the harbour properties here prepared for the Council showed a total of about $2,500,000 for the city wharves and other facilities, against which there still are outstanding debentures to the value of $1,310,000.

The freight handlers' strike here has been settled and the Mayor's award agreed to, which gives the men an increase to 47 cents an hour, with the usual provisions for overtime and Sundays.

—Mr. J. Benison Rainsford, a returned soldier, of Fredericton, N.B., has been appointed to the Customs service here.

MONCTON.—The Canadian Bank of Commerce has purchased from the I. L. Miller estate the property on the east corner of Main and Church Streets.

NOVA SCOTIA.

HALIFAX.—The water-power possibilities of this Province investigated up to the present time are capable of developing 200,000 horse-power, according to the statement of Mr. K. H. Smith, engineer in charge of the Water Power Commission for the Dominion. The results were obtained by estimates of stream flow, the dependable power available with storage and the capacities of the storage basins.

The Fuel Controller, Mr. McGrath, states that there has been a falling off of 450,000 tons in the coal production of the Maritime Provinces this year.

NEW GLASGOW.—The MacKenzie Shipping Co., Ltd., have launched their maiden vessel, the Cambrai, here. She is a four-masted schooner, 178 ft. over all, with a 12' h.p. engine.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

CHARLOTTETOWN. A new industry to be opened is a tyre vulcanising plant, which will be fully equipped with the most modern machinery.

Fire has caused $25,000 damage to the premises of Messrs. Grant & Kennedy, the Connelly Estate Co., the Maddigan Grocery, and the Joseph Dry Goods Store.

Ten pairs of live foxes have been shipped by Dr. Leo Frank to Japan, in charge of a rancher, who will spend a year in teaching the fox-breeding business to the purchaser.

Ontario after the War—TIMBER.

Ontario has 202,000 square miles of forests, which yield timber to the value of $26,775,000 per annum.

After the war, vast quantities of timber will be required for rebuilding purposes in the ravaged cities, towns and villages of Europe.

Ontario, with its vast forests of pine, birch, maple, beech, and other valuable hardwoods, can, with the aid of British capital, supply the timber demand of the world.

There is also a great future in store for the wood pulp and paper industry. Huge plant already exists, but new factories are needed to cope with the inevitable demand for paper that will arise immediately after the war.

MANITOBA PROVINCE.

WINNIPEG.- The Aquilla Block, on William Avenue, has been sold for $67,500. The block has been owned for some years by Mr. A. B. Donely, a former Winnipeg man, now residing in Edmonton. The transfer, at the figure realised, is an indication that inside Winnipeg property has lost none of its attractiveness to the investor.

—Mr. C. F. Gray, Controller, defeated ex-Mayor F. N. Davidson by over 4,000 votes at the mayoralty election.

—Twenty-nine homesteads were applied for in October, and in addition 12 soldier grants were made. A year ago entries were made for 140 homesteads. The decrease is explained by the provisions of the Soldiers' Settlement Act, under which only returned soldiers may procure homestead lands within 15 miles of a railway.

This Province will have little difficulty in taking care of the 11,000 or 12,000 prospective farmers from the Overseas Military Forces who are likely to seek homes in the Province, states the Hon. V. Winkler, Minister of Agriculture.

—Damage of $250,000 has been caused by fire to the premises of Messrs. C. S. Judson Co.

SASKATCHEWAN.

REGINA.—A marked tendency towards mixed farming in this Province is noted by the Department of Agriculture. The Live Stock Commissioner has orders for a number of cattle and sheep, many farmers planning to take up sheep raising for the first time

Figures compiled by the Department of Agriculture show nearly 4,000,000 acres of summer fallow and new breaking ready for the 1919 crop.

SASKATOON.—During the first nine months of this year the output of Saskatchewan co-operative creameries showed an increase of 33 per cent. over the corresponding period last year. In one week of September the output was 100,000 lbs., compared with 60,000 lbs. last year.

—An elevator is being built here for the Quaker Oats Milling Co.'s Plant.

The Waterloo Manufacturing Co. is erecting a warehouse

ALBERTA PROVINCE.

EDMONTON.—Mr. Charles Stewart, son of Premier Stewart, has died at Battle Axe, Mich.

During the influenza epidemic the wearing of gauze masks was compulsory in this city.

DUCHESS.—Rob Ray, who came to Alberta in 1916 without capital and hired out the first year, saved sufficient money to make his first payment of 10 per cent. on 160 acres of irrigated land, which a neighbour broke for him last autumn, while he continued to work. Seeding 140 acres to wheat this spring, he had 3,800 bushels of wheat, worth over $7.500.

BASSANO.—Eight hundred acres of non-irrigable land at Majorville (24 miles from Gleichen and 18 from Cluny, on the C.P.R. main line) has been sold for over $70 per acre.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

VICTORIA.—Between January, 1917, and September, 1918, there were launched in this Province 52 vessels; total tonnage 175,600. Prior to 1917 no shipyards existed for the construction of such vessels. In the total of 52 vessels are included five steel steamers of 5,700 gross tons, each 425 feet long, three of 3,000 gross tons, and 28 wooden steamers of 1,800 gross tons and 13 schooners of 1,600 gross tons. During the same period there were built in various British Columbia yards 14 vessels of from 100 to 400 tons.

—Capt. Hayward, Conservative M.P. for Cowichan, has resigned.

A steamship recently landed the largest and most valuable silk cargo ever carried across the Pacific, consisting of 5,245 bales of raw silk and 251 cases of silk goods, valued at over $5,000,000, destined for Eastern markets.

American capitalists are establishing a pulp mill at Beaver Cove, south of Alert Bay; capacity 200 tons daily.

—During the past season, after experiments, 22,000 cases of herrings were packed and shipped.

BANKING AND FINANCE.

Bank of Montreal and Readjustment.

With the war now happily practically ended the world is face to face with the mighty problem of reconstruction a problem which is not likely to be less intricate in the Dominion which has done so much to help the Allies win the war than in Europe. Particular interest therefore attaches to the annual statement of the Bank of Montreal, a cabled summary of which was published in last week's issue of Canada. The position disclosed is such a strong one that it must afford considerable confidence as to the manner in which Canada will be able to pass through the difficult period of readjustment from war to peace conditions. In the first year of the struggle the total assets stood at $289,562,678, whilst to-day they are practically double—$558,413,546. Liquid assets alone at $370,351,000 are actually $80,000,000 in excess of the total assets at the outbreak of war. Even making allowance for the absorption of the Bank of British North America, a continued expansion was experienced during the past year, for the total assets a year ago were $403,980,236. It is of interest to note that the percentage of liquid assets to liabilities to the public is the high one of 71.28 per cent. Interest-bearing deposits now total $345,552,764, as against $246,041,786 a year ago; and non-interest-bearing deposits are $124,175,047, as compared with $71,114,641. Discounts and loans have advanced from $119,440,229 to $177,132,212. Net profits at $2,562,720 are equal to 16.01 per cent., as against $2,477,969. The amount carried forward after providing for dividends and special appropriations amounts to $1,901.613, against $1,664,893 brought in. The capital account is unchanged at $16,000,000. The assistance afforded to the Dominion and Imperial Governments is shown by the remarkable increase in securities held, Dominion and Provincial Governments standing at $46,870,586, against $28,573,322, and Canadian municipal, British, foreign and Colonial public securities, other than Canadian, amounting to $52,085,835, against $33,455,254. An interesting pendant to this remarkable report is the statement since cabled from Montreal to the effect that the bank has decided to establish a branch in Paris so soon as the necessary arrangements can be made. This departure is quite in the spirit of the times and characteristic of the enterprising policy which has always animated this old-established Canadian financial institution. That it will prove a profitable venture is undoubted, for there must be ample scope for the operations of such a branch in the French capital.

British Columbia's Timber Cut.

Those with whom rests the responsibility of rebuilding the devastated war areas in Europe are, of course, looking to Canada for the huge supplies of timber that will be required for that purpose, and the report for 1917 of the British Columbia Provincial Forestry Department is, therefore, of more than usual interest. It shows that the total quantity of timber scaled in that year was 1,647,275,000 feet board measure, as against 1,161,750,000 feet in the preceding twelve months. The value, including transportation within the Province, was £9,660,093, against £7,105,600 in 1916. How this remarkable increase has benefited the revenue of the Province may be gathered from the fact that the amount collected in forest dues was no less than £467,666, or an increase of £66,475 over the preceding twelve months. With its mighty vast forest wealth—the stand of merchantable timber in the Province is estimated at no less than 400,000,000,000 feet board measure—B.C. should very materially benefit in the next decade from the enormous demand for its timber, and it is gratifying to know that the Provincial authorities are fully alive to the timber situation in Europe, and that they have appointed a Timber Commissioner for this country in the person of Mr. L. B. Beale to study the position on the spot

BRITISH-MADE ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS.

Charming Exhibition at Marshall and Snelgrove's.

Canadians—particularly Canadian ladies—who can spare the short time required to pay a visit to the exhibition of British-made artificial flowers now being held by Messrs. Marshall & Snelgrove at their well-known establishment in Oxford Street, W., will find it well worth while doing so. The buyer, a lady of taste, shows the various rooms of flowers, arranged and in course of arrangement. It is difficult to realise that it is not a real florist's, so natural are the standard ramblers and other flowers by which one is surrounded. A special word must be said for the lovely roses—especially the La France roses—the chrysanthemums, sweet peas, and fuschias, all of which particularly catch the fancy. In view of the difficulty of obtaining real flowers and their very high price, ladies should pay a visit to this exhibition to get not only their table decorations, but bunches of flowers for wearing; the flowers for the hair are very charming. It is to be noted that this firm, to set an example in fuel and light economy, close at 5 p.m. and do not open on Saturdays.

A. R. O. (Shorncliffe).—Yes; but the Order respecting it has not yet been published.

M. R. F. (Seaford).—There is no foundation for the rumour that B.C. soldiers are to receive such a gratuity.

J. T. H. R. (France).—(1) We do not think it is possible in the meantime at least.

J. V. McK. (Reading).—Thanks for the compliment. Your "friend" is merely a card-index in our file of records.

J. M. (King's Special Hospital).—We are entirely of your opinion, but the question has been decided, and cannot be reopened.

Captain (Imperial Army).—When you transferred to the Imperial Army you waived all claims to any gratuity from the O.M.F.C.

H. P. D. (Halifax, N.S.).—If so, it is only because they have not complied to a greater extent with our request to send in their names for our records.

S. R. U. (Epsom).—We should say you are entitled to the 1914 Star, but suggest you write to the Secretary, Admiralty, Whitehall (through your present C.O.) for verification. Make your letter an application for the decoration.

J. R. M. (Lindal-in-Furness).—There is no real reason why you should feel anxious; but you may make an enquiry through the Canadian Record Office, Green Arbour House, Old Bailey, London, E.C.4.

F. W. C. (Bexhill).—Routine Order No. 4,912 (Nov. 16) stated that field allowance for captains and lieutenants is increased to $1 per diem. Lieutenants' pay has been lately increased by 40 cents a day, and separation allowance by $10 a month. We are forwarding you a copy of the R.O. dealing with kit allowance.

Mr. G. MURRAY BARKER,

(nr. Selfridges), W.1. Tel Mayfair 1959.

P. B. (Buxton).—We are in sympathy with your position, but obviously it is impossible for the authorities at Ottawa, who framed the policy, to give separate attention and treatment to individual cases. The general policy as outlined in this issue is framed to give equitable treatment to the greatest number.

A Subscriber (Reading).—If a member of the O.M.F.C. is discharged to take a commission in the Imperial Forces, he waives his claim to any gratuity from the Canadian authorities. We cannot say if his previous service (with the O.M.F.C.) counts towards an increased gratuity from the Imperial authorities, but believe it does not.

D. L. B. (Scampton).—We indicated the general policy to be adopted. No Army Council Instruction affecting the matter has yet been issued. The three months' post-discharge pay applies to officers and men alike, but officers or men transferred from the O.M.F.C. to the Imperial Forces waive their right to any benefits under the O.M.F.C.

J. H. A. (Oxford).—See our note on page 310 of the issue of Canada for Nov. 30. If you have reached a certain point of your training you can, if you wish, remain in the R.A.F., the policy, as we understand it, being to train all cadets (who have reached a certain stage) to efficiency before being demobilised. If you so desire, you could be returned to your reserve depôt (O.M.F.C.) for demobilisation, without proceeding further with your course of training

Royal Bank of Scotland. — At the meeting of the Royal Bank of Scotland last week, the Duke of Buccleuch, the Governor, said the management had been giving particular consideration to the subject of the foreign requirements of their customers. For a good many years the bank had been able to handle a considerable amount of the foreign exchange business which had been offered, but, as the result of the development of their organisation, now in progress, the bank would be able to offer a full service to their customers and other connections, and be able to transact foreign exchange at all their principal offices.

THE PRINCE ALBERT DEFAULT.

A telegram was received in London from Toronto last week stating, with reference to the default on the loans of the City of Prince Albert, that the Saskatchewan Government has agreed to pass legislation during the session which opened this week. A meeting of the bondholders' committee was to be held on Friday, and this body will ask (says the Times) the bondholders to recommend that legislation should be passed providing for the appointment of a Commission of five members, three representing the bondholders and two the city authorities, to take over the administration of the city. It will also be proposed that the Commission shall appoint a controller to assume the general management, and that all the securities shall be converted into 35-year registered Debenture stock with the same lien as the debentures. The Commission will levy taxes and pay interest and sinking fund according to the ability of the city to make payments.

Royal Mail Steam Packet.—The court of directors have resolved to pay out of the profits of the current year an interim dividend at the rate of 2½ per cent., less income tax, on the Preference stock, and an interim dividend at the rate of 2 per cent., less income tax, on the Ordinary stock, being at the same rate as in the last three years.

Barcelona Traction, Light and Power Company.—The report for the year 1917 states that the progress shown may be regarded as satisfactory if the conditions prevailing throughout the year are taken into account. The balance-sheets of the chief operating companies in Spain in which this company is interested show that the combined surplus earnings of these companies were larger by $479,648 than in 1916. All earnings of the associated companies as and when received are applied as provided in the committee agreement, bond interest, excepting that on the Prior Lien A bonds, being satisfied by the issue of 5 per cent. notes.

The Punch Almanack for 1919 is out in good time, and provides a cheering picture gallery. Although the march of events has been a little too rapid for some of the war cartoons, they have by no means lost their point.

The University Magazine (Montreal) for the current quarter, contains a paper by Sir Henry Newbolt on "Literature and Science," a trenchant review of Lord Morley's "Recollections" by C. C. Robinson, and articles by J. M. Gibbon on "Oxford and the Rest of the World" and J. E. Ward on "The Master Statesman (Christ) of the Age."

A HALT "EN PASSANT."

NOW that the strain of war has been removed from the men's minds, there are many Canadians who, before they embark, are keenly anxious to see something more of the Old Land from which their fathers came. It is a very natural desire, and one which, if gratified, would be beneficial not only to the individual, but also to the Dominion as a whole. We realise now more fully than ever before that the whole future of humanity rests to-day in the hands of the English-speaking peoples. Fuller understanding and appreciation among the component parts must engender mutual confidence. This obvious truism is in danger of being overlooked, although the opportunity is here and now.

To all those who are now wrestling with the novel and intricate problems of demobilisation, the mere suggestion of extended visiting leave would naturally be anathema, and the Imperial authorities would equally denounce it; and yet we would meekly suggest to these harassed and worried organisers of demobilisation that if their machinery could be adjusted so as to give an opportunity of a few weeks' visiting leave to those Canadians who are genuinely eager to see more of the Old Country than has been hitherto possible, they would be assisting, perhaps more potently than they know, in Empire building of the best kind. Canada's chief need for years to come is new citizens for its vacant lands, and the best emigration agents that could be possibly conceived are the Canadians in khaki, who would be chatting with friendly kinsfolk during their tours, and telling the eager children who crowd around them stories of the great new land beyond the Atlantic—stories which, in a few years to come, will fill the steamers with eager emigrants.

This personal propaganda would be no loss to the Mother Country, for it will encourage that which it should have been the duty of its Government in the past to ensure—namely, that, as far as possible, those who emigrate should be encouraged to settle under their own flag. In the stress and hurry of demobilisation it is difficult to consider a suggestion such as this, but the opportunity is here, and it is unlikely ever to occur again.

GROUCHES AND GRIEVANCES.

NOW that the pressure of war conditions has been so largely removed, and soldiers have more time to think of themselves, they are discovering various grievances, a few assorted samples of which appear in our correspondence columns. The grievances that are filling our letter-box are of various kinds, a few are de facto, while many are based merely on comparison, while still others are based only on anticipation of inconsiderate or parsimonious treatment.

For instance, men enjoying acting rank hasten to excite our sympathy by the harrowing picture of their being discharged, on their arrival in Canada, as privates, and we are asked to realise the feelings of a smart soldier, the pride of his fellow townsmen, who has been ably "carrying on" as an acting R.S.M. returning to his native town as a mere private, with a private's discharge pay! No such phantasies need disturb our men's minds, for no such action has even been contemplated, much less taken place. Other ingenuous spirits, considering the end of the war has come unexpectedly, argue that Canada could well afford to carry on the war for another twelve months, and, therefore, the pay of all privates should be raised, from the time of their enlistment, to a round $5 a day. This is a pleasant, comfortable wage, and, while no one would deny that Canada's citizen soldiers have not earned far more than mere money can pay, this suggestion must be treated as another phantasy.

There are, of course, real grievances, several of which it has been the duty of Canada from time to time to ventilate, but, in justice to those who formulated the general lines of the Canadian military organisation at the outbreak of war, it must be acknowledged that the First Canadian Contingent could bear comparison with any unit fighting on either side in this great world war, both in regard to the pay, the equipment, and the comfort of its troops. That the war would extend into the fifth year was not foreseen, nor, consequent upon that, the abnormal rise in prices and the decreased purchasing power of the dollar.

It has been the business of Canada, during these years of war, to investigate various grievances and to seek explanation and enlightenment from the proper authorities, and we must bear testimony to the fact that never have we discerned any trace of want of sympathy with the rank and file, or any desire except for efficiency and the square deal. A newspaper office is naturally the recipient of all kinds of grievances and grumblings, many of them small and local in character, but we must frankly say that in every case where, after enquiry, we thought the matter was deserving of investigation, and took it to the proper authority, if the grievance was well founded it was remedied. It may have been the incompetence of a quartermaster-sergeant or the fault of a sergeant-cook, but the complaint always received redress. No military machine is perfect, and the Canadian has not been without its flaws, and politics have at times influenced promotions, but those who are best acquainted with its work and its methods, whether in France or in England, have been the first to give credit to those who have so wisely and successfully administered the various departments of the Canadian Army, for their broad and sympathetic policy, accompanied by keen efficiency and absence of red tape.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

The Queen's Message to Women. The women of Canada share with those of the rest of the Empire the message which the Queen sends in this hour of "thankfulness and hope." They have played their part in the work for which the war has given them opportunity. The record of the Canadian Nursing Service is one of which any country might well be proud, and in other departments of service at the Front and in England Canadian women have splendidly "done their bit." The noble work of the Red Cross Society will ever live in the memories of Canada's soldiers. In the Dominion itself, thirty thousand women have worked under the Imperial Munition Board, and helped to feed the guns. And behind all these has been that great army of mothers, and wives, and sisters who, watching and waiting and praying, have kept the home fires burning.

All these have, indeed, in the words of the Queen, "risen to the great opportunity, and proved their courage, steadfastness, and ability." Her Majesty's hope is that, though the thrill and glamour of war are over, "the spirit of self-sacrifice and helpfulness which it has kindled will not wane in the coming days." To-day, more than ever, as she says, the Empire needs her daughters: —

> As we have been united in all our work, whether of head or hands, in a real sisterhood of suffering and service during the war, let us go on working together with the same unity of purpose for the resettlement and reconstruction of our country.

Nowhere will her Majesty's words find a surer echo than in Canada.

The British Elections.

A comparison of the various platforms put forward by the different parties who are seeking the electors' votes shows a very general agreement in regard to those professions and aspirations best calculated to find popular acceptance and, of course, each party professes the keenest desire to do the utmost for the returned soldier. Looked at on the broad grounds of the general benefit to the Empire at large, the platform of the National Party has much to be said in its favour. Unfortunately its leaders do not comprise men of any proved qualities of statesmanship, and the number of candidates they have in the field is inconsiderable. If the National Party succeeds in attracting sincere and able men, it will form a useful leaven in the new House of Commons, which may have a marked influence on the future of the Mother Country and on the inter-relationship of our great Commonwealth of nations.

Among the ten points of the "Nationals'" programme is an Imperial policy which connotes a system of Imperial Preference, the fostering of inter-Imperial trade, stricter naturalisation laws, and the full publication of all party funds. It is probable that a number of Canadians who have now gained, by residence, a vote in this election, will find the programme of the National Party more to their liking than others which are more directly connected with the old political parties.

Currie on Politics.

A statement sent out from Corps Headquarter by Mr. J. F. B. Livesay gives an unequivocal denial to rumours which have arisen in Canada as to the political ambitions of the Commander of the Canadian Corps when he returns to civil life. This correspondent states that the General deprecates any suggestion that the soldiers on their return will form an independent political force antagonistic to existing parties.

We entirely share this view which is attributed to the Corps Commander, and have seen nothing to indicate any such revolutionary political change as this in the political life of the Dominion. At the same time, there will be a unanimity of thought and ideals among the majority of Canada's returned soldiers, which will play an important part in the public life of the Dominion, and which, we believe, will alter very largely for the better both the ethics of politics and the standard of citizenship. As Sir Robert Borden said at the Hall of the Saddlers' Company last week, one cannot doubt that men who have played their part so splendidly and wonderfully on the field of battle during the last four years will go back to their own countries with a wider outlook.

Land for Soldier Settlers.

Letters which we are receiving point to an increased interest in the soldier settlement scheme, now that demobilisation is within sight. These enquiries point to the desirability of giving further information to our troops regarding what is being done to attract them to the land. The arrangements have already been detailed in Canada, but we may briefly recapitulate them here.

The three requisite qualifications under the Act are British Empire citizenship, active service, and honourable discharge. A soldier may make entry for a homestead of 160 acres on reserved lands, providing he has not already exhausted his homestead rights, and in addition he can select an adjoining quarter-section as his military right. The Soldiers' Settlement Board makes loans up to $2,500 for the acquisition and improvement of land, the erection of farm buildings, and the purchase of stock, machinery, and farm equipment. This amount will be secured by first mortgage on the land, and repayment will be extended over twenty annual payments at 5 per cent. Those without farming experience may become qualified either by taking a course at a farm training station or by actual employment on a farm. Certain lands have already been acquired by the Board for soldier settlements, and steps are being taken for the acquisition of further suitable tracts. The scheme has not, however, yet taken its final form. When the whole subject was recently discussed at Ottawa with the Provincial Premiers, the Hon. Arthur Meighen stated that the Board was convinced that there were not sufficient areas of available Dominion lands left to enable an adequate scheme of soldier settlement to be carried out.

Ontario and Soldiers' Welfare.

The appointment of Brig.-General Sims as Agent-General for Ontario is in harmony with the policy which the Provincial Government of Sir William Hearst has consistently carried out during the war, of directing its principal attention to the welfare of those who left Ontario to undertake war service. By the establishment, equipment, and maintenance of the 2,000-bed Ontario Military Hospital at Orpington, and its generous support of the Maple Leaf Clubs, Ontario has nobly supplemented its contributions in men, food and war material. Moreover, the able organisation of its Agent-General's office in London has aimed at keeping in touch with all Ontario men in camps or hospitals, the Assistant Agent-General, Major J. M. Clark, having visited almost every hospital throughout the United Kingdom in which an Ontario man was cared for.

On another page will be found the report of an interview with the new Agent-General, who enters upon his duties most favourably equipped in knowledge and personal experience to carry on the work initiated by his predecessor, the late Lt.-Col. Richard Reid, and is at the same time fully qualified to advise those whose thoughts may be turning to the opportunities which the most populous Province of the Dominion offers to the prospective settler or investor.

The Tin Hat.

Although it has been officially announced that members of the O.M.F.C. who have been wounded can retain their steel helmets as a souvenir of the Great War, there is no reason to believe that this is the only part of their military equipment which will be retained by the soldier. No doubt the uniform and great coat, and we hope also the rifle, will be left with every man on his discharge, as a small tribute from a grateful country. These old uniforms will be cherished and worn on anniversaries, and will become highly prized and treasured heirlooms in Canada in years to come.

A Useful Invitation.

While politicians and others wrangle and dispute about tariffs and commercial policies of various complexion, it is left to business men to take practical steps towards the development of trade between the various portions of the Empire. Canada has always done its utmost wholeheartedly to promote trade between the Dominion and the Mother Country, and in this regard we desire to draw attention to the cordial invitation which a well-known firm of machinery manufacturers extend to Canadians to visit their works and inspect their specialities.

There must be very many among the Canadians who are now on this side of the Atlantic who are interested in the grain and agricultural seed trades, and who would find a few hours of one of their periods of leave well spent in examining the most up-to-date British machinery for separating, cleaning, and handling grain and grass seeds, and for butter making, etc. We trust that Messrs. Boby's example will be widely followed by other leading British firms. Even though such visits may be very brief, much first-hand information of great value and interest is mutually gained, and it is by such means that that personal knowledge and acquaintanceship is established which is such an important factor in the development of modern commerce.

Next week we shall publish an account of some of the many notable exploits of Canadian Airmen.

COMPLIMENTARY LUNCHEON TO THE PREMIER

General Turner on the Results of a Union Government.

Sir Robert Borden, the Prime Minister, has during the past few days been applying himself almost exclusively to the work of the coming Peace Conference. Twice a week the whole of the personnel of the Canadian Mission is in session at the conference chamber set apart for their use by the British Government.

The Prime Minister last week addressed about 100 Overseas soldiers—wounded or repatriated prisoners—who were the guests of the Saddlers' Company.

General Turner gave a luncheon at the Naval and Military Club to Sir Robert Borden and his Ministerial colleagues on Thursday, December 5.

Among the guests were the following:—Sir George Foster, Sir Edward Kemp, Sir George Perley, Hon. A. L. Sifton, Hon. C. J. Doherty, Brig.-Generals Jack Stewart (Railway Troops), Percival Thacker (A.G.), D. M. Hogarth (Q.M.G.), Hugh Dyer, Robt. Rennie, Hill, McLaren, Ross (P.M.G.), McDougall (Forestry), and H. F. McDonald (B.G.G.S.); Cols. (Rev.) J. M. Almond, C. Smart and O. M. Biggar; Majs. Gibson and Harrington, Capt. W. Nickle, A.D.C., and Mr. L. C. Christie.

Following luncheon, General Turner expressed, on behalf of the officers of the O.M.F.C., his debt of gratitude and appreciation to the Prime Minister and his Government for the loyal co-operation received at all times during the past four and a half years of war. General Turner also expressed the gratification he felt when the electorate returned a Union Government. At that time, he said, they were faced with the vital question of providing sufficient reinforcements to maintain the full fighting strength of the Canadian Corps, and the election of a Union Government enabled the demands of the Corps to be completely met.

Hon C. J. Doherty at Bramshott.

The units comprising the Bramshott Area Command (Brig.-Gen. Robt. Rennie, G.O.C.) were, on December 6, inspected by the Chief of the General Staff, O.M.F.C.

Following the march past, the Hon. Chas. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, spoke to the men from the Province of Quebec, and expressed the thanks of the people of that Province for the part its soldiers had played in the war. By the efforts of her soldiers, he said, Canada had ceased to rank merely as a Dominion, and now, by right of her sacrifices, proudly took her place among the nations of the world.

A LETTER FROM CANADA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MONTREAL, November 21.

With the end of the war it looks as though there is a strong desire in certain quarters on both sides for abandoning Coalition Government. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, on the eve of his 77th birthday, delivered at London, Ont., an impassioned address in which he did not hesitate to attack the existing Government and to appeal for support of the Liberal Party. On the other side, Col. Jack Currie has been telling Ottawa newspaper men that they do not wish the Conservative Party to lose its identity, as it was the real war party. The Hon. W. S. Fielding has also shown some signs of a desire for the revival of the Liberal cause, though whether his health will permit of his entering it again is doubtful. The two leading papers in Montreal advocate the continuation of the Coalition Government during the reconstruction period. It seems probable at this moment that Parliament will have to re-assemble early in January, as there are many problems which must be dealt with, and it is evident that there is now no longer a willingness to be governed by Orders-in-Council. If Sir Robert Borden must remain in England, it is recognised that Parliament must get on with home affairs under the guidance of Sir Thomas White.

The disposal of the Crown lands in the West promises to produce a deadlock between the Federal and Provincial Governments, judging by the discussion which is now in progress at the Conference of Provincial Premiers with the Federal Government at Ottawa. The Eastern Provinces take the position that if the West gets something at the hands of the Federal Government in the form of real estate, the East is entitled to a monetary equivalent to enable them to face the period of reconstruction.

Repatriation of Returned Soldiers

Speaking of the work of the new Repatriation Committee of the Cabinet, of which he is a member, Sir James Lougheed this week stated that there will be a survey of the returning men with a view to ascertaining their industrial or professional training and experience, together with their wishes as to the Province, and, where possible, the town or district, in which they prefer to settle. Similarly, the whole country will be surveyed with a view to discovering opportunities of employment for these men. Sir James Lougheed argued that if there were an influx of four or five thousand European immigrants in normal times, Canada would not be in any way dismayed, but pleased, so that the difficulty of handling thousands of young and able-bodied Canadians, much better equipped professionally and industrially, should not prove difficult.

The special committee of railway men charged with the arrangements for the transportation of returned soldiers, has now been constituted. It consists of Messrs. Walter Vaughan, passenger department, C.P.R., Montreal; P. M. Butler, district passenger agent, G.T.R., Ottawa; and James Morrison, passenger agent, C.N.R., Montreal.

Demobilisation in the Montreal Military District is to get under way at once. Major-General E. W. Wilson has 5,000 officers and men under his command, and he expects that the process will be completed in the middle of February. The units concerned are the 1st Depôt Battalion, 1,000 men; 2nd Depôt Battalion, 1,000 men; C Garrison Regiment, 1,300; Laval Tank Corps, 200; Canadian Engineers (at St. John's, Que.), 2,000.

Demobilisation of Overseas Troops.

From Ottawa it is stated that the scheme of demobilisation for the Overseas troops is all ready to be put into operation whenever peace is declared and the higher commands agree to the disbandment of armies. The question of the order of precedence has been carefully studied on both sides of the Atlantic by the military authorities, and one point that emerges is that the original idea of starting with the First Division cannot now be followed, for it is pointed out that there are new men in the "Old First" and men from the "Old First" who are now in other divisions. But from the domestic and economic point of view every effort will be made to give the married men the first chance, and, as regards the second, consideration will be given to trade and industrial needs of the country. An estimate of the number of men to be discharged, based on the numbers recruited by Provinces, shows, in round numbers—Ontario, 121,500; Quebec, 30,500; New Brunswick, 12,500; Nova Scotia and P.E.I., 15,500; Manitoba, 33,500; Saskatchewan, 18,500; Alberta, 21,500; B.C., 25,500.

For the purpose of demobilisation, Canada has been divided into 21 dispersal areas, and men are to be allowed to return to any area selected, regardless of the place of previous residence or of enlistment. The rate of return to each area will be in accordance with the proportion that the number desiring to return to such area bears to the entire force. The men will be returned in standardised drafts of 500, all ranks. It is the intention of the Militia Department to discharge men immediately on reaching their dispersal area, so that they may quickly return to civil life.

CANADA'S AFTER-WAR TRADE: INTERVIEW WITH SIR G. E. FOSTER.

Reversion from War to Peace Conditions—Canada to Refill "the Empty Shelves of Europe."

CERTAIN phases of the part played by Canada in her own and in Europe's reconstructive policy have been outlined to a representative of Canada by Sir George Foster, Dominion Minister of Trade and Commerce. Sir George dealt with those problems which more particularly affect his Department, namely, the reversion from war to peace conditions of trade, and the important rôle which the Dominion hopes to play in reconstruction.

Concerning after-war trade, Sir George said the question resolved itself into two branches: "During war-time the interchange of commercial commodities between Canada and the United Kingdom and the Allied nations in Europe was rendered almost impossible owing to the requisition of shipping and priority of transport necessary for conveying troops, munitions of war and provisions needed for the Armies and people. Little space was left for strictly commercial purposes. Since the signing of the Armistice our efforts have been directed first towards the release of requisitioned ships by the Shipping Ministry in order to bring back to normal our transport facilities. Satisfactory arrangements are being made in this respect, although, of course, the change has to be gradual. Ships have been released for the Pacific, West Indian, South African and the Australian services from both East and West Coast ports of Canada, and the prospects are that we shall soon get back our pre-war tonnage facilities.

Canadian War Records Photograph.

Control of Imports and Exports.

"Another branch of the subject is concerned," continued the Minister, "with the control of imports and exports. Very considerable lines of commodities from the United Kingdom much needed in Canada were prohibited from export during the four years of war. And similarly Canadian products of various kinds were debarred entrance to the British markets. These restrictions are being gradually removed, and we hope soon to be rid of them entirely. This opens up an opportunity for exports from Canada for large lines of natural and industrial products, and for export to Canada of raw materials and wholly or partly manufactured articles. The condition of exchange and the possibilities of increased food requirements in Europe have something to do with delaying entire freedom in respect of both these considerations.

"A third and very important matter is the resumption of former trade connections which have been interrupted by the war and the extension of our sales both along these and other new lines which may be opened up. Particularly are we anxious to do our part in providing needed material and commodities for reconstruction and for refilling the empty shelves of Europe.

Canada's Trade Commission.

"In addition to the normal and necessary machinery of personal representation, and the helpful work of our Trade Commissioners, a special Canadian Trade Commission has been established with headquarters in London. This Commission is to represent Canadian business interests in general, and will work entirely with that object in view, and, closely in touch as it is with organised trade and business interests in Canada, will seek to bring buyers and sellers in constant and quick connection with each other. Mr. Lloyd Harris, who headed the Canadian War Mission in Washington, is chairman of the Trade Commission here. Whilst London is the headquarters, the Mission will extend its activities to Belgium, France and Italy. All these countries need immense supplies for the reparation of damage done, and reconstruction for future work, and it is believed that Canada can contribute very largely along these lines.

"It will be the business of the Trade Mission to get in close touch with Governmental agencies and co-operative organisations chiefly directing or interested in the above work, and place before them at first hand the Canadian capabilities for supplies. Canada also needs much that is obtainable in the United Kingdom and Allied European countries, and it will be the business of the Trade Mission to investigate all possible sources of supply and negotiate therewith in reference to Canada's requirements."

Reversion of Trade to a Peace-Time Basis.

Questioned as to Canada's ability to continue her export trade on a basis commensurate with the results recently reported—when, mainly as the result of war output, the country's exports were valued at $637,000,000, as against the pre-war figure of $57,000,000—Sir George said the problem was a big one. The period of adjustment—the change-over from the manufacture of war material to that of peace requirements—would involve not only the reorganisation of the machinery and methods, but of labour as well. Time, he declared, was as necessary there as here to make such a reversion. Canada's war material exports would cease, but the exports of natural products and manufactured goods would continue and increase. During the reversionary period the output would at first be smaller than before the war, but it was hoped that in a short time the production for peace requirements would first attain and then speedily exceed its former proportions.

Business Opportunities at the Lyons Fair.

The importance of the extensive trade and commercial opportunities opened up by the Lyons Fair in France has been fully realised by the Canadian Government, and steps have already been taken to reap the resultant advantages of such an international trade opportunity. The Department of Trade and Commerce has completed arrangements to be fully represented at the forthcoming Lyons Exposition. Thirty booths will bear the emblem of Canada, and these will be occupied by Canadian manufacturers with samples and catalogues. Only those producers who are in a position to supply commodities which it is thought will be required in France will have direct representation at the Lyons Fair. In this connection the possibilities of increased trade developments between Canada and France will be considerably enhanced through the opening up in Paris of a branch of the Bank of Montreal.

The Dominion Government is making four tabloid exhibits at Lyons of agriculture, forestry, fisheries and minerals, with the view of demonstrating Canada's products and capabilities. The Government also proposes to secure space for the exhibition of sets of motion picture films showing Canada's natural resources and industrial processes, and, with the co-operation of the inland and Atlantic transport services, the range and routes of Canadian traffic. The Lyons Fair opens on March 1, and will continue for two weeks.

Economic Mission in Siberia.

A Canadian Economic Commission has been appointed to visit Siberia, and will work in harmony with the British Commission there for the purpose of assisting the Siberian people with expert advice and urgently needed supplies. The work of the Commission will be directed towards effecting a stabilisation of economic and financial conditions, stimulating the reconstruction and development of Siberian natural industries as a basis for future trade. It is also the purpose of this Commission to provide from Canada such necessary supplies of tools and working materials as will facilitate reconstruction and reproduction in Siberia, a country which in many respects bears striking resemblance to Canada.

One of the objects to be attained is to so control and regulate the cost of commodities to be supplied in the present dislocated conditions that the profiteer and exploiter will be eliminated, and that both supply and distribution will be directed to the best possible result. The personnel of the Commission will include experts in agriculture, mining, fisheries and finance. Col. J. S. Dennis and Mr. Ross Owen (transportation), and Messrs. Just and Wilgress (Trade and Commerce representatives) are now in Siberia, and the other members of the Commission will follow in due course.

An order valued at $10,000,000 has been placed through the Canadian War Trade Board for 200,000 tons of steel rails to meet the demands of the Canadian Pacific, Grand Trunk, and Government Railways.

Sir Thomas White announces that credits have been arranged with the British Government, aggregating about $200,000,000, for the coming year, to complete the programme of the Imperial Munitions Board and to purchase grain and other food-stuffs.

BACK FROM RUHLEBEN CAMP.

Canadian Civilians' Four Years in Germany.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A number of Canadians who were at the notorious Ruhleben Camp for civilian prisoners, near Berlin, have reached England. The majority of them are already on the Atlantic en route for home, and will have the keen satisfaction of spending Christmas with their families and their friends.

Among these ex-prisoners are the following:—

William George Flint, B.Sc. (38), a mining engineer, of Canmore, Alta. His wife is at present living at Selkirk, Man.

Michael Lucas Podrinay (39), ship's steward, son of Mrs. Podrinay, 74a, Wellington Street, Montreal. Was in port at Hamburg and was arrested immediately on the declaration of war.

Joseph Turcotte (57), commercial traveller, the son of Mrs. Turcotte, 43, Côte d'Abraham, Quebec. Was captured on December 6, 1916, when travelling on the s.s. Mount Temple, sunk by the German raider Moewe. Interned at Branseuburg.

Charles Kinney (30), seaman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kinney, St. John, N.B. Taken prisoner when the s.s. Rossall was captured on August 3, 1914.

Charles Boisvert (52), cattleman, of 50, Ruelle Pichette, Montreal. Was on the s.s. Mount Temple.

Allan Grant Lochhead (28), the son of Professor W. Lochhead, of Macdonald College, Montreal. Was a student at Leipzig University when war broke out.

Isaac Warkentin (33), teacher at the Public School, Winkler, Man. Son of the Rev. John Warkentin, Mennonite Church, Winkler. Was a student in Germany when war was declared.

Hugh Ford Young (29), buyer for the Copp Clark Company, Toronto. Son of Mr. J. M. Young, 73, Sorauren Avenue, Toronto. Was in Germany on business in August, 1914, and was at first interned in Nuremburg.

Bruce Eldon Cameron (30), son of Mrs. A. M. Jordan, 2, East Ninth Street, New York. Was studying music in Dresden.

Frederick Schweitzer (24), son of Mr. M. Schweitzer, 629, Homer Street, Vancouver. Was a student in Germany.

John Davidson Ketchum (25), of Cobourg, Ont. Was studying music in Berlin. Has four brothers serving in the O.M.F.C.

Peter Stranovitch (24), coal miner, of Merritt, B.C. Was arrested at Hamburg, on the eve of departure for Canada, after visiting his father in Russia.

Winthrop Bell, of Halifax, a student in Germany for four years before the war.

E. C. MacMillan, a young Torontonian, who has made his home in Edinburgh. Was studying music in Paris and was spending a week's holiday in Germany when war broke out. While at Ruhleben he composed a musical piece, which secured for him the Oxford degree of Doctor of Music.

Messrs. J. Mayby, B. B. Kennedy and B. Sweeney have also been released. They were members of the crew of the s.s. Mount Temple, sunk by the German raider Moewe on December 6, 1916. The ship had a cargo of horses consigned to the Imperial Government.

Alberta Engineer's Experience.

A Canada representative had a talk with Mr. W. G. Flint, one of the released men. Mr. Flint was in Germany at the outbreak of war, being then on a visit to some of his friends studying music at Leipzig. About four days before Britain entered the war he had made preparations for his return, but found this impossible. The excuse given was that the train service was held up for military purposes. Most of the British civilians were arrested in September, but he himself was not arrested until November, though he was meanwhile kept under surveillance, and had to report to the police twice a day. Towards the end of December an edict was published ordering all foreigners in Leipzig to leave the city, but remain in the same military district.

Mr. Flint chose Chemnitz, a little manufacturing town, and lived there under police supervision until the first week of February, when, without a moment's notice, he was arrested in the early hours of the morning. At the police station he was confined in a cell five feet by ten feet, but was transferred later to a larger one, where he had a South African as companion. He was kept there for about ten days, being allowed 40 minutes' recreation daily in a 20 by 20 courtyard. His meals were allowed to be sent in from a café. Subsequently a number of civil prisoners were sent to Ruhleben under a civilian guard, who made no secret of the fact that they were fully armed. There was no room at Ruhleben, so they were kept in the city prison at Berlin for a month. The civil prisoners there numbered over 100, and, though they could not leave the prison, were allowed a fair amount of freedom.

Transferred to Ruhleben.

On March 13, 1915, these men were transferred to Ruhleben, but fortunately, owing to their detention in Berlin and other places, they had escaped the worst period of the Ruhleben prison camp régime—the winter of 1914-15, when large numbers of the civil prisoners succumbed to their privations.

Mr. Flint declared that from the day of his arrival at Ruhleben until his release the food allowed them was both bad and insufficient. For the most part their food consisted of diseased potatoes boiled in their skins and thin cabbage soup. The prisoners were not actually treated with brutality, and young men, provided they were of robust health, were able to exist. To older people, however, the confinement and poor and insufficient food were a severe strain, and among those who succumbed was Capt. Cordnor, a sea captain from the Maritime Provinces, who was over 60 years of age.

Every six of the prisoners were confined in a horsebox 10 feet by 10, with no light and practically no heating. The sanitary conditions were vile most of the time, and the men had to eat and sleep in their narrow quarters.

OFFICERS KILLED AND DIED.

Overseas Military Forces of Canada.

Capt. George Gilbert Bricker, C.F.C. (died of influenza at No. 6 American Base Hospital, Bordeaux, on October 27), was the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Bricker, of Waterloo, Ont. A student of Toronto University, deceased enlisted as a private in the C.A.S.C., afterwards joining the 224th Bn.

Lt. C. F. Buchanan, 7th (B.C.) Bn. (killed on October 11), belonged to Vancouver, and came overseas as a company sergeant-major with the 158th Bn. He reverted to private to go to France and later received his commission.

Lt. K. P. Campbell, Sask. and R.A.F. (died of pneumonia on November 28 at the Aero Hospital, Northolt, Ruislip), was the son of Mr. Kenneth Campbell, grain merchant (formerly postmaster), and Mrs. Campbell, of 709, Lorne Avenue, Brandon. Deceased came overseas two years ago with the 196th (Western Universities) Bn. Receiving his commission, he was gazetted a flying officer last January, and served on the Western Front for five and a half months, flying a scout machine. He was injured on June 27, but had made a good recovery.

LT C. H TROTTER, R.A.F
(Killed).

LT. K. P. CAMPBELL, R.A.F.
(Died).

Lt. W. J. Colquhoun, 15th (C. Ont.) Bn. (died at the Canadian Officers' Hospital, Matlock Bath, on November 8, of bronchopneumonia), was the younger son of Lt.-Col. M. A. Colquhoun, C.M.G., D.S.O., commanding the segregation camp at Kinmel Park, Rhyl, and Mrs. Colquhoun, of Brantford. Deceased was wounded in the recent fighting, and his illness followed upon his wounds.

Lt. John A. D. Elder, 38th (E. Ont.) Bn. (died of wounds in France on October 30), was the son of the Rev. John Elder, of the Chelsea Green Presbyterian Church, London, Ont. A student at McMaster University, he came overseas in 1916 with the 147th Bn., transferring in France to the 38th. A younger brother is in England recovering from illness contracted in France.

Lt. E. Brian Henderson, C. Ont. and R A.F. (died in London of influenza and pneumonia on November 3), was the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Henderson, of Windsor, Ont. Coming overseas with the First Contingent, he was wounded, and returned to England, being employed on staff work until a few months ago, when he joined the flying arm. His younger brother, Lt. Maurice Henderson, was killed in action in 1916.

Lt. D. P. Hepburn, W. Ont. (died of wounds on November 3), left New Westminster, B.C., as a private in the 131st Bn., from which he was transferred to the 47th. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hepburn, of Sardis. Two of this brothers, both N.C.O.s, have been discharged through wounds.

Lt. Clarence V. Lawrence, C.A.S.C. (died in England of influenza on November 1 after a brief illness), was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Lawrence, of Elgin Street, Ottawa, formerly of St. Thomas, Ont. When war broke out he was an engineering student at Queen's University, came overseas in 1916, and went to France the following year. Deceased was married last October to Miss Ruby Pinfold, of St. Thomas, who had been doing V.A.D. work in this country.

Lt. Ian R. McKenzie, E. Ont. (killed on October 12), was a well-known member of the Winnipeg Gaelic Society. For three years he saw heavy fighting, and last spring was given his commission. Deceased was for several years an accountant with the Hudson's Bay Company. His parents live in Auchternead, Ross-shire, Scotland.

Lt. Charles Lorne W. Nicholson, C. Ont. (killed on November 4), was the only son of Mr. George B. Nicholson, M.P. for East Algoma, and Mrs. Nicholson of Chapleau, P.Q. Deceased was killed at the taking of Valenciennes. He came overseas with the 227th Bn., was transferred to the 4th C.M.R., going to France in 1917. He was slightly wounded last January, but remained at duty, and was again wounded by a bomb three months later, being at that time in a Canadian hospital

Lt. John R. Orr, C. Ont. and R.A.F. (killed), was the son of Mr. Samuel Orr, J.P., Downpatrick, Ireland, and at the outbreak of war was on the staff of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Collingwood. He came overseas with the 177th Bn., and was reported missing in August

Lt. Arthur Barlow Rowe, 27th (Man.) Bn., killed near Cambrai on October 8, was on the staff of Molsons Bank, Winnipeg, when he enlisted in 1914 as a private. He went to France with the Second Division, receiving his commission in 1916. He was wounded at Vimy Ridge. Deceased leaves two brothers—Major Hugh Rowe, now in France, and a younger brother in hospital in England.

Lt. John Wilson Sharples, 12th Siege Battery (C.G.A.), killed on October 30, was the eldest son of Mrs. M. A. Sharples, of 1732, Alberni Street, Vancouver. Deceased was on the staff of the Royal Bank of Canada for eleven years, and when he entered business for himself he was manager of the Robson Street branch of the bank at Vancouver.

Lt. Thomas Arthur Smith, C.M.G.C. (killed on October 22), enlisted at Port Coquitlam as a private in the 29th Bn. exactly four years prior to his death. He came overseas as a sergeant, and received his commission in November, 1916. He was the son of Mr. Henry Smith, of Eastbourne, a Crimean veteran, and four of his brothers have seen service in this or previous wars. He leaves a widow and two children.

Lt. Claud Handley Trotter, 10th Bn. and R.A.F. (accidentally killed whilst night-flying in Essex), was the youngest son of the Rev. J. Crawford Trotter and Mrs. Trotter, of Ardrahan Rectory, Co. Galway. Deceased enlisted in the Alberta Dragoons at the outbreak of war, and very soon won his commission. He was twice wounded, once with the Canadian Force while rallying his men in a bombing raid on the German trenches, and again as an observer in the R.F.C., when his machine crashed and his pilot was killed. On this occasion he was recommended for the Albert Medal for endeavouring to save his pilot's life, but just missed the award on technical grounds.

Lt. Tom West, 42nd (Que.) Bn., killed, was formerly chemist and metallurgist with the Dominion Bridge Company, Montreal, and was also on the staff of the McGill University. He was educated at Manchester University, and came overseas in the spring of 1917.

Imperial Forces.

Lt. W. F. Annis, R.A.F. (killed), came from Toronto and was a lieutenant in the Canadian Infantry prior to being seconded to the flying arm as a flying officer in August, 1917.

Lt. A. E. Bourns, R.A.F. (killed), came from Petitcodiac, N.B., and was listed among the wounded last month.

Sec. Lt. D. Philip Brennan, R.A.F. (died on November 12), was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Brennan, of Cote St. Antoine Road, Westmount, Montreal, and before enlisting was a ledger-keeper at the Ste. Hyacinthe branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. He joined the Air Force last January, and was 21.

Lt. Leonard Norman Caple, R.A.F. (killed), was gazetted to the flying arm a year ago from a private in the O.M.F.C.

Capt. Frank C. Crummey, R.A.F. (died), enlisted in the Air Force in June, 1917, being then barely 18, and came to England the following September. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Crummey, live in Homewood Avenue, Toronto.

Lt. C. W. Davison, R.A.F. (killed), was previously reported missing as from October 4. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Davison, of Roxborough Street East, Toronto, was educated at Upper Canada College, and joined the Air Force in April, 1917, at the age of 18, coming to England in the autumn of the same year. J. Vance Davison, his brother, is a gunner with the 25th Battery.

Sec Lt. E. P. Dorrell, Queen's, R. W. Surr. R. (died of wounds on October 14), was the younger son of Lt.-Col. and Mrs. G. H. Dorrell, of North Vancouver, and was 22. He was a student at Toronto University for a year, and enlisted in the Western Universities Bn. in 1916, later receiving a commission in the Imperials. His elder brother, Lt. H. G. H. Dorrell, of the Durham Light Infantry, was killed in 1915.

Sec. Lt. George William Graham, R.A.F. (killed), was formerly a corporal in the O.M.F.C., and was reported missing last August.

Lt. Francis John Kean, B.Sc. (Lond.), A.S.C. (M.T.), died of pneumonia in London on November 25, was formerly a student at McGill University, and prior to joining the Forces was on the staff of the Polytechnic School of Engineering, Regent Street, London. He was 36.

Flight Sub. Lt. William A. Moyle, R.N., who was reported missing last March, is now officially presumed killed. He belonged to Brantford, Ont.

Lt. Edward R. Munday, R.A.F., who was reported missing on August 5, is now known to have been killed on that date. A short notice of the deceased officer appeared in our issue of October 12.

Capt. F. Balfour Sedgwick, R.A.F. (killed in a flying accident near London on October 18), was a son of the late Professor Adam Sedgwick, of Cambridge University, and was for some years in the service of the Bank of Montreal in Ottawa and in Montreal.

Cadet Charles S. Theobald, R.A.F. (killed in an aeroplane accident in England), enlisted in the 123rd Bn., and, after being shell shocked, transferred to the Air Force. His home was in College Street, Toronto, though he was a native of Saskatchewan. One brother has been killed in action, and another is still on active service.

Lt. Ernest J. Williams, R. Irish Rifles (killed on October 15), was a son of Mr. J. A. Williams, of Londonderry, and went to Canada in 1912 to join the staff of the Bank of Montreal, Toronto. He enlisted in the 10th Bn. in 1914, transferred to the Royal Irish Rifles in 1916, and was wounded at Messines.

WOUNDED, MISSING, AND PRISONERS.

Imperial Forces.

Lt. R. C. Bennett, D.F.C., R.A.F. (prisoner), has been missing since September 27. He is the nephew of Mr. W. J. Bennett, of Howland Avenue, Toronto, with whom he lived prior to enlistment, and was wounded at Courcelette whilst serving with the 19th Bn.

Sec. Lt. F. Roy Brown, R.A.F. (wounded on September 28), is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Brown, of Rosedale Avenue, Winnipeg, and at the time of enlisting was champion cyclist of Manitoba. He came overseas with the Cyclists, later transferring to the flying arm, and had previously been wounded.

Lt. Harold Victor Fellowes, R.A.F. (prisoner), comes from Quebec, and was reported missing in October. He obtained his commission in the Flying Corps six months ago.

Capt. James Henry Forman, D.F.C., R.A.F. (prisoner), comes from Kirkfield, Ont., and was reported missing last September. He was originally in the R.N.A.S., and was awarded the D.F.C. last July.

Lt. Frank Frederickson, R.A.F. (wounded), obtained his commission in the Air Force last April, prior to which he was a private in the Canadian Infantry.

Sec. Lt. B. McMurtry, R.A.F. (missing), joined the Divisional Cyclists in August, 1915, at the age of 17, and went to France the following January, later transferring to the R.A.F. He is the only son of the late F. A. McMurtry and Mrs. McMurtry, of Gerrard Street East, Toronto.

Lt. Roland McPhee, R.A.F., a Canadian who was reported missing two months ago, is now reported a prisoner. He was attached to the 34th Squadron.

Sec. Lt. John Clarke Malcolmson, R.A.F. (prisoner at Karlsruhe), was previously reported missing as from September 28. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Malcolmson, of Rusholme Road, Toronto, and was attending Oakwood Collegiate Institute when he enlisted.

Sec. Lt. Wilfred Rush Thornton, R.A.F. (prisoner), was recently reported missing. He was a sergeant in the O.M.F.C. before joining the Air Service.

Rev. Stanley G. Wade, Army Chap. Dept. (wounded on October 21), is the only son of the late Canon Wade, of Hamilton, Ont.

On Wednesday of last week a memorial service for the late Captain Prince Antoine of Orleans and Braganza, M.C., Royal Canadian Dragoons, was held at St. Edmund's Church, Lower Edmonton. The remains were taken to the church on a gun-carriage by a party of the Canadian Cavalry, the following regiments being represented: The Royal Canadian Dragoons, Fort Garry Horse, Lord Strathcona's Horse, the Canadian Light Horse and Royal North-West Mounted Police. The procession was headed by a large firing party and the Canadian Cavalry band. The Canadian officers present included Col. C. M. Nelles and Lt.-Col. O. F. Brothers.

CANADA'S BILL TO GERMANY.

Sir Thomas White has forwarded to Sir Robert Borden full particulars of the war expenditure of Canada and the annual pension burden resulting from the war in order that they may be included in the Empire's bill to Germany to be presented to the Peace Conference (says the Ottawa correspondent of the Times). The total war expenditure to November 30 is estimated at $1,068,000,000. The war outlay from that date until the Army is demobilised will probably total $500,000,000 more.

In addition, Canada will have large claims for indirect damage, as well as those arising out of raids of German submarines upon Canadian fishing vessels.

The Morning Post also mentions that claims are made for the destruction of securities in Bolshevist Russia.

Sir George Foster represents Canada on the committee appointed by Mr. Lloyd George to consider Germany's ability to pay.

SIR ARTHUR CURRIE AND POLITICS.

Some Canadian newspapers to hand (telegraphs Mr. J. F. B. Livesay, Press Correspondent with the Canadian Forces) speculate as to the part Sir Arthur Currie may play in the future political life of Canada. It may be stated with authority that nothing is further from the mind of the Canadian Corps Commander than entering into politics after the war, nor is he bound by political affiliations to any particular party. As a private citizen he will cast his vote with consideration only for the men and measures before the electorate.

General Currie deprecates suggestions that returning soldiers will be exploited as an independent political force with which the old parties will have to reckon, and believes that they will return to their citizenship and take up again their political duties in the same spirit of devotion to the best interests of Canada as has characterised their work in the field. Whether the individual soldier prefers to do this through one or another political party is for himself to decide. The men will return with characters strengthened and ideals elevated by the ordeal of the past four years, and these qualities should prove of stimulating value to the general body of citizenship.

CANADIAN COLOURS FOR GERMANY.

Before proceeding to France, the 21st Canadian Infantry Battalion deposited their Colours for safe keeping with Sir George Perley, the High Commissioner for Canada. Now that they are proceeding to Germany they wish to have their Colours with them. A special Colour party arrived from France on Wednesday, and at 3.30 Sir George Perley handed the Colours back to the party at the High Commissioner's Office.

THE MAPLE LEAF CLUBS.

Arrangements are being made for the provision of between 500 and 1,000 additional beds. We understand that the committee in charge of the recent successful campaign in the Province of Quebec for the Red Cross and other patriotic organisations had already in mind the needs and claims of the Maple Leaf Clubs, but that the $50,000 contribution mentioned last week was specially suggested in a cable from Sir George and Lady Perley and Mr. J. G. Colmer, who have taken a warm and practical interest in these clubs.

A feature of the window display of war mementoes at the Canadian Government Emigration Offices, Charing Cross, is a mammoth shell from a coast defence battery of the Germans on the Belgian coast.

The accommodation at 21, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W., hitherto occupied by the Prisoners of War Department of the Canadian Red Cross Society for the packing of the parcels sent to prisoners, is now converted into dormitories for the use of returned prisoners passing through London.

Commencing to-day and to-morrow, the reading and writing rooms at the Offices of the Agent-General for British Columbia, Regent House, 1, Regent Street, W., will be available for the use of soldiers all day on Saturdays and Sundays. The Agent-General is completing arrangements to establish a dormitory in the basement of the building for the use of British Columbia soldiers passing through London. The Canadian Red Cross Society is furnishing the beds and equipment, and Capt. H. D. Twigg (B.C. Regt.) will be in charge of the arrangements.

"CANADA" has secured the serial rights of a most interesting and thrilling war story, dealing with the life of two soldiers in the Canadian Corps.

WRITTEN by a soldier for soldiers, the author describes life in camp in England, at the Front, and as a prisoner of war in Germany, with accuracy and humour.

THE first instalment should have appeared this week, but is unavoidably held over owing to the long Honours lists. It will appear in our next issue, therefore orders for copies should be placed at once with your newsagent or the publisher of Canada.

STORIES OF THE WAR.

Many Canadians serving with Imperial units on sea, on land and in the air, as well as in the O.M.F.C., have good stories to tell. The Editor will be glad to consider and pay for such articles as are suitable. In view of early relaxation of censorship restrictions articles should be sent in without delay.

GALLANTRY IN THE "PEACE" DRIVE.

Award of Military Cross to 175 Canadian Officers.

("London Gazette" Supplement, December 2.)

Lt. (Temp. Capt.) Frederick Alport, Headqrs., 4th Bde., Engineers.

For two days and nights, when the division was consolidating, this officer, in charge of transport and stores, worked untiringly in establishing engineer dumps near the most advanced line under continuous shell and machine-gun fire.

Lt. Dean Milman Andrews, 4th Bn., 1st Cent. Ont. (Brantford).

He led his men through the barrage without a casualty, and when crossing an open space swept by machine-gun fire he was knocked over, but continued to advance. The next day, all the officers having become casualties, he manœuvred the company to its final objective. Although wounded himself, and his men very tired, he superintended the consolidation, encouraging them by his splendid example.

Lt. William Arthur Ives Anglin, 10th Siege Battery, 3rd Bde., C.G.A. (Carleton, N.B.)

During the advance this officer constantly submitted information secured under the most trying circumstances. He made a personal reconnaissance over the whole divisional front, sending in the first accurate information of the location of the front line. This reconnaissance was made under heavy shell and machine-gun fire.

Capt. Charles Francis Atkinson, C.A.M.C., attd. 44th Bn., Man. (Calgary)

Finding that heavy enemy machine-gun fire prevented any carrying back of casualties, he went forward and personally dressed a large number of casualties. Later, under heavy fire, he organised special parties and cleared all wounded effectually. He saved a number of lives.

LT. O. L. ERICKSON, 78TH BN. (WINNIPEG).
After being decorated with the M.C. at Buckingham Palace. He was severely wounded, resulting in the loss of both legs (see page 368)

Canadian War Records Photograph.

Lt. Ormonde St. Patrick Aitkens, 47th Bn., W. Ont. (Shawinigan Lake, B.C.)

He, single-handed, rushed an enemy machine gun, killing the crew. His excellent example, great courage and coolness were the means of making the attack a success.

Capt. George Raymond Baby, No. 4 Field Amb., C.A.M.C. (Kingston).

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in charge of a stretcher-bearer section, which he brought up immediately behind the infantry advance and collected the wounded. He was continuously exposed to every kind of hostile fire. His energy in searching for the wounded resulted in his area of the battlefield being thoroughly and quickly cleared.

Lt. Archibald Cockburn Bain, 75th Bn., 1st Cent. Ont.

During a night attack on a village this officer led his platoon straight through the main street with the greatest dash, reaching a line of trenches 250 yards beyond, from which he at once engaged enemy machine-gun parties on both flanks The speed with which he reached the final objective facilitated the occupation of the village and the capture of the trenches beyond.

Capt. Dougal Stuart Bankier, 1st Bn., C.M.G.C. (Hamilton).

When the advance was held up by heavy machine-gun fire he immediately assembled and led forward his battery to a position in the open, and under heavy fire personally directed the fire of his guns. He set a fine example of cool courage to all, and his prompt action enabled the advance to continue.

Capt. James Everett Barry, C.A.M.C., attd. 2nd Bn., E. Ont. (Toronto).

This officer tended the wounded among the attacking companies under intense fire, dressing their wounds and directing them to the aid post. He searched the field for wounded under full observation, and frequently under heavy fire of the enemy He must have saved the lives of many men who were lying in exposed positions.

Lt. (Actg. Capt.) James Baxter, 47th Bn., W. Ont.

He led his company under extremely heavy fire in an attack across open country. His skill in handling and disposing of his company and his personal leadership on several patrols and in gaining touch with the unit on his left resulted in success being attained in all cases. He set a very fine example to his men.

Lt. Russell Hilton Beattie, 20th Bn., 1st C. Ont. (London, Ont.)

Whilst leading his company he was held up by an enemy machine-gun post. He, with a section, outflanked the post, and then personally with great courage rushed it, shooting one of the enemy, taking prisoner another and capturing the gun.

Lt. William Wentworth Beveridge, 87th Bn., Que. (Vancouver).

During an attack, acting as battalion intelligence officer, he advanced with the forward companies and established an observation post, keeping up communication with battalion headquarters. He displayed initiative in placing snipers in positions from which heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy. His coolness and information were of great value to his commanding officer.

Lt. Colin Blair, 2nd Bn., C.M.G.C.

This officer went forward in command of a section of machine guns with the attacking troops. He pushed his guns to a commanding position on the flank and brought intense fire to bear upon large masses of the enemy who were concentrating for a counter-attack. Later, in face of heavy fire, he supported the infantry attack which resulted in the capture of a strong post. He displayed coolness and determination throughout.

Lt. William Henry Blake, 2nd Divl. Pont., Bridging and Trans. Unit, Eng.

He delivered material for the consolidation of the third objective, placing it in a position which was then in front of the attacking infantry in the face of heavy shelling and machine-gun fire. It was only by his fine example that his convoy was kept together.

Lt. John Blake Bridge, 28th Bn., Sask.

His company commander having been killed, he assumed command, and realising that the attack would be held up unless the right flank was made good, he led a platoon forward from his support company and successfully cleared up the situation. He did fine work.

Lt. (Actg. Capt.) Vyvyan Chard Brimacombe, 102nd Bn., 2nd C. Ont. (Port Haney, B.C.)

After reaching the first objective, this officer followed in support of companies which had passed through him until a strongly defended wood was reached. Here a gap was forced by the defence between the leading companies. This he promptly closed with his platoons, and, outflanking a machine-gun nest, enabled the right company to rush the wood. He showed initiative and total disregard of danger.

Capt. Stanley Howson Brocklebank, 46th Bn., Sask. (Arthur, Ont.)

He directed the formation of one of the assaulting companies, and after personally mopping up some enemy gun emplacements with his company headquarters, he led the assaulting platoons to their objectives until he was severely wounded. He displayed courage and leadership of a high order.

Lt. Daniel Alexander Cameron, 2nd Bn., E. Ont.

When he observed that a party was being held up, he led his platoon round the enemy's flank, attacking them from the rear, and capturing fifty prisoners. In the whole of the operations he led his platoon with determination and resource.

Capt. Alexander Rae Campbell, C.A.M.C., attd. 5th Bde., C.F.A (Halifax).

When the battery came into action under heavy machine-gun fire a number of men were wounded. This officer collected and carried them to trenches, where he dressed their wounds, constantly under heavy fire. He set a fine example to the men round him at the time.

Lt. Donald McLean Campbell, 1st Bn., C.M.G.C. (Strathroy, Ont.)

He brought his section into action three times under heavy fire, and with his guns inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy, and annihilated two machine-gun crews. He worked unceasingly for 36 hours.

Capt. Albert Lee Cavanagh, 3rd Bn., Eng. (Winnipeg).

He showed great energy and devotion to duty in building a track across "No Man's Land" into the enemy's territory, and, although wounded soon after the work had been started, he refused to be carried out until he was convinced that it was going well.

Lt. Elmer Stanley Chagnon, 102nd Bn., 2nd C. Ont. (Hamilton).

This officer led his men forward to the attack under heavy machine-gun fire with the greatest determination. When badly wounded he refused to leave the field until the objective had been reached, or to have his wounds dressed until all the wounded near had received attention.

Lt. Murray Reginald Chipman, 85th Bn., N.S.

He led his platoon forward through heavy machine-gun fire, and although wounded carried on, cheering and directing his men in full view of the enemy. He remained on duty until consolidation was complete, and he was ordered back. His coolness and conduct were of great assistance to his company commander, who was also wounded.

Lt. George Herbert Clark, 72nd Bn., B.C. (Vancouver).

When the centre of the line was held up by intense machine-gun fire this officer led his platoon round the left flank, causing the enemy to retire hastily. On the second day of the attack he led his men with great dash in the face of a field gun which was firing over open sights, and was one of the first to reach the final objective. He was of great assistance to his C.O. during the reorganisation, and set an excellent example to all.

Capt. (Actg. Maj.) Frederick Clarence Clarke, 12th Fd. Amb., C.A.M.C.

Under heavy shelling he collected four severely wounded men, dressed them, placed them under cover, and remained with them until help arrived when he got all four away safely. For three days of heavy fighting his cheerfulness and devotion to duty inspired all under him.

Capt. Robert N. Clements, 25th Bn., N.S. (Milton, Ont.)

He led his men, under heavy machine-gun fire and sniping, through a thick fog, only deploying at the last moment. He successfully gained his objective, when he was wounded.

Lt. Alan Collie, 44th Bn., Man.

After his company commander had been wounded he assumed command and reorganised the men. He took part in severe hand-to-hand fighting with enemy machine gunners. Later he held a forward block which was repeatedly attacked. He showed great courage and devotion to duty

Capt. (now Major) Douglas Moore Collingwood, 5th Bn., Eng. (Halifax)

This officer, in command of a company, supervised the construction of an important road for successive nights under constant and accurate machine-gun fire. His energy and untiring efforts kept the road open for traffic without a hitch.

Rev. Geoffrey Cyril d'Easum, Chaps. Dept., attd 78th Bn., Man.
He accompanied the battalion in its advance, and worked incessantly amongst the wounded and dying. He was constantly exposed to artillery and machine-gun fire, and his utter disregard of danger was a great encouragement to the men.

Lt. William James Decker, 72nd Bn., B.C.
In the first advance this officer handled his platoon with great skill, reaching the most distant objectives, eight miles off. Two days later, when all the other officers of his company became casualties, he took command, and, calling on another man to follow him, rushed a machine gun, personally accounting for the whole crew. He showed great initiative in the reorganisation when the final objective was gained.

Lt. Frederick Leonard Dickinson, M.M., 44th Bn., Man., attd. 10th Inf. Bde
When it was vital that the brigade should gain knowledge of the exact dispositions of the units concerned, he made a reconnaissance over an area swept by extremely heavy fire, and at once reported the situation to brigade headquarters, thus enabling immediate steps to be taken to continue the advance. He rendered very valuable service.

Lt. Hugh Molyneux Dignam, 54th Bn., 2nd C. Ont. (Toronto).
When the company was held up, the commander and other officers becoming casualties, this officer took charge, reconnoitring the situation and leading the company to its objective in face of withering machine-gun fire. On reaching the position he made a daring reconnaissance in full view of the enemy, and adjusted his right flank, which was exposed. He set a fine example to his men throughout.

Qrmr. and Hon. Lt. John Alban Donovan, D.C.M., 24th Bn., Que.
Throughout two days' operations he succeeded in bringing up ammunition and supplies in spite of heavy shelling. When the transport lines were bombed by night he saved many casualties by his coolness and judgment. Thanks to his energy the battalion was kept well supplied.

Lt. George Aloysius Downey, 35th Bty., 10th Bde., C.F.A. (Guelph).
This officer was in charge of a howitzer section supporting an infantry advance. Although he lost a gun team, and had three drivers wounded, he extricated his section with no delay, keeping in close touch with the infantry and engaging targets which were delaying the advance. He showed courage and endurance of the highest order.

Capt. Harry Dunlop, C.A.M.C., attd. 102nd Bn., 2nd C. Ont. (Kingston)
Died of wounds.
This officer followed close behind the attack, and attended to the wounded under heavy machine-gun fire. He was untiring in his efforts to care for and evacuate the wounded, and undoubtedly saved many lives.

Lt. John Dunlop, 16th Bn. (Brandon).
For nine consecutive nights he crawled within a few yards of the enemy's outposts and gained information of the utmost value. Later, he took charge of a clearing party in a raid, when his thoroughness was responsible for the success of the enterprise.

Capt. Walter Bennett Durward, 1st Bn., W. Ont. (Simcoe).
During an attack this officer, in the face of heavy machine-gun fire, led his company forward, and by his cheerfulness and disregard of danger encouraged all those under him.

Capt. Joseph Culloden Eagar, C.A.M.C., attd. 78th Bn., Man. (London, Ont.)
Throughout the fighting this officer worked unceasingly ministering to the wounded, frequently under heavy shelling and machine-gun fire. He went without food or sleep, and when wounded refused to leave until his station was cleared.

Lt. John Hubert Eastwood, 2nd Bn., E. Ont. (Peterborough).
This officer led his platoon under the most trying conditions and intense machine-gun fire to the final objective. He captured a machine-gun nest of seven guns and personnel, which was holding up his attack and inflicting heavy casualties. His conduct was worthy of the highest praise.

Lt. Oscar Burton Eaton, 4th Bn., C.M.G.C. (North Battleford).
This officer went forward in a tank with three machine guns. When his own tank and seven others were put out of action and set on fire by anti-tank guns he reorganised the survivors under heavy machine-gun fire and put up a very strong defence. The initiative he showed greatly assisted the advance.

Lt. Rupert William Eaton, 54th Bn., B.C. (Victoria).
For conspicuous gallantry and leadership during the attack of his company on machine-gun posts in the woods, which were checking the advance of the whole battalion. He reached his objective with only four men of his platoon, the rest having become casualties on the way across the open, but disposed of the post and its occupants. He then collected some more men and made a dash for another post, capturing it with two guns and 20 prisoners.

Lt. Thomas Edgar Elliott, 3rd Bn., Eng.
He was one of the working party detailed to build a track across "No Man's Land" into the enemy's territory, and when all the senior officers had become casualties he took command and carried on the work rapidly and successfully.

Capt. George William Epton, 44th Bn., Man. (Brandon).
When the battalion was held up by exceptionally heavy machine-gun fire, he led part of his company forward and, after two attempts, finally secured a footing. He was twice wounded, the second time seriously, and set a splendid example of courage and devotion to duty.

Lt. Oscar Ludwig Erickson, 78th Bn., Man (Winnireg).
This officer handled his platoon most skilfully in the advance. When confronted by an enemy machine-gun nest, he immediately organised a flanking movement, and, leading his men in the rush, captured the post. His courage and cheerfulness inspired his men when he was severely wounded, resulting in the loss of both legs.

Capt. James Falkner, 75th Bn., 1st C. Ont. (Montreal).
In a night attack on a village this officer was in command of the right flank company, which was much exposed and subjected to heavy fire, but they kept on despite much opposition, sending back 52 prisoners from a wood. He was at all times directing his men, and was himself in the final objective when his company reached it. He inspired all ranks by his good leadership.

Lt. Bernard Faughnan, M.M., 4th Divl. Sig. Coy., Eng., attd. Infy. Bde. (Montreal).
As brigade signalling officer he planned and carried out the maintenance of a speaking line to each battalion engaged in the operation. He was continually working in an area swept by shell and machine-gun fire, and interruptions in the service occasioned by continuous breaks in the line were frequent, and immediately repaired.

Lt. Julian Harcourt Ferguson, 44th Bn., Man. (Winnipeg).
He was responsible by the determined way in which he led the attack for the first penetration of the enemy system. Later, he commanded a platoon on the exposed flank of the battalion, and was in action almost continuously for two days and nights without relief. He showed marked courage and devotion to duty.

Lt. James O'Neil Fitzgerald, 25th Bn., N.S. (Halifax).
Early in the advance, when the battalion was checked by concealed machine-gun fire, this officer rushed forward, calling on his men to follow, surrounded and captured the posts. He continued to lead his men until wounded, showing a fine example under extremely heavy fire, which encouraged his men at a critical stage of the attack.

Capt. John Gordon Fleck, 72nd Bn., B.C. (Vancouver).
During the attack a gap occurred on the right flank. He immediately led his company into the gap and drove the enemy back, enabling the battalion to continue the advance. Two days later his right flank was again exposed, but he personally led patrols to regain touch with units on his right, which he succeeded in doing, thus relieving a serious situation

Lt. (Actg. Capt.) William John Franklin, 2nd Bn., E. Ont. (Cornwall).
This officer led his company in the attack with great skill, overcoming machine-gun nests, and reorganising his men for attack on their final objective. The success of the operation was largely due to his skill and energy.

Lt. Reginald Charles Gaisford, 38th Bn., E. Ont. (Brockville).
After leading his platoon in the attack he was directed in the evening to connect up with the right battalion. This he successfully accomplished after encountering great difficulties. The next morning he was the only officer left in the company, and skilfully repelled a strong enemy counter-attack, improving his position at the same time. For 36 hours he personally supervised and inspired his men.

Capt. George Alexander Gamblin, 2nd Divl. Amm. Col., C.F.A. (Portland, N.B.)
This officer's section suffered intermittent shelling, losing men and horses. He superintended the removal of men and horses, and by his coolness and judgment saved many lives, setting a fine example to the men.

Lt. Stanley Cyril Gee, 3rd Bn., C.M.G.C.
This officer, while commanding a battery of machine guns supporting the infantry attack, saw a gap in the line between two divisions. This he promptly filled, advancing with the first wave of the infantry. He captured sixty-five prisoners and five machine guns. By his prompt action he helped the infantry to gain and consolidate their objective.

Lt. William James Gibson, 47th Bn., W. Ont. (Kingston).
He led his platoon with great dash under very heavy fire, and, after gaining his objective, led a patrol forward and brought back valuable information. Later in the day, while leading another patrol, he captured an enemy machine gun and prisoner, killing the remainder of the party. Throughout the operations he showed marked determination and courage.

Lt. Robert Steele Gillespie, D/23rd Bty., 5th Bde., C.F.A.
This officer brought his section forward immediately after the advancing infantry, bridging the front line system and cutting the wire in the way under heavy barrage fire. He had his section in action in the enemy's lines one hour after the attack commenced.

Lt. Carl Seymour Gonnason, 3rd Bty., 1st Bde., C.F.A. (Victoria).
He was in charge of an officer's patrol, and he went forward with the infantry. He kept up communications with the rear in spite of heavy shell fire, and sent back valuable information. He also put in action two enemy guns, which he turned round and fired over 200 rounds himself into the retreating enemy.

Lt. Hedley John Goodyear, 102nd Bn., 2nd C. Ont. (Toronto).
Totally regardless of danger, this officer led his platoon forward to the capture of a wood, which was stubbornly defended by machine-gun posts. When the other platoon commanders had become casualties, he reorganised their platoons and took charge of the skirmishing line, which he finally led in a charge, ensuring the success of the day's operation. He set a fine example of coolness and determination.

Lt. Edward Clarence Gordon, 4th Bn., 1st C. Ont. (Toronto).
This officer guided the battalion through a dense mist, enabling it to reach its position intact and on time. Later, he guided the left company in its attack on enemy machine-gun nests along a river bank, being wounded in the final successful assault. After having his wound dressed at the R.A.P., he returned to the firing line in time to lead his men to a ridge, where he was again wounded. His conduct and daring throughout were admirable.

Lt. Leslie Farries Gordon, 50th Bn., Alberta (Calgary).
When his company commander was wounded he took command and led the company forward under his own covering fire. Together with two men he rushed two machine-gun posts, capturing or killing the crews, consisting of an officer and eleven other ranks. He set a splendid example to his men.

Lt. William Gordon, 25th Bn., N.S. (Montreal).
Throughout the attack, which penetrated five miles into enemy territory, this officer handled his platoon with coolness and dash. He several times outflanked and captured enemy machine guns, keeping perfect direction and touch with the troops on his flanks through difficult country. His leading was largely responsible for the success of the operations.

Lt. Brooks Farrar Gossage, 58th How. Bty., 14th Bde., C.F.A.
This officer, with another, made a daring reconnaissance of the brigade zone, being continually sniped from high ground and trees. They obtained the exact location of the infantry, when the information was urgently required, and cleared up an obscure situation.

Lt. George Roper Gouinlock, 15th Bty., 6th Bde., C.F.A. (Toronto).
Through an intense enemy barrage this officer made a reconnaissance of the front line and outpost line, gaining information which enabled his battery to destroy several machine-gun nests which were holding up the infantry. He continued this work the whole afternoon, on one occasion bringing in a wounded man from No Man's Land.

Capt. Roderick Douglas Graham, 85th Bn., N.S. (New Glasgow).
He led his company forward under heavy machine-gun fire, fighting his way foot by foot to the objective. He was everywhere among the men, organising bombing parties against machine-gun nests, and by his cheery encouragement kept them moving forward against a hail of machine-gun bullets.

Lt. Samuel Roy Greer, 4th Bde., C.F.A.
When in command of a detached section closely supporting the infantry advance, he engaged many hostile machine guns, which were retarding progress, destroyed anti-tank guns, and fired on parties of the enemy in the open. He showed great determination, and was constantly exposed to enemy fire while observing.

Lt. Allan Greey, 20th Bn., 1st C. Ont. (Toronto).
He led his platoon splendidly, and, when held up by a machine-gun strong point, he took two men with him, worked round to a flank under fire, and enfiladed the strong point, forcing the crew to surrender

Capt. (Actg. Maj.) Sydney Herbert Griffin, 4th Bn., 1st C. Ont. (Toronto).
When the attack was pinned down by enemy machine-gun fire, this officer organised a platoon from headquarters personnel armed with three Lewis guns. By quick rushes he and two men got up one of the Lewis guns, which he mounted and fired himself, silencing the enemy fire, and enabling the battalion to move forward to its objective. The commanding officer having become a casualty, he carried out the work of consolidation. His coolness and energy inspired all ranks.

Lt. Angus Stirling Gunn, 11th Siege Bty., 3rd Bde., C.G.A. (Moncton, N.B.)
When six lorries, each loaded with fifty rounds of ammunition, were bombed, two being set on fire, this officer at once removed the four to a place of safety, and then, assisted by a N.C.O., extinguished the fire in one of the lorries. He then unloaded the ammunition amidst constant explosions from the burning lorry. His prompt action saved much loss of life and material.

Lt. Harvey Edward Harrison, 78th Bn., Man. (Brandon)—Died of wounds.
This officer led his platoon with great skill, overcoming the resistance of a machine gun, killing one and wounding another of the crew himself. When all the officers of his company had become casualties, he assumed command, and met an enemy counter-attack with determination. When ordered to withdraw he remained until the last section got away, his coolness and judgment having a splendid moral effect on all ranks.

Lt. Milton Berkley Hastings, 2nd C.M.R., 1st C. Ont., attd. X3 Div. T.M.B. (Toronto).
This officer was in charge of the forward mobile section of the battery advancing with the infantry. In spite of casualties to his men and many difficulties he kept his battery on the move by his determination and disregard of danger.

Capt. Charles Beckett Holmes, 25th Bn., N.S. (Halifax).
This officer successfully manœuvred his command through heavy fire and dense fog, skilfully avoiding casualties, and gaining his objective in good time. The following day he again showed marked determination, and carried on to the second objective, although wounded.

LT.-COL. R. D. DAVIES, D.S.O.

After being decorated at Buckingham Palace. The award of a Bar was announced in last week's Canada.

Canadian War Records Photograph.

Capt. Reginald Ashe Holmes a'Court, 54th Bn., 2nd C. Ont. (Fernie, B.C.)
During the advance he came under heavy fire, so, placing his men under cover, he went forward with a runner to reconnoitre. Finding a gap between the two companies in front, he personally led his company through the gap to the final objective, suffering many casualties, but capturing several prisoners and machine guns. His coolness and initiative were of great assistance to the two companies in front.

Lt. Roland William Charles Hosegood, 28th Bn., Sask.
His company was in support, but, observing that one of the attacking battalions was being held up by machine-gun fire, he rushed forward and took command of the company that was in danger of being disorganised and led them with his platoon to the attack, thereby ensuring the success of the operation. He did fine work.

Lt. Ernest R. Hoskins, 29th Bn., B.C.
When the advance was held up on the left flank by enfilade fire he rushed forward with a party of men, and dealt with two enemy machine guns. His prompt and gallant action enabled the advance to be continued successfully.

Capt. Bellenden Seymour Hutcheson, C.A.M.C., attd. 75th Bn., 1st C. On (Toronto).
Before the Battalion reached its jumping-off position the enemy put down a heavy barrage, and many casualties were sustained. This officer worked unceasingly in attending to and dressing the wounded under heavy fire in open ground. During the mopping up of a village he passed through the streets several times, attending to the wounded. He also voluntarily dressed nearly 100 enemy wounded who had been left behind.

Lt. Edward Douglas Hyndman, 12th Bty., 3rd Bde., C.F.A. (Sherbrooke, P.Q.)
As forward observation officer, he accompanied the infantry advance, enabling his battery to support the attack by his accurate information. Throughout the day he was constantly exposed to heavy shelling and machine-gun fire, but persisted in his task, and sent back excellent reports on the situation.

Lt. Alexander Pelan Johnston, 20th Bn., 1st C. Ont.
Prior to an attack, he made a valuable reconnaissance under shell fire, and during the operation as scout officer he directed the progress of troops through the heavy mist, enabling them to keep on their objective He was wounded, but continued to carry on for a considerable length of time.

Lt. Frederick Simeon Jones, 9th Bn., Engrs.
This officer followed the infantry attack, clearing and repairing the main road, to permit the passage of guns and ammunition. The work was completed with great speed under fire. He also assisted in the capture of two enemy machine gunners who were about to fire on the infantry from the rear.

Capt. Roderick Colin Jackson, 85th Bn., N.S. (Millville, N.S.)
He led his company to its objective in face of heavy machine-gun fire, and made good the ground gained. Two days later he again led his men through a machine-gun barrage, directing their fire, and, although wounded, carried on to the objective. He continued at duty until consolidation was completed. His work throughout earned the confidence of all under him.

Lt. George Fraser Kerr, M.M., 3rd Bn., 1st. C. Ont. (Toronto).
When leading his platoon to the jumping-off line he found a gap, which he filled, putting an enemy machine-gun nest out of action, killing about thirty, and capturing a battery of 77 mm. guns. At the jumping-off line he found one company had not arrived, so he led his platoon into its place, with the advancing waves. He was then wounded, but continued to the final objective, clearing out another machine-gun nest of two guns on the way. The next two days he continued in the line, doing splendid work, and refusing to leave owing to shortage of officers.

Capt. (Actg. Maj.) (now Maj.) Fred.' W. Kirkland, D.C.M , 29th Bn., B .C
After his commanding officer and three company commanders had been wounded, he assumed command at a critical moment of the attack, and, as he was out of touch with the general situation, he made a reconnaissance on horseback under heavy fire of the outpost line, after which he organised and launched an entirely successful attack. His coolness and judgment were an inspiration to the battalion.

Capt. William August Kruger, 3rd Divl. Amm. Col., C.F.A. (Ottawa).
His section was heavily bombed by night, and he was rendered unconscious, while men and horses were killed. On regaining consciousness he reorganised his men, looking after the wounded, and then assisted another section which had had heavy casualties, including the commanding officer. He undoubtedly saved many lives.

Lt. John S. Leete, 4th Bn., Eng.
He led his party out to repair the road across "No Man's Land," immediately behind the advancing infantry. He carried on the work energetically under heavy shell fire, and made possible the rapid advance of artillery and transport.

Lt Oswald Elmer Lennox, 3rd Bn., 1st C. Ont. (Toronto).
This officer led his platoon in the attack with great skill, accounting for many of the enemy, especially at a strong post in a sunken road, which he enfiladed and captured. Although severely wounded at this time, he refused to leave until the road had been cleared. He set a wonderful example to his men.

Lt. Sherwood Lett, 46th Bn., Sask. (Vancouver).
He personally delivered instructions to the companies during an advance through heavy fire of all kinds. He later made a valuable reconnaissance of the situation, permitting quick and necessary action to be taken. He worked unceasingly, and showed great ability throughout.

Lt. Richard Ches man Lister, M.M., 15th Bty., 6th Bde., C.F A.
He brought his guns forward into action, destroying an enemy machine-gun nest which was holding up the infantry. When attacked by low-flying aeroplanes he handled his section so that the gun crews escaped casualties, showing marked coolness throughout the operations.

Lt. Arthur Temple Livingstone, 102nd Bn., 2nd C. Ont.
After the first objective had been gained, his company passed through, but was held up by a system of trenches in the open. Handling the situation with coolness and daring, he succeeded in turning the left flank of the opposition He was the first man over the top when the strong point was captured, and it was due to his leadership that the company got through with a minimum of casualties.

Lt. Frederic John Longworth, 36th Bty., 9th Bde., C.F.A. (Montreal).—Died of wounds.
This officer brought up a number of ammunition wagons to a forward position by night under heavy shell fire, and, thanks to his coolness and care, only lost two men killed and two wounded. He continued the work through the night, having on eight occasions to withdraw his men to cover during heavy shelling and bombing.

Lt. (Actg. Capt.) Clarence Duncan Lyon, 4th Bn., 1st C. Ont.
This officer, under heavy machine-gun fire, advanced with a Tank, directing it against machine-gun nests which were checking the advance. He then went to the right flank of the attack, and assisted in directing Lewis-gun fire against machine-gun nests of seven guns, and the capture of the crews. Later he dashed up a communication trench, and with a Lewis gun dispersed a large party of the enemy, establishing a defensive flank as the next unit did not come up.

Capt Hugh Allan McBurney, 2nd Bn., C.M.G.C. (Regina).
This officer, in command of a battery of machine guns, brought his guns up in close support of the attacking infantry, and when the latter were held up and one of his own officers wounded, led the battery across open ground swept by machine-gun fire, came into action, and successfully silenced the guns of the enemy.

Capt. James A. McCulloch, 2nd Bn., C.M.G.C. (Winnipeg).
This officer led forward a machine-gun battery, and, assisted by only four gunners, captured three enemy machine guns which had been overrun by the leading wave in the mist. He was severely wounded in the advance, and collapsed from exhaustion after getting his guns into action. His coolness and quick decision materially assisted the advance.

Lt. Frederick Grant MacDonald, 25th Bn., N.S. (Pictou).
This officer led his platoon with great dash, until his company commander was wounded, when he took command of the company, leading it to its final objective. The next day he led the company with skill and coolness, keeping it well in hand until he was wounded His coolness under fire was an example to all ranks.

Capt. John Welsford Macdonald, 44th Bn., Man. (Pictou).
When his company was held up by machine-gun fire he took a party and worked round to a flank, gaining a footing in the village. He fought hard, although isolated, until severely wounded by machine-gun fire. He showed great courage and determination.

Lt. John McDonald, 78th Bn., Man.
During the advance, this officer's platoon was held up by a machine gun which caused numerous casualties. He led his platoon against the post with great dash and skill, and, though wounded, carried on until the gun was put out of action.

Lt. William Allan McDougall, 26th Bn., N.B. (Debec, N.B.).
This officer was in charge of a company which was ordered to push out advanced posts. Leading the right platoon, he reached his objective after heavy fighting, but as the post on his right failed to arrive, he was surrounded and forced to withdraw, which he did in good order. The following morning he crawled out with a N.C.O. and brought in a wounded man. He did good work throughout the whole operation.

Lt. Alexander Swearingen Macfarlane, 4th Divl. Trench Mortar Bty., C.F.A. (Chatham, Ont.).
This officer was in charge of a mobile trench mortar in close support of the infantry, and engaged the enemy's strong points under heavy fire with excellent results. Throughout the operation he was continually in the front line, in touch with the infantry, and locating enemy posts which were causing trouble. His quickness and coolness throughout were invaluable.

Lt. Lester MacGillivray, 33rd Bty., 9th Bde., C.F.A. (London, Ont.).

This officer accompanied the infantry advance to man captured guns, and, going forward with the first wave, assisted in the capture of three howitzers, which he brought into action. He remained in touch with the infantry, supporting their advance for several thousand yards. His skilful work undoubtedly saved many casualties.

Lt. James Alpine McGregor, M.M., 72nd Bn., B.C.

This officer led his platoon against an enemy strong post on the right flank of the attack. After an advance of 1,000 yards he drove the enemy out, capturing two machine guns and killing or wounding both crews. Two days later he did good work in a further advance, and was active in patrolling and gaining touch with the unit on the right during consolidation.

Capt. Joseph Fortescue McKay, 28th Bn., Sask. (Prince Albert).

He was in command of a company in support, and learning that a gap existed between the two attacking battalions, he moved his company into the breach and enabled the attack to go forward. He handled his company throughout in a most skilful and determined manner, and greatly contributed to the success of the operation.

Lt. Arthur Pearson McKenzie, 4th Bn., 1st C. Ont. (Toronto).

This officer established an observation post on high ground near a wood, from which he could see the whole attack, but the spot was under heavy machine-gun fire. On seeing that the left of the advance was held up, he rushed across 400 yards of ground which was swept by machine-gun fire, and directed a tank to where it was needed. He then returned to his observation post and remained there, sending back most valuable information.

Lt. John David MacKenzie, 85th Bn., N.S. (Baddeck).

During the first phase of the attack he led his platoon to the final objective under heavy machine-gun fire. Two days later, when his company commander became a casualty, he took command, leading his men against machine-gun nests, and saving a critical situation on his left by forming a defensive flank. He was untiring in encouraging his men.

Lt. Ian Nicholson Murray MacLaren, 58th How. Bty., 14th Bde., C.F.A.

This officer, with another, made a daring reconnaissance of the brigade zone, being continually sniped from high ground and trees. They obtained the exact location of the infantry when the information was urgently required, and cleared up an obscure situation.

Lt. Irvine Grey MacLaren, 2nd Bn., C.M.G.C. (Charlottetown, P.E.I.).

This officer, while leading forward a section of machine guns, took command of two platoons of infantry, whose officers had become casualties, and who were disorganised by enemy machine-gun fire. Led by him, they captured five enemy machine guns, and reached their objective. Later, when his battery commander was wounded, he took command, handling his guns with the greatest dash during the attack.

Capt. James Ferris MacLaren, 1st Bn., W. Ont. (Toronto).

This officer led his company in the attack against two villages with great skill and dash. He showed initiative in attacking many strong points, and it was largely due to his efforts that the company was successful in dealing with the enemy with so few casualties. His cheerful conduct was a great asset.

Lt. James Anderson McLaren, 19th Bn., 1st C. Ont.

This officer handled his company with coolness and skill in the face of heavy machine-gun fire. While fighting in a village he rushed to the assistance of a wounded man and shot two of the enemy who were about to bayonet him. On reaching his objective, he quickly consolidated, sending patrols forward, and reconnoitring his front. His disregard of danger was a great incentive to his men.

Lt. (Actg. Capt.) William Alexander McMaster, 3rd Bn., 1st C. Ont (Toronto).

After the company commander was killed, he took charge, leading his men forward over 7,000 yards of machine-gun swept country, taking such advantage of cover that he had but few casualties. He was thus able to support the attacking companies who had suffered severe casualties, and turned the tide in our favour. Later, after the capture of a village, he, with great initiative, formed an outpost line in front of it on high ground. His determination had a great effect.

Capt. Malcolm Loughrey Maitland, Engrs., attd. 5th Divl. Sig. Coy. (Walkerton, Ont.).

For conspicuous gallantry and untiring work in keeping up communications during an attack. On several occasions he got news through to brigade headquarters from the front line, when the infantry lines were down, making trips into heavily shelled areas to supervise and maintain communications which were absolutely essential to the success of the operations.

Lt. Archibald Lindsay Manuel, 29th Bn., B.C.

He led his platoon splendidly, and cleared out six enemy machine-gun nests, enabling his flank to advance. He personally killed several of the crew of two guns, and his fine courage and leadership inspired his men and carried them forward against heavy odds.

Capt. Thomas William Birchall Marling, 2nd Bn., E. Ont. (Lakefield, Ont.)

This officer led his company skilfully through intense machine-gun fire, and assaulted a wood with great determination. Though severely wounded, he carried on until he had handed over to the next officer.

Lt. Herbert William Martin, 1st Bn., C.M.G.C. (Toronto).

When his battery commander was early wounded he took command, and by his courage and dash was largely responsible for the rapidity of the advance. On three occasions he took forward pairs of machine guns to deal with enemy strong points, and personally led his men in a successful assault on one of them.

Capt. Robert Herbert Matthews, 1st Bn., C.M.G.C. (Regina).

He showed marked courage and ability to command, and his battery accounted for many of the enemy. He worked round and personally shot two snipers who were causing a great deal of annoyance.

Lt. Gilbert Harold Mills, Corps Sig. Coy., Engrs. (Winnipeg).

For conspicuous gallantry and perseverance in laying and maintaining corps communications for three weeks, especially on one night, when he worked all night under heavy bombing to restore communication. Existing communications at the outset were almost nil, and new lines were constantly wrecked by tanks, transport traffic and hostile bombing, so he had many difficulties to overcome.

Capt. Thomas Alvin Morrow, 4th Bn., 1st C. Ont.

This officer coolly led his company through a very heavy barrage at the beginning of the attack, and finding that two companies had been badly cut up and were unable to cover their objective, rushed his company up under heavy fire and organised an outpost line in advance of them, thus clearing the way for the successful advance by the battalion.

Capt. James Kilburn Mossman, No. 5 Field Amb., C.A M.C. (Toronto).

This officer was in charge of a section of stretcher-bearers, and rapidly organised the evacuation of the wounded. He followed close on the attacking infantry waves, and regardless of his own safety attended to the wounded. His zeal and judgment were a great example to the men.

Capt. Finlay Munroe, C.A.M.C., attd. 52nd Bn., Man. (Montreal).

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in dressing and attending to wounded during a hostile barrage. This officer has always disregarded personal danger, and has undoubtedly saved many lives on the battlefield

Rev. William Leo Murray, C.C.S., attd. 10th Infy. Bde.

He stayed with the battalion throughout the operations, attending to the wounded. Over ground exposed to artillery and machine-gun fire he searched the ground for wounded, and took them to the regimental aid post. He behaved splendidly.

Lt. Robert Stuart Nelson, 29th Bn., B.C.

He led his platoon forward against heavy odds, and by his personal example of fearlessness succeeded in killing or capturing three enemy machine-gun crews who were holding up the advance. He did splendidly.

Lt. Arthur Thomas Newby, Fort Garry Horse, Cav. Bde. (Winnipeg). Missing

He led his troop with great dash and courage under heavy artillery fire against a position strongly held by machine guns, being wounded in doing so. He set a splendid example to those under his command.

Lt. James Gordon Nicholson, 38th Bn., E. Ont. (Montreal).

When in command of an infantry detachment carried in tanks, the tank commanding officer was killed, and although he had no previous experience, he helped the non-commissioned officer to bring the tank into action. Although twice wounded, he remained with the tank, organising the gun crews. After reaching his objective, he kept up effective fire on the enemy, and did not leave for the dressing station until the new line had been consolidated, after setting a fine example.

Lt. Thomas Grantham Norris, 10th Bty., 3rd Bde., C.F.A. (Victoria).

He went forward with a small patrol, keeping in touch with the infantry under heavy shell fire, and sent back accurate information. One of his men and all his horses were killed during the day, but he continued on foot and persevered in the task of enabling his battery to support the attack by the information he sent back.

Lt. Arthur Kendrick Olive, 46th Bn., Sask. (Moose Jaw).

He led his platoon successfully in assault, and consolidated his objective. Next day, when another unit was compelled by heavy barrage to withdraw through the forward post held by him, he stoutly maintained his position and covered their withdrawal. Throughout he set a very fine example to his men.

Lt. William Leslie Oliver, 50th Bn., Alberta (Edmonton).

During an attack he was early wounded, but carried on and led his men to their objective, where he was hit again, this time having his arm broken. Even then he refused to leave until the consolidation was well under way. He showed splendid pluck and determination.

Lt. Reginald Ingersoll Olmsted, 35th Bty., 10th Bde., C.F.A. (St Catharines).

This officer commanded a section of howitzers in close support of the infantry. During the night he prepared tracks and moved his guns to the assembly positions. Shortly after zero hour he sustained casualties to horses and drivers from shell fire, but handling his section with coolness greatly assisted the infantry throughout the attack.

Lt. Allen Everett Parker, 1st Bn., C.M.G.C. (Ottawa).

He brought his battery into action under very heavy fire, and successfully dealt with enemy machine-gun nests, and rendered invaluable support to the infantry. Throughout he set a splendid example to his men.

Lt. Richard Harold Pearse, 1st C. Ont., attd. 1st L.T.M.B. (Cobourg Ont.)

This officer in command of a two-gun section of the battery, brought it into action as soon as he saw that the enemy machine guns were checking the advance. He personally directed the fire, and destroyed a machine gun. By his initiative and disregard of danger he inflicted severe casualties, and enabled our attack to proceed.

Lt. James Henry Pedley, 4th Bn., 1st C. Ont. (Toronto).

When the left company was held up, he brought up two platoons by sectional rushes to their assistance. Thanks to his promptness the left company was able to continue its advance. Throughout the two days' fighting he displayed remarkable coolness, and was always with his platoon in the thickest of the fight.

Lt. Elmore Philpott, 33rd Bty., 9th Bde., C.F.A. (Hamilton).

While commanding a section co-operating with infantry, he engaged the enemy with open sights at 600 yards' range, and cleared out machine-gun nests which were holding up the advance. He kept his section close up with the advancing infantry for 24 hours, and successfully engaged strong points.

Capt. Thomas Hammill Prescott, 50th Bn., Alberta (Calgary).

When the enemy counter-attacked he went forward and rallied some of the men who were wavering, and then, in face of heavy fire, went out and made a valuable reconnaissance of the line, sending back information of great value.

Capt. John Fitzgerald Preston, 6th Bty., 2nd Bde., C.F.A. (Halifax).

For conspicuous gallantry and cool determination in handling his battery under enemy machine-gun and shell fire. He brought his battery into action within close range of the enemy, and gave excellent support to the attack made by the infantry.

Capt. Frank Kemp Prouse, 75th Bn., 1st C. Ont. (Brampton).

In command of a platoon in a night attack on a village, this officer reached the final objective, only to find that his left flank was exposed; he immediately organised parties, and fought his way along the trench system until he linked up with the unit on his left. By his prompt action in dealing with the enemy at this point the line was speedily consolidated well beyond the village.

Capt. John Daniel Quine, 47th Bn., W. Ont. (Vernon, B.C)

He led his company in face of heavy rifle and machine-gun fire over open ground, his bold and skilful leadership resulting in the saving of many lives and in the eventual attainment of his objective. The next day, under very heavy shelling, his cheerfulness and fine example materially kept up the morale of his men.

Capt. Harold Albert Reid, 46th Bn., Sask. (Guelph).

When the leading wave of his company was held up by heavy machine-gun fire, he ran forward and led them on. He directed the leading Tank on enemy resistance, and generally led the mopping up of the position until wounded by machine-gun bullets in the leg. He showed marked courage and able leadership.

Capt. Loudoun Corsan Reid, 12th Field Amb., C A.M C. (Montreal).

For several hours, under heavy rifle and machine-gun fire, he dressed and cleared wounded, and by his efforts saved many lives. He several times went forward to points of extreme danger to satisfy himself that all wounded had been cleared.

Lt. Henry Smith Robinson, 25th Bty., 6th Bde., C.F.A. (Hamilton).

This officer, in charge of a patrol, sent in good information until he and the two signallers with him were buried by a shell-burst. After extricating both the men, who were badly shell-shocked, and carrying them out of danger, he went on with his work alone. Two nights later he did good work in getting the men under cover while the battery was being shelled, showing complete disregard for his own safety.

Lt. George Harvey Rochester, 54th Bn., 2nd C. Ont. (Toronto).

For conspicuous gallantry and resource in leading his platoon, which was on the extreme right of the corps attack. He worked his men forward section by section in face of very heavy fire for several hundred yards, personally seeing that every advantage was taken of cover. He then led the final rush, capturing the front and three machine guns. The manner in which he handled the advance, showing a total disregard of danger himself, saved many casualties.

Among the passengers who returned to Canada last week on the Olympic was Maj.-General A. D. McRae, who was one of the many outstanding examples shown by the war of men successful in civil life proving equally capable in military administration. Both at Argyll House and at the Ministry of Information, General McRae won the friendship and esteem of the prominent Imperial officials with whom he was brought in contact. The high standard of efficiency reached by the Canadian Q.M.G. Department is due in no small measure to the initiative and ability of General McRae.

ENGAGEMENTS AND MARRIAGES.

PELMANISING THE NATION!

Famous Business Firms Enrol Their Staffs in Hundreds.

10,000 ENROLMENTS A MONTH!

"Peace, Pelmanism and Prosperity" the Watchword for all Classes of Men and Women in 1919.

The coming of Peace has given a tremendous impetus to the Pelman movement. Within a single month ten thousand men and women have enrolled for a Pelman Course!

"Peace, Pelmanism, and Prosperity" is, in effect, the national watchword of the day. Thousands who have hitherto been prevented from taking it up, are now hastening to begin their study of Pelmanism, which, during the strenuous war years, has proved of such enormous help to business and professional success.

Many big firms are enrolling their employees en masse: one famous business house has just enrolled 165 members of its staff.

Every enrolment is made with a definite aim. To gain a bigger salary or a better position; to increase efficiency, to economise time and work; to develop more ability: to broaden experience and to make learning easy—whatever the object may be, Pelmanism never fails to prove its value. There is no man or woman, in fact, who has conscientiously studied "the little grey books" without deriving benefit: the most popular phase being exemplified by the hundreds who have reported 100 per cent., 200 per cent., and even 300 per cent. increases of salary as a direct consequence of Pelmanising.

The evidence for Pelmanism is freely open to everyone to examine, and will be sent to any reader who applies to-day to the address given below.

SALARY DOUBLED IN 3 MONTHS.

REMARKABLE LETTERS.

There is only one way of judging Pelmanism, and that is by results. In the records of the Institute there are many thousands of letters reporting the most remarkable "benefits" ever recorded: benefits as substantial and so direct that they speak more plainly than volumes of argument could do. A few extracts are given hereunder from some of these letters.

From Bristol a Pelmanist writes:—

"After taking up Pelmanism for about three months I was offered a very high post in the firm in which I am employed. This advancement, which doubled my salary (which was not inconsiderable before), I attribute entirely to Pelmanism."

The foregoing is typical of, literally, hundreds of letters, some of which tell of incomes trebled and even quadrupled as a result of Pelmanism. These letters are not asked for; they are sent of the writers' free will. Pelmanists are only too ready to acknowledge the vast good they have derived from the Course.

Here is another letter from a journalist, who had only got as far as Lesson 4 when he wrote:—

"Already I feel a definite change in my mentality, a stirring and stretching in the mind. I cannot praise too highly the perfectly natural method of progression. There is no trick or quackery about it, and for the return your System gives it seems to be nonsensically cheap at the fees you charge."

WORTH A HUNDRED TIMES THE PRICE.

Many business men have remarked that the Course, to them, would be cheap at ten, twenty, or one hundred times the price. One man, a solicitor, said that a single lesson of the Course was worth £100. The cost, in short, is infinitesimal as compared with results, and small though the fee is, it may be paid by instalments if desired. Cost is no obstacle to anyone becoming a Pelmanist.

Here is another letter—short and sweet—from a busy accountant:—

"Since becoming a Pelmanist I have benefited materially, having been promoted twice in twelve months, with 50 per cent. financial increase."

Large numbers of medical men have taken the Pelman Course, and many of them recommend their patients and friends to do the same. Higher praise from such a cautious and conscientious body of professional men it would be impossible to gain. Here is a letter from one:—

"I cannot be sufficiently thankful that I took a Pelman Course. . . . I attribute my success in a large measure to the application of Pelman principles. The study was done in the spare time left to me by a large industrial practice."

Another letter, also from a medical man:—

"I took the Pelman Course because my practice was not in a satisfactory condition, and I could not discover the cause. Your lessons enabled me to discover the weak points and correct them, with most satisfactory results. Your Course has proved to be a splendid investment for me. My chief regret is that I did not take it at the beginning."

"RESULTS ARE WONDERFUL."

Another Pelmanist expresses himself thus:—

"The results are wonderful. I used to wonder (before taking up the Pelman Course) if there was any possible exaggeration, but honestly no pen can express one tittle of the value the Course really is. What I have gained up to the present could never be called costly even if it had cost me £50."

It may be remarked that this gentleman had only worked through two lessons when he wrote the foregoing. Comment would be superfluous.

One of the most interesting letters received by the Pelman Institute during recent months contains the following very frank admissions

"I admit having read your announcements for some ten years, and yet I was not (to my eternal regret be it admitted) persuaded to commence your Course until I noticed your consistent advertising in the Times. . . . I do not see how anyone can study the Pelman lessons seriously and not gain thereby—reaping a reward which, besides its definite and tangible advantage, also brings with it developments which have no parallel in money values.

"To those of my acquaintance who ask my opinion of the Pelman training I have said, and shall continue to say: Take it—follow instructions carefully—and if at the end of the Course you do not admit having gained something good—right out of proportion to its cost—I will personally refund your outlay."

Such a letter from a business man surely shows that Pelmanism is at least as good as—if not better than—its claims. And that is the opinion of many students. The following extract from a Pelmanist's letter has previously been published, but will bear repetition. In the course of a very warm tribute to the system he said:—

"I used to think the claims made for Pelmanism were fantastic and impossible: now I consider them to be under-statements of the truth."

CONSIDER THESE POINTS.

There is no parallel to the amazing success of Pelmanism amongst all classes: and every month, every week, its success and popularity increase.

It is perfectly simple and easy to master, takes but very little time, and can be studied anywhere. Being taught entirely by correspondence, it does not matter where you live. Many successful Pelmanists took up the Course when living overseas in remote corners of the Empire.

It has now been adopted by over 400,000 men and women, and no thorough student of the Course has ever yet failed to secure "results."

Full particulars of the Pelman Course are given in "Mind and Memory," which also contains a complete descriptive Synopsis of the twelve lessons. A copy of this interesting booklet, together with a full reprint of "Truth's" famous Report on the work of the Pelman Institute, and particulars showing how you can secure the complete Course for one-third less than the usual fee may be obtained, gratis and post free, by any reader of CANADA who applies (by postcard) to the Pelman Institute, 21, Pelman House, Bloomsbury Street, London, W.C.1.

General Currie and the officers of the Canadian Division entertained Burgomaster Max, of Brussels, at luncheon last week.

Thirty-six of the generals who took part in the war were at one time cadets of the Royal Military College of Canada (says the Times correspondent). One holds the rank of lieutenant-general, eight are major-generals, and 27 are brigadier-generals.

A GILLETTE Safety Razor as a Victory-year gift will be very much more than a mere expression of goodwill.

It will be a practical Peace-Xmas offering which he will use every day—which will still be in his service next year and every year—which will always carry his memory back to you as the giver and to the year which gave us the Great Peace.

GRATUITY ON DISCHARGE.

To the Editor of Canada.

Sir,—With reference to the letter of "Canadian Officer" in your issue of November 23, concerning gratuity on discharge, it should be pointed out that the British Government also gives liberal wound gratuities, and many cases are personally known to me of officers now serving again who have been paid substantial cash gratuities for wounds sustained, whereas the Canadian gets nothing unless it be a gratuity in lieu of a pension.

Surely it is manifestly reasonable that the gratuity on discharge should be graduated according to length of service, and on no account should the low rate of pay of Canadian officers in comparison with other services be forgotten. There is a strong and growing feeling about the parsimonious treatment afforded us by the Government. Men who, without hesitation, sacrificed all are entitled to such a gratuity as shall give them at least a fair start in the race to re-establish themselves in civil life.

It would be highly disastrous to the best interests of Canada if any feeling of ungenerous treatment should result in the formation of a military party in any way hostile to the interests of the country at large.—Yours faithfully,

Another Canadian Officer.

DEPENDENTS' RETURN TO CANADA.

To the Editor of Canada.

Sir,—Since the Government seem anxious for dependents of Canadian soldiers, now in England, to return to Canada at once and before general demobilisation begins, would it not be possible for the husbands and fathers of such families to be allowed to return with them at the same time? Surely the anxiety we have had to go through deserves some compensation, and not another separation.

Moreover, many of us have sold our homes in order to come over, and when we get back to Canada we shall need our husbands to help us to re-establish them. Yours truly,

A Canadian Wife

To the Editor of Canada

Dear Sir,—The Government are urging the immediate return of soldiers' dependents, most of whom will only be too glad to be home again. If the Government intend to give free passage cannot they act quickly?

As an [illegible] I have found my $30 separation just enough to pay the rent of a small furnished house, so my husband has had to assign me enough to live on; therefore saving by either of us has been an impossibility. There will be little left of the gratuity when the fares for myself and children have been paid to Victoria—certainly not sufficient for civilian clothes, new furniture, and many other items necessary to a new home.

The men of Canada willingly gave their services—women their men (and in many cases their homes); surely the Canadian Government in return will give them justice.—Yours, etc.,

WHAT CHANCE FOR THE SOLDIERS?

To the Editor of Canada.

Dear Sir,—As a casualty, and one of the boys, I thought perhaps you would like to hear what we are thinking about. Of course, it is our return and what we are going to do when we get back.

There is much talk in the papers how to help the soldiers, and the main thing is, "Give him a chance." I don't see any reason why he should not be able to help himself. He has always done so under the worst conditions in the field, and why can't he at home?

They gave us some literature a while ago showing what was offered in the way of homesteads, but we were not interested much at the time. The war was on, and only cripples were going back: "You may never go back, so why worry about it?" It is different now, and we are eager for any bit of information we can get, but don't get much.

We were to get 160 acres within reasonable distance of a railroad—ten or twelve miles. There were no homesteads within 80 or 100 miles worth having when we left. Where are these places, and are they really so close? How much will they advance to get started, and whom do we go to to find out? On a homestead there is nothing; no shack, stable, or well, and he must have these things before he can take his wife and family there. Does he get any help?

In the Army everything was handled and organised remarkably well. Huts went up like magic if they were needed, and supplies brought up under shell fire—bad roads or none at all, it got there just the same. How about the home front now? Couldn't something be organised there to help him out? It would surely pay to do it for construction. It had to be done for war and destruction.

Pardon me for repeating, but not quite so much of "What are we to do for him?"—just what chance are we to get to do for ourselves? A little more publicity; we are interested now.—Yours, etc.,

GALLANTRY IN THE PEACE "DRIVE."

Lt. Arthur Wychoff Rogers, 85th Bn., N.S.

As scout officer he was continually in the most forward positions, gaining early and accurate information of the enemy's movements, posts, machine guns, etc. He twice gave warning of impending counter-attacks. He was wounded while leading a party to outflank a machine gun. Throughout the operations his coolness and accurate reports materially assisted in the enemy's defeat.

Lt. James Roland, 87th Bn., Que.

In an attack on two enemy strong posts, he led the left attack himself, his platoon sergeant directing the other. The N.C.O. becoming a casualty, he rushed over the top and reorganised the right attack, leading them to their objective, and then returned and led forward his own party, capturing an enemy officer, four men, and a machine gun, and then beat off two counter-attacks. He set a splendid example.

Capt. Bruce Ross, 3rd Bn., Eng. (Ottawa).

He showed great energy and devotion to duty while building a track across No Man's Land into the enemy's territory, and carried the work through so quickly and successfully that the artillery and transport were able to use the track forty minutes after zero.

Lt. Allan Cameron Rough, 40th Bty., 10th Bde., C.F.A. (Toronto).

This officer was in charge of a forward section in close support of the infantry. He showed great coolness and judgment in the handling of his section under heavy fire, and was always on hand to engage enemy targets. Throughout the fighting he set a fine example to his men.

Capt. Alfred Emile Routier, 2nd Divl. Amm. Col., C.F.A. (Quebec).

During the shelling of his wagon lines, he assisted the wounded men, removing the animals to safety. By his prompt action he prevented further losses.

Lt. Robert Clarke Rowland, 44th Bn., Man. (Wiarton, Ont.)

When his battalion was held up by machine-gun fire, and companies had been broken up by casualties, he rallied a number of men and led them into the village, capturing three machine guns and inflicting heavy casualties on the enemy. Being forced out by artillery fire, he again attacked, and finally established positions beyond our objectives.

Capt. Hudson Stewart Salisbury, 2nd Bn., C.M.G.C. (Calgary).

While leading forward a machine-gun battery in the attack, he rushed and captured two enemy machine guns, one officer, and ten men, with only two casualties. He then promptly brought one of the captured guns into action, enfilading an enemy strong point, killing and wounding several men, and causing the rest to surrender. His work throughout was splendid and inspiring to his men.

Lt. John Labatt Scatcherd, 11th Bty., 3rd Bde., C.F.A. (London, Ont.)

He went forward with the advancing infantry in charge of a brigade patrol, keeping in constant touch with the situation, and sending in information which enabled accurate and effective gun-fire to be brought to bear by the batteries. Though constantly under fire, he was always at hand to clear up a doubtful situation.

Capt. Albert Edward Lawrence Shand, 26th Bn., N.B. (Dauphin, Man.)

This officer, throughout several days' fighting, led his company with the greatest dash and judgment. On two occasions, when his company was held up by heavy fire, he organised an attack from the flanks, which enabled the advance to be continued, after clearing up the machine-gun nests. His leadership and disregard of danger were most commendable.

Rev. Frederick George Sherring, Chap. Dept., attd. 6th Bde., C.F.A. (Por Arthur).

Throughout the operations he was constantly in attendance on the wounded, often under heavy fire, and he also assisted the divisional burial officer. His coolness and example were an inspiration to all ranks.

Capt. Robert Shiell, 19th Bn., 1st C. Ont. (Toronto).

When his platoon was held up by an enemy strong point, this officer, quickly grasping the situation, rallied his men and led a successful rush. He set a fine example to his men, and was largely responsible for their accomplishment of the task allotted.

Capt. Richard Arthur Simmons, 72nd Bn., B.C. (Vancouver).

When his company was near its final objective it met very strong opposition, but by skilful combination of fire and movement he routed the enemy with little loss. Two days later, when his company was again attacking with great dash, he found the left flank was unprotected, but, detaching two platoons, he pressed on to his objective with the remainder. While consolidating he led a bombing squad against a strong enemy patrol, which he dispersed, killing five. His judgment and reports were a great help to his C.O.

Capt. Victor Norman Smallpiece, 18th Bn., W. Ont. (Toronto).

This officer personally supervised, during heavy shelling, the evacuation of wounded and the forwarding of supplies. During the whole period of the operations he was untiring and unselfish, and his work contributed in a large measure to the success of the Brigade and the safety and welfare of the men.

Capt. Armand Armstrong Smith, 20th Bn., 1st C. Ont.

He so disposed of the force under his command that an enemy trench system overlooked by his troops in front was skilfully rushed, and one officer and twelve men captured after a bomb and bayonet fight, in which a number of the enemy were killed.

Lt. Carl Elliott Smith, 85th Bn., N.S. (Halifax)

When his platoon was checked by machine-gun fire he reconnoitred the position himself, and by his skilful direction cleaned it up, thereby probably saving many casualties. When his company commander became a casualty he took command, and carried out the second phase of the attack successfully. He inspired all ranks with confidence.

Lt. Charles Ernest Smith, M.M., 29th Bn., B.C.

When all his company officers had become casualties he assumed command, and led the company to their objective under heavy fire. His fearlessness and skilful leadership carried his men through against heavy odds, and in the final assault he led a party of men against an enemy machine-gun nest, and killed the crew and captured the gun

Capt. Frank Davidson Smith, 54th Bn., B.C.

This officer was in command of a reserve company during an attack, when the whole battalion was held up by a strong machine-gun post in a wood. Being ordered to clear this out, he disposed his platoons and personally led the assault under withering fire. Having successfully completed this operation, he reorganised his company, and attacked another post further on, capturing six more machine guns, as well as many prisoners. Although shot in the back by one of the prisoners, he carried on until the company was ready against a counter-attack

Lt. Walter Franklin Smith, 19th Bn., 1st C. Ont.

This officer, advancing with the attacking troops, established a report centre well forward, from which he sent back timely information, which enabled the commanding officer to send reinforcements to the right flank, where they were badly needed. He remained at his post throughout the whole operation, though the position was so exposed that the party was much reduced by shell fire.

Lt. Harvey Huston Sparling, 7th Bty., 2nd Bde., C.F.A.

His battery came under heavy shell fire, six horses being killed, and the drivers wounded, and his own horse killed under him. By his coolness and leadership, order was quickly restored, and the battery pushed forward with little loss of time. He did consistent good work until wounded later in the operations.

Lt Francis Wilfred Stenson, 24th Bn., Que. (Montreal).

This officer was in command of a company in support during an attack. Twice when the right flank was exposed he rushed his men to the assistance of the battalion at a critical moment, restoring the situation. He also went out and bandaged a wounded man, bringing him in under heavy fire. His example encouraged all ranks.

Capt. (Actg. Maj.) Frank Paterson Strachan, 2nd Bn., E. Ont. (Kingston).

This officer, in command of an attacking company, during a fog in the early morning, made ceaseless reconnaissances under heavy fire in order to maintain touch with his flanks. He directed his company with great skill in the attack of machine-gun nests. His conduct throughout was most inspiring to his men.

Rev. Cecil Stuart, Can. Chaplains Department, attd. 24th Bn., Que.

He accompanied the battalion in the advance, and assisted in dressing a number of casualties and placing them under cover. His disregard of danger, and cheerfulness under heavy shelling and machine-gun fire, were a great encouragement to the men.

Lt. James Daniel Sullivan, 1st Bn., W. Ont.

His experience as battalion scout proved to be of great value in giving directions and in sending to the rear accurate information. His leading of the men greatly assisted in the success of the attack, and he showed coolness under heavy shell and machine-gun fire.

Lt. James Mason Taylor, 50th Bn., Alberta (Calgary).

His personal example inspired all ranks under his command, and resulted in their reaching their final objective, while his exceptional powers of leadership were mainly responsible for extricating his men from a difficult position, and eventually stopping an enemy counter-attack.

Lt. George Harry Thompson, 7th Bn., Eng.

For conspicuous gallantry and ability in charge of a sub-section detailed to bridge a river. The supply Tank carrying his materials broke down, but he got to work with anything he could salve, and, though under heavy shell fire, completed the bridge so that artillery and infantry wagons could cross. He was at work for twenty-four hours, and surmounted all difficulties.

Lt. Roland Copley Thompson, 29th Bn., B.C. (Vernon).

He led his platoon against heavy machine-gun fire, and captured many prisoners, and took command of his company after the commander had been wounded. His fine personal example and leadership inspired his men and carried forward the advance successfully. He himself accounted for several of the enemy.

Lt. Morley Fountain Verity, 54th Bn., 2nd C. Ont. (Brantford).

This officer led his platoon to the attack against strong opposition, which caused many casualties. In spite of this, he drove the enemy back, capturing a machine gun and a supply of bombs. He then organised his new posts, which he held against five determined counter-attacks. It was undoubtedly due to his leadership that the position was successfully taken and held.

Lt. Walter Waddell, 28th Bn., Sask.

When his platoon was checked by very heavy machine-gun fire, he took two Lewis-gun sections out in front, and established them so skilfully that the whole enemy line was forced to retire. His bold and able leadership throughout tended greatly towards the success of the operation.

Capt. Albert Henderson Wallace, 13th Fld. Amb., C.A.M.C. (Victoria).

While in charge of five stretcher squads he followed a battalion into action, and established collecting posts for the wounded directly behind the battalion. His courage and initiative enabled the wounded to be got out rapidly, thereby saving many lives.

Lt. Ralph Vincent Waller, 75th Bn., 1st C. Ont.

In a night attack on a village this officer was with the reserve company on the right flank. While taking up his assembly position under intense fire he captured twelve prisoners. He then led his men forward in small groups against a wood, which he cleared, capturing fifty-two prisoners, besides killing and wounding many more. He next drove the enemy in disorder from a strongly held line of trenches, some 300 yards further on.

Capt. William Charles Walsh, 13th Fld. Amb. C.A.M.C. (Victoria).

With four squads of stretcher-bearers he followed the battalion into action and established collecting posts a few hundred yards behind the front line. He dressed and evacuated wounded under heavy shell fire, working all day and night in the open until all were carried off the field. He behaved splendidly.

Lt. (Actg. Capt.) Donald McKenzie Waters, 4th Divl. Trench Mortar Batteries, C.F.A. (Belleville).

For conspicuous gallantry and initiative, in taking over and firing a battery of the enemy's guns immediately after their capture. His promptness enabled him to engage parties of the enemy over open sights, and also forced down a balloon. His determination to get forward in spite of hostile machine-gun fire was most praiseworthy.

Lt. William John Webber, 5th Bn., Eng. (Ottawa).

With a party of sappers he repaired the forward part of a road through a village under heavy shell fire. It was only by his fine example and energy that his work was brought to a successful conclusion, ensuring the rapid progress of artillery and transport previous to an attack.

Lt. Douglas Griffiths Williams Webster, 28th Bn., Sask.

He was in a support company, but, observing that the attack was being held up, he at once went and secured a Tank, guided it to the front affected, and then led his platoon forward to the support of the troops in front, breaking the enemy's resistance, and enabling the advance to continue. Later, when his company took the offensive, he skilfully led his platoon round the flank of a large force of the enemy, and brought effective fire to bear, enabling his company to kill or capture the garrison He rendered splendid service.

Capt. Ernest Harold Whelpley, C.A.M.C., attd. Hdqrs., 3rd Bde., C.G.A. (Winnipeg).

He at once went to a battery which was being heavily shelled, and as casualties occurred dressed their wounds and superintended their evacuation. He showed great coolness and devotion to duty.

Capt. Leonard Frederick White, 2nd Bn., C.M.G.C. (St. Catharines).

This officer, learning that there was a gap in our left flank, and that the enemy was massing for a counter-attack, quickly led four of his machine guns to the threatened point, and under heavy fire came into action, killing many of the enemy, and successfully protecting the flank. His tactical ability in handling his guns was most marked.

Lt. Walter Gordon Wilkins, 53rd Bty., 13th Bde., C.F.A.

When in command of a forward section less than a thousand yards from the front line, he maintained an intense fire for three hours, in response to an S.O.S., although under heavy shell and machine-gun fire the whole time. Although seriously wounded, he showed the utmost coolness and set a fine example to his men.

Capt. William Geraghty Williams, 4th Bn., C.M.G.C.

This officer was in command of a number of Vickers guns going forward in Tanks, and took a leading share in the fighting when the Tank was surrounded, and subsequently organised the unloading of the guns in the face of heavy machine-gun fire. He showed great coolness under the enemy's fire.

During the attack on a village he skilfully led his men against a strong line of machine-gun posts, and succeeded in capturing two heavy trench mortars and a number of machine guns. When his company commander was wounded he took command, and reached the final objective. Two days later he again led the company in a successful attack, with very few casualties. He set a fine example to his men under heavy fire during these operations

MILITARY CROSS.

Sec. Lt. Eric de Wolf Rounsefell, Lein. R., attd. 12th Bn., R. Irish Rifles (Vancouver)—killed.

For conspicuous gallantry in leading attacks in six machine-gun positions, when he succeeded on each occasion in dislodging the enemy. When his company lost touch with the unit on the right he took out patrols five times, and, in spite of encountering strong enemy resistance, he succeeded in establishing touch and joining up the line.

Temp. Lt. Norman Clark Wood, 17th A.C. Bn., Tank Corps (Kamloops, B.C.)

This officer's section led the battalion into the enemy's territory, clearing trees and débris from the wood under very heavy fire. It was largely owing to his efforts and skill that the cars were enabled to get into the enemy's lines. Later, when two cars had their wheels broken by shell fire, this officer, by his cool courage and resource, rendered great assistance in getting them back to the lines. The accurate fire of his cars accounted for many of the enemy.

(" London Gazette" Supplement, December 5).

106001 L.-Sgt. R. E. Alexander, 1st Bn., C.M.R.

After his platoon had captured all objectives he observed an enemy machine gun firing from a flank and inflicting heavy casualties on his platoon. He crawled up in the grass, rushed the gun post, killed three and captured five of the occupants and brought back the gun. He showed splendid courage and saved many casualties.

414154 Sgt. H. Cassidy, 25th Bn.

This N.C.O. led his platoon through two days' fighting under very heavy artillery and machine-gun fire with skill and resource. At every available opportunity he reorganised his men, and by his leadership and disregard of danger on his own account set a fine example to his men.

743215 Pte. W. H. Gibbons, 26th Bn.

This man, who was a company runner, in returning to the firing line went through a gap and found himself upon a machine-gun post. He rushed it, and when the firing line came up to him they found three of the enemy dead and three prisoners. He saved many casualties by his splendid daring and promptitude.

69369 Sgt. C. J. Gilker, 26th Bn.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during four days' operations as acting C.S.M. On one occasion, when all but one of the company officers had become casualties, and the advance was checked by the fire of machine guns, he collected two sections, and, working round to a flank, rushed the post and eased the situation. Later, when progress was again stopped, he assisted his officer in organising a defensive position. He was severely wounded in the head shortly afterwards, having set a fine example to his men 743100 Sgt. R. W. Handren, 24th Bn.

He commanded a platoon on the first day, and on the following day when all his officers had become casualties, he took command of the company, bringing it through heavy shelling and machine-gun fire to the objective, when it dug in. At this point he moved up and down the company line exposed to machine-gun fire and sniping, encouraging his men and superintending the placing of Lewis guns. His judgment and initiative were such that the men were ready to follow him anywhere

279325 C.S.-M. J. J. McDonald, 8th Bn., Rly. Troops.

While engaged on light railway work the enemy suddenly opened an intense bombardment, which wounded five of his men and cut off two trains. He first rescued the wounded and got them under cover from the shell fire, then returned and repaired the broken track, but the two tractors of the trains were so badly damaged they could not work, so he and his party pushed the trains out of the shelled area. He then went on repairing the line, getting up material, etc., under constant shelling with the utmost perseverance and determination.

67947 Sgt. A. McIsaac, M.M., 25th Bn.

When his platoon was in support, seeing that the leading troops had suffered heavy casualties, he brought his men forward under heavy fire to their assistance and saved the situation, reorganising and consolidating the position. His personal dash and leadership were a great asset in the attack.

414629 Sgt. J. D. Sinclair, 25th Bn.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in leading his platoon, which was without an officer, through three days' fighting. His skill in directing his men through several barrages minimised casualties and materially helped the attacks by the battalion. When the leading troops were in difficulties he brought up some of his men and relieved a difficult situation. His personal courage was an inspiration to his men.

405445 Cpl. A. Wallace, M M., 26th Bn.

Throughout four days' fighting this N.C.O., who was medical orderly, displayed coolness and courage in attending to the wounded. On several occasions he dressed wounded men under very heavy machine-gun fire and sniping, accompanying the medical officer over the fire-swept area. By his attentive care of the wounded he earned their gratitude and inspired confidence.

CANADIAN DEMOBILISATION.

General Currie Favours Return by Units.

Strong objection has been taken by General Currie, Commander of the Canadian Army, to the proposal to demobilise Canadian troops on the basis of occupation and length of service (telegraphs the Ottawa correspondent of the Times). The soldiers, he declares, want to return by units and to march home as a conquering army with colours flying. The chief objection to this is that the Western battalions have many Eastern drafts, and vice versa. These men might be taken to Winnipeg and then have to be returned.

From a practical and economic standpoint the Government's plan is regarded as the most sensible, but it is likely that the sentimental point of view of the soldiers will be met, and that the fighting men in France will be allowed to return as units, but the original plan will be followed as far as the men in England are concerned.

A resolution passed by the Dominion Executive of the Great War Veterans' Association lays "the strongest emphasis upon the vital necessity of a most careful and unbiased demobilisation, in order that every reasonable provision and assurance of training and employment might be given to the returned soldiers, and that distress and unrest might thereby be prevented during the coming winter months."

The Militia Department has received cable advices from Overseas to the effect that arrangements are being made to send back to Canada a large number of officers whose services can be dispensed with (says the Daily Record). The number of officers affected will approximately be 1,000, and it is stated by the Department that the officers referred to will be some of those at present in Britain.

The Canadian Railway War Board state that arrangements have been made for issuing bulletins advising the friends and relatives of soldiers what time the trains are expected to arrive at their destinations, and add :—"Men from France will have the best attention the Board can give them. They will be sent home as fast as possible, and no effort on the part of the Board will be spared."

Courses in Agriculture.

Major E. J. Ashton, member of the Soldiers' Land Settlement Board, and Mr. C. F. Bailey, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for the Province of Ontario, are leaving very shortly for England to organise courses of agriculture for soldiers in connection with the Khaki Unversity (says the Record). The courses will be of twelve weeks' duration, and will be of the same character and cover the same ground as the courses which will be established for the soldiers in Canada, where the returned men will be permitted to receive instruction either at an agricultural college or on the land. The soldier Overseas will be able to take part of his instruction in England during the period which elapses before his embarkation for Canada, and he can complete the course after his return.

BACK TO CANADA.

Many Soldiers and Soldiers' Families Returning.

Animated scenes, reminiscent of the Canadian emigration rush before the war, were witnessed on Wednesday of last week at Liverpool on the occasion of the departure on her maiden voyage of the C.P.O.S. ss. Minnedosa for St. John, N.B. Every berth was occupied by returning Canadian soldiers and Canadian women and children. The White Star liner Olympic, which left Southampton on Sunday afternoon, took out upwards of 5,000 Canadians bound for Halifax, and the C.P.O.S. ss. Melita left Liverpool for St. John with several thousand on Tuesday. The Celtic carried over 2,000.

The "Minnedosa."

The Minnedosa, which is a sister ship to the Melita, is the first steamer from Liverpool to Canada to sail on her maiden voyage since the cessation of hostilities. She has a gross tonnage of 14,000, length of 546 ft., width of 67 ft., and her total cargo is 488,000 cubic feet. There is accommodation for 500 cabin and 1,480 third-class passengers.

On "B" deck (or upper promenade deck) are situated the cabin lounge, drawing-room, and smoking-room. The decoration of the lounge is of the period of the third quarter of the 18th century, in the style fashionable in England in the early part of George III.'s reign. The panels are adorned with some fine antique Chinese paintings on glass and on paper which were formerly in the lounge of the Calgarian, which was torpedoed during the war. It has also some charming old English prints from the same vessel. The colour scheme is in pastel blue and old red gold. It is elegantly furnished, and has a most comfortable and homelike appearance. There is a magnificent Steinway piano in a Chinese Chippendale case

C.P.O.S. S.S. "MINNEDOSA": THE LOUNGE, LOOKING FORWARD.

The drawing-room is in the Queen Anne style, panelled in very fine figured French walnut, with fine pictures and furniture, and is as cosy a little room as can be found afloat.

The Jacobean smoke-room is very similar to that on the Melita, and has some very nice sporting prints from the Calgarian's grill-room.

The dining-room and the staircase and gallery leading to it are very elegantly panelled in French grey and white, and are adorned with fine old mezzotints after Sir Joshua Reynolds, and there is a most interesting old red lacquer clock at the head of the stairs

THE LONDON MARKET.

Stock Exchange Settling Days :—

Consols Pay Day, Thursday, Jan. 2.

Ticket Day. Fri., Dec. 27.

Pay Day. Mon., Dec. 30.

London, Tuesday.

With the Election in full swing, the Stock Exchange remains in a condition of dulness and neglect.

Among Canadian securities conditions have been dullish, and prices have moved with narrowness and indecision.

Among the gilt-edged issues of the Dominion the 4½ per Cents. hold steady at 95, and the Fours at 84. The 3½ per Cents. after allowing for interest deduction are slightly higher at 73. As regards municipal bonds, Edmonton Fives have given way ½ to 78½, but the rest of the group holds steady.

In the railroad section Canadian Pacifics are firmer around 178, though current earnings are not particularly stimulating. There are scattered falls of ¼ to ½ among Grand Trunk stocks, though in this case the gross traffic for the concluding period of November showed an increase of £158,858.

Hudson's Bays, in the land group, have improved slightly to 8⅝ on the 10 per cent. dividend.

Industrial securities have been irregular. Canadian Cars are unaltered, but the Pref. has advanced 3 to 102½. Dominion Steels hold steady at 62½, and Canada Cements at 72. Cities Services Common has been advanced a point to 332, and Cockshutt Plow Pref. marked at 82.

Brazilian Tractions have been offered and have lost 2 at 55½. Mexican Traction issues have not varied.

Canadian silver mining shares have been flabby, reflecting the lower quotation for the white metal. Casey Cobalts have given way 1s. to 2s. 6d. Mining Corpn. of Canada is unchanged at 10s. 6d. after some fluctuation.

OUR TORONTO LETTER.

Toronto, November 23.

During the past week, trading on the Canadian Stock Exchanges has, generally speaking, been quiet and somewhat irregular, though on the whole the tone has been somewhat firmer than it was at the end of last week. The early part of this week witnessed some activity in the steel stocks, led by Dominion Steel, which was stimulated by the increase in the dividend rate to 6 per cent. per annum. Steel of Canada sympathetically developed strength, but both stocks are now quieter again. Brazilian Traction, after having been for some time a most prominent feature of the trading, has been weaker of late and at times this week has been almost neglected at prices which represent a considerable decline from its recent high point. Montreal Power is also lower. The most consistent strength among industrials has been displayed by the cotton group, including Dominion Textile, Canadian Cottons, Montreal Cottons, and Wabasso, all of which have been in demand, and interest has also been shown in Brompton and Spanish River among the pulp and paper stocks. Woods Manufacturing came in for a rise of two points on expectation of favourable dividend action, but upon the actual declaration of a bonus of 5 per cent. made no further response. This bonus, by the way, brings this company's total distribution to the common stockholders this year to 12 per cent. Yesterday's trading, though light in volume, included a number of transactions in shares which have been comparatively inactive of late, and this tendency towards broadening is remarked upon as indicating a revival of interest on the part of investors. This, if correct, would be noteworthy in view of the influence of the Victory Loan. The fact that money is not plentiful sufficiently explains the restraint of speculative trading.

Under a recent Order-in-Council Provincial Governments, Municipalities, Commissions and Local Governments may now issue securities without obtaining the consent of the Minister of Finance. Thus part of the war time restriction of financial issues has been removed, and it is expected that corporations will also soon be relieved from the restrictions. It is announced also that trading in bonds, which was suspended three months ago at the request of the Minister of Finance so as to clear the way for the Victory Loan, is to be resumed on Monday.

Among current prices Dom. Steel is 62¼; Steel of Canada, 60½; Can. Cement, 62¾; Can. Loco., 66¾; Civic Power, 82; Can. Car., 32, pref. 83½; Can. Gen. Electric, 104¾; Brazilian Traction, 54¾; Montreal Power, 82½; Brompton, 58½; Spanish River, 14¾; Riordon, 117¼; Can. Cottons, 68¼; Dom. Textile, 98; Montreal Cottons, 58½; Wabasso, 60; Penmans, 80; Can. Steamships, 45¼, pref. 76½; Maple Leaf, 138; Dom. Canners, 28, pref. 70.

The mining markets have been fairly active and strong. On Thursday Dome Mines sold up to $14.45, closing at $14, and has since been in demand at $13.75, but without sales. Hollinger has advanced to $6.20, at which it is firm, and McIntyre is $1.76, after being a couple of cents higher. Davidson was the most active of the gold stocks yesterday, closing at .69½. Kirkland Lake is .40¼. The silver stocks have been quieter, activity mainly centreing upon low-priced stocks, among which Ophir at .5⅜, and Gifford at .2¼ were prominent yesterday, and Beaver was strong at .36½. Nipissing is $8.70, Temiskaming .32, and McKinley .48. Mining Corporation is $2.65.

FROM EAST TO WEST

ONTARIO PROVINCE.

OTTAWA.—As a part of the reconstruction programme of the Dominion Government, the Minister of Railways and Canals announces the immediate resumption of the construction of the Welland Canal.

——In spite of the falling off in the importation of goods used in the manufacture of munitions, the decrease in the Customs receipts of the Dominion for the month of November was about the same as in the previous month, indicating that trade is beginning to resume its normal course. Customs receipts for November were $12,400,000, or about $400,000 less than in the same month a year ago.

——At a requiem high mass for Lt. "Roddy" Lemieux, son of Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, who was killed at the Front, celebrated here, Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier and a delegation from the G.W.V.A. attended.

The Government has allotted $25,000,000 as a fund to aid the Provinces in carrying out their housing programmes.

A letter, dated January 29, 1798, in the handwriting of Admiral Lord (then Sir Horatio) Nelson, has been added to the Canadian collection of manuscripts. It was found among a lot of old papers in the cellar of a house in Mount Pleasant.

TORONTO.—In two months there were 5,623 deaths from influenza in this Province.

——A tablet has been unveiled in St. Paul's Anglican Church to the memory of Lt. Thomas Grier, of the 108th Battalion.

——The first two vessels of the Dominion Government mercantile marine fleet, the Canadian Pioneer and the Canadian Voyageur, each 8,100 tons, were launched from the Vickers shipbuilding plant on December 3 by Lady Borden.

——Building permits for structures valued at $8,500,000 will be the total this year, it is estimated, as compared with permits amounting to slightly over $7,000,000 in 1917.

——Mr. J. K. L. Ross is rapidly gathering together the best stable of thoroughbreds in America. He has just purchased two crack two-year-olds, War Pennant and War Marvel, and a three-year-old, Motor Cop, from Mr. A. K. Macomber for $75,000.

HAMILTON.—On November 3 the citizens had their first sight of a British tank. H.M.S. landship Britannia, commanded by Capt. Haigh, M.C., and operated by Cpl. Jagger, D.C.M., M.M.; Gnr. Donaldson, M.M.; Gnr. Saville, M.M., and L.-Cpl. Burnham, M.M., navigated the leviathan through the streets on behalf of the Victory Loan. Mayor Booker delivered an address of welcome.

BRANTFORD.—Local manufacturers, interviewed as to the prospect of conditions here, declared them very good. All local munitions plants have their plans complete for conversion to peace needs, and the largest of these is said to have orders on hand for a three-year period once it completes its war orders.

GUELPH.—Ontario Agricultural College won premier honours in the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago in the Student Judging Contest.

COBOURG.—At a public meeting held in Millbrook it was decided to take steps to erect a monument to the late Joseph Scriven, author of "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," in the little private cemetery at Rice Lake.

WINGHAM. Mr. William H. Fraser (Liberal) has been elected to the Legislature in the by-election at North Huron by over 1,200 votes, defeating Dr. Case Straight (Conservative) and Mr. George Spoxton (Independent Conservative). The election was necessitated by the resignation of Mr. A. H. Musgrove (Conservative), appointed postmaster.

SAULT STE. MARIE. A record in the police court was established here, when Magistrate Elliott imposed fines aggregating $16,700 on seven foreigners charged with being members of the Social Democrat organisation, and having publications in their possession printed in an enemy language.

"Your articles regarding the position of Canadians in the R.A.F. are the only means the majority of us have of keeping in touch with Canadian Orders etc. and I can assure you they are very much appreciated." A Lieutenant in the R.A.F.

QUEBEC PROVINCE.

QUEBEC.—At the annual meeting of the Quebec Garrison Club the following officers were elected:—President, Captain A. E. Doucet; vice-president, Hon. L. A. Taschereau.

——Memories of a local catastrophe of twenty years ago were evoked on November 19, when tons of rock and gravel crashed down from the cliff into Champlain Street.

MONTREAL.—During the recent epidemic 3,172 deaths occurred in this city out of a total of 183,000 cases. In the whole Province, exclusive of this city, there were 9,928 deaths out of upwards of 476,000 cases reported.

——Longueuil citizens propose to erect a granite monument in front of the Town Hall in honour of soldiers who have served Overseas in the war.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

ST. JOHN.—Mr. R. B. Emerson will take office as President of the Board of Trade this month.

——The Hon. F. B. Carvell announces that if the owners of the Caraquet and Gulf Shore branch and the Kent-Northumberland Railway lines do not come to terms the Government would guarantee their operation. Regarding the taking over of the Port of St. John by the Government and its control by a Commission, he said the Minister of Marine was prepared to do so if the people of St. John are willing. A plebiscite on this question, it is expected, will soon be taken.

CAMPBELLTON.—The Hôtel Dieu Hospital and the Sisters of Charity Convent School have been totally destroyed by fire, the damage being approximately $40,000.

NOVA SCOTIA.

HALIFAX.—No fewer than 600 hogsheads of sardines were taken from the waters round Grand Manan Island, Bay of Fundy, in one morning.

——The registration of automobiles, motor cars and ambulances, etc., in this Province up to September last totalled 8,076, of which number 1,346 are credited to Halifax City.

NEW GLASGOW.—This city contributed $1,000,000 to the Victory Loan. The employees of the Eastern Car Works gave $125,000; those of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company at the New Glasgow mills and forges $170,000, the head office giving $125,000.

MANITOBA PROVINCE.

WINNIPEG.—Since the outbreak of the influenza epidemic here on October 30, 621 deaths have been reported and nearly 10,000 cases have been treated. Until last week all the churches in this city had been closed for seven weeks on account of influenza.

Mayor Charles F. Gray's majority over Mr. F. H. Davidson was over 4,000. The following aldermen were elected:—Messrs. J. H. Spalding, A. H. Pulford, H. Gray, E. Robinson (Labour), A. M. Heaps, W. B. Simpson (Labour), J. L. Wiginton. The hospital by-law authorising the erection of a new nurses' home was carried.

The Provincial Legislature will meet during the first week in January, a postponement having been effected in order to allow the various Departments to adjust themselves to peace conditions.

The Great West Grain Co.'s 40,000-bushel elevator at Dauphin has been completed.

On November 1 the acetylene gas plant at Souris was taken over by the Souris Gas Co., Ltd., a local syndicate.

Ontario after the War—AGRICULTURE.

The Province of Ontario is eight times the size of England and twice the size of Germany. With a land surface of 230,000,000 acres in extent, there has so far been brought under cultivation only 13,500,000 acres. On this area are produced crops and stock yielding $750,000,000 per annum.

Everything will be done to encourage settlers after the war. Free gifts of 100 or 200 acres of land; cash advances by Government; Government building of highways; liberal aid for the erection and maintenance of schools; Government experimental farms and agricultural colleges, etc.

Millions of acres of the most perfect soil are simply waiting for the plough. Ontario's enormous harvests could easily be trebled.

No country in the world offers such wonderful agricultural opportunities as the Province of BRANDON.—Mr. A. R. McDiarmid has been elected Mayor in place of Mr. H. W. Carter, the ex-Mayor.

Progress is being made with the addition to the McKenzie building, which will make that structure the most lofty building in that city.

SASKATCHEWAN.

REGINA.—The total value of the buildings erected here this year is within $50,000 of the million dollar mark, according to the records of the Building Inspector's Department.

—The Leader, the chief provincial Liberal organ, has withdrawn its support from the Union Government, declaring that it cannot be trusted to handle satisfactorily pressing domestic problems.

——The opening of the Provincial Legislature, announced for December 6, has been postponed.

——Mr. Henry Black and Mr. A. G. Young are the candidates for the Mayoralty.

ALBERTA PROVINCE.

EDMONTON.—Alderman Charles Wilson and Mr. Joseph Clark have been nominated for Mayor.

——All business was suspended on November 11 in honour of the victory, and an all-day celebration culminated in a torchlight and motor parade five miles long. The Lieutenant-Governor proclaimed a public holiday throughout the Province.

CALGARY.—The London Guarantee and Accident Company, Limited, of London, England, has opened an office for Calgary at 207, Herald Building, under the direction of Mr. Herbert M. Taylor, who returned lately from nearly three years' service Overseas as an officer in the C.E.F.

Mayor M. C. Costello, who is running for his fifth term, and Alderman R. C. Marshall are the candidates at the Mayoralty election. For the office of City Commissioner the present incumbent, Mr. A. J. Sims, and former Alderman A. W. E. Fawkes are the candidates.

MEDICINE HAT.—Mr. Brown has been re-elected Mayor for a third term.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

VICTORIA.—The Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands, states that areas of undeveloped lands close to transportation are now being made available for settlement both by civilians and by returned soldiers, with special privileges to returned soldiers, while of the lands which came back to the Crown by reason of not having been paid for, the best of these are being rendered available for settlement by returned soldiers, free of cost to the soldier.

The Bank of Montreal has opened a branch at Terrace.

——A cargo of 20,000 boxes of British Columbia apples has been shipped for Australia on the liner Makura.

NANAIMO.—Miners on Vancouver Island are to have an increase of wages amounting to 75 cents a day. The scale henceforth will be adjusted every three months to meet the cost of living.

PRINCETON.—Encouragement in the settling up of arable lands near here has been given by the action of the Provincial Government in throwing open 12,000 acres of pre-emption property within a radius of ten miles of the town. Nearly half of the area is considered suitable for settlement, and can be irrigated to advantage. It has been surveyed, each lot comprising approximately 160 acres.

For over fifty years Dr. Barnardo's Homes have been saving children, and during that time they have fashioned out of the raw material of utter destitution, tens of thousands of capable citizens. They have provided 10,715 men for the great war (6,413 in the Overseas contingents); they have sent farmers to the Dominions, artisans to the workshops; and they always have 300 boys in training for the Navy and Mercantile Marine. 86,747 children in all have been helped by the Barnardo Homes, and 6,747 of these have been admitted since the beginning of the war. An urgent appeal is now being made on behalf of the Homes. Contributions may be sent to the Hon. Director, Mr. William Baker, M.A., LL.B., Dr. Barnardo's Homes, 18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, London, E.1. Cheques payable "Dr. Barnardo's Homes" and crossed. (Treasury notes should be registered.)

If any reader can furnish us with a copy of "Canada" of August 31, 1918, for our files, we shall be glad to have it.

BANKING AND FINANCE.

Canadian Railway Results. The gross receipts of the Grand Trunk Railway proper for the month of October showed the substantial advance of £403,500 at £1,301,400, reflecting the incidence of the higher rates now in operation, and as expenses were only £337,400 higher, the net revenue gained to the extent of £66,100. That the showing for the whole year will, however, prove distinctly disappointing is evidenced by the fact that, although the gross receipts for the ten months were £10,423,000, or £1,760,750 up, the whole of this gross gain and £654,650 besides have been absorbed by the alarming and continued increase in expenditure, which is only now beginning to be arrested. Actually to the end of October the aggregate net revenue has contracted by no less than £654,650, and only the most optimistic would venture the hope that the results of the last two months of the current year will bring this down to the round half a million for the whole year. In the case of the Canadian Pacific Railway of the increase of $949,000 reported for October, only $31,000 was retained as addition to net revenue. The gross earnings for the month amounted to $15,683,000, an increase of $949,000. The working expenditure aggregated $10,597,000, an increase of $918,000, and the net earnings were $5,086,000. From January 1 to the end of October the aggregate earnings were $126,764,000, an increase of $2,637,000, which was absorbed, as well as an additional $9,084,000, in increased working expenditure. The Canadian Northern fared distinctly better in October, for of a gross increase of $1,233,400 in gross receipts, $228,400 was retained as addition to net revenue, the increase in working expenses being $1,005,000. For the four months of the new fiscal year which commenced July 1, however, the showing is far from satisfactory, for while the gross revenue expanded by $2,365,200 as a result of the continued heavy inroads of expenditure, this was converted into a net decline for the period in question of $977,400. The mileage in operation was the same as at the comparative period, viz., 9,434.

COL. GRANT MORDEN AND THE ACETATE CELLULOSE COMPANY

Col. Grant Morden, Coalition candidate for the Brentford Division of Middlesex, speaking at Chiswick on Monday night, denied that he had made any profit out of the Acetate Cellulose Company. On the contrary, he said he had lost £25,000 and had lent the company over £100,000. He was prepared to give to any charity any profit it could be established he had made. Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Bonar Law would not have given him official recognition if they had not been satisfied as to his integrity. He could not understand why anybody could take objection to him because he was a Canadian.

SPECIAL OFFER

To Soldiers Returning to Canada.

ALL MEMBERS OF THE O.M.F.C. may, before their return to Canada, send subscription orders for "CANADA" to the Publisher, in London, AT THE BRITISH SUBSCRIPTION RATE. Then, if before they actually depart from England they will advise us by postcard of their Canadian addresses, "CANADA" will be sent to them regularly without any extra charge for postage. By this means subscribers will make sure also of not missing the issues of "CANADA" published during their journey.

AS soon as any reduction in the price of "CANADA" becomes possible through decrease in the cost of paper, etc., subscribers who accept the offer made above will be given the full benefit of such reduction by the proportionate extension of the periods for which they have subscribed.

SEE SUBSCRIPTION FORM ON PAGE V.

"CANADA" is the only paper which keeps you in full and accurate touch with the O.M.F.C.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

N B.—All letters asking for information or advice must contain an enquiry coupon from the current issue of "Canada," except when the enquirer is an annual subscriber.

Detailed replies by letter are not made except to annual subscribers. Non-subscribers desiring detailed or exhaustive replies by letter must enclose a P.O. for 5s., which will cover three questions.

Copies should be kept of questions, and these should be numbered when more than one is asked.

Enquiries regarding investment matters should be marked "Financial" on the left-hand top corner of envelope.

The fullest particulars of special investment opportunities in Canada mentioned from time to time in the column headed "Investment Notes and Opportunities" are supplied on request to readers who are annual subscribers.

D. B. (Catterick).—You must apply through the usual channels, i.e., through your C.O. Your case comes under the jurisdiction of the Imperial and not the Canadian authorities.

H. G. G. (Denham).—(1) See reply to "J. H. A." (Oxford) in last week's issue. (2) The Routine Orders you mention apparently dealt only with cadets taking a course at the Canadian Training School or at the School of Gunnery, Witley.

E. B. S. (Witley).—So far as we know, the list of honours for the period September 27—October 1 has not been published. No dates are usually given when awards are gazetted. The full list, when issued by the Press Bureau, will appear in Canada.

WE Specialise for Officers' Portraits at Moderate Prices

A. B. D. (Seaford).—The authority is Order-in-Council No. 2032, which states that officers and men will receive three months pay and allowances on discharge. This post-discharge pay will be based on the pay and allowances which you would have received had you remained in the service.

QUARTERLY SUBSCRIBER (Birkdale).—Not having full particulars of your case, we cannot say who is to blame for the delay. We suggest that you write direct to the Officer in-Charge, Separation Allowance Branch (Other Ranks), at the Canadian Pay Office Millbank, London, S.W.1.

E. S. F. (Larkhill).—Your case comes under the jurisdiction of the Imperial military authorities. Your best course is to apply to your C.O. The fact that you are a 1914 man [with the O.M.F.C.] will have no weight with the Imperials; the latter judge your length of service from the date you joined them.

EX-PRISONER OF WAR (London).—(1) Probably. (2) Under the latest decision, which has, however, not yet been issued in the form of an Order, you would not lose the gratuity. (3) You could take up land under the Soldier Settlement scheme on your return. (4) You will probably receive a small sum as an honorarium for the loss of your forefinger. Why not call and see us?

ONTARIO AND ITS SOLDIERS.

Brig.-General Manley Sims to be Acting Agent-General.

Brig.-General R. Manley Sims, C.M.G., D.S.O., has notified the Hon. Sir William Hearst, Premier of Ontario, of his pleasure in acceding to the desire of the Provincial Government that he should temporarily act as Agent-General for the Province. The offer of the appointment cabled to General Sims from Toronto read as follows :—" Would you be willing to accept position of Agent-General for Ontario temporarily? Government most anxious that you should do so. We feel that in this position you could be of great service to soldiers and to this Province."

General Sims, whose frank, genial manner is an undoubted asset, has adopted civilian garb as being more appropriate to the duties of his new position, and he evidently has a sincere affection for the men in the ranks who have done their bit.

Speaking to a representative of Canada at the Ontario Government Offices, 163, Strand, General Sims said :—" The fact of this honour being offered me is, I feel sure, due to the desire of the Premier and his colleagues that for the time being, at all events, the main work of its Agent-General's office in London should be devoted to looking after the welfare of the many thousands of Ontario citizens who have been giving their services to the Allied cause during the last four and a half years, of whom the great majority are still in Europe, either at the Front, in camp, in hospital, or awaiting transportation to Canada. Needless to say, as an old soldier who has lived amongst them during the last four years, it is a great satisfaction to me to feel that my experiences can be utilised in this period of restoration and reconstruction in contributing to the welfare and comfort of men who have done great honour to our Province."

Questioned as to the schemes of colonisation and immigration, General Sims said :—" The Ontario Government has established an organised system for meeting the views of men who desire to take up land in our Province, details regarding which this office will be glad to afford them, but it is too early as yet, I think, on account of transportation difficulties, to go into the general question of emigration, though, of course, both as regards the opportunities for settlers and investors in our Province I shall always be glad to give enquirers the benefit of my experience and knowledge."

The New Agent-General.

Brig.-General R. F. Manley Sims is a son of the late Dr. F. Manley Sims, of Hertford Street, Mayfair, London, W. He was educated at Eton and Sandhurst, receiving a commission in the 60th Rifles, with which regiment he served for ten years, and during the South African war received the D.S.O. Leaving the Staff College in 1905, he saw service in India until 1907, when he retired with the rank of Captain, owing to trouble with his feet, and settled in Ontario, where his first work was as secretary to the Fish and Game Commission, presided over by Mr. Kelly Evans, 1909-10. In 1911 he became associated with Mr. J. J. Carrick, ex-M.P., of Port Arthur, whose interests he represented in the Ottawa district. At the outbreak of war General Sims was on a visit to England, and endeavoured to join his old regiment, but being rejected for active service he obtained a commission from the Dominion Department of Militia, Ottawa, in January, 1915, and in August was appointed Assistant Canadian Representative of the Dominion Government at G.H.Q., working under Sir Max Aitken (now Lord Beaverbrook). In January, 1917, he became Canadian Representative at G.H.Q., and remained in that position until June, 1917, when he joined the Ministry of Information. He was promoted Lt.-Colonel in September, 1915, Colonel in January, 1917, and Brigadier-General in December, 1917. He has been mentioned in despatches, and in June, 1917, received the C.M.G.

CANADIAN TROOPS' GIFT TO ANCIENT CHURCH.

The old church of All Saints in the little Surrey village of Witley has for long been popular with the Canadian troops as a place of worship, and the colours of four battalions have been placed in the historic edifice for safe keeping. Last spring some men of the 134th Bn. suggested placing some memorial in the church as a token of their good-will. A sum of £77 was subscribed, and it was decided that oak panelling should be placed all along the south wall of the nave. This is the oldest wall in the church, and was built before 1050 A.D., in Anglo-Saxon days, when Edward the Confessor was King. This panelling will bear a suitable inscription, signifying that Canada and the Motherland have been " united by loyalty in Sacrifice and Faith."

The Bishop of Winchester performed the dedication ceremony on December 6, in the presence of the Hon. C. J. Doherty (representing the Canadian Prime Minister), Brig.-Gen. Hill, and some 300 officers and men. The Vicar (Rev. E. J. Newill) gave the story of the gift, and the congregation sang " O Canada ! " The service was very impressive.

In addition to free passage home, British workmen from overseas will receive a sum of between £2 and £5 in respect of travelling expenses and £5 towards resettlement.

" L 2002 " is a racy story, full of adventure and mystery, by Edgar Jepson, which is sure to have a wide vogue. The heroine is a lady detective. (London : Hutchinson and Co.; 6s. 9d.)

" Can We Compete? " by G. E. Mappin, is explained by the sub-title, " Germany's Assets in Finance, Trade, Education, Consular Training, etc., and a proposed British War-cost Reduction Problem." The author's aim is to show to his fellow-countrymen the strength of their enemies and some methods for ensuring their defeat, and the chapters contain definite proposals for co-ordinating the five groups of interests constituting our economic life, viz., agricultural, industrial, commercial, labour, and general. (London : Skeffington & Son, Ltd. 7s. 6d.)

" The Escape of a ' Princess Pat ' " is proof that truth is stranger than fiction. The book, written by George Eustace Pearson, himself an " original " of the P.P.C.L.I., is a true account of the amazing adventures of Cpl. Edward Edwards (Regimental No. 39, No. 1 Company), who was taken prisoner in May, 1915, from that period until the day of his final escape to Holland. The story is a damning indictment of Germany in respect of its treatment of prisoners of war. The fact that the British Government deliberately suppressed the publication of all narratives by escaped prisoners is a lasting reproach. " There will be many strange tales to come from these camps in the fulness of time," says the author, and all honest men will welcome the publication (uncensored) of these stories, for by them alone can the men responsible for the brutality to our prisoners be brought to stern justice. (London : Hutchinson & Co. 6s. 9d.)

THE PROVINCE OF PROSPERITY.

Vast natural resources and an industrious, thrifty, and enterprising population have brought unexampled prosperity to this Province.

No Province of the Dominion offers more startling opportunities for the investor. Immense water powers, now running to waste, will produce electricity for industrial purposes in unlimited volume; vast forests will supply an enormous cut of timber and wood pulp; rich mineral deposits hold out alluring opportunities to the prospector; extensive tracts of fertile land suitable for general farming and dairying await settlement. Next to its lands and forests, the Fish and Game of the Province are among its most valuable assets, providing splendid commercial opportunities and incomparable sport. Quebec is the Sportsman's Paradise, the Holiday-maker's Elysium, and a land of opportunity for all.

7 o'clock Safety Razor.

The only Safety Razor at less than one guinea that can be stropped without removing blade.

A really dependable razor at a popular price. It opens flat, and can be stropped without removing the blade. This construction also overcomes the difficulty of cleaning, which is the bugbear of so many safety razors.

Strongly made, heavily silvered, and with blades that cannot be surpassed, it is used by many men who could afford a far more expensive razor, but prefer the simple efficiency of the "7 o'clock." The Standard Set consists of heavily silver-plated stropping razor, six finest lancet steel blades, the whole in handsome case, with strop in hinged partition, and the price is 10/6.

THE DISCHARGE GRATUITY.

WHEN in 1914 Canada had to face a call and a menace which impelled every unit of the British Commonwealth of nations to rally to the great fight for freedom, the Government of Canada had to improvise and plan a schedule of payment and allowance for its citizen army. This schedule was based very largely on Canadian ideas of wages and on the needs and requirements of citizen soldiers, and it therefore differed in many particulars from the schedule of those countries which had professional or conscripted armies. The rate of pay given to the rank and file was adequate, and, compared with other forces, generous at the then price of commodities, and the pay for commissioned ranks also at that time compared not unfavourably with other schedules; but these rates were comparatively less generous than those of the rank and file. Provision was very rightly made to prevent hardship in the event of discharge from wounds, sickness, or the cessation of war, and it was thought that three months' pay would adequately bridge the interval between discharge and the resumption of civil employment.

This provision of a discharge gratuity was never regarded by the Government as pay earned by the soldier, as that was considered already adequately provided for, but it was essentially a gratuity given by the State to prevent hardship. It was realised, of course, that this gratuity would not be needed by many, as a substantial proportion of the men who took service in the ranks possessed some means. But the gratuity was established, and could be claimed if required. At the time it was probably not foreseen that men would seek their discharge in England, and when this question came up the attitude of the Government was naturally discouraging. Canada for generations to come needs all its citizens, and as many new ones of a good type as she can possibly attract to her spacious Provinces; therefore the granting in special cases of discharge in England was hedged around with conditions. Only men of low medical category were eligible, and they had to supply proof that immediate occupation was open to them, or that their friends or relatives would provide for them, and would, at the end of the war, bear the expense of the man's return passage to Canada if he desired it. Under these definite conditions some discharges were granted, but no discharge gratuity was payable. This was the logical sequence of these conditions, for the man's necessities being immediately provided for on discharge, the gratuity was not required, though, of course, the man drew his arrears of deferred pay.

No doubt there were a certain number of men who were prevented by these conditions from obtaining their discharge and remaining in England until the end of the war, and had these conditions been subsequently removed, they would have had some cause for complaint. Now, on demobilisation the question has become more acute and more urgent, as, instead of occasional individuals seeking discharge in England, numbers are putting forward their claims. The Government, it must be acknowledged, is in a somewhat difficult position. Naturally it must desire to meet the reasonable wishes of its men who have brought imperishable glory to the name of Canada, but the country needs these men—every one of them—back in Canada, and it is obviously difficult to give concessions now which have been refused for the past four years without provoking just resentment from those who wished to remain. However, circumstances may now prove too strong for the original policy, which was obviously framed in the best interests of the country, to be too strictly adhered to.

The non-payment of the discharge gratuity can logically be adhered to, but the refusal of discharge on this side to fit men can hardly be persisted in. Men have married over here, and temporarily, at least, wish to remain on this side, and others are offered good business or professional openings, and it would be a mere waste of money and congestion of traffic to insist on their departure for Canada if they intend to return by the next boat. Apart from the natural and proper desire to ensure the return of all her manhood who have been fighting in what we hope will be the Last Crusade, the Government is equally anxious that no men should be left behind out of her fine army who might in time become a charge on the public at home, and so bring discredit on the people and Government of Canada. If these points are fairly considered, it can hardly be contended that there is much ground for objection to the existing policy of military discharge, with the one exception which we have mentioned of the case of fit men, and this, we should anticipate, will be shortly yielded.

NOTES OF THE WEEK

The Canadians in Bonn. Bonn, which is being occupied by the Canadian Corps as its headquarters on the Rhine, is a town of some 88,000 inhabitants, on the left bank of the river, twenty-one miles south-east of Cologne. It has interesting historical associations, since, from 1273 to 1794, it was the residence of the Electors of Cologne. This is not the first time it has been occupied by a conquering army, for from 1673 to 1689 it was held by the French, and in 1703 it surrendered to Marlborough. It was acquired by France in 1801, and by Prussia in 1814.

The outstanding features of Bonn are its ancient five-towered minster and its university—now occupied by the headquarters of the Khaki University of Canada on the Continent—where the Prince Consort was once a student. Bonn is famous as the birthplace of Beethoven, and music-lovers amongst the Canadians will find many relics preserved in his house in the Bonnstrasse. It is also the burial-place of Bunsen, the chemist, of Niebuhr, the historian, and of Schumann, the composer.

* * *

Free Passages for Dependents. Before the war in many parts of Canada the preponderance of the male population made the emigration of women an urgent need. The heavy losses of the Canadian Corps have, no doubt, reduced the disparity; but it has not removed it. On these grounds alone it might be urged that the Government should be most willing to pay the cost of steamship and railway transportation for the wives and children of Canadians who have married on this side. Quite apart from the claims of our soldiers to the utmost generosity from the Government and people of Canada, this question of free transportation can be argued on other grounds. The married soldier has no deferred pay coming to him, he can have saved little or nothing at the present high cost of living with which to defray the cost of the passage of his wife and possibly children. In that case, if he elects to remain in this country, this could not be refused him, and valuable settlers would be thus lost to Canada. The Department of Immigration would surely think it worth while to defray the cost and thus obtain desirable settlers. If this argument is accepted, it would then be impossible to deny the claims of soldiers' wives of Canadian birth who are in this country equally to free transportation. This question has now become acute at the discharge depôts, and it should be settled soon, and on generous lines, as every day there are fresh cases of distress and anxiety.

Connected with this matter there is another point which has added considerably to the hardship in some cases. A soldier living in Halifax has perhaps found it easy on his savings to pay for the transportation of his family to his home town, as he has only had to meet the steamship charges, but if he lives, say, in Calgary, the additional railway expenses may be entirely beyond his small means. It would seem that even under the existing regulations the Government might well have made a special rate applicable to any point in Canada for the benefit of soldiers' dependents.

* * *

B C. Soldiers' Direct Route Home. British Columbia is to be congratulated upon the prospect that large contingents of the military forces from that Province are to return as units direct to British Columbia ports viâ the Panama Canal route. The first contingent, we understand, will shortly sail in the C.P.O.S. Empress of Asia, which, with her sister the Empress of Russia, is the finest and fastest vessel in the trans-Pacific service, and has rendered valuable services during the war.

To Mr. F. C. Wade, the recently appointed Agent-General, is due the credit of having made this excellent suggestion through Sir Robert Borden, and its adoption will, we believe, not only gratify public sentiment in British Columbia and among its officers and men Overseas, but also afford an invaluable illustration of the benefit the Pacific ports of the Dominion will increasingly derive from the direct short sea route viâ the Panama Canal. The trade development thus rendered possible was indeed only beginning to be realised when the outbreak of the war paralysed the commercial transportation services of the world.

* * *

Unconquerable. An Italian is reported to have said in the early days of the war, "The British race are the aristocracy of mankind." However that may be, our men have always shown that in adversity they can set an example of fortitude which is one of the qualities of true aristocracy.

We met a Canadian the other day who had been a prisoner of war for twenty-eight months. In every camp his guards did all they could to break his spirit and those of his companions. Many of them died under the hideous ill-treatment and malignant cruelty of the Hun; but their spirits were not broken, even when dying. This man bore all over him the scars of ill-treatment and mal-nutrition—scars he will carry to his grave. No letter was allowed to reach him all those weary months, no parcels allowed to get into his hands. Of all the letters he wrote to his wife very few reached her. He had seen his comrades, goaded to self-defence by blows, shot or bayoneted in cold blood. He had lived on sour black bread and turnip soup for over two years. When his own clothes were worn out, he was dressed in paper garments and old rage; but he never gave in.

He had only been four days in England, and his face showed the ineffaceable marks of strain and suffering; but his spirit was absolutely untouched. He spoke of his torturers without a trace of malice, but merely as degraded and contemptible inferiors. His father and six brothers had been killed during the war. He had two months' leave, at the end of which time he expected to be again fit and well, and he announced his intention of then rejoining the Imperial Army, in which he had served before he went to Canada. Against such men as these how could the Hun hope to win?

* * *

Are We Asleep? An order for lumber for the British Government running into millions of dollars was nearly switched to Finland instead of Canada the other day. In fact, we are told it was only by a lucky chance that a Canadian officer heard of the contract being placed, and representations made to the Colonial Secretary prevented the Finns from securing the order.

If such a thing could happen it would seem that the interests of Canada could be more actively guarded. To maintain a favourable trade balance, Canadian factories must obtain export trade now that munitions are stopped. An active commercial department in London would seem to be urgently necessary.

Problems of the Future. Some of the problems which the near future holds for Canada were indicated at the annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal last week by Sir Vincent Meredith and Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor. These problems are both economic and financial. Failing the securing of complete indemnities from Germany, the meeting of the interest on her large war debt—estimated by Sir Vincent Meredith at $1,800,000,000—will require careful financing in Canada as elsewhere. The President of the Bank of Montreal wisely pointed out the shortsightedness of the policy, advocated in some quarters, of a levy on capital.

Increased production is another necessity of the hour, and this problem and that of taxation will be best solved by stimulating immigration. It is to be hoped that shipping accommodation will be secured for this purpose at the very earliest possible moment.

* * *

Strikes in Montreal. The cabled reports of the strikes in Montreal are very ugly reading. The choicest manhood of Canada have left their country to face the most powerfully armed and the most brutal foe that any soldiers have ever had to meet. They have not only faced the foe for four years of indescribable strain and effort in warfare of more deadly intensity than had ever been previously conceived by mankind, but they have suffered over 200,000 casualties, and a grievous proportion lie still in the fields of France and Flanders.

The Canadian Army has taken its full share in the great victory won by the Allies, and now, in the hour of victory, when the Corps is in occupation of German soil, it hears that at home disgraceful strikes have taken place, and the police have thrown duty and discipline to the winds. The best manhood of Canada have bravely and uncomplainingly endured four winters in the Field, and have brought great glory to the name of Canada, but they have not so endured or fought to enable the men at home whom they have protected with their lives to throw over law and order and espouse anarchy.

* * *

The Yank for Constantinople. The current issue of The Round Table, in discussing "America's Place in the World Government," strongly urges that the U.S. should undertake the guardianship of the Dardanelles, Palestine, Armenia, Arabia, and Persia. Many ancient prejudices will have to be overcome before the people of the U.S. will be induced to take so prominent and important a step in world politics, even if the suggestion were unanimously favoured by the Allies at the Peace Conference.

At the same time, Americans have already taken too prominent a part in international affairs for it to be possible, even were it desirable, for them to return to their much cherished isolation. The guardianship of native races and the protection of the smaller peoples is a duty long undertaken by Great Britain, and one in which she would welcome the firm co-operation of the other branch of the English-speaking people.

* * *

Aerial Transport. The possibilities of the air service after the war have been the subject of much speculation. Canadians, who have taken such a prominent part in aerial fighting, have not been behindhand in making projects for the future. There is a good deal to interest them in the White Paper which contains the reports of the Civil Aerial Transport Committee, which has, among other things, considered the matter from the international standpoint.

The Committee consider it an urgent necessity to establish a system of propaganda throughout the Empire showing the vast importance and possibilities of aerial transport, and recommend the formation of a special branch of the Air Ministry for that purpose. Generally speaking, the Committee strongly support the view that the carriage of mails, passengers, and certain classes of goods by aircraft will present no difficulty from the technical point of view, and they urge the organisation without delay of an experimental service in Great Britain, and also the framing of an international agreement permitting the utilisation of aerial routes immediately after the war.

* * *

Across the Atlantic.

The importance of aerial communication in such a country as Canada is pointed out by the Committee, who also emphasise how important a bearing the improvement in inter-Imperial communication is likely to have on " that greatest of problems, the problem of the future relation to one another of the self-governing States of the British Empire."

In the section dealing with suggested routes the crossing of the Atlantic is discussed. Commander Porte, whose evidence is quoted, holds that for some time a direct route from Ireland to Newfoundland will be impossible. He suggests that the only possible solution of the Transatlantic route for many years will be to use the so-called Azores route, employing San Miguel as a landing station. He recommends a route from London viâ Paris, Madrid, and Lisbon to San Miguel, which is 1,346 miles from Newfoundland, though he suggests that the use of Newfoundland as a terminus presents great difficulty owing to fog. He considers that in the immediate future it will be preferable to fix upon New York as the western terminus of the Atlantic route, and ingenuously suggests that for the purpose of dividing the 2.250 nautical miles which separate San Miguel from Long Island it will be necessary to design and arrange for " sea stations " in the shape of long ships with a clear upper deck of 400 feet, fitted with wireless and the necessary signalling apparatus.

The Committee report that they had not sufficient independent information to enable them to express a confident opinion with regard to these conclusions. The success attending the flights organised by the Daily Mail will be their best test. Meanwhile, we join with a Canadian contemporary in expressing the hope that the first airman to land in British North America by aeroplane from the Mother Country will be a Canadian.

CANADA AND THE PEACE CONFERENCE.

Dominion Delegates' Busy Time.

Sir Robert Borden and his Ministerial colleagues now in London are actively engaged in preparation for the work which will devolve upon them at the forthcoming Peace Conference. In order that the Canadian delegates may not be detained in Europe longer than is absolutely essential, and particularly in view of the political situation in Canada, they are using every endeavour to secure all possible expedition in the proceedings connected with the Conference.

Many other matters are naturally claiming the personal attention of Sir Robert Borden. The question of demobilisation, particularly that phase which deals with the return to Canada of many thousands of soldiers' dependents, is being considered from all its various standpoints.

On Wednesday of last week the Prime Minister had important interviews with Lord Milner and Sir Edward Kemp, and on the following day he and Mr. Sifton attended a meeting of the Imperial War Cabinet.

Canadian Prisoners of War.

The treatment of Canadian prisoners of war in Germany will strengthen the hands of the Canadian Peace Delegates in their demands for full reparation and the punishment of those responsible for the cruelties inflicted on prisoners. Up to a few days ago over 2,000 ex-prisoners had reached England, and the daily arrivals number about 25 or 30. Each man is fully interrogated as to his treatment whilst in enemy hands, and the full story of German barbarity, in so far as it concerns Canadian soldiers, will be ready by the time the Peace Conference is convened.

Blinded Soldiers' Petition for Homestead Grant.

The members of the Canadian Mission learned something of the worst horror of war when they visited St. Dunstan's Hostel, Regent's Park, on the 12th inst. There are some 30 blinded Canadian soldiers now at St. Dunstan's, and these men feel that Canada should do something practical for them in the way of an unrestricted land grant. With this idea, the blinded heroes petitioned the Prime Minister, as representing the Canadian Government, to give to each one of the Canadian soldiers blinded in the war a grant of 320 acres of homestead land without stipulation that it must be personally cultivated, and suggesting methods by which the land can be located for them by proxy.

Restoration of Canadian Ocean Services.

During the past week Sir George Foster has been dealing with the question of the restoration of Canada's shipping facilities to a pre-war basis, and has reached an agreement with the British Ministry of Shipping on a number of important points. The freight and passenger service between Canada and the Orient is to be re-established, and the Halifax-West Indies service has already been resumed.

The British Ministry of Shipping has promised three vessels between now and May for the Canada-South Africa service, and thereafter a resumption of the sailings on the pre-war basis.

Private control of rates will obtain on the resumption of the regular ocean services, with the exception of the North Atlantic freight service, which is likely to remain for some considerable time under the control of the International Maritime Transport Council. It is understood that Canada will be given representation on the Council, and that Mr. Lloyd Harris will be selected as the Dominion representative.

CANADIAN DEMOBILISATION.

New Scheme for Eliminating Delays.

A new system of returning soldiers to their homes in the Dominion, by which it is hoped to eliminate all delays, has been adopted by the Militia Department, and will be in operation early in the New Year (says the Ottawa correspondent of the Daily Record).

Under the present system, immediately after landing in Canada, a soldier, if he so desires, is given two weeks' furlough, the Department providing him with money and a railway ticket. It is necessary at the end of the furlough to report to the Headquarters of the Dispersal Area for medical examination before discharge. This method often caused considerable delay. The new system, which will be set in operation as soon as the necessary machinery is established in England, provides for the issuing of all papers before the men set sail for Canada. Before leaving the Old Country, soldiers will have to go before the Medical Board, after which their discharge papers will be made out and placed in an envelope with other documents which will be given to them.

On arrival in Canada, the men will not be given furlough, but will be sent without delay in batches of 500 to the Dispersal Areas chosen by the soldiers themselves. On reaching there, the envelope containing the discharge and other documents will be opened by the Dispersal Officers and the men will be given their discharge certificates.

This month 20,000 Canadian soldiers are being returned to the Dominion. These represent in the greater part casualties and low category men, whose services can be dispensed with on this side, and they are being sent home prior to the general demobilisation scheme coming into effect.

In view of the Christmas holidays, next week's "Canada" will be published on Tuesday. It will have many special Christmas features. Advertisements for this issue should be sent in by Saturday, December 21.

CANADIANS MARCH INTO GERMANY.

Headquarters at Bonn—The Crossing of the Rhine.

A BONN telegram in the Cologne Gazette of December 11 stated:—"The newspapers here will not appear for the present. The Canadian headquarters will be established in the old town, and consist of over 150 officers and 2,000 men. The suburbs will be occupied by the 2nd Canadian Division."

In a series of despatches from Germany Mr. Fred James, the official correspondent of the Overseas Ministry, says:—

DECEMBER 8.

Three days ago—on December 5—troops of the 1st and 2nd Canadian Divisions marched over the border from Belgium into Germany, the former at a point just east of Petit Thier in Belgium—at the hamlet of Poteau, to be exact—and the latter at Behoe, with bands playing and flags flying.

To-night they are nearing the Rhine. The advanced Canadian line runs ahead of Kommern and Odendorf.

Lt.-General Sir Arthur W. Currie, the Canadian Corps Commander, and the Headquarters Staff crossed into Germany yesterday, coming from Veilsalm, a small town in Belgium—incidentally the last place in that country where the German Crown Prince stayed on his gallop towards Holland.

GENERAL CURRIE AND HIS STAFF (INCLUDING PRINCE ARTHUR OF CONNAUGHT) AT THE FRONTIER.

Canadian War Records Photograph.

So far the occupation of Bocheland, as the troops call Germany, has been without any notable incident. We have been received everywhere with a cold politeness. The inhabitants seem to be surprised that they are treated with consideration and fairness. Naturally they show that we are not welcome visitors, but being such a well-disciplined people, they are obeying to the letter what is required of them with tolerably good grace.

German money is to be used by all ranks of the Army of Occupation, and the value of the mark has been placed at 7d., or 14 cents. Formerly it was worth 1s. or 24 cents. The storekeepers and other folk who have goods to sell take French money readily, and give change at the rate mentioned. The stores in the villages and towns have very limited stocks.

The centre of the route the Canadians have marched since November 17 has been from Mons through Gossellies, Namur, Huy, Veilsalm, all in Belgium, to the present halting place—Schleiden. From Mons to Namur the way was through rich farming country. Beyond Namur the central line taken by the Corps was along the banks of the Meuse, a wide navigable river, that threads its silvery course through the valleys winding between the rocky and pine sloped heights of the Ardenne Mountains.

Evidence of the Hun occupation is to be seen everywhere in Belgium. The fine, big trees that flanked each side of the roads have been cut down by the thousands; Boche motor lorries and remnants of aeroplanes line the roads at intervals from Mons to Schleiden. Most of them have been rendered useless.

DECEMBER 12.

The first crossing of the Rhine at Bonn was made this morning by the British cavalry at present attached to the Canadian Corps. Lt.-General Currie, with his staff and a bodyguard of a troop of the Canadian Light Horse, crossed the big steel convex-arch bridge in the vanguard of the British cavalrymen. The crossing was witnessed by comparatively few civilians, who seemed quietly interested in the smart appearance of the procession.

At the western end of the bridge General Currie took the salute from units of the brigade, while the band of a battalion from Saskatchewan played the popular song tune, "Over There" for the march past.

The cavalry to-day take up the outpost line east of the Rhine.

BONN, FRIDAY, December 13.

The vision of over four years was realised by the Canadian Forces to-day when the 1st and 2nd Divisions crossed the Rhine the 1st from Cologne over the Suspension Bridge, the 2nd from Bonn over the huge steel arch structure. To-night the new boundary line of Canada was flung 30 kilometres east of the famous river, and the Canadians have taken over part of the watch on the Rhine. The crossing was made in a torrential downpour of rain and a thick murky atmosphere, so it was impossible to take good pictures of the historic event.

At Bonn Lt.-General Currie took the salute of all the units of the 2nd Division on a specially erected elevated stand on the east side of the bridge, from which fluttered the Union Jack and the Canadian flag. At Cologne, General Plumer, Army Commander, took the salute from the west end of the bridge. Each unit carried a big Union Jack at the head, and German male civilians who failed to salute the flag were requested to do so under penalty of having their hats flipped off by military police.

It took over six hours for each division to cross the bridge. The procession was miles long. At Cologne the Germans at each side of the bridges numbered a few thousand, but at Bonn not more than a few hundreds.

While the Canadians were crossing at Cologne and Bonn, two British Divisions, the 9th (Scottish) and 29th (English) crossed simultaneously at Cologne over the famous Hohenzollern Bridge, and a smaller one to the north.

The 2nd Canadian Division was preceded by the Canadian Light Horse Cavalry regiment, which acted as Corps Cavalry.

General Plumer expressed pleasure to the Divisional Commander at the fine appearance of Canada's oldest division, and General Currie also congratulated warmly the Commander of the 2nd Division.

The western end of the bridges was reached at 9.30 a.m., and it was nearly 4 p.m. when the last units got to the bridges.

The headquarters of the Khaki University of Canada for France, Belgium and Germany, are now located in Bonn University, with the consent of the Governors of that institution.

On Monday Sir Douglas Haig met the war correspondents on the Hohenzollern Bridge at Cologne and presented each with a small Union Jack as a parting gift. Later he visited the Canadian Corps Headquarters, and also the brigades and divisions in the Corps area.

Sir Robert Borden hopes to spend Christmas with the Canadian Corps in Bonn.

AN ARMISTICE DINNER IN BELGIUM.

General Currie's Justification of a Rejoicing.

An interesting dinner was held at Valenciennes last month by the officers of the 54th (Kootenay) Bn. in celebration of the signing of the Armistice.

Lt.-Col. A. B. Carey, D.S.O., presided, and sixty officers were present, including General W. B. M. King, C.M.G., Brig.-General J. M. Ross, D.S.O., and Brig.-General V. Odlum, D.S.O., and other senior officers representing every unit and staff in the 4th Canadian Division. Others present included Cols. H. T. Hughes, C.M.G., and C. R. Peters, D.S.O., Lt.-Cols. K. R. Marshall, D.S.O., H. S. Trotter, D.S.O., E. W. S. Ryan, D.S.O., R. D. Davies, D.S.O., M. A. Scott, D.S.O., and F. S. Meighen, C.M.G., Majors J. S. Rankin, D.S.O., G. S. W. Nicholson, M.C., W. M. Kirkpatrick, M.C., J. B. Bailey, and G. S. Currie, and Mr. J. F. B. Livesay (Canadian Press War Correspondent).

The Mayor of the city of Valenciennes delivered a stirring address, in which he warmly thanked the Canadian troops for the deliverance of their city and its people. He was ably supported by the President of the French Hospital and Benevolent Society, who paid special tribute to the splendid work of the Canadian Medical Department and Red Cross Society in their work of relief for the succoured people of the city and neighbouring districts. Generals Odlum and King were amongst the other speakers.

General Currie, who at the last minute was unable to attend, sent a letter of regret, in the course of which he said:—

> I know you will celebrate right merrily, and you have every justification for doing so. After more than four years of bitterest battle we have won, won because God willed it so, and because men like yourself, officers and other ranks of the 54th Bn., did not know the word defeat. While the thought of fallen comrades must come to your mind, let it not interfere with your rejoicing. They would be the last to wish it so, so shout and sing, for the victory is yours

CANADIAN COLOURS FOR GERMANY.

Four Battalions Will Take Back Regimental Emblems.

The handsome Colours of the 21st Battalion, provided by the Army and Navy Veterans of Kingston, Ont., and formally presented to the battalion early in 1915 by Lady Borden, were, on the arrival of the unit in England, deposited for safe keeping with Sir George Perley.

On Wednesday of last week Lt.-Col. H. E. Pense, D.S.O., M.C., commanding the unit, despatched a Colour party to England in order to receive once again the regimental emblems. The Colour party consisted of Lt. A. W. May, M.C. (Bar), of Ottawa, officer-in-charge, and Lt. D. H. Woods, of Smith's Falls; and R.S.-M. T. F. Jordan, M.C., D.C.M., of Bloomfield, Ont., accompanied them.

Those present at the ceremony, but not actively participating, included Lt. R. L. Perry (St. Stephen, N.B.) and Sergt. H. G. M. Cordes, M.M. (Belleville), representing the battalion in the Field; Lt. F. L. Barclay, R.A.F., of Belleville, an old 21st man. The guard of honour (of 20 N.C.Os. and men) was furnished by the 6th Reserve Bn., Seaford (under the command of Lt. C. A. Giroux, of Pembroke, Ont.), and was composed entirely of 21st Bn. "casualties."

21st Colours Presentation Ceremony.

The presentation ceremony took place in Sir George Perley's room at the High Commissioner's office in Victoria Street. The party of two officers and a warrant officer were accompanied by two sergeants, with fixed bayonets.

Sir George said he had been very happy to keep the Colours for them. It was appropriate that the Colours had been left with him, because the battalion came from the district where he had formerly lived. When they went forward their friends at home had every faith and hope that they would do things equal to their forefathers. The battalion had accomplished this beyond their greatest hopes. The battalion had been in all the big battles taken part in by the Second Division since its arrival in France. During the summer of 1918 they, with the other units in the Corps, had made history which would never be forgotten.

The work of the Corps (said Sir George) had a lot to do with the final defeat of the enemy. He was proud of the Corps and of the 21st Bn., and congratulated them on their service and record. They had had heavy losses, and they mourned for the brave boys who had gone. Incomplete statistics, said the speaker, showed that the battalion had an honours list of 7 D.S.O.s and 1 Bar, 80 M.C.s and 1 Bar, 6 D.C.M.s, 131 M.M.s and 5 Bars, together with other minor decorations.

In handing back the Colours, Sir George said he understood they were to be taken into Germany, where the Canadians were marching as a victorious army, and where he was sure they would maintain their great record.

The officers then received the Colours on bended knee, and the party proceeded to the street, where the guard of honour presented arms as the Colours were borne through their open ranks to the head of the parade. After being photographed (see our centre double page), the regimental emblems were encased, and the officers and men marched to Wellington Barracks, where they were quartered for the night.

The 38th Battalion's Colours.

On Wednesday of last week also, following an impressive religious ceremony in Westminster Abbey, the Colours (King's and Regimental) of the 38th Bn. ("Royal Ottawas") were returned to a Colour party of the battalion, and on the following day were taken to France to be delivered over to the unit in the Field to be carried on the victorious march into Germany.

There were present at the ceremony the following original officers of this regiment:—Lt.-Col. C. M. Edwards, D.S.O., the original Commanding Officer, Lt.-Col. R. F. Parkinson, D.S.O., Lt. J. R. Macdonald, M.C., and Lt. W. B. McGarrity, D.C.M., while Brig.-General H. F. McDonald, C.M.G., D.S.O., represented the Canadian General Staff.

These Colours, which were presented to the 38th Bn. by the citizens of Ottawa on July 31, 1915, have rested on Wolfe's tomb in Westminster Abbey since the unit proceeded on active service to France.

The 49th Battalion's Colours.

The third Canadian battalion to receive its Colours during last week was the 49th (Edmonton) Bn. A Colour party, which had come direct from Brussels, obtained from Canterbury Cathedral, on Friday of last week, the Colours which they deposited there three years ago.

The battalion has suffered over 3,500 casualties, and only three of the original officers remain. Major Weaver, D.S.O., who travelled with the escort from Brussels, has been thrice wounded

Lt. Floen and Lt. Clowes each of whom has lost a leg received the Colours at the hands of the Dean.

Dr. Wace, in a short address, said the battalion took part in the advance at Ypres in 1916, fought and suffered heavily in the battle of the Somme and Vimy Ridge and Passchendaele Ridge, and this year they were in the front of the struggle before Amiens, Arras, and Cambrai. They also formed a part of the British Army that entered Mons after four years of desperate fighting.

The 49th Bn., originally commanded by Lt.-Col. (now Brig.-Gen.) W. A. Griesbach, C.M.G., D.S.O., has gained two Victoria Crosses and many other honours and decorations. The Colours, which were subsequently brought to London, will be taken into Germany with the army of occupation.

The 78th Battalion's Colours.

On Sunday last, at Canterbury Cathedral, a Colour party from the 78th Bn. (Winnipeg Grenadiers) received the regimental Colours, which they will carry on their march into Germany. Lt. J. A. Weldon, M.C., was in charge of the party, and received the Colours from the Dean of Canterbury, in the nave of the cathedral.

After conveying the thanks and appreciation of all members of the battalion for the honour bestowed upon the unit in having the Colours preserved in the cathedral, Lt. Weldon received them, and the Colour party then proceeded to Folkestone, to return to the battalion.

CANADIANS IN RUSSIA AND SIBERIA.

Forces Operating With Allied Troops.

Canadian Headquarters, London, state that the Canadian Contingent employed in Northern Russia consists of three parties. Parties "A" and "C" are engaged in training and leading the local forces raised at Archangel and Murmunsk and in administrative duties. Party "B" forms part of the Allied Expeditionary Force operating from Archangel. This, in addition to the British and Canadian Contingents, includes American, French, and Russian troops. The object of this force is to protect the Russian people from the ravages of the Bolsheviks and maintain the status of the Allies.

Praise for C.F.A. in Northern Russia.

Major-General E. Ironsides, D.S.O., commanding the Allied Forces at Archangel, previously on the General Staff of the 4th Canadian Division, has commended in enthusiastic terms in a recent despatch to the War Office the work of the Canadian Field Artillery in the recent fighting against Bolshevist elements in Northern Russia. He says:—

"The highest traditions of their arms and of Canada in several trying actions have been maintained by the Field Artillery with the Northern Russian Expeditionary Force. As an old Canadian officer and as Commander-in-Chief, I wish to place their conduct on record."

The Siberian Expedition.

The Government has decided that the Canadian Expedition to Siberia shall go forward to its destination (says the Daily Record's Ottawa correspondent). The force now in Canada will be despatched as soon as possible to join the advance party which is already there. Another section is already en route to the East.

Since the signing of the Armistice there have been certain doubts as to its effect upon the Expedition, but these have been removed as a result of an exchange of cables between the Canadian and the Imperial authorities. Any member of the force, however, who wishes to return will be free to do so at the expiration of one year from the date of the signing of the Armistice. In the meantime, it will be decided whether as a matter of policy the Expedition should continue longer.

A squadron ("B") of men of the R.N.-W.M.P. is going to Siberia under the following officers:—Major (Supt.) G. S. Worsley, Capt. (Supt.) A. W. Duffus, Lt. (Insp.) R. Y. Douglas. Lt. (Insp.) T. S. Belcher, Lt. (Insp.) F. H. French, and Lt. (Sergt.-Maj.) T. Caulkin. Inspector French and Sergt.-Maj. Caulkin have just returned from a two years' patrol, during which they have been engaged in investigating the murder of the missionaries, Radford and Street, at Bathurst Inlet.

The equipment for the dormitory opened for British Columbia soldiers was supplied by the Committee of the Maple Leaf Clubs.

The formal opening of the King George and Queen Mary Club for nurses from the Overseas Dominions and America at 27, Drumsheugh Gardens, Edinburgh, took place last week.

It has been decided by the Dominion Government to establish a Memorial War Museum, where trophies, historical paintings, and records of Canada's part in the war will be preserved.

A letter signed by the Bishop of Kingston and Dr. F. B. Meyer has been addressed to all the clergy and ministers of South London, asking for hospitality for young men of the Dominions during the Christmas week. All such offers should be sent to the Y.M.C.A., Hospitality Department, Tottenham Court Road.

The Royal Canadian Air Service organisation in Canada is being temporarily demobilised until the spring, when a decision will be reached as regards a permanent policy. Cadets who enlisted prior to April 1 last and had completed their training before the flying schools were discontinued will be granted temporary commissions.

VICTORIA CROSS FOR SIX CANADIANS.

Heroic Deeds During the Arras and Cambrai Fighting.

The award of the Victoria Cross to the undermentioned Canadians was announced in a "London Gazette" Supplement dated Saturday, December 14.

Lt.-Col. William Hew Clark-Kennedy, C.M.G., D.S.O., 24th Bn. Quebec R.

For most conspicuous bravery, initiative, and skilful leading on August 27 and 28, 1918, when in command of his battalion.

On the 27th he led his battalion with great bravery and skill from Crow and Aigrette trenches in front of Wancourt to the attack on the Fresnes-Rouvroy line. From the outset the brigade, of which the 24th Battalion was a central unit, came under very heavy shell and machine-gun fire, suffering many casualties, especially amongst leaders. Units became partially disorganised, and the advance was checked. Appreciating the vital importance to the brigade front of a lead by the centre, and undismayed by annihilating fire, Lt.-Col. Clark-Kennedy, by sheer personality and initiative, inspired his men and led them forward. On several occasions he set an outstanding example by leading parties straight at the machine-gun nests which were holding up the advance and overcame these obstacles.

By controlling the direction of neighbouring units and collecting men who had lost their leaders, he rendered valuable services in strengthening the line, and enabled the whole brigade front to move forward.

LT.-COL. W. H. CLARK-KENNEDY, V.C., C.M.G., D.S.O.

NURSING SISTER META HODGE, M.M. (See page 405).

CAPT. B. S. HUTCHESON, V.C.
Photograph: Vandyk.

By the afternoon, very largely due to the determined leadership of this officer and disregard for his own life, his battalion, despite heavy losses, had made good the maze of trenches west of Chérisy and Chérisy Village, had crossed the Sensée River bed, and had occupied Occident Trench in front of the heavy wire of the Fresnes Rouvroy line; under continuous fire he then went up and down his line until far into the night, improving the position, giving wonderful encouragement to his men, and sent back very clear reports

On the next day he again showed valorous leadership in the attack on the Fresnes-Rouvroy line and Upton Wood. Though severely wounded soon after the start, he refused aid, and dragged himself to a shell-hole, from which he could observe. Realising that his exhausted troops could advance no further, he established a strong line of defence, and thereby prevented the loss of most important ground. Despite intense pain and serious loss of blood, he refused to be evacuated for over five hours, by which time he had established the line in a position from which it was possible for the relieving troops to continue the advance.

It is impossible to over-estimate the results achieved by the valour and leadership of this officer.

Capt. Bellenden Seymour Hutcheson, C.A.M.C., attd. 75th Bn., 1st Central Ontario R.

For most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty on September 2, when under most intense shell, machine-gun and rifle fire he went through the Quéant-Drocourt Support Line with the battalion. Without hesitation and with utter disregard of personal safety, he remained on the field until every wounded man had been attended to. He dressed the wounds of a seriously wounded officer under terrific machine-gun and shell fire, and, with the assistance of prisoners and of his own men, succeeded in evacuating him to safety, despite the fact that the bearer party suffered heavy casualties.

Immediately afterwards he rushed forward, in full view of the enemy, under heavy machine-gun and rifle fire, to tend a wounded sergeant, and, having placed him in a shell-hole, dressed his wounds. Capt. Hutcheson performed many similar gallant acts, and, by his coolness and devotion to duty, many lives were saved

Lt. Graham Thomson Lyall, 102nd Bn., 2nd Central Ontario R

For most conspicuous bravery and skilful leading during the operations north of Cambrai.

On September 27, 1918, whilst leading his platoon against Bourlon Wood, he rendered invaluable support to the leading company, which was held up by a strong point, which he captured, by a flank movement, together with thirteen prisoners, one field gun and four machine guns.

Later, his platoon, now much weakened by casualties, was held up by machine guns at the southern end of Bourlon Wood. Collecting any men available, he led them towards the strong point, and, springing forward alone, rushed the position single-handed and killed the officer in charge, subsequently capturing at this point forty-five prisoners and five machine guns. Having made good his final objective, with a further capture of forty-seven prisoners, he consolidated his position, and thus protected the remainder of the company.

On October 1, in the neighbourhood of Blécourt, when in command of a weak company, by skilful dispositions he captured a strongly defended position, which yielded eighty prisoners and seventeen machine guns.

During two days of operations Lt. Lyall captured in all 3 officers, 182 other ranks, 26 machine guns, and one field gun, exclusive of heavy casualties inflicted. He showed throughout the utmost valour and high powers of command.

No. 177239 Pte. John Francis Young, 87th Bn., Quebec R.

For most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty in attack at Dury-Arras sector on September 2, 1918, when acting as a stretcher-bearer attached to "D" Company of the 87th Bn., Quebec Regiment.

This company in the advance over the ridge suffered heavy casualties from shell and machine-gun fire.

Pte. Young, in spite of the complete absence of cover, without the least hesitation went out, and in the open fire-swept ground dressed the wounded. Having exhausted his stock of dressings, on more than one occasion he returned, under intense fire, to his company headquarters for a further supply. This work he continued for over an hour, displaying throughout the most absolute fearlessness.

To his courageous conduct must be ascribed the saving of the lives of many of his comrades.

Later, when the fire had somewhat slackened, he organised and led stretcher parties to bring in the wounded whom he had dressed.

All through the operations of September 2, 3, and 4 Pte. Young continued to show the greatest valour and devotion to duty

No. 2204279 Pte. Walter Leigh Rayfield, 7th Bn., British Columbia R.

For most conspicuous bravery, devotion to duty, and initiative during the operations east of Arras from September 2 to 4, 1918.

Ahead of his company, he rushed a trench occupied by a large party of the enemy, personally bayoneting two and taking ten prisoners.

Later, he located and engaged with great skill, under constant rifle fire, an enemy sniper who was causing many casualties. He then rushed the section of trench from which the sniper had been operating, and so demoralised the enemy by his coolness and daring that thirty others surrendered to him.

Again, regardless of his personal safety, he left cover under heavy machine-gun fire and carried in a badly wounded comrade.

His indomitable courage, cool foresight, and daring reconnaissance were invaluable to his Company Commander and an inspiration to all ranks.

No. 410935 Pte. Claude Joseph Patrick Nunney, D.C.M., M.M., 38th Bn., Eastern Ontario R.

For most conspicuous bravery during the operations against the Drocourt-Quéant line on September 1 and 2, 1918.

On September 1, when his battalion was in the vicinity of Vis-en-Artois, preparatory to the advance, the enemy laid down a heavy barrage and counter-attacked. Pte. Nunney, who was at this time at company headquarters, immediately on his own initiative proceeded through the barrage to the company outpost lines, going from post to post and encouraging the men by his own fearless example. The enemy were repulsed and a critical situation was saved. During the attack on September 2 his dash continually placed him in advance of his companions, and his fearless example undoubtedly helped greatly to carry the company forward to its objectives.

He displayed throughout the highest degree of valour until severely wounded.

THE NEW V.C.'s.

Lt.-Col. W. H. Clark-Kennedy was born on March 3, 1880, at Dunskay, Ayrshire, and is the second son of the late Alexander Clark-Kennedy of Knockgray, Kirkcudbright (D.L. for that county), and of the Hon. Mrs. Clark-Kennedy of Knockgray, sister of Viscount Lifford. He served with the Imperial Army in the South African War, and afterwards proceeded to Montreal as an official of the Standard Life Assurance Company, later becoming local assistant manager. When war broke out he was one of the first officers of the 5th Royal Highlanders of Canada to volunteer for service. In that year he married Miss Kate Reford, daughter of the late Mr. Robert Reford, of Montreal. Coming overseas as a company commander in the 13th Bn., he was incorrectly reported killed following the Second Battle of Ypres. He was later given his majority, awarded the D.S.O. in January, 1916, and the C.M.G. last June. He was recently awarded a Bar to his D.S.O., and also holds the Croix de Guerre. Following a period of service as a staff officer, he was given command of the 24th Bn. (Quebec Regt.), and was slightly wounded in the right leg on August 29 last.

Capt. B. S. Hutcheson, C.A.M.C., is an American doctor who has held a commission in the C.A.M.C. since December 14, 1915, having enlisted at Exhibition Camp, Toronto. He was born at Mount Carmel, Illinois, U.S.A., on December 16, 1883, and the news that he had won the V.C. was published on Monday last (the 16th), constituting a unique birthday gift. He is the son of Mr. Bellenden Hutcheson, of Mound City, Illinois, where he practised as a physician and surgeon, following his graduation in medicine at Chicago University. Capt. Hutcheson's original unit was the 97th Bn., of which he was M.O., and he has been serving in France as M.O. of the 75th Bn. He was awarded the M.C. this month for exceptional courage and devotion to duty under heavy fire, his deed being given in last week's issue of Canada. This gallant M.O., who has never been wounded, is to arrive in England shortly in order to take up hospital work here.

Lt. G. T. Lyall is the son of the Rev. R. H. Lyall, a Darwen (Lancashire) clergyman, and by profession is a mechanical engineer. He was born on March 8, 1892, at Manchester, and when he enlisted as a private in the 81st Bn. in 1915, was living at St. Catharines, Ont. He transferred to the 4th C.M.R., was given his commission and attached to the 8th Reserve Bn. He was wounded on November 18 last year, but remained at duty.

Pte. J. F. Young, 87th Bn., was born at Kidderminster on January 14, 1893. He was a tobacco packer in Montreal, where he enlisted in the 87th, and is one of the few "originals" of that unit. He has been in khaki since October 20, 1915, and was wounded on October 2 last. His next-of-kin is Robert C. Young, of 376, St. Phillip Street, Montreal.

The Late Pte. Claude Nunney, 38th Bn., was born in Dublin, on December 24, 1892, and was a painter by trade, following that occupation at Ottawa until he enlisted in the 38th Bn. on March 8, 1915. This gallant soldier was first wounded on May 3 last, and again fatally on September 12. He died of his wounds at a Casualty Clearing Station six days after being wounded.

Pte. Walter Rayfield, 7th Bn., is, like the majority of the new V.C.'s, an Englishman by birth. His birthplace was Richmond, Surrey, and he is 37 years of age, having been born on October 7, 1881. He is by trade a lumberjack, and enlisted at Victoria, B.C., on July 10, 1917. The address of his next-of-kin is given as Redmond, Washington, U.S.A.

LAND FOR SOLDIERS' SETTLEMENT.

Government's Proposed New Legislation.

A cablegram received by Sir Robert Borden from the Hon. Arthur Meighen, Dominion Minister of the Interior, outlines further legislation in regard to soldiers' land settlement, which will, it is understood, come before the Dominion Parliament at its ensuing session, as an outcome of the recent conference with the Provincial Ministers at Ottawa. Mr. Meighen says:

My proposal to the Provincial Conference includes the introduction to Parliament of a new Soldier Settlement Act, embodying power for the Board to acquire by expropriation or otherwise lands in any Province, either directly or through provincially-constituted boards. If acquired provincially our Board is to have first privilege for a limited time to take over same at cost price, thus giving soldiers preference on all land acquired in the general system.

Our Board is also to be empowered to purchase stock and equipment for soldiers, and will provide soldiers with house and building plans. Lands acquired as above will be sold to soldiers on an amortisation plan, twenty years or longer, at 5 per cent. interest. Each soldier's allotment of land is to be limited by value, not acreage, and the suggested limit is $5,000. Each soldier as to pay one-tenth down, with discretion to the Board in very special cases to relieve of this obligation. The Board then provides the soldier with stock and equipment up to $1,500 with no interest for two years, and thereafter 5 per cent. short term. If the soldier improves the land the Board may advance up to $1,000 additional, repayable on amortisation plan.

Indian lands adequately surrendered, and specially valuable Government land, will be also made available for sale to soldiers, who will then be entitled to assistance under above plan. Soldiers securing land privately, where terms are approved by Board, will also be entitled to assistance for improvement as above.

A scheme of practical agricultural education has been matured, and is now in operation, Major Ashton and Mr. Bailey being overseas now to inaugurate work there. Most careful provision will be made for testing the qualifications of all applicants, and only probably successful men accepted. After settlement every possible supervision and encouragement will be given.

All homesteadable lands or provincial Crown Lands made available by the Province may be homesteaded and soldiers given assistance thereon under the plan of the present Act.

The widest circulation may be given this statement as the Government proposals to Parliament.

Instructions in Farming.

With regard to the agricultural course to be carried out in England, Mr. Meighen has stated that the farms will be organised as schools of instruction in the essentials of farming under Canadian conditions. They will provide an intensive course of about three months' duration, the staffs being selected from service men who were formerly connected with agricultural teaching.

The course bears little similarity to the regular agricultural college course, being designed to teach inexperienced men the every-day operations of the farm rather than the scientific principles underlying agriculture. It is proposed by its means to carry the men along from a point where they know nothing of farming to a point where they will have a sufficient working knowledge to become self-supporting, virtually from the time they go upon the land.

Inexperienced men returning at once to Canada may either gain experience by working with successful farmers, or they may take a course outlined above at an agricultural college or similar institutions in Canada. It is the intention to inaugurate a follow-up scheme with the co-operation of Provincial Agricultural Departments, whereby the men will be advised and instructed after they go upon the land.

The programme relates only to those inexperienced in farming. Experienced men who satisfy the Soldier Settlement Board that they possess a reasonable fitness for farm life, and the other qualifications called for by the Act, will be permitted to go upon the land without further instruction.

The Soldier Settlement Board announces that loans amounting to $1,239,000 have been approved to 975 returned soldiers.

WOUNDED, MISSING, AND PRISONERS.

Imperial Forces.

Capt. G. W. McGhee, R.G.A. (wounded), is a partner in the firm of Rothwell, Johnson, Bergman & McGhee, barristers, of Winnipeg, and came overseas as a private in 1915. His uncle, and nearest relative, Colonel A. S. P. McGhee, is also on active service with the R.G.A.

Sec. Lt. Bruce MacKendrick, R.E. (wounded in the leg), is the son of Mr. J. N. MacKendrick, of Galt, Ont.

Sec. Lt. James B. MacMillan, R. War R. (wounded), was employed by the Montreal Light, Heat & Power Co. prior to the war, and endeavoured to enlist in Montreal, but being refused, came overseas at his own expense, and enlisted in the R.A.M.C. in May, 1915. He obtained his commission in the Royal Warwickshire Regiment about a year ago after having seen service in Egypt.

Sec. Lt. R. C. Mitten, R.A.F. (prisoner), is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mitten, of Eighth Avenue West, Vancouver, and enlisted in the Air Force in 1917.

Lt. J. K. Shook, R.A.F. (prisoner at Karlsruhe), was formerly on the head office staff of the Imperial Life Insurance Company, of Toronto.

Lt. E. R. de la Labliere, son of the French Consul in Toronto, was killed on October 5 whilst fighting with the Chasseurs (Blue Devils) of General Gouraud's Army. Deceased, who was born in Toronto 23 years ago, was a Science student at Toronto University when war broke out.

Lt. Angus D. Gray, M.C., of Port Credit, Ont., died at his home on October 25 of influenza and pneumonia. He enlisted in 1915, was twice wounded when serving with the C.M.G.C., and was awarded the M.C. in July, 1917.

Lt. Wm. Hazlett, the son of Mr. W. Hazlett, of Kingston, and formerly of the 21st Bn., died in hospital at Kingston on October 24. He was invalided home after being gassed.

Lt. George E. Sales, who died at Winnipeg on October 30 of broncho-pneumonia, came overseas with the 43rd Bn. as a sergeant, and won his commission on the field. He was wounded and gassed at Courcelette

Major Ernest Thornton, who came overseas with the original 5th Bn. as Transport Officer, has died at Winnipeg from the effects of lung wounds received at the Second Battle of Ypres. He homesteaded in the Wapella district of Saskatchewan some 30 years ago, and fought in the South African campaign with the Strathcona Horse. Later he entered the service of the Union Bank of Canada, and in 1914 was manager of a Winnipeg branch

Dr. Guy H. Wallace, late Capt., C.A.M.C., died suddenly in

New York on the 9th inst. from an attack of pneumonia following influenza. Dr. Wallace, who was for a long time on the staff of Moore Barracks Hospital, Shorncliffe, was invalided out of the Army in 1917 as a result of an attack of pleurisy contracted whilst on his way overseas. After resting for several months in order to regain his health, he had resumed his practice in New York, where he was associated with Dr. Wheelwright, 515, Madison Avenue.

Capt T. L. O. Williams, M.C., who died at Rapid City, Man., on October 21 of pneumonia, came overseas as a sergeant in the 28th Bn. Reverting to private to get to France, he won his commission, and was awarded the M.C. for gallantry in the St. Eloi fighting. In that engagement he was so severely wounded that both legs were amputated. He was also decorated with the French Legion of Honour and the Russian Order of St. Stanislaus. Deceased was formerly a noted athlete.

Lt. Ben. H. Kewley, Man. Regt. and R.A.F. (released from Germany), was formerly accountant in the Elmwood (Winnipeg) branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. He was taken prisoner during a night bombing raid on September 24 last. Lt Kewley left Winnipeg as a private with the Fort Garry Horse in 1914, and served both as a cavalryman and in the infantry before securing his commission.

TRAINING FOR CANADIAN SOLDIERS' WIVES.

Khaki University's Free Courses.

The Canadian Government having made arrangements for dealing with the return of the soldier to civil life and his settlement on the land, has now turned its attention to the many thousands of British women who will be returning to Canada with the troops as wives and mothers. Conditions in the new country are, in many instances, similar to those in the old; but, on the other hand, there are many points where they differ, and the Canadian Government co-operating, through its emigration and colonisation branch at Charing Cross, London, with the Khaki University of Canada, has assisted in organising a Department of Home Economics which will be of enormous advantage to those availing themselves of the opportunities it offers.

The aim of the work is to acquaint women with conditions in Canada, and to provide instruction with a view to meeting these conditions, and thus bring about a speedy assimilation of the English and Canadian people.

Under the Department of Home Economics cookery and laundry courses are already in operation. Under the Department of Agriculture lectures in dairying, poultry, gardening, and beekeeping will be given, the lectures in each subject lasting forty minutes. Under the London County Council, who are co-operating in every possible way, evening classes will be held in dressmaking, needlework, embroidery, home upholstery, tailoring, first aid, home nursing, health lectures, citizenship, home organisation (consisting of home planning, home furnishing, textiles, window-boxes, and civics), millinery, physiology, infant care and boot repairing.

All courses are from 12 to 15 lessons. If fewer than twelve students enrol for any course they must enter the regular classes of the London County Council. If over twelve students enrol for any course they can have a special class formed to meet at a time to suit their convenience. No registration fee, entrance fee, or tuition fee is payable by any woman intending to go to Canada, and the wife of any Canadian soldier is especially invited to join some of those free classes, which have been arranged with full approval of the authorities.

For full details as to classes, hours, places of meeting, etc., intending candidates should apply to Mrs. Cunningham, head of the Economic Department, 49, Bedford Square, W.C.1, who is an experienced dietitian and graduate from Winnipeg.

The Emigration Department has arranged with the Y.W.C.A. that an experienced Canadian lady shall travel with all large parties of soldiers' dependents to advise them en route. Mrs. Berrington Ham, of the Canadian Y.W.C.A., has arrived in London for this purpose, and can be seen meanwhile at the Soldiers' Dependents Branch, British Columbia House, 1, Regent Street, London, S.W.1.

UPPER CANADA COLLEGE BOYS' DINNER

It is proposed to hold in London, towards the end of January, 1919, a dinner of Old U.C.C. Boys now in Europe. Will all Old Boys who wish to attend kindly send their names and addresses at once to the Hon. Secretary of the London Branch of the Old U.C.C. Boys' Association, 17, Victoria Street, S.W.1, who will furnish full particulars as to place and hour of the dinner? It is hoped that all Old Boys will make an effort to attend. Dr. Parkin and Mr. Jackson will probably both be present.

* *

The jurisdiction of the Royal North-West Mounted Police is being extended to include the Provinces of Manitoba and British Columbia, says the Daily Record. It is proposed to increase the establishment from 1,500 to 2,500, which addition will probably be made up of returned men previously with the Force.

CANADIAN ARMY BOXERS.

Poor Showing in King's Trophy Competition.

With the exception of Sergts. Rolph, Joe Attwood and Jimmy Clarke, Canada's team entered for the King's boxing trophy were a mediocre lot. Even the three first-named were badly outclassed when they stacked up against the "real thing." The result was that Canada did not get "placed" in the competitions, although they managed to do better in the matter of points than New Zealand and South Africa. Major W. W. Macaw captained the Canadians, and no one followed the fortunes of the team with greater interest than Lt.-Col. H. G. Mayes, the head of the C.A.G.S., and vice-chairman of the Organising Committee of the Imperial Services Boxing Association.

Canadians will feel highly gratified that Capt. L. R. Warn, one of the three judges of the Wilde-Moore contest, over which so much controversy has centred, was of opinion that Wilde had clearly won, and gave his verdict accordingly. What grounds the other two judges had for awarding the contest to the American boxer will perhaps never be known. Suffice it to say that their amazing decision was the one flaw in the whole tournament.

A charity Soccer game will be played between teams representing the Canadian and Australian Services at Chiswick on the morning of Boxing Day. The proceeds will be devoted to the Daily Express Soldiers' Cheer Fund.

To-day (Saturday) there will be a basket ball match between the Calais team of W.A.A.C.s, headed by Lt. Maurine Robb, of Winnipeg, which team is being coached by Capt. Mel Brock, of the 10th Canadians, an old Toronto 'Varsity player, and the Boulogne basket ball team of W.A.A.C.s.

THE INFLUENZA MASK.

(During the prevalence of the epidemic of influenza in Alberta the wearing out of doors of masks made of cheese-cloth was made compulsory. The following verses are from the pen of a member of the Calgary staff of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.)

Though Beauty's eyes may brightly beam
With love in every glance,
Yet Beauty's lips are seldom seen,
And Cupid has no chance;
For westward, borne upon the breeze,
Come unromantic germs,
And naught is heard but sneeze and sneeze
Where'er a body turns.

Disconsolate along the streets
Man walks, oppressed with care,
And hopeless scans the crowd he meets
To find his ladye faire;
For, swathed in white from ear to ear
She braves the dreaded 'flu,
And as he greets each unknown dear,
She answers with—"AT! CHOO!"

But soon perhaps the 'flu will go,
The masks be put away,
And all the bills Dan Cupid owes
On ruby lips he'll pay.
And then from bank and farm and store
A paean of joy will rise
Denied awhile, Love grows the more,
And Beauty's lips we'll prize

CHAPTER I.—IN THE BEGINNING.

SHE came—and with her a warmer sun and a brighter day. She looked down on him, squatting, with his back against the boat house, and smiled.

"I haven't been long, Don," she said, guiltily.

He gazed at her impassively and attempted to look inscrutable.

"All nice men get up when charming young ladies recognise their existence," she remarked.

"I'm not a nice young man," replied the young man scornfully.

"O, Don, darling! You're not going to be strong and silent to-day, are you? I don't want you to be strong and silent this afternoon. Let's go."

He got up, and they went down the dock together towards his dinghy, moored to a post at the end of the line of boat houses.

It was a perfect day in the middle of August, a fresh sailing-breeze whipped the tops of the waves—a day to make any amateur yachtsman's heart leap in his breast—and as they walked down the man felt queerly conscious of things, the good smell of the sun on the planks, the feel of the wind on the water, the sun catching the new sails of a skiff putting about out in the bay. He sighed, and the girl regarded him thoughtfully and shook her head.

He helped the girl into the dinghy and rowed out to his yawl, an old boat possessing good lines and much fresh paint.

"Don't snap at me like that!" said the girl, after ten minutes' silence. "If you knew all the really nice men, Don Carew, who asked me to come out with them this afternoon, you wouldn't sit there like an old image trying to look dignified."

YACHTING IN THE BAY.

By this time Don had hauled up the sails, cast off and taken his place at the tiller, the yawl feeling her way out from the moorings against a head wind.

"Why didn't you bring a putty-knife?" he grunted. The question caught her in an unguarded moment.

"Whatever for?" she said.

"You could get more paint off my deck with it," he hissed triumphantly, but Kitty was herself again.

"Thought it was worms or something," she replied, and with the unwarranted libel on the age of his vessel Carew subsided once more into gloomy silence.

Kit was a very nice girl. The kind of girl with whom a man may have the very best times in his life. Men should marry girls who have shared the emergencies that crop up in most vigorous forms of sport, and a sunny background of pleasant memories of dangers averted and overcome should form a very valuable asset to a husband and wife in time of trouble.

Don headed his boat out into the bay, and gazed at the girl thoughtfully. Kit was endeavouring to attract the attention of a quite strange, but very nice-looking, young man in a canoe they were overhauling.

"Kit—" said Don, and stopped. Then, making plain his mind to the girl, he went on. "They're having big times in France just now—that's where a man ought to be, you know. What d'you think, Kit?"

Unconsciously the girl had put her hand to her heart. Words and thoughts choked her for a minute—her pretty plans had suddenly collapsed.

"O, Don!" she burst out. "You don't want to go over there, Don. Why d'you want to go over there? It's not your country, anyway. Why would you want to go and get killed for somebody else's old country? It's not your business to go and fight. You're not going, are you, Don?"

She burst into tears and fumbled with her handkerchief, gazing anxiously at him the while.

"Kit, old partner," he blurted out, "do you mind? I didn't know you cared. Why, girl—" and he tried to put his arm round her shoulders.

The yawl heeled and shipped a small sea, and he grabbed the tiller again.

"I don't care!" she said, ashamed. "And now I'm all wet because you can't sail a boat, and oh! Don, you're not really going, are you?"

"But, Kit, there's nothing else to do these days. A fellow's got to go—even if he didn't want to—you must see that, old girl."

"I don't see it a bit," she cried. "All men are selfish brutes, anyway, and you're worse. Go off to war and get killed and never think of anybody else and your mother and everybody! But I think you're awfully brave, Don."

"You might wait a bit till I know myself whether I am or not," said Don. "But all the same, Canada's done an awful lot of talking about her loyalty, and now she's got to do something to justify all the rhetoric. We've all got to take a hand in this old scrap, girl, it's everybody's job."

He warmed up to his theme, and, being young and keen and earnest, thought to impress her with a lecture on patriotism and duty to the Empire, but was cut short by the girl suddenly turning her back upon him.

"O, stop, Don," she said, "and let's go home. I'm tired of sailing, and you, and the old boat, and everything."

He brought the boat round silently, and ran for the dock.

"I'm sorry, Kit—" he started lamely, but she wriggled indignantly and he stopped again.

He felt very depressed as he put away his boat and took the girl round to the near-by garage, where he had left his car. He thought it was probably the last they would see of each other for a very long time—possibly for ever, he reflected gloomily, and wondered that she hadn't been more sympathetic. He gave the wheel a vicious wrench as they drove away and narrowly avoided the ditch, but the girl at his side took no notice. They went on in silence, passing the circus grounds, where a noisy fair was in progress, and Carew waved recognition to a friend, one of his foremen named Burton, but received no response. He wondered if Burton was worried over a girl.

He had just decided that all girls were quite selfish, and that he'd finished with them for ever, when Kit suddenly put her arm round his neck and kissed him, causing the unmarked death of a self-reliant chicken that had reckoned himself well within the zone of safety.

"Good Lord, Kit, be careful!" he shouted.

"O, well, if you don't want me to kiss you—" she replied, and wriggled as far distant from him as the confines of the car would allow, until they drew up at her house, when she ran inside, telling him to wait.

She came out in a minute with a dignified expression, and a hasty and disintegrating bundle which she hurled into the seat beside him. Carew caught a glimpse of his photograph, a bundle of letters, and the usual offerings.

"There," she said, "good-bye!" and ran back into the house. The door slammed like it does in an Ibsen play.

Carew drove slowly homeward.

* * *

Mamie kicked her heels impatiently against the corner of the building and waited for her man.

She knew he had got the afternoon off, and there was no excuse for keeping her waiting. She wasn't used to being kept waiting, anyway, for Mamie, let me tell you, was the undisputed belle of the Gas-fitters' Ball, and the Mechanics' Ball, and, in fact, most every ball that was organised and attended by the young machinists and apprentices of the town.

Mamie was a very pretty girl, and always in demand, and she felt keenly the affront to her dignity and position. She wondered whether she would just go away and give up the afternoon trip, but she remembered that it had taken longer to bring Harry Burton to heel than any of her other followers, and she was none too sure of her hold on his affections.

She waited.

Burton, a square, happy-looking young man in the inevitable baggy blue suit and yellow boots, came pushing through the throng, and she started to scold him as he came within hailing distance.

"Well, you Harry Burton!" she said, "the idea——!"

"I'm real sorry, Mamie," said the young man, "but I couldn't help it. I've been talking to some of the fellows, and I clean forgot the time."

"Been drinking with the fellows, I think," retorted the girl. "Now let's go, or we won't see anything of the fair."

Burton looked somewhat pre-occupied as he helped her on the electric trolley car that was to take them to the circus, advertised conspicuously on the sides of the conveyance. He leant forward as they bumped past a newspaper office, and tried to read the fresh war bulletins that had just been posted, and then sat back, obviously thinking little of the girl beside him.

"What's on your mind, Harry?" she said, watching him, her anger forgotten. "What's worrying you?"

He looked at her, afraid to tell her of his decision.

"Why, nothing, Mamie," he replied. "I was just wondering how things were going on the other side. Looks like the Germans are going to take all of Belgium."

"It's certainly awful," she agreed, and he laughed to himself at the inadequate expression.

A clanging journey through the outskirts of the town, and they arrived at the circus grounds, the hooting of the sirens, banging of the marksmen at miniature rifle ranges, and the heat of the day filling the man with a queer sense of disgust.

"Come on, Harry," cried the girl. "Let's walk around and look at the side-shows before we go in to the performance"

They pressed through the crowded entrance, Burton giving up the tickets at the clicking turnstiles, and wandered about the dusty grounds, the girl clinging to the man's arm and squeaking with feigned fright whenever some particularly lurid troupe of performers or decrepit animal claimed her notice. Every now and then she recognised an acquaintance, and screamed and gesticulated until the aimless streams of people swept them apart.

"We'll often come to circuses, Harry," she said, her face flushed and pretty, "when we get married."

Harry registered a mental determination to do nothing of the kind, and fell to wondering why he really cared for this girl when their inclinations were so different.

Something had happened to him, he knew, since last night, when he had heard that fellow talk about France and the war. Ordinarily he loved the mild excitements of the fairs, and took great enjoyment in out-punching the amateurs at the punching-bag, out-shooting the competitors at the rifle-ranges, and generally showing his ability before the admiring eyes of this girl.

WATCHING THE PERFORMANCE.

"Let's go into the big tent, Mamie," he said, "I want to talk to you."

She expostulated, but followed, and they pushed their way to the comparative peace of the largest tent, where the main performance, pageants and so forth, was scheduled to take place in half-an-hour.

"What is it, Harry?" she asked, when they had safely achieved two seats upon the rickety tiers of benches, "Why are you so funny to-day? You're not enjoying things a bit."

Burton collected his strength, apparently by regarding his foot gear.

"Look here, Mamie," he said, "I've decided to enlist and go to the war. All the fellows are going in the pressroom, and we want to get over there with the first crowd." He took a deep breath, noticed her strained expression, and went on hurriedly. "And I'll be back in a few months or so with medals and lots of money and everything, and we'll get married at once."

He looked at her, met her baleful gaze, and hurriedly stared at his boots again.

Mamie started to express her opinions on the subject.

"You mean to say, Harry Burton, you have the nerve to sit there and talk like that. I certainly never heard of such nonsense. You asked me and begged me to marry you a month ago, and now you want to go off to France or somewhere. I know what it is, you don't want me any more, and you're just trying to make excuses. O, I hate you, Harry!" She burst into noisy weeping, repelling Burton's inarticulate attempts to comfort her with a heaving but firm shoulder.

The tent was gradually filling up with people, in anticipation of the performance, and a party of simple but chivalrous youths seated above the pair began to express their amazed resentment at the sight of Mamie's tears.

"You're a hell of a feller to bring out a girl," shouted one. Another, standing up, stated his firm resolution to come down and "knock the head off the guy who didn't know enough to treat a girl right," but was dissuaded by the sanguinary expression of Burton's face as he turned. He sat down again amidst the sarcastic comments of his [illegible].

"Come on, Mamie, let's get out of here," said Har[illegible] and taking the girl's arm helped her down t[illegible] the l[illegible] but she [illegible]ed her arm away as they came near the entrance, and slipped away from him before the man guessed her intention.

He started in pursuit, following her to the gates, and being followed himself by a train of curses and expostulations from the people he pushed aside.

"Mamie!" he shouted, but the girl took no notice, and, slipping through the turnstiles, climbed upon a tram, already moving towards the town. Delayed in the stile, he made frantic signs to the conductor, who took no notice beyond making jeering signs of admiration as Burton raced after the speeding car. He gave up the attempt, dusty and dishevelled, gazed wistfully after his lost love, and sat down disconsolately by the roadside.

"Now, wouldn't that jar you off your perch?" he said.

* * * *

Carew came slowly along the road, threading his way between the throngs, and brought his car to a standstill beside Burton, whom he had recognised as a former employee of his.

"Quite a little run you had, Harry," he said mildly. "D'you particularly want that car? You can have it if you like, you know. why all the misery?"

Burton came up to the two-seater, getting in beside Carew as the door was opened to meet him

"Hullo, Don," he said, "damn glad to see you. My girl's just given me the haughty rejoinder and beat it on that car. I'm quite worried about it."

Carew started the car, and they went on for some time without speaking, both full of their respective unhappinesses.

"Bring out your dead, Harry, tell me all about it," he said, after a while. "I'm in the same trouble," and Burton, with a sympathetic grunt, started to spread himself.

"Look here, Don," he began, "don't you think when a fellow's made up his mind to do the only decent thing in his life his girl ought to help?"

"I certainly do," replied the other, "but supposing she don't happen to think it's a fine thing, too?"

"Well, she ought to," said Harry. "You see, a funny-looking beggar was in the office last night, and he was talking a whole lot about France and the way this war is going to smash up things, and a lot of us thought we'd go over and help, seeing Canada's sending over an army. So I told Mamie about it just now, and she ran away and left me."

"Didn't give your photograph back, did she?" asked Carew, looking interested.

"Hasn't had time," replied Burton moodily, "it'll likely be there with everything else when I get back to my rooms. Why?"

"You're sitting on mine," Carew said simply.

And later on they went down and enlisted together.

THE DE BECK LIBEL ACTION.

Our solicitors have notified us that the action for libel commenced by Mr. Alexie Maria de Beck against the editor and proprietors of Canada has been dropped. This action was commenced owing to our comments on the exposure of this naturalised Hungarian by the Evening Standard, and the verdict of the jury in favour of our contemporary indicated the certain failure of his action against us.

This is the second abortive action he has commenced against Canada, which has warned the public against this "unscrupulous adventurer"—as Sir Edward Carson described him to the jury—ever since 1912, when he started a paper to unload worthless Canadian building plots on British investors

In our efforts to protect the public and the good name of the Dominion, Canada has been put to heavy legal expenses. Surely in the interests of the financial credit and prestige of Canada some official organisation could be devised for the protection of the public, so that it would not be left to newspapers to be put to this heavy and thankless expense.

◆ ◆

NEW ANZAC-ON-SEA ESTATE.

The House of Lords has given judgment in this case wholly in favour of the Daily Express.

Mr. Neville, the plaintiff, was first known to the investing public through his offer of so-called building lots outside Regina, trading under the name of the Canadian Pacific Land Co. This title he was forced to drop through action of the C.P.R., so he changed the name to Canadian Capital Investments. He was severely criticised in Canada for the misleading description he gave to these outside town lots, and he brought action for libel against us. A commission was sent to Regina to take evidence from local real estate men and others, and as a result the action was abandoned and Neville paid our costs.

After the outbreak of war Neville conceived the plan of subdividing some land on the South Coast, in the neighbourhood of Brighton, and selling it as a new town site. The Daily Express criticised the scheme and warned the public. A libel action followed and a foolish jury gave a verdict in favour of Neville. This was upset on appeal, and has now been finally settled by the House of Lords. We congratulate the Daily Express on its public spirited action, which, though it has won its case, must entail very heavy expense

Why does not the Press endeavour to get libel cases placed among non jury cases? It would save much time and fewer wrong verdicts

Forthcoming issues of "Canada" will contain war sketches by Capt. (Rev.) R. J. Renison, D.D., Robert Service, Patrick MacGill, etc.

Christmas

THE Goldsmiths and Silversmiths Company have made a great effort to offer Christmas stocks of the most varied and complete description for the selection of Gifts. Buyers should, however, be warned to make an alternative choice, if possible, in the case of short supply, as the demand for advertised articles is expected to be exceptionally large. Such shortness of supply would only be the result of War conditions. All articles are of highest quality and the best value.

Selections will be sent for approval, if desired, carriage paid, and at the Company's risk, or a Christmas Catalogue may be had post free on application.

WARNING

The Goldsmiths and Silversmiths Company have no branch establishments in Regent Street, Oxford Street, or elsewhere—in London or abroad—only one address, 112, Regent Street, London, W.1.

CANADA'S OVERSEAS MILITARY FORCES.

Discharges in England—Promotion for Brig.-Generals Thacker and Lindsay—Notes for Officers and Men.

All warrant officers, N.C.O.s and men of the O.M.F.C. in Canada on sick furlough, have been struck off the strength of the O.M.F.C. as from November 28 last, on being taken on the strength of their respective Military Districts in Canada.

Canadians and Discharges in England.

The whole question of discharges in Great Britain from the O.M.F.C. is at present under the consideration of the authorities at Ottawa, whose decision will, it is expected, be announced shortly. Meanwhile, no applications for discharges in this country will be considered under any circumstances whatsoever.

Nottingham has been placed out of bounds owing to the prevalence of influenza.

Residents of Montreal who have served with the 14th, 24th, 60th, or 244th Bns., and former members of the Victoria Rifles of Canada, serving in other units, are asked to register at the Victoria Rifles Armoury on arrival in Montreal.

Canadian Cadets

When the Armistice was signed there were several hundred cadets of infantry, artillery, engineering and machine-gun units of the Canadian Corps who had recently arrived in England recommended for commissions. By reason of the cessation of hostilities the various training schools were closed down, and these cadets were assembled for the time being in their own regimental depôts.

CANADIAN ENGINEERS AT SEAFORD WEARING THEIR GAS MASKS FOR THE LAST TIME.

The Headquarters of the Overseas Military Forces of Canada have recognised the fact that these cadets have rendered conspicuously valuable service on the Field, and while conditions do not now permit of their receiving commissions as officers, it has been decided to have them return to Canada as officer cadets. Each cadet will receive a grant of £20 with which to purchase his uniform, and when the time comes to proceed to Canada he will embark as a first-class passenger, will wear officer's uniform, minus the rank badges, and will carry a certificate bearing evidence of his services at the Front, and the fact that he was recommended for a commission.

It is anticipated that this disposition of the cadet situation will merit the heartiest approval of their own Service battalions in the Field as well as the cadets individually.

Officers' Christmas Entertainment.

The Christmas entertainment and dance for officers from overseas to be held at the Albert Hall will be a very elaborate affair. Mrs. Alison Cuninghame of Craigends will be the hostess and is bearing all expenses. From 3.30 p.m. till 10.30 there will be one continuous round of entertainment, including various turns by a great many of the leading artistes of the West End stage, while every officer present is to receive a gift as a souvenir of his last Christmas in the Army. There will be dancing both in the afternoon and evening, and tea and supper will be provided. Canadian officers desiring cards of invitation should apply to the Beyond Seas Association, 46, Grosvenor Street, W.1. The Duke of Connaught is expected to be present.

Officers and other ranks of the O.M.F.C. who joined through the British and Canadian Recruiting Mission in the United States, and who desire to return to the United States on demobilisation, will be allotted to that dispersal area in Canada which is nearest to their former place of residence.

Changing Soldiers' Money.

For the convenience of soldiers who are now arriving in the Dominion from overseas in large numbers, the Minister of Finance has arranged with the Bank of Montreal that a representative of that institution meet the returning ships and afford every facility for exchanging British money into Canadian currency at the rate of $4.86⅔ to the £. Any loss on the exchange will be borne by the Government.

Officers and men can visit Windsor Castle on Tuesdays of each week, but this privilege can only be obtained by means of invitation cards, to be obtained from the Senior Chaplain, O.M.F.C., London Area.

Surplus Baggage and Wills.

Officers or other ranks wishing to have their surplus baggage delivered to them, or forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom or in Canada, should notify the Officer i/c Estates Branch, 133, Oxford Street, London, W.1, who will have it despatched free of charge. Wills in the custody of the same administrative officer can be returned to the officers or men concerned by registered mail on written application.

Promotion for Generals Thacker and Lindsay.

The London Gazette announces the promotion to the rank of Major-General of Brig-General P. E. Thacker, C.B., C.M.G., Cav., Adjutant-General, O.M.F.C. (with effect July 31), and of Brig.-General W. B. Lindsay, C.M.G., D.S.O., G.O.C. Canadian Engineers (August 1). General Thacker was born at Bangor, North Wales, in 1873, and graduated from the R.M.C. at Kingston in 1894. He served in South Africa with the 2nd C.M.R., and in 1909 transferred from the R.C.R. to Lord Strathcona's Horse. He became Adjutant-General, O.M.F.C., in December, 1916. General Lindsay, born at Strathroy, Ont., in 1880, is also a graduate of the R.M.C., Kingston. As C.R.C.E. M.D.10 (Winnipeg) he was responsible for laying out Sewell Camp in 1912. He came overseas in September, 1914, in command of No. 2 Field Company, Divisional Engineers, and went to France in May, 1915. General Lindsay has been four times "mentioned" during the present war, and is extremely popular with all ranks.

CHRISTMAS LEAVE.

To the Editor of CANADA.

SIR,—I came over with the First Contingent and came to France in 1915. I have a mother and wife and family in England, and I naturally thought that I should be given Christmas leave, the same as men of the British Forces.

Also, why can't the First Contingent Canadians go back as well as the First Contingent Australians? Surely if the Americans can go back some Canadians should. But at least if we can't return to Canada yet, surely they could give those men with long service who have their wives in England Christmas leave the same as the British soldier.—Yours, etc.,

France. BASE DEPOT

CANADIAN R.A.F. OFFICERS.

To the Editor of CANADA.

DEAR SIR,—There is quite a large number of Canadian officers who have been seconded to the R.A.F., and none of us were aware that the moment we reported to Argyll House from the Air Ministry we were taken on the strength of the Canadian Infantry and had to revert to the pay of an infantry lieutenant, i.e., $4 a day gross, whereas we have been paid all along by the Canadians on the R.A.F. consolidated scale of pay—flying officers receiving from $6 to $7 per day. And I understand that our demobilisation or post-discharge pay is to be based on the $4 a day basis!

This is a most unfair deal to give us, as our post-discharge pay should be based on the scale of pay we have been receiving up to the time of our release from service, and not on a mere technicality, for that is all it is after all. The fact of attaching us to the infantry is only for the purpose of getting us back to Canada, as we don't have to report to the infantry for duty, but are given leave of absence by Argyll House until the date we embark for Canada, and we never see the infantry at all or have anything to do with them after our release from the R.A.F.—Yours, etc.,

London. R. A. F.

SOME GRIEVANCES

To the Editor of CANADA.

SIR,—The letters recently appearing in Canada are a very fair index of the feeling permeating practically every officer, N.C.O. and man in the C.E.F. regarding the present system of gratuities, repatriation of soldiers' wives and families, blood money, etc.

It is not very cheering to men who have gone through the purgatory of this war to find themselves forced to plead to their Government through the medium of the Press, both of Canada and England, for decent treatment. It is not charity which men want; it is generous and fair treatment, and treatment to which they are most justly entitled.

For instance, I think it is a burning insult to any soldier to ask him to pay passage money for his wife and family whilst, I understand, the wife and children of the Canadian munitioner in England go back to Canada at the public expense. This is only one question.

"The record of the soldiers of our great democracy is one unsurpassed in the annals of war," says General Currie. Might I suggest to our authorities that they rise to the occasion and deal generously and whole heartedly with the men who made that proud record, in the sure knowledge that our response and our efforts in peace will bear at least some relation to the military achievements emblazoned for ever in the pages of Canadian history?—I am, etc.,

Bramshott. LIEUTENANT

To the Editor of CANADA.

SIR,—Would you give me any information as to what the Government mean to do with us soldiers?

[illegible] a married man, and one who has served since 1914, I would very much like to know if the Government mean us to pay our wives' passage back to Canada.

I'm only one of the many who have got married in this country, and who have had to spend their all to keep alive. Everyone seems to be in the dark as to what the Government mean to do—at least, I am, as I have just got back from France, and am not well versed in what is going on.

I'd like to get back to Canada to settle, and give my son a chance when he grows up, but as it is, I shall have to leave my wife and child here.

Why do the officials keep us all so much in the dark? We are not school children. It is little enough that they should take our wives and children, who are assets to a country, back to Canada free.—I am, etc.,

Seaford "ORIGINAL" SERGEANT.

To the Editor of CANADA.

DEAR SIR,—Having taken Canada for the past three years, and knowing that you are a friend of the soldiers, I write these few lines to draw your attention to the "hold up" for Canadian women returning to Canada.

Last week a friend of mine went to London to book her passage back, and was told it would be half fare for a child 14 months old. The child will eat nothing, as she will provide for that herself, bringing tinned milk, etc., with her.

Will the Canadian Government sit up and take notice? Canadian women should and must be sent back free. This poor woman had to pay nearly £20 for herself and child. I ask you, Mr. Editor, Is it fair? Do take this matter up in your paper. If the other Governments can provide for the return of women, so can the Canadian Government.—I am, etc.,

Witley. A CANADIAN MAJOR.

To the Editor of CANADA.

SIR,—As a dependent of a Canadian soldier who has been in France since 1915 may I point out the following facts:—(1) The Canadian Government are offering steamer passage only, at reduced rates, for Canadian soldiers' dependents now in England. (2) Free sea and railway passage is being given to dependents of Canadians who have joined the Imperial Forces.

The reduced rate offered is only £3 10s. lower than the rate quoted by the C.P.R., and is, therefore, far beyond the means of those who have existed during the past four years on a bare separation allowance. In the majority of cases—my own case I can vouch for—the passage home is impossible unless I am to wait until my husband is discharged and earns enough money to provide it.

The injustice of the two facts detailed above is apparent, and surely some move will be made by anyone caring for the welfare of the men and their wives to remedy this.—Yours, etc.,

A 1914 CANADIAN SOLDIER'S WIFE.

To the Editor of CANADA.

DEAR SIR,—In view of the very small gratuity the Canadian Government is to pay Canada's soldiers on discharge, cannot they give some assistance to those of her sons who have married in England? Surely the Government must recognise what an asset all these wives will be to her in the future.

A gratuity on length of service, such as is to be given to the Imperial troops, would solve all questions. I feel sure that all those who married on their pay, expected, as I did, a gratuity on length of service, or at least the grant of a free passage for the gratuity. Three months' pay won't go far in paying a family's passage to British Columbia and buying an outfit of civilian clothes. If a man gives four of the best years of his life to his country, he should at least be entitled to assistance for a fresh start.

SOLDIERS' LETTERS AND PARCELS.

All parcels, letters, cards, and other communications for the troops, both at home and overseas, must bear on the back or the outside cover the full name and full postal address of the sender as follows:—"From (full name and full postal address of sender)." Failure to comply with this direction may render it impossible to return the parcels, letters, cards, and other communications to the sender in the event of their being undelivered.

WOMEN WORKERS' OVERSEAS CORPS.

The Colonial Intelligence League, 11 (fifth floor), Queen Anne's Chambers, Westminster, which has since 1910 actively assisted in the work of women's emigration, is now engaged in forming a Women Workers' Overseas Corps for women efficient in those branches of work most in request in the Overseas Dominions. Questions of enrolment, regulations, uniform etc., are now under consideration, and it is hoped that a complete scheme may be placed before the public early in the year. No actual emigration of civilians, however, is possible for some months to come.

* *

Charles O'Malley, a Canadian soldier, was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour for assaulting a member of the Women's Police Service outside the Beaver Hut. A Canadian officer said he wished to say how much the Canadian military authorities appreciated the services of the women police, who had been doing magnificent work.

CANADIAN AIRMEN'S EXPLOITS.

An account of the work of Canadian officers and men serving with the Royal Air Force, just issued, contains among other records the following narrative of how a Canadian airman destroyed two hostile battery positions, although heavily attacked by a large enemy formation :—

Capt. J. W. G. Clark, D.F.C. (Canadian Infantry), Flight Commander, No. 13 Squadron, on October 5, whilst flying with Capt. Bailey, carried out a pre-arranged shoot with 274th Siege Battery. He ranged this Battery, and the Battery went on to fire for effect, obtaining two direct hits on the target and causing a fire on the roadside in the battery position. The 274th Siege Battery put out "T" on completion of shoot. During this time he observed two hostile batteries active. On one of these he carried out a very successful "A.N.F." shoot, obtaining a direct hit on No. 2 pit. During the fire for effect the whole battery position was demolished, and the observer went "M.Q." as no more pits were visible. He had caused a fire and a series of explosions in the hostile position, which he undoubtedly destroyed.

As the visibility had become extremely poor, Capt Clark decided to work from a point above the hostile battery, although there was a patrol of eight Fokker biplanes in the vicinity and there was a strong west wind blowing. The E.A. (enemy aeroplanes) attacked, but by his gallantry and skill Capt. Clark shot down one, which he saw fall out of control and burst into flames on hitting the ground. The remainder of the formation were driven off, and Capt. Clark then completed the "A.N.F." shoot. "L" Battery A.A. reported that they saw a Fokker biplane diving away very steeply from a fight at this time, but owing to poor visibility they did not actually see the machine burning on the ground. The devotion to duty shown by Capt. Clark on this occasion, when he destroyed two hostile battery positions, in spite of his being attacked by a large formation, one machine of which he also destroyed, is worthy of the highest praise.

CANADIAN RED CROSS LORRIES WITH SUPPLIES FOR REFUGEES IN BELGIUM.

Canadian War Records Photograph.

On October 28 these two officers were detailed to watch and report on progress made by the 57th Division in its advance towards the Canal de l'Escaut. They reconnoitred the area in front of the infantry from a height of about 400 feet, and discovered that the enemy had withdrawn to the east of the canal. Realising that the infantry might advance more rapidly, they dropped a message on the advancing men, urging them to press on at once as they would find no opposition. They then returned to the Division and dropped a message informing them of their action. On returning to the infantry, they noticed that they were all advancing hurriedly towards the canal, on reaching which the infantry were enabled to seize the crossings, but the enemy had been able to get into the trench line east of the canal. It is certain that if Capt. Bailey and Capt. Clark had not shown such skill and resource the enemy would have had time to prevent our infantry from seizing the canal crossings. The seizure of these crossings was of the utmost value and importance. In addition, Capt. Clark engaged groups of enemy infantry and wagons with machine gun fire, and in all cases dispersed the enemy. Eighteen plates were exposed at 1,000 feet over the canal locks and crossings. Six photographs showed where the crossings were least damaged, and where material was lying which could be used for their repair. The whole reconnaissance was carried out at an average height of 500 feet, and often under very heavy machine gun fire.

Other Exploits.

Other accounts are as follows :—

Lt. E. Mulcair, No. 43 Squadron, while patrolling over Fontaine at 16,000 feet, saw an enemy machine underneath. He dived under the E.A., which was at about 7,000 feet, and fired three bursts, totalling 250 rounds. Lt. Johnson also fired from underneath. The E.A. continued east for a short time, then went down vertically and crashed, smoke observed coming from it.

Sec. Lt. J. H. Grahame came out with No. 107 Squadron on June 6, since when he has been engaged in 25 raids, and has obtained many direct hits on his objectives. On October 23, when on a raid to Hirson railway junction, although late in the afternoon, with the visibility very poor through heavy ground mist, this officer obtained two direct hits on the railway, one of which caused a very large fire. On October 14, when bombing Herseaux aerodrome, he obtained two direct hits on a hangar, completely demolishing it. Again on August 25, when bombing Somain railway junction, he obtained two direct hits, causing considerable dislocation of traffic through Somain station.

Lt. A. B. Holden also came out with No. 107 Squadron, since when he has been engaged in 19 raids, obtaining direct hits on the following objectives: Fismes, Equancourt, Valenciennes, Herseaux.

Attacked by Twenty-five Fokkers

Sec. Lt. S. L. Dunlop, D.F.C. (5th C.M.R.), joined No. 107 Squadron on July 19, since when he had done much useful work when on bombing, notably, whilst on a bombing raid to Pont-les-Brie, the machine in which he was an observer (Lt G. Beveridge being the pilot) was attacked by 25 Fokker biplanes, two of which were destroyed by Sec. Lt. Dunlop.

Capt. F. M. Carter, D.F.C. (157th Can.), came out with No. 107 Squadron on June 6, since when he has been engaged in 23 bombing raids, leading his formations very successfully, and on most occasions obtaining direct hits on his objectives. He has also destroyed one E A

Lt A. W. H. Arundell (24th Can. came out with No. [illegible] Squadron, and is Capt. Carter's observer. He has accompanied Capt. Carter on most of the bombing raids, and has always given great assistance to his pilot. He has shot down one E.A. out of control.

Major E. G. Joy (74th Can. E.F.) arrived with No 205 Squadron on September 28, this being his second time in France with the R.A.F. Since arrival, he has taken part in 11 bomb raids, several of which he has led, obtaining excellent results and direct hits. He has also made six reconnaissances.

Sec. Lt. F. O. McDonald joined No. 205 Squadron on June 20, and has taken part in 34 bomb raids, obtaining many direct hits. He has also made 28 long reconnaissances and nine photographic flights. He has two decisive and three indecisive combats to his credit, has done excellent work, and is one of the squadron's best pilots.

Sec. Lt. W. B. Esplen joined No. 205 Squadron on September 20 and has taken part in 14 bomb raids, six reconnaissances, and one photographic flight, and done some very successful work.

Sec. Lt. W. E. Dipple joined No. 205 Squadron on September 14 and has taken part in 13 bomb raids, seven reconnaissances and three photographic flights, bringing back much important information.

Awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Capt. W. A. Leslie, No. 58 Squadron, was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for continuous good work on night bombing raids and night reconnaissance during nine months' service in France.

Lt. A. D. Macdonald, No. 42 Squadron, has, during the month of October, done several reconnaissances, of which five were excellent, locating the line and reporting the positions of enemy trenches. In one instance all four occupants of an advanced enemy post were killed by fire from his Vickers gun.

Lt. A. S. Compton, No. 54 Squadron, has carried out 18 patrols. Whilst on offensive patrol on September 3 he dived on a Hannoveranar from 1,500 feet, and after firing 200 rounds into it, the E.A. burst into flames over Mœuvres.

Capt. W. C. Gage, No. 88 Squadron, has done photography and many reconnaissances and offensive patrols. He has brought back much valuable information, in order to obtain which, on many occasions when the weather was bad, he descended to heights of 1,000 to 3,000 feet.

Sec. Lt. J. L. Marshall, No. 88 Squadron (observer), in conjunction with Capt. Gage, has been on many reconnaissances, and has returned with much valuable information.

Capt. R. E. Dodds, No. 103 Squadron, has done 25 hours' war flying as a pilot and formation leader. He successfully led a bombing formation home intact from Leuze on the afternoon of October 23 in a failing light, whilst attacked by 10 Fokker biplanes, of which his formation succeeded in bringing down three.

Lt. C. J. L. Lawrence, No. 21 Squadron, has continually done valuable work in bringing in information of enemy positions. Such information has been gathered while flying at low altitudes, owing to bad visibility and in the face of heavy machine gun and rifle fire. Owing to a wireless call sent down by this officer, our scouts were able, on October 14, to engage a formation of seven E.A., during which engagement four of the enemy were driven down in flames or out of control.

On a Low-Flying Patrol.

Lt. W. A. W. Carter, No. 201 Squadron, on the morning of September 27, went out on a Sopwith Camel on a low-flying patrol. The smoke from our barrage caused a thickness over his objective, so he returned to our lines and followed up our advancing infantry and tanks, helping our infantry at points where they appeared to be held up by firing bursts into machine gun emplacements and trenches occupied by the enemy from a very low altitude. He dropped his bombs on a hostile machine gun emplacement which was offering particularly strong resistance to our advance, and shortly afterwards observed our infantry take this point and a number of enemy troops proceeding to our lines under escort. The remainder of his ammunition was fired into the enemy holding trenches and communication trenches in front of our tanks During AUDITORS' REPORT.—We have audited the accounts of the Young Men's Christian Association with the Overseas Military Forces of Canada in Great Britain, for the quarter ending June 30, 1918, and have incorporated therein the accounts for the quarter ending March 31, 1918, and the accounts for France for the half year ending June 30, 1918, audited and certified by Mr. R. H. [illegible], Incorporated Accountant, whose certificate we have seen. Accepting the accuracy of the trading stocks on hand, which are vouched for by the Business Managers and Hut Leaders, we find the accounts correct.

PRICE, WATERHOUSE & Co.

the whole period he was subjected to intense machine gun fire from the ground, and eventually his patrol lead was shot away, causing him to crash to earth in the midst of our barrage. He escaped injury and commenced to run West. While doing so, he saw a wounded British soldier on the ground, and proceeded to carry him back to safety, until he encountered two Germans without escort, to whom he transferred his burden and conducted them back to our trenches. He then returned to the aerodrome without delay.

LT. R. A. CALDWELL, No. 56 Squadron, on September 28, dived down to 400 feet over Catteniers, then seven to eight miles over the line, which he observed to be congested with lorries, guns and limbers. Flying along the streets, he dropped four bombs separately, each with great effect. He then fired 350 rounds in all at assemblies of troops near Catteniers and on roads westwards. Seeing our troops advancing and skirmishing west of Noyelles, he five times attacked the enemy holding the bridgehead at Noyelles from 100 feet, greatly encouraging our New Zealand troops who were engaged and assisting them to discover the line held by the enemy. On October 3, Lt. Caldwell dropped four bombs into Beauvois and then descended to 100-200 feet, firing 400 rounds into the enemy trenches while we were attacking south of Cambrai. On October 4 he destroyed an enemy balloon in flames north of Bohair at 5,000 feet, in spite of very heavy anti-aircraft fire. On the way home he descended to 50 to 100 feet and created great confusion and did much damage to infantry, transport and artillery marching westwards to counter-attack, returning with his machine again much shot about.

Lt. Caldwell came to France with the Canadian infantry in 1914, being twice wounded, finally getting his discharge from the Army. He, however, rejoined the R.A.F. and joined No. 56 Squadron on September 6. 1918, and had done ten patrols and one special mission.

Took Over 1,200 Photographs.

LT. F. C. DERMO, No. 15 Squadron, has, during his service with the squadron, taken over 1,200 successful photographs of the enemy positions, often under most adverse conditions.

CAPT. A. R. CROSS, D.F.C., No. 15 Squadron, on one occasion received a direct hit from a shell and was forced to descend in a wood within one hour of his scheduled time to land. He handed a most valuable report to the Branch Intelligence Officer of the Squadron, having returned on foot. On another occasion, he saw the German infantry were holding up the attack on Le Transloy village, and by repeated attacks with machine gun from the air he succeeded in compelling them to retire, and by directing artillery fire on them caused many casualties.

CAPT. F. BELWAY, D.F.C., Flight Commander, No. 13 Squadron, during recent operations on this front, has repeatedly brought back and dropped at Corps and Divisional Headquarters very valuable information regarding the development of the situation. To obtain these reports he had to fly low through heavy machine-gun fire.

SEC. LT. P. R. DAVIS, No. 3 Squadron, at 12.45 on September 27, dropped four bombs on a small body of men on a road, scattering the men and causing several casualties. He also fired 30 rounds at the men. On September 29 he dropped four bombs on a fully-inflated balloon on the ground. The bombs exploded very near, and the balloon was seen to collapse.

Bombs on Troops and Transport.

SEC. LT. R. V. CURTIS, No. 3 Squadron, on September 27 dropped three bombs and fired 300 rounds on enemy troops and transport on the Cambrai-Mesnières road. One transport was knocked out and troops dispersed. On September 29 four bombs were dropped on a fully-inflated enemy balloon on the ground. He also fired 200 rounds at an enemy balloon, which was pulled down. On October 21 he dropped five bombs on five M.T. on road going towards Villers Pol and fired 200 rounds at them. One of the M.T. overturned. On October 25 he dropped four bombs on small bodies of enemy troops and fired 200 rounds, scattering the troops and inflicting many casualties.

SEC. LT. A. F. O'NEILL, No. 3 Squadron, on October 21 dropped four bombs on enemy troops and transport going from Anzin. One bomb hit the Anzin-St. Amand road in the centre of a body of troops, causing some casualties. The remainder of the troops scattered, but some further casualties were caused by the firing of 200 rounds at them. On October 25, Sec. Lt. O'Neill dropped four bombs on troops and transport on a road. One direct hit was obtained on the troops. He caused some further casualties by firing 400 rounds at the troops.

CAPT. J. L. M. WHITE, D.F.C. and Bar (Can. M.G.C.), No. 65 Squadron, led 12 offensive patrols during the month of October, 1918. On October 14, whilst leading an offensive patrol over Courtrai and vicinity of 10,000 feet, he encountered a formation of 11 Fokker biplanes. He got a burst at one E.A. from 20 feet range and the machine went down in a spin, but came out of it and went gliding east. He then attacked another, which was on the tail of a Camel, and fired about 100 rounds into it as he approached, observing his tracers to be hitting the nose of the E.A. The enemy machine went down vertically, black smoke coming out of the fuselage, and was last seen diving vertically and was burning. He then attacked another Fokker biplane from behind, and after having fired three bursts into it, the machine turned over on to its back and a piece of the tail plane folded over. The E.A. righted itself, and Capt. White put another burst into it, after which it went down completely out of control.

Books Received.

"Secrets of the Bosphorus," revealed by Ambassador Henry Morgenthau, with 19 illustrations (8s. 6d.); "Indian Studies," by General Sir O'Moore Creagh, V.C., G.C.B., G.C.S.I. (16s.). Hutchinson.

"More Rough Rhymes of a Padre," by Rev. G. A. Studdert Kennedy, M.C., C.F. ("Woodbine Willie") (1s. 6d.). Hodder & Stoughton.

"The Political A.B.C.," rhymed by Horace Vicars Rees, pictured by Will Dodds (6d).—London: Crawfords & Marchmont

Fiction

"Up the Hill and Over," by Isabel Ecclestone Mackay. Hurst & Blackett (6s. 9d.).

"Blue Aloes," by Cynthia Stockley; "One of Them" ("a novel in verse"), by Gilbert Frankau.—Hutchinson (6s. 9d.).

"Rhymes of the Red Triangle" is a particularly clever collection of verse and coloured pictures—the former by Hampden Gordon, and the latter by Joyce Dennys—touching off most amusingly the many sides of Y.M.C.A. life and work (London: John Lane; 4s. 6d.)

In "Martin, Son of John," an experimental alliance, in place of the orthodox marriage, leads to some terrible experiences which might, with advantage, be read by those who propose to change our social customs. The author has evidently got ideas, and we shall probably hear of him again; but we hope that his next book will not present us with such a medley of disasters. (London: Sidgwick & Jackson.)

"Humour in Tragedy," by N./S. Constance Bruce, is an unofficial and unconventional description of hospital life behind three fronts. It tells of many diverse experiences, professional and personal, of the nurses of No. 1 Canadian Stationary Hospital in France, and at Lemnos, Cairo and Salonika, in thorougly entertaining fashion. A feature of the book is the series of quaint illustrations by the authoress. As Lord Beaverbrook says in a brief "foreword," Miss Bruce writes with much charm and humour, and sometimes with true and touching pathos. (London: Skeffington Bros.; 3s. 6d.)

NEW ISSUE

On another page we publish full particulars of an issue of 1,520,000 7 per cent. non-cumulative preference shares of £1 each at par by the Mond Nickel Co., Ltd. The company's industry—viz., mining, smelting, and refining, nickel-copper ores—is undoubtedly one of the most important key industries within the Empire, and its large operations, which have been steadily proceeding since 1910 near Sudbury, Ontario, are so well known to Canadians that they need no detailed description here. The capital provided by the issue now being offered for subscription is to be used for the completion of the extension of the company's refining works, part of which is already erected, and which, when completed, will increase the output of the company's products by 50 per cent. It is noteworthy that the prospectus shows not only the annual profits for the four years of the war, but also those for the previous four years. Profits rose steadily from £148,000 in 1911 to £261,000 in 1914, and during the war they continued this excellent progress by rising from £300,000 in 1915 to £531,000 in 1918. The amount required to pay the 7 per cent. dividends on the whole of the preference shares issued by the company, including those now offered, is £175,000. The prospectus also points out that the whole of the company's products are produced from beginning to end within the British Empire.

The C.P.O.S. (late Allan) liner Corinthian, built at Belfast in 1900, while en route for Glasgow, was wrecked on the north-west ledge at the mouth of the Bay of Fundy last Saturday. The crew of 87 were all saved.

In regard to the warning which recently appeared in Canada that soldiers should scrutinise carefully proposals for the investment of their deferred pay, we may point out that this does not, of course, apply to the purchase of goods in England which are actually wanted, and which may be bought better in England than in Canada.

In his concluding article on "The Battle Honours of Scotland" in the Glasgow Herald, Col. John Buchan, the war historian and novelist, quotes Sir Arthur Currie's battle order of March last "for the sake of those who love great words," and his comment is: "Cromwell or Lincoln could not have bettered that."

Pte. H. C. Woodley, son of Mr. R. H. Woodley, travelling passenger agent, C.P.R., has arrived in London from Germany, where he was since May last a prisoner of war. On attaining 18 years of age, he went overseas in March with the 1st Wilts Regt., and took part in the great battles then raging. Whilst twice wounded in the same engagement, a shell burst near to him and blew up a tree, which fell across his legs, pinning him to the ground. In this condition he was taken prisoner by the Germans, but he seems none the worse for his experiences.

PROSPECTUS.

The Mond Nickel Company was incorporated on the 22nd July, 1914, to take over as a going concern the entire business of the original Mond Nickel Company incorporated in 1900.

The industry carried on by the Company is one of the most important Key Industries within the Empire, viz., that of mining, smelting, and refining Nickel-Copper Ores. The supply of ore is derived from the Company's own Mines, which are situated in the Sudbury District of Ontario, Canada. The extensive Smelting Works of the Company at Coniston, Ontario, in the vicinity of the Mines, concentrate these Ores. This Concentrate (Matte) is shipped to England, and is refined at the Company's Works at Clydach, near Swansea, South Wales.

The products manufactured by the Company are Metallic Nickel, Copper Sulphate, Nickel Salts, and Concentrates of Precious Metals contained originally in the ore.

These Precious Metals are mainly PLATINUM and PALLADIUM, besides Gold and Silver. The value of these concentrates is very considerable, and the quantity of Platinum and Palladium recovered therefrom is by far the largest produced within the British Empire.

The Directors desire to point out that the whole of the Company's products, from beginning to end, are entirely produced within the British Empire. The Mond Nickel Company is the only Company producing Nickel Matte in Canada, the whole of which is refined in the United Kingdom.

Owing to the continued growth and development of the Company's business considerable extension of the Company's Works has been found necessary, and the capital provided by this issue will be utilised to complete the extension of the Company's Refining Works, part of which is already erected. When these extensions are completed, the output of the Company's products will be increased by 50 per cent.

Further working capital is also necessary for the Company in order to carry on the increased volume of business and to pay off certain liabilities.

PROFITS.

The profits earned by the original Mond Nickel Company during the last four pre-war years, as shown by the Balance Sheets certified by the Auditors Messrs. Cooper Brothers & Co., Chartered Accountants, were as follows

For the financial year ending	30th April, 1911	£148,214
„ „ „	30th April, 1912	164,364
„ „ „	30th April, 1913	201,102
„ „ „	30th April, 1914	261,145

The profits earned by the Company during the last four financial years, as shown by the audited Balance Sheets, were as follows:—

For the financial year ending	30th April, 1915	£300,296
„ „ „	30th April, 1916	322,589
„ „ „	30th April, 1917	327,248
„ „ „	30th April, 1918	531,846

Showing an average annual profit for the last four financial years of the Company, based on the above figures, of £370,494.

The amount required to pay 7 per cent. on all the Preference Shares issued by the Company, including the Shares now offered, is £175,000.

A brokerage of 3d. per Share will be paid on allotments to brokers in respect of applications bearing a Broker's stamp.

Applications should be made on the application form and forwarded to London County Westminster & Parr's Bank, Limited, Bartholomew Lane, E.C.2 with cheque for the amount of deposit payable on application.

Where no allotment is made, the deposit will be returned in full, but where the allotment is less than the amount applied for, the balance of the application money will be applied towards the payment due on allotment.

Failure to pay any instalment when due will render all previous payments liable to forfeiture.

Interest at the rate of 10 per cent per annum will be charged on instalments in arrear.

The minimum subscription on which the Company may proceed to allotment is fixed by the Articles of Association at seven Shares.

The name and address of the Auditors are Messrs. Cooper Brothers & Co., Chartered Accountants, George Street, Mansion House, E.C.4.

Prospectuses and Forms of Application can be obtained from London County Westminster & Parr's Bank, Limited, Bartholomew Lane, London, E.C.2, and their branches, or at the Offices of the Company, 39, Victoria Street, London, S.W.1.

THE LONDON MARKET.

Stock Exchange Settling Days.—

CONSOLS PAY DAY, Thursday, Jan. 2.

Ticket Day.	Pay Day.
Fri., Dec. 27.	Mon., Dec. 30.

LONDON: Tuesday.

Among Canadian stocks quietly irregular conditions have predominated. The gilt-edged issues of the Dominion have hardly moved. The 4½ per cents. hold at 95 and the Fours at 84, while the 3½ per cents. are steady around 73. Municipal issues have done little more than mark time as a rule, but Saskatoon Fives at 79½ are a point better.

In the railroad group Canadian Pacifics, after being lower, have rallied to 178. Grand Trunk junior stocks have receded ¼ to ½, and the Guaranteed Fours at 56 are a point weaker.

Hudson's Bays, among land descriptions, are slightly firmer at 8 11-16. Lower-priced shares have not varied materially.

As regards industrial securities, movements have been few and uncertain, though the undertone has been good. Canada Cements remain at 72, but the preference has gained a point at 95. Canada Cars hold steady at 56, and the Prefs remain at the artificial quotation of over par, but Dominion Steels at 51 are 1 down. Lake Superiors, on the other hand, have risen a point to 20.

Brazilian Tractions at 56 are steadier in sympathy with the improvement in the Rio exchange. Mexico Trams have gained a point at 43, but Mexican Light and Power issues are 1 to 2 points down.

Among Canadian silver mining shares Casey Cobalts, after their recent fall, are steadier, but Mining Corporation of Canada have receded.

OUR TORONTO LETTER.

TORONTO, December 4.

As I have previously explained, Canadian stock markets during November reflected in their irregularity and hesitation the difficulty of assessing what the general effect will be of the reversion from war to peace conditions. Naturally enough, there was a marked shifting of interest towards those stocks which are expected to benefit from peace, and away from those wholly or largely engaged upon war work, but this rule did not hold good entirely, for later in the month all the former class did not hold all their gains, while some of the latter class recovered part of what they had lost, so that, on the whole month, the movement was not so marked as at one time seemed probable.

On the whole, the steel stocks closed the month rather lower than they opened it, Dom. Steel losing 2¼ and Steel of Canada 3¾; Ontario Steel Products declined 4 and Cement 2 points. But losses were registered by other stocks of quite different category. Ames Holden Pref. declined 3¼, Can. Car Pref. 1, Dominion Canners 8, Laurentide 4, Penmans 3½, Spanish River Pref. 4, Woods Manufacturing 5¾. Prominent among the "Peace" stocks, Brazilian Traction gained 4 points on the month. The flour milling stocks, Ogilvie, Lake of the Woods, and Maple Leaf, were gainers; among the textiles, Dominion Textile and Wabasso Cotton both made strong gains, and Canadian Cottons registered a fractional advance. The paper stocks, apart from those already mentioned, and Wayagamack, which gained 2 points, showed little change. Can. Gen. Electric and Can. Locomotive both improved during the month. Thus it will be seen that price changes, though interesting in themselves, did not indicate any distinct tendency and give warrant to no general deduction. At the end of last week a good-sized block of Dominion Canners Pref. sold in Toronto at 70, and in Montreal a rise of several points in Asbestos Common was taken as indicating hopes of a dividend declaration, a hope, by the way, which has not yet been realised.

Commencing December markets have continued quiet. Trading at times has covered a fairly wide range of stocks, but the aggregate volume of business has been comparatively small. Price changes have been unimportant, but the fact that gains have predominated indicates improving tone. The liquidation in Brazilian Traction seems to have slowed down. Dominion Textile has been active and strong; the company has declared its usual quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. The milling shares have been in demand; the steel stocks are quiet but steady, as also are Montreal Power and Laurentide Power and Cement, Wayagamack, Shawinigan and Macdonald have all been noticeably firm. Laurentide Power, it is said, will show surplus earnings in excess of $350.000 for the current year, as against $204,795 for last year, which was its first year of full operation. Expectation that the company may commence dividends on a moderate scale early in 1919 continues. In regard to current dividend announcements, you will, of course, have noticed that that of the Bank of Montreal is in future to be a straight 12 per cent. per annum, instead of 10 per cent. plus 2 per cent. bonus as hitherto.

The official announcement cancelling the war-time restrictions on the issue of bonds by Provincial Government, Municipalities, Commissions, and Local Governments contained an additional notification that incorporated companies still come under the original order. From this it is generally inferred that for some time yet the Department of Finance proposes, for the protection of the public, to scrutinise propositions carefully before allowing appeals to investors.

Among current quotations, Dominion Steel is 62, Steel of Canada 60, Can. Car 31½, Cement 63, Forgings 198, Can. Gen. Electric 105, Can. Loco. 66, Steamships 46½, Maple Leaf 126, St. Lawrence Flour 90, Montreal Power 82½, Shawinigan 115¾, Laurentide Power 61½, Can. Cottons 68, Dom Textile 99½, Penmans 79½, Wabasso 61, Brompton 59, Wayagamack 51, Spanish River 15, Abitibi 48, Brazilian Traction 51, Asbestos Corp. 37, Macdonald 21¾, Ames-Holden Pref. 66¼.

Among the gold mining stocks, Hollinger has been notably strong, reaching, at $6.30, its highest price for a year or two past. It, however, closed the month 5 cents lower, while Dome Mines, which had previously displayed some weakness, was stronger at $12.50. Among the silver stocks there was little to note last week, apart from some activity in low-priced shares.

FROM EAST TO WEST

ONTARIO PROVINCE.

OTTAWA.—A memorial monument to Edith Cavell and the Canadian nurses who were killed by the Germans in raids on Canadian hospitals will be erected in Major Hill Park by public subscription and grants from the Dominion. The monument is being executed by Mr. Hamilton MacCarthy, R.C.A.

TORONTO.—The Provincial Treasurer announces a substantial surplus for the fiscal year ended October 31. As in previous years, more money has been expended by the Province for war purposes than was received from the proceeds of war taxes, the excess for the twelve-monthly period just ended reaching over $10,000,000. The total revenue, however, showed an increase as the result of motor licences and munitions taxes.

——Major R. F. Massie, C.F.A., of Cobourg, was on November 27 invested with the D.S.O. by Sir John Hendrie at Government House.

——The Hon. H. J. Cody, Minister of Education, has recommended to the Ontario Government a plan for the training and employment of returned soldiers as school teachers. His scheme includes the cost of the education and maintenance of the men during the period of training.

There is now in Ontario one motor vehicle registered to each 59 people of the population.

——The Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer, announces that picture theatres showing war films of deeds by the American Army, which ignore the part played by the British and Canadian forces, will be censored.

——Mr. John T. Arundel has retired from the position of general superintendent of the Ontario lines of the C.P.R., after 32 years' service

There has been an increase of nearly $500,000 in the output of silver by the Province for the first nine months of this year.

The estate of the late Mr. Cawthra Mulock, valued at several million dollars, is divided into five shares, divided so that one goes to each of his three daughters and two to his son, one to be paid when he reaches the age of 25 years and the other when he is 30.

——During the first year of the sale of fresh-water fish, which ended October 31, the Provincial Government distributed approximately 3,000,000 pounds of Lake fish, and received about $234,000, making a profit of $14,000.

HAMILTON.—It is estimated that 12,000 men were recruited here for overseas; that 600 of them were killed, and that 2,500 were wounded.

— Many manufacturers here are still engaged on war orders, but are making plans to readjust their plants for business under peace conditions.

COBOURG.—Mr. Herbert Boggs, city treasurer, states that Cobourg has contributed for patriotic purposes during the past four years $77,541, and 2,500 men left here for overseas.

NIAGARA FALLS.—Voters at the municipal elections in January will decide the question of buying the street railway system of the town, now the property of Canadian Northern Railway interests.

KINGSTON.—President J. J. Harty, of the Canadian Locomotive Co., states that the works have enough orders ahead to keep them busy for a period of twelve months. Over 1,000 men are now employed at the works.

——At an impressive service in the Cathedral of St. George the Martyr, the Royal Military College service flag given by the parents of cadets who served in the war was dedicated.

Rev. Dr. S. W. Dyde has been inducted Principal of Queen's Theological College, in succession to Rev. Dr. A. Ross, who has retired.

WELLAND.—The Maple Leaf Milling Company's mill here has been damaged; loss, $100,000.

PORT ARTHUR. The keels have been laid here of two 3,400-ton freighters of the full Welland Canal size, which will be the first two ships built in local yards in connection with the Canadian Government's mercantile fleet.

QUEBEC PROVINCE.

QUEBEC.—The Provincial Parliament is to meet on January 21.

—— Sir Charles Fitzpatrick has presented Mr. Charles Spall, of Montreal, with the Victoria Cross which was won by Sergeant Robert Spall, who was later killed in action.

MONTREAL.—The first cargo steamer of the Canadian Government's shipbuilding programme, the Canadian Pioneer, was launched on December 10 by Lady Borden from the yards of the Canadian Vickers Co. here. The steamer is of 8,100 tons, and 400 feet long, with a 52 feet beam.

Damages resulting from the recent riots in Montreal during a strike of civic employees total $300,000. The demands of the strikers for the dismissal of the heads of police have been accepted, and the salaries of the Director of Public Safety and his assistant have been struck off the city's budget.

——The Montreal Lumber Association of the Board of Trade at its annual meeting elected officers for the ensuing year as follows:—President, Mr. P. D. Gordon; vice-president, Mr. Geo. Grier; treasurer, Mr. F. W. Cotter.

Mayor J. A. A. Leclair, of Verdun, announces that a permanent monument to the memory of the Verdun boys who have laid down their lives in this war will be erected.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

ST. JOHN.—Mr. J. D. Jensen, a Swedish expert, who has just returned from a tour of Newfoundland, states that the pulp mills of that island have been hard hit by the war. Mr. Jensen has completed installing a new pulp mill in Edmunston for Fraser's, Ltd., which operates a large number of pulp and lumber mills in that section of the Province.

——The New Brunswick Telephone Co. has completed a long-distance circuit between Fredericton and Minto.

Preliminary work on the erection of a large warehouse for the Eastern Steamship Corporation is under way.

NOVA SCOTIA.

HALIFAX.—Owing to delay in the shipments of steel ordered in the United States the keels of the first ships to be built by the Halifax Shipyards will not be laid until late in January.

——Mr. D. B. Hanna and the directors of the Canadian Northern Railway have been here inspecting the terminals. Speaking before the Board of Trade, Mr. Hanna said that the Government would eventually operate a fleet of at least fifty ships on transatlantic trade in connection with the railways.

——Record outputs in nearly every department were made by the N.S. Steel and Coal Co. at both Sydney Mines and New Glasgow, during October.

PARRSBORO.—The Royal Bank building here has been badly damaged by fire.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

CHARLOTTETOWN.—The Duke of Devonshire received a great welcome here. In a speech he commended the Province for its splendid efforts in the war, mentioning the fact that he had just read of the award of the V.C. to Lt. Neil Stewart, R.N.R. The Governor-General decorated Lt. Andrew McEachern with the Military Cross.

——With a big parade and speeches by the Premier, Mayor, Chief Justice and clergymen of all denominations, Charlottetown held the biggest celebration of its history on the occasion of the signing of the Armistice.

MANITOBA PROVINCE.

WINNIPEG.—Great War Veterans here propose forming themselves into a co-operative trading company, with a central retail store.

——Female employees in millinery, dressmaking, tailoring and knitting factories of Winnipeg have been awarded a minimum of $12 a week, for experienced adult employees.

——Building permits for the city for 1918 exceeded $2,000,000 up to November 11.

——On the farm of Mr. F. W. Buscarlett, near Souris, recently, the Rev. D. McIvor picked up three excellent specimens of Indian stone arrow heads.

——Gladstone now has electric service for domestic lighting and cooking, and will shortly discard the street gas lights and substitute electric lamps.

In Russell the tax rate this year is 27 7-10 mills on an assessment of $67,964. The rate last year was 24 7-10 mills.

At Oakland the municipality will raise $60,000 to build good roads in the district.

SASKATCHEWAN.

REGINA.—The second session of the fourth Legislative Assembly for the Province was opened by the Lt.-Governor, Sir Richard Lake, on December 10. Dealing with the recent conference at Ottawa in regard to the natural resources of the Western Provinces, Sir Richard said he regretted the outcome was not as favourable as Ministers had anticipated, nor had the rights of the Province in this regard, as had been set out from time to time in the various resolutions of the Legislature, been secured. Nevertheless, he was still hopeful of a satisfactory solution being reached. "My Ministers," went on the Lt.-Governor, "will take the opportunity during the course of the session to make you fully acquainted with the present state of the matter, and will confer with you what further steps should be taken to press the matter to a final equitable settlement."

——Mayor Henry Black has been re-elected, defeating Mr. J. F. Bolo by 663.

——Lt.-Col. S. B. Nelles has been appointed Assistant Receiver-General for Saskatchewan under the Dominion Department of Finance.

SASKATOON.—Mr. F. R. Macmillan has been elected Mayor, succeeding Dr. Young.

MOOSE JAW.—Mr. Samuel Hamilton, the new Mayor, defeated Mr. Dunn and Capt. H. Bamford by a plurality of 70.

NORTH BATTLEFORD.—Mayor Thomas has been re-elected by a majority of 44.

ALBERTA PROVINCE.

EDMONTON.—Mr. Joseph Clark has been re-elected Mayor, defeating Alderman Charles Wilson. Alderman W. E. Lord has been unanimously elected Mayor of Red Deer, and Dr. D. E. Johnson is the new Mayor of Wetaskiwin.

CALGARY.—Because two Japanese are being employed at the Galt coal mines operated by the C.P.R. at Lethbridge, the miners at the property are threatening to strike.

LETHBRIDGE.—The Canadian Western Natural Gas Company is making good progress in the drilling of new wells for a fresh supply of natural gas in their field east of here.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

VICTORIA.—Capt. N. W. Maynard, M.P.P. since 1907, has resigned.

——British Columbia's two liquor stores, one here and the other in Vancouver, did $45,000 worth of business last month, Vaucouver leading with $35,000. The total turnover was five times the normal.

——The largest salmon hatcheries in the world are located on Babine Lake, just north of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

——The B.C. Breweries' Co. is about to be sold to an English syndicate for $2,606,000 by the bondholders. The plant is in Vancouver. There is now $500,000 due in interest. A trade will be developed with China and Japan, it is claimed. At present the plant is being operated by a receiver.

BANKING AND FINANCE.

Provincial Succession Duties.

According to an Ottawa correspondent, an important question in connection with Provincial rights in respect to succession duties has arisen which has recently aroused considerable attention in the Dominion. The estate of a wealthy Halifax citizen consisted of certain stock in the Merchants Bank of Halifax, which subsequently grew into the Royal Bank of Canada. The Province levied succession duties, which were contested by the estate on the ground that the head office of the bank was in Montreal, and that the stock, being registered there, was not liable to be assessed for this duty. The Supreme Court of Nova Scotia supported the contention of the Province that the estate was liable, and the latter appealed against this decision to the Dominion Supreme Court. In commenting on this case, the Toronto Globe points out that the judgment in this case "will have a bearing upon the right claimed by Ontario to levy succession duties on all estates embracing war bonds, regardless of the Province in which the testator lived." The issues involved appear to directly affect the position of all holders of Canadian Provincial Government securities, and the decision, when it is promulgated, should be closely studied by investors in this country, the majority of whom have very hazy views as to the incidence of Canadian succession duties generally.

BANK OF MONTREAL.

President and General Manager on Canada's Financial Future.

At the annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal, held at Montreal last week, Sir Vincent Meredith, the President, and Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, General Manager, referred to the problems which Canada had necessarily to face during the post bellum period.

Sir Vincent Meredith dealt particularly with the problems immediately ahead of the country. The most important, he pointed out, was how the country was to meet the interest on the vast debt, possibly one billion eight hundred million dollars, which would exist after the war. Increased production would relieve the country of a portion of the burden. This, with strict economy and a growing population, would in time adjust the difficulties of the country. Taxation could not be easily lessened, and it might be increased, he added. Sir Vincent said a levy on capital, as advocated in some quarters, would only result in the stifling of individual incentive and enterprise, the penalising of industry, self-denial, and thrift. The taxing of capital beyond a certain point would involve the unemployment of labour, and produce serious consequences. If placed principally on consumption, the burden of taxation would be distributed. If Canada was to share the business opportunities during the period of reconstruction, the banks would have to stand ready to arrange liberal and probably long-term credits, providing the necessary funds from their own resources, or availing themselves of rediscount with the Dominion Government. As the war came to a close there were signs that there would be a great demand for capital for reconstruction, refunding, and replacement purposes. Interest rates in consequence would in all probability rule high for some time to come.

Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor dealt more especially with the growth and development of the business of the bank and financial conditions in the principal centres of the world. He pointed out that there never was a time when Canada was more in need of sound economic thinking. It was worthy of note that the bank's total assets were now as great as were the combined total assets of all Canadian chartered banks seventeen years ago. As regards the outlook of the country, Sir Frederick said it would bear repeating that Canada possessed all the attributes of a great nation excepting population. The crying necessity of the hour was for increased production. This could not be fully achieved without immigration. Canada had room and opportunity for many millions of farmers and for a good class of labour to develop the mineral wealth and the fisheries, and to convert the great forests into lumber, pulp, and paper.

GIFTS.

The Goldsmiths and Silversmiths Company have made a great effort to offer stocks of the most varied and complete description for the selection of gifts. Buyers should, however, be warned to make an alternative choice, if possible, in the case of short supply, as the demand for advertised articles is expected to be exceptionally large. Such shortness of supply would only be the result of War conditions. All articles are of highest quality and the best value.

Selections will be sent for approval, if desired, carriage paid, and at the company's risk, or a Gifts Booklet may be had post free on application.

The Goldsmiths and Silversmiths Company, it should be noted, have no branch establishments in Regent Street, Oxford Street, or elsewhere in London or abroad only one address, 112, Regent Street London, W.1

K. G. H. (Gosforth).—No Routine Order covering the matter has yet been published.

WINNIPEGGER (Purfleet).—There is no foundation for the rumour you mention.

G. M. M. (Seaford).—It is not yet officially published in the form of a Routine Order.

C. McE. (R.A.F., Italy).—We have passed on your request to the Canadian Y.M.C.A. Headquarters in London, who have promised to send the equipment.

H. E. (Base Depôt, France).—Apply to your Adjutant, who will be glad to advise you of the K.R. and O. clause dealing with your case.

N. C. B. (Wandsworth).—Write to Capt. Ambéry, Officer i/c Decorations, "Other Ranks," Canadian Record Office, Green Arbour House, Old Bailey, London, E.C.4.

W. D. (Witley).—The question of free passage is referred to in our Notes of the Week, and the principle of the discharge gratuity is discussed in our leader.

E. W. (Bramshott).—No import duty is levied in Canada on household or personal effects in such a case as yours, or that of any intending settler. (See page 409.)

B. G. (Torquay).—It is impossible that all who have deserved recognition for work well done in this great war will receive it—but the lists of awards are by no means yet completed.

AN EARLY BIRD (Oxford).—The question can only be settled by the Canadian military authorities. You must apply to the officer in command of your unit or draft on your return to Canada.

A. M. H. (London, W.).—As you did not come overseas with the specific intention of enlisting, we do not think you are eligible for the refund of passage money. There is no harm in making the application; this must be done through your C.O.

DISGRUNTLED (Battersea Park). — We understand the authorities are taking up the question of an increase of subsistence allowance for N.C.O.s and men employed in the London Area. Such a strongly-worded protest as you send us is not likely to result in a "speeding-up"; rather the reverse.

A. J. H. (Bicester).—The Routine Order (No. 4942) dealing with increased Field Allowance says:—"Under authority Order in Council 2231 of 12 Sept., 1918, field allowance for Captains and Lieutenants, O.M.F.C., has been increased to $1.00 per diem, with effect 12 September."

1914 PTE. (Brighton).—It will not be possible for the authorities to discharge men in every village and corner of the Dominion. A settled policy must be adhered to in order to systematise and facilitate demobilisation. Edmonton is, after all, a good jumping-off place for the Peace River district.

J. M. N. (Galway).—If there are any "service gratuities" decided upon the fact will be officially made known to the next-of-kin. Apply for the decoration to the Assistant Military Secretary, H.Q., O.M.F.C., Argyll House, Regent Street, London, W.1, who will request the War Office authorities to forward it to you.

J. E. C. (Bexhill).—(1) Apply to Major Scroggie, Military Dependents' Branch, British Columbia House, 1, Regent Street, S.W. (2) Saskatoon, Regina, Prince Albert or Moose Jaw would suit you equally well. We suggest you write to the Secretary, Soldier Settlement Board, Ottawa, for full particulars of the scheme.

ONE OF THE SUFFERERS (Bexhill) and ONE OF THEM (France).—No action has yet been taken by the Canadian military authorities to remove what you call an "indignity." In our opinion, Quartermasters are as fully entitled to substantive rank as A.S.C. officers and Paymasters. The delay of the O.M.F.C. in following the lead of the Imperial authorities in the matter is inexplicable.

FIRST CONTINGENT OFFICER (Seaford).—The objection to the payment of the discharge gratuity in three instalments applies perhaps more in the case of married men. The whole question is, we believe, now under consideration, and something may be officially announced before our next issue. We must not stress comparison with the Imperials too much.

CANADIAN CAPTAIN (R.A.C.).—The grievance that you mention is widespread, and is being considered with sympathy and consideration by the authorities. They may not be able to give all that is asked, but we have no doubt that much will be done to mitigate the hardships you mention. The Armistice came so suddenly that a properly considered plan of demobilisation had apparently not been formulated, else we believe that many of these grievances to which you have given expression would not have arisen.

W. D. (Witley).—The country can afford to be generous, and we believe you will find that the Government will do much to remove causes of just grievance or hardship; but in regard to gratuities depending on length of service it must be remembered that the gratuity is not a form of back pay, but merely an allowance to tide over the interval between discharge and the resumption of civil employment, and the authorities having considered that three months' pay would fairly meet the case the length of service hardly comes into the question.

A SUFFERER (Seaford).—We fully sympathise with the position of the men in khaki as compared with that of the munition workers, but, in the case of the latter, it was a contract made by the British Government for those men to do a job of work, and a part of the undertaking was that the cost of the return of themselves and their dependents would be borne by the Department of Munitions, whereas, in the case of our soldiers, the Government of Canada did not ask or suggest that their dependents should follow them to Europe. In regard to shipping companies' profits, the rate for soldiers' dependents is only about one-third of that paid by the general public, so these fares cannot, as you put it, "fatten the money bags of shipping combines."

COMPANY MEETING

WESTERN CANADA INVESTMENT.

The eleventh annual general meeting of the Western Canada Investment Company, Limited, was held at 24, Coleman Street London, E.C., on Tuesday, December 17, Mr. J. G. Colmer, C.M.G. (chairman of the company), presiding

The chairman, in moving the adoption of the report and accounts, said that the affairs of the company were in a sound condition, especially having regard to the difficulties that had had to be faced owing to the war Shareholders were aware that in order to maintain their Debenture position they had had to pay a higher rate of interest than was current prior to 1914, although they had not been able to advance the interest charged on their loans.

It would be noticed that their Debentures, the authorised issue of which was £100,000, now stood at £89,360. The liability of the company was less to that extent, but, on the other hand, its earning power was also less, because the money borrowed on Debentures was loaned with subscribed capital to their customers in Canada. They hoped to place the balance of their Debentures when conditions became more normal. Although the earnings—£16,993—and the amount carried forward—£4,386—were apparently rather less than last year, they had not included, as in former years, the interest in arrear on advances made before the war to borrowers who were serving at the Front, and which amounted to about £2,000. The majority of these arrears, however, were looked upon as quite good by their local board in Winnipeg As against this, however, they had not taken credit in the revenue for discounts earned on agreements for sales not yet matured, or for profits on part of the properties foreclosed and sold. These two sums together were about £2,000, and were being retained as a reserve until the accounts were closed. In connection with their financial position, he pointed out that their general reserve was £12,000, as against £11,000 in the previous year. They were proposing to increase the reserve by a further £1,000, to write off the balance of the preliminary expenses and to pay a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. on the Ordinary shares. Their investments in War Loan were about £4,000 more than last year.

The general impression, continued the chairman, appeared to be that a period of considerable activity might be expected in Canada for many years. The war had taught them all something more than they knew before of the great resources and possibilities of that wonderful country and of the manner in which they might be utilised. The experience thus gained and the immense business that had grown up within the last four years were sure to stimulate agricultural expansion and the development of the many other industries which were in operation. The results would probably be shown in increased production and in the provision of additional markets for the produce and manufacture of the Dominion. The prosperity of Canada meant prosperity for the company with which they were associated. He desired to place on record their appreciation, as British shareholders in a company whose business was confined to Canada, of the magnificent part the Dominion had taken in the memorable struggle which was now happily at an end.

Sir Reginald Macleod, K.C.B., seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

TRADE ENQUIRIES.

Several experienced Canadian business men are starting a firm in Halifax, N.S., whose travellers will cover the whole of Canada, and they wish to represent United Kingdom manufacturers upon a commission basis. Lines specially suggested are textiles, china, cutlery, toys, groceries and jams.

Other enquiries received by the Canadian Trade Commissioner, 73, Basinghall Street, London, E.C.2, are from Canadian firms regarding markets for timber and coal tar roofing cement; and from British firms regarding canned goods and raw fruits, buttons and wheat and other grains.

North Coast Land.—In their report for the year ending June 30 last, the directors are unable to report any improvement in the financial or business condition of the company. During the year a few small properties were sold, at reduced prices, but there was no demand for farm lands, nor had the company been able to interest lumbermen in its timber limits. Owing to default in payment of licence fees some of the company's timber licences were forfeited, and unless others are taken care of before July, 1919, they also will be forfeited to the Government. The company still has 33 licences on the upper Fraser River. Taxes are in arrears on most of the company's properties, and the directors expected that all the company's farm lands would be sold at Provincial tax sales, to be held in October and November. A large sum of money is needed for the redemption of these lands before the expiration of one year. The company is negotiating for the surrender of its mortgaged properties in liquidation of the debts incurred in respect of instalments, unpaid interest and taxes, and is faced with considerable loss within connection, The London Committee of the company's Board of Directors has in hand the matter of securing money to take care of unpaid interest, taxes, and other payments accumulated since 1914. The profit and loss account for the year under review shows savings of $10,670, of which $5,071 had not been collected at the close of the year, and expenditure of $14,367. Thus an addition of $3,696 was made to the debit balance of $348,998 brought into the year's accounts.

"7 o'clock" Safety Razor.

The only Safety Razor at less than one guinea that can be stropped without removing blade.

A really dependable razor at a popular price. It opens flat, and can be stropped without removing the blade. This construction also overcomes the difficulty of cleaning, which is the bugbear of so many safety razors.

Strongly made, heavily silvered, and with blades that [illegible] be surpassed, it is used by many men who could afford a far more expensive razor, but prefer the simple efficiency of the "7 o'clock." The Standard Set consists of heavily silver-plated stropping razor, six finest lancet steel blades, the whole in handsome case, with strop in hinged partition, and the price is 10/6.

Of all high-class dealers throughout the world.

CHRISTMAS IN ARMISTICE.

THE fifth Christmas since the orderly and quiet life of the British peoples was so suddenly and ruthlessly shattered finds us at last with our heel on the neck of the enemy. We are not yet at peace, and, indeed, internal peace seems yet far off from the peoples of the Central Empires and from Russia. But the smoke and din of war have passed away from our armies, so that we may once more remember Christmas as the season of peace. For this week, therefore, Canada can return to the photographs of peace, and forget those of war, and so bring back a memory of pleasant days in the fine keen air and the clear snow of a Canadian Christmas.

We do most sincerely wish to all our readers a Happy Christmas, though to many the aching and abiding loss of dear ones prevents rejoicing except in the common good and the victory over wrong. The easy happiness of old-time Christmases is gone perhaps for this generation—the brutality of man in its stark hideousness has been so grossly shown by the Hun and all his satellites that, in Europe at least, the very air is tainted, and the degradation of so-called civilised man has oppressed our minds. The newer lands and cleaner air across the Atlantic will attract a multitude who would forget—some, what they have suffered, and others, what they have done. Meantime, the future of Europe is in the melting pot.

It will be a refreshment to all minds if only for a day this week we can blot out the memory of war and think of the sunshine in Canada and the unspoiled land and the great spaces. And those in khaki who have been down into the grim valley with their comrades, and, though many remained behind, themselves have come back alive—these men who have seen the raw facts of war are the most strongly determined that its ruin and horrors must never be seen in Canada. To such men the true meaning and promise of Christmas are a fresh inspiration and a hope—an inspiration which will assuredly have a marked effect on their day and generation, and a hope which, on their return to the homes that are so eagerly waiting to welcome them, will stimulate them to seek and wholeheartedly to assist in reaching a new and better standard in both social and political life. In days to come it may, we hope, be seen that the four years spent in war were not too great a price paid by the men of Canada for the uplifting of the Dominion through their example and their leading.

CANADA IN 1918.

THE Victory Year has brought to the soldiers of Canada, in conjunction with those of the rest of the Empire and of the Allies, fresh laurels and enduring glory. The sacrifices which these have entailed—a bitter toll of tears as well as of blood—have been the heavy price paid for the Peace which is now assured.

At the beginning of the year the Corps was at Lens, nibbling its way into the suburbs of the city. In the great battle of March, between the Scarpe and the Oise, Canadian cavalry, motor machine guns, and railway troops did good work. The Corps troops were not engaged in these critical operations, being held in reserve as "shock" troops. It looked, however, as if they must inevitably be involved, and General Currie issued an Order of the Day, in which he expressed his trust in the Corps, "knowing that where Canadians are engaged there can be no giving way," and adjuring his men "to fight as you have ever fought, with all your strength, with all your determination, with all your tranquil courage."

The main body of the Canadians were afterwards moved to the south of the Scarpe, and while there news came of fresh outrages which made their blood boil and stiffened their purpose—the bombing of Canadian hospitals at Etaples and elsewhere on Whit Monday and subsequent dates, and the sinking of the Canadian hospital ship, Llandovery Castle, on June 27, 116 miles south-east of the Fastnet, with a loss of 234 lives out of the 258—medical staff and crew—on board.

When the Germans made their attempt, in the beginning of August, to divide the British and French armies, the Canadians were brought up to the scene of the fighting with the utmost secrecy and expedition, and took part in the great Allied attack launched at dawn on the 8th, east and south-east of Amiens—the infantry being assisted by cavalry, tanks, and aeroplanes. The fighting—described by General Currie as one of the most successful operations conducted by the Allied arms since the war began—lasted until the 19th. The Canadians, who were specially thanked by General Rawlinson, the commander of the Fourth Army, captured 9,131 prisoners, 190 guns, and over 1,040 machine guns, freeing from the invader 67 square miles and 27 towns and villages.

After having advanced on the Amiens front as far as Roye, the Canadians were moved to the north of Arras, and attacked on the Scarpe on August 26. A further attack on September 2 carried a portion of the formidable Drocourt-Quéant line—the Hindenburg switch-line—with, in Sir Douglas Haig's words, the greatest skill and courage. These operations, which continued until September 5, resulted in the capture of 97 guns, 1,089 machine guns and trench mortars, and 10,350 prisoners, and the freeing of 56 square miles and 22 towns and villages. "All Canada," telegraphed Sir Robert Borden to General Currie, "recognises with a thrill of pride and gratitude the tremendous significance of this latest triumph, which must bring dismay to the heart of the enemy."

On September 27 another attack was launched north of the Sensée River. The Canadians, in the left centre, forced the passage of the Canal du Nord, and in subsequent fighting took Bourlon Wood, gained possession of the Marcoing-Masnières line, and, in face of strong enemy opposition, fought their way into Cambrai, which they entered on October 9. In this battle the Canadians took over 7,000 prisoners and 200 guns. General Currie, in a Special Order, dated October 3, pointed out that in the short period of two months the Canadian Corps—"a mighty force admired by all, feared and respected by foes"—had encountered and defeated decisively 47 German divisions—nearly a quarter of the total German forces on the Western Front.

The capture of Cambrai was quickly followed by that of Douai and Denain, the Corps in one week making an advance of 23 miles and taking 28 towns and villages. Valenciennes was entered on November 2, after further sharp fighting, and shortly before dawn on November 11 units of the 7th Canadian Infantry Brigade entered Mons—the scene of the first British fighting in 1914.

At 5 a.m. on that morning an armistice was signed between Germany and the Allies and the United States, and hostilities on all fronts ceased at 11 a.m. Six days afterwards the Canadians set out on their march to the Rhine, to form part of the army of occupation on German soil. The frontier was reached on December 5, and the crossing of the Rhine took place a week afterwards at Cologne and Bonn, in the latter of which towns the Corps Headquarters have been established.

Well might Sir Thomas White, the Acting Prime Minister, say in a message to Sir Arthur Currie :—

> The courage, endurance, heroism, and fortitude of the Canadian forces at the Front have spread their fame throughout the world, and will for all time be the priceless heritage and tradition of the Canadian people. Canada can never repay the debt which we owe for their sacrifices and suffering in her defence.
>
> Your leadership has been characterised by great courage, sound judgment, fine initiative and able strategy, inspiring confidence both in the Field and at home, and I desire to express to you personally the admiration of your fellow citizens of Canada for the brilliant results which have been achieved.

And well might the General, in response to Sir Robert Borden's congratulations, say, "The record of the soldiers of our great democracy is one unsurpassed in the annals of war."

The casualties reported up to November 13—which do not, however, include the Mons fighting—were 213,268, the known deaths being 50,585; presumed dead, 4,620; missing 842; wounded, 154,361; and prisoners, 2,860. It is General Currie's pride that :—

> In the last two years' strenuous fighting the Corps never lost a gun, never failed to take its objective, and has never been driven from an inch of ground after once it had been consolidated, while the casualties among the rank and file bear the smallest percentage in proportion to its strength of any force in the British Army.

For some months a Canadian force has been taking part in the Allied operations in Northern Russia; and a contingent is being despatched to Siberia under Brig.-General J. H. Elmsley.

Canadian V.C.s.

Among the many war honours given to members of the Canadian Corps, the award of the following 32 Victoria Crosses was announced during 1918, making a total of 53 to date, four having been gazetted in 1915, two in 1916, and fifteen in 1917 :—

Shirley Benn, M.P., Chairman, Belgian Relief Committee.

On the occasion of their Majesties' Silver Wedding, in July, the Rt. Hon. C. A. Hanson, M.P., then Lord Mayor of London, who has close Canadian associations, was made a baronet.

The Dominion Parliament.

The new Dominion Parliament—the thirteenth—was opened by the Duke of Devonshire on March 18, the Union Government having a majority of 70. The following measures, which were afterwards passed into law, were announced :—Votes to Women, Daylight Saving, Liquor Prohibition, and National Registration.

At a secret session, held on April 17, Sir Robert Borden communicated to members of both Houses of the Dominion Parliament a statement revealing the seriousness of the war situation, and the imperative necessity of a supreme effort to keep up the divisions at the Front to full strength, and to increase the agricultural production of the country. Following upon this, an Order-in-Council was passed giving the military authorities power to call out any class under the Military Service Act and abolishing exemptions.

The Budget, introduced by Sir Thomas White on April 30, provided for an increase in the taxes on income, businesses, and light beers, an increased duty on tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, and coffee, a duty of 10 cents on tea, and a special war tax of 10 per cent. on automobiles, jewellery, kinema films, gramophones, etc.

Parliament was prorogued on May 23.

Canada's fifth War Loan, launched on October 8, was nominally for $300,000,000, issued at par, maturing in five or fifteen years, with interest working out at 5½ per cent. The hope was expressed that the subscriptions to this, the Victory Loan, would reach $600,000,000. The actual amount obtained was $687,077,500, from 1,067,879 subscribers—in the words of the King, "A splendid demonstration of the maturity of the financial strength to which the Dominion has attained."

Dominion Ministers.

On June 8 Sir Robert Borden and the Hons. N. W. Rowell, A. Meighen, and J. A. Calder arrived in London to take part in the meetings of the Imperial War Cabinet and Conference. The Prime Minister also came to London on November 16, in order to take part in the Peace Conference deliberations, being accompanied by Sir George Foster and the Hon. A. L. Sifton, and being later joined by the Hon. C. J. Doherty.

In May the Departments of Customs and Inland Revenue were merged, and the Hon. A. L. Sifton, Minister of Customs, was appointed to the joint portfolio. In July Lt.-Col. the Hon. P. E. Blondin, Postmaster-General, was appointed to the Senate, the difficulty of his defeat at the General Election being thus overcome. In November the Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labour, resigned on account of ill-health, and his duties were taken over by the Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister without Portfolio.

Provincial Ministers.

The Premiers of Manitoba (Hon. T. C. Norris), Saskatchewan (Hon. W. M. Martin), and Alberta (Hon. C. Stewart) came to Europe in June in order to visit the soldiers from their Provinces in England and at the Front. The Hon. H. J. Cody, Minister of Education in Ontario, visited London in September.

The following Provincial Cabinet changes occurred during the year :—

Nova Scotia.—In March Mr. Wm. Chisholm was appointed Minister without Portfolio: in July the Hon. H. H. Wickwire, Minister without Portfolio, was made Minister of Highways, and Mr. R. E. Finn a Minister without Portfolio.

Quebec.—In March the Hon. Walter Mitchell, Provincial Treasurer, was appointed to the new Department of Municipal Affairs. Following upon the death of Sir P. E. Le Blanc on October 20, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick was appointed Lt.-Governor.

Ontario.—In February the Hon. W. J. Hanna resigned his post as Minister without Portfolio. In May the Ven. Archdeacon H. J. Cody was appointed Minister of Education, on the retirement of the Hon. Dr. Pyne, and Mr. G S. Henry, Minister of Agriculture.

Saskatchewan.—In May the Hon. Geo. Bell, Minister of Telephones, retired to become chairman of the Provincial Local Government Board, and his portfolio was taken over by the Hon. C. A. Dunning, Provincial Treasurer. Mr. W. E. Knowles was appointed Provincial Secretary. In December the Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, resigned.

Alberta.—In August the appointment of the Hon. C. W. Cross as Attorney-General was revoked by the Lt.-Governor. This was followed by a reorganisation of the Cabinet, Mr. A. G. McKay, leader of the Ontario Liberal party, joining the Government as Minister of Municipal Affairs; the Hon. J. R. Boyle becoming Attorney-General; the Hon. J. L. Cote, Provincial Treasurer; Mr. A. G. McLean, Provincial Secretary; and the Hon. G P. Smith, Minister of Education and Public Health.

British Columbia.—Following the death of the Hon. H. C. Brewster at Calgary on March 4, while on his way home from a conference at Ottawa, the Hon. John Oliver, Minister of Agriculture and Railways, became Premier.

Mr. F. C. Wade was appointed Agent-General for British Columbia in August, in place of the late Sir Richard McBride, and in November Brig.-General R. Manley Sims took over the duties of Agent-General for Ontario in succession to the late Lt.-Col. R. Reid.

Other Happenings.

On February 10 Lord Beaverbrook became a member of Mr. Lloyd George's Government, being appointed Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and Minister in charge of Propaganda; but he had to resign at the beginning of November on account of ill-health.

In October Lord Shaughnessy resigned the presidency of the C.P.R., though retaining the chairmanship, and was succeeded by Mr. E. W. Beatty.

Two banking combinations took place during the year. the Royal Bank absorbing the Northern Crown Bank, and the Bank of British North America amalgamating with the Bank of Montreal.

Two Canadian Press parties visited the Mother Country and the Western Front during the summer.

CANADIANS' MARCH TO THE RHINE.

General Currie's Special Order.

The following is the full text of the Special Order of the Day (already alluded to in Canada) by Lt.-Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, issued to the Canadian Corps on November 25 :—

Some of you have already commenced, while others are about to begin, the march to the Rhine, liberating Belgium in your advance. In a few days you will enter Germany, and hold certain parts in order to secure the fulfilment of the terms of the armistice preliminary to the peace treaty.

The rulers of Germany, humiliated and demoralised, have fled. That unscrupulous nation, who in 1914 set at naught every treaty and violated every moral obligation, who have since perpetrated the most ferocious atrocities on land as well as on the sea, is beaten, famished and at our mercy. Justice has come; retribution commences. During four long years, conscious of the righteousness of your cause, you have fought many battles and endured cruel hardships, and now your mighty efforts are rewarded; our fallen comrades are avenged. You have demonstrated on the battle field your superior courage and unfaltering energy. By the will of God you have won! won! won!

Marching triumphantly through Belgium, you will be received everywhere as liberators, but the kindness and generosity of the population must not cause any relaxation of your discipline or alertness. Your task is not yet completed, and you must remain what you are—the close-knitted army, in grim, deadly earnest.

German agents, scattered throughout the country, must not be able to report to their masters any weakness or evidence of disintegration of your fighting power. It is essential that on the march and at the halt, discipline must be of the highest standard. Every possible protection should be taken at all times to guard against hostile acts by organised bodies, and to lessen the possibility, always present, of isolated murders or desperate guerilla acts by factions of the enemy. Above all, it is of capital importance to establish in Germany the sense of your overwhelming moral and physical standing, so as to complete by your presence and your potential strength the victories you have won on the battle field. All external signs of discipline must be insisted upon, and the example in this, as in all instances, must come from the leaders. Clothing and equipment must be, if possible, spotless, well kept and well put on. Badges and distinguishing marks must be complete, while the transport should be as clean as circumstances will allow. In short, you must continue to be, and appear to be, that powerful hitting force which has won the fear and respect of your foes, and the admiration of the world.

It is not necessary to say that the population and private property will be respected. You will always remember that you fought for justice, right and decency, and that you cannot afford to fall short of these essentials even in the country against which you have every right to feel bitter. Rest assured that the crimes of Germany will receive adequate punishment. Attempts will be made by insidious propaganda to undermine the source of your strength; but you, the soldier citizens of the finest and most advanced democracy in the world, will treat such attempts with the contempt they deserve. You know what self-imposed, stern discipline has made you—the hardest, most successful and cleanest fighters of this war. Beginning by the immortal stand at the second battle of Ypres, you befittingly closed, by the capture of Mons, your fighting record, in which every battle you fought is a resplendent page of glory.

I trust you, and the people at home trust you, while the memory of your dead comrades demands of you, to bring back that glorious record, pure and unsullied, to Canada.

In memory of Pte. John Craigie Cunningham, M.A., P.P.C.L.I., who was killed in action in France on August 26, 1918, a book prize is to be offered annually at the Edinburgh School of Social Study, of the value of the interest on £100 War Loan, for an essay.

IN THE PROMISED LAND.

By Captain R. J. Renison (Canadian Chaplain Services, Author of "The Bivouac of the Dead,' etc).

PROBABLY in the legends of the 21st Battalion the ten days' rest at Auberchicourt will be idealised as the first taste of the Promised Land. Coming after the fierce battle which marked the final phase of the fall of Cambrai, the contrast was almost overwhelming.

For three years the Canadian Corps had taken its full share of the hardships incidental to the campaign, gradually increasing in intensity. From the trenches of the Ypres Salient to the mud of Passchendaele, from the bombs of Amiens to the desolation of the Arras region had been progression from one form of discomfort to another. The High Command must have had confidence in the ability of the Canadians to resist heart failure, or there would have been a judicious period of transition.

Towards the end of October the 2nd Canadian Division took possession of the town of Auberchicourt. The suburb of Aniche—the "Belgravia" of the city—was occupied by the 21st Canadian Battalion. It was in peacetime a prosperous mining centre, the home of many well-to-do citizens of the commercial class. The Germans had driven out the inhabitants, and we had the place to ourselves. Such billets had never been known in the experience of the most imaginative "Fifty-niners"—spring beds for all the troops, marble clocks on every mantelpiece, coal in every cellar, and a back garden with the "leeks and cucumbers of Egypt." One company officer refused a billet because the piano was out of tune.

The latent domestic talents of many unsuspected artists were displayed in the decoration of the living-rooms of the houses. House furnishing was less expensive than the Canadian instalment plan, concerning which some innocent bachelors have already been consulting their married comrades.

This was especially noticeable when a Canadian Casualty Clearing Station arrived in the town and the nurses appeared in the streets. The M.O. pretended that he knew them, and immediately carried out a masterly offensive with complete success. For some reason which no one else could understand, the Q.M. was called in to convoy the prisoners. The men lined the streets on either side as the procession passed up to "B" mess for afternoon tea.

That night a most excellent H.Q. officer, àpropos of nothing at all, asked whether in peacetime two could live as cheaply as one.

A brigade service, under the command of Col. Millen, D.S.O., Acting Brigadier, was held on the 27th. The preacher spoke of St. John's vision of a new Heaven and a new earth, and said that the Gates of Pearl were the Gates of Sacrifice. The new world which was even then opening before us had been reached through the death of those who had died four years before. He mentioned the fact that the Canadian Corps was advancing along the historic line of the Mons retreat. Their voices seemed to cheer us from their resting-place:—

"We lie like castaways upon the shore
Whose lives were lost in the Great Retreat,
But where the wave hath ebbed, the flood shall roar,
And we await the tide's returning feet."

Few thought in August, 1914, that that returning tide would flow from the lakes and rivers of the New World.

At Last.

When the battalion, with the rest of the 2nd Division, moved out of Aniche on November 4, to Petit Forêt, scarcely a week of fighting remained, but no one even then could have believed it possible. Great events were happening in Europe. As suddenly as the war began, so did it hasten to a close. Turkey had surrenderd unconditionally, Austria-Hungary was already vanishing for ever after over a thousand years of chequered history, during which she had been consistently the enemy of Human Progress.

But the battalion went forward prepared for a continuation of the desperate fighting which had marked the last memorable hundred days. It soon became evident that something dynamic was happening. The villages in the remaining part of France and those in Belgium began to throb with electric excitement. St. Saulve, Baisseux, Genley, and Noirchain marked the stage of a triumphal procession. There was still fighting to be done but it became obvious that after four years the Boche was done. On November 9 the last casualties occurred. Lt. D. J. Macdonnell was wounded and five "other ranks." Pte. L. Sullivan was killed, the last of over seven hundred men who have died in France to make the history of the 21st Canadian Battalion. Their bodies rest in a foreign soil, but to Canada they have bequeathed their memory and their glory.

"On Fame's Eternal Camping Ground
Their silent tents are spread.
While Glory guards with solemn round
The Bivouac of the Dead."

When it is considered that over four thousand men have, in one way or another, passed through our ranks, and that it was given to only a few to see the realisation of the dream for which Britain drew the sword, one may truly say:—"Others have laboured and ye have entered into their labours!"

The Belgians' Welcome.

The Belgians of the Province of Hainault are Celtic in temperament and intensely Gallic in their sympathies. It was a revelation to those who judged Belgium by the experience of Flanders. Our troops were welcomed during the last few days with transports of joy. Men were kissed by women of all ages from seven to seventy. In many cases the Germans were going out of one end of the town while the Canadians were entering the other. The villages were en fête. French and Belgian flags which had been buried for years hung everywhere. Marvellous imitations of the Union Jack, obviously improvised from available material, testified the genuineness of the welcome. Chrysanthemums and asters, with an amazing profusion of autumn flowers, were literally showered upon all ranks. Most men received more floral tributes than they will ever have until the Great War Veterans conduct the funeral in the old home town.

The brass band came into its own, for its stirring marches seemed to set the people wild. Men, women, and children, emerging from the cellars where they had been for thirty-six hours, danced like Bacchantes in a delirium of delight. The symbol of the Wallon Cock crowing its head off, which was placarded everywhere, truly expressed the national psychology. The pipe band produced an indescribable effect upon the populace. Too late it was discovered what a potent weapon had been only partially utilised during the early months of the war. The girls at first tried to waltz to the strains of "The Cock of the North," but they felt themselves that they were not doing justice to the music. At last an old women appeared on a window sill and spontaneously dissolved into a Highland fling like Tam o' Shanter's witch—"A supple jade she was and strang." From that moment the censorship was removed.

A notable act of heroism must here be recorded. The Adjutant and the M.O. crossed some fields alone, and at a corner were embraced by five hundred Belgians. While they were returning to the battalion another expectant village was descried, and a council of war was held. It was decided not to make a detour, and this party arrived safely at H.Q. with only a few minor casualties.

But beneath the unique experience of these days which marked the apotheosis of the 21st Canadian Bn. in France, everyone saw the genuine gratitude of a nation delivered from slavery. It was pleasant, even if slightly undeserved, to hear Canadians hailed as the "Liberators of Belgium." And many a man wished that some good comrade, who had died in hope in dark hours, could have been by his side that day.

The Armistice.

But the rush of events on the world's stage was already absorbing the drama of the Western Front. When the battalion moved into Noirchain, on October 10, it was known that German envoys had crossed the frontier.

In its relationship to the individual it was inevitable that the end of a world war should seem like an anti-climax in the field. There is a sublime simplicity in the following message, which arrived at battalion H.Q. at 0840 hours:—"Hostilities cease at 1100 hours, November 11. Stand fast on line reached at that hour."

The answer was:—"Warning order re cessation of hostilities received. Thanks." That was all.

The advance of the battalion on the last day was the longest ever made from the front line, being nearly 14,000 yards.

When the order concerning the armistice had been communicated to the various companies, the bands paraded through the town, and there was general cheering. But looking back upon the day, everyone remarked upon its comparative quietness. The transition from war to peace is as great as from peace to war. As it was impossible, on the fateful 4th of August, 1914, to understand the full meaning of the years which were to follow, so the soldier, who had so long, through hope deferred, confined himself to the task in hand, could not at once realise that the end had come. Again, many of the older men were thinking of the early days and the good fellows who sleep "in Flanders Fields."

On November 11 the battalion moved into Mesvin, one of the south-eastern suburbs of Mons. It was a source of deep and thankful pride that the very last despatch from Sir Douglas Haig, the Commander-in-Chief, before the "cease fire" sounded, was sent from G.H.Q. at 1045 hours:—"The Canadians captured Mons early this morning."

The cycle was complete, for, on the high ridge overlooking Mons, the British Army first met the German and began the most famous retreat in military history. The official welcome to the British Army in Mons on November 16 said:—"we witnessed the wonderful retreat of 1914, and we knew that you would return."

The March to the Rhine.

While the battalion was at Mesvin it became known that the Canadian Corps, a part of the Second British Army, was to have the honour of taking part in the advance to the German frontier. The news was received with universal pleasure, for everyone felt that it was a logical seal to the Great Compact which Canada had made.

A Thanksgiving Service was held on Sunday, November 17. At 6.45 a.m. the historic march began. The battalion touched the eastern outskirts of Mons and proceeded along the Rouleux Road. The day was frosty and bright, and the battalion looked remarkably well as the men marched in fine spirits. Long lines of returning French and Belgian prisoners were met on the march, while during the day hundreds of British prisoners were met on their way from the German frontier.

At 1049 hours the battalion entered the village of Thieu, 12 kilometres from Mons, and went into billets for two days. From the inhabitants much was learned of the conditions during the four years of the German occupation. It was apparent that the country had not been touched by the destructive side of war. The mines and the fertile soil, so like the loam of Manitoba, and the density of the population all testified to the potential wealth of the district. But the people seem to have lived in slavery. The Germans, by commandeering and fines, seem to have systematically skinned the entire production of Belgium above the life-line. How any country could hope to control a conquered country by such methods is beyond the psychology of a Canadian. Among the Wallons there is a passionate resentment not only against the Germans, but also against those of their countrymen who were intimate with them during the occupation. Several riots were reported in the adjacent villages, where men were beaten and women branded and their hair cut by Vigilantes. Some cafés have been wrecked. Just a little "Descensus Averni" to show that human nature, even in martyred Belgium, is pretty much the same as in Winnipeg or Quebec.

A Densely Populated Countryside.

On November 21, at 0830 hours, the battalion fell in, prepared to advance to its second objective. The band played farewell before the house of the Burgomestre. The entire population cheered us through the streets. During a march of 20 kilometres the whole route was practically through closed streets of towns and villages which ran one into the other. After the vast spaces of unoccupied land in Canada, it was like a revelation to pass through part of the most densely populated country in the world. Most of the road was of stone blocks. Only one man fell out on the march, and the men finished fit and strong.

Along the whole way crowds lined the streets, and triumphal arches were found in every village. In the town of La Louvière there were elaborate decorations. Some of the mottoes were most interesting: "Canada for Ever" was one of the most popular. At one spot even the horses began to prance and move with rhythmic dignity as they passed under an arch decorated with yellow, black and red, with the following lyrical inscription:—

"Honour and Glory
To the Braves.
The Defenders of the Civilisation."

Several men reconstructed their private opinions of themselves during the day.

At 1530 hours the battalion entered the town of Trazegnies, where they found most excellent billets for the night.

There is a new song whose chorus expresses the feelings of every Canadian:—

"The Army, the Army,
I liked it fine and we'll see the Rhine
The Army, the Army,
But I'll never go there any more."

THE WESTERN MOTHER.

Lo, how I yearn for my children
  Far-flung to Humanity's aid!
Glad though my soul at the knowledge
  My debt to Humanity's paid.

I gave to ensure the salvation
  Of hopes that are nursed at my breast
By those who have grasped at that Freedom
  Enshrined in my bounteous West.

Came they world-weary and soul-sick,
  I folded them deep in my arms,
Crooned of new life at the dawning,
  And soluced their hurts with my charms.

Giving with lavish abundance
  The wealth of my mountains and loam,
But guarding my intimate glories
  For those who shall call me "Home."

"By pain," saith the Maker of Nations,
  And lo, how He tries me much!
Hungry's my heart for their voices,
  Eager my breast for their touch.

Vast are my borders, but vaster
  The dreams that are born to my men.
'Tis dreams that have taken them from me—
  Through dreams shall I claim them again!

BRIGADE OF GUARDS' MEMORIAL SERVICE.

A memorial service will be held on Wednesday, February 5, 1919, in St. Paul's Cathedral, at 2.30 p.m., in memory of all ranks of the Brigade of Guards who have been killed or have died during the war.

Admission will be by ticket only, and immediate preference will be given to relatives and next-of-kin of the fallen. Owing to the very large number involved, the seating accommodation will be taxed to the utmost, but endeavour will be made to supply each family with two tickets. Early application—stating the regimental number, rank, name and regiment of the deceased—should be sent to the headquarters of the regiment concerned, Buckingham Gate, London, S.W.1., and the envelope marked on the outside "Memorial Service."

The doors of the Cathedral will be opened at 1.30 p.m., when a selection of music will be performed by the massed bands of the Brigade of Guards.

CHAPTER II.—SALISBURY PLAIN.

BURTON paced solemnly towards the misty loom of the water tank he was supposed to be guarding, and swore viciously to himself. Tired from a route march that day, and a spell of guard duty the night before, he had anticipated a pleasant rest that evening reading and playing cards with his chum, Carew, in their tent, for the two were happy in the possession of a tent to themselves, secured by much persuasion and adroit mendacity.

Just as they had settled down, their blankets pulled over them, and their boots hanging from a peg in the tent pole, half-a-dozen candles burning under each pair to dry them and warm the tent, the platoon sergeant had warned them for extra guard duty and turned them out.

Burton cursed the platoon sergeant unto the third and fourth generation of platoon sergeants, and gloomily listened to the water squelching in his boots. He wondered how Carew had got on. That fellow 'ul always get a soft job, he bet. The dim form of the sentry on the next beat approached him, and he challenged him from force of habit, receiving an irritable request to go to the devil.

"Hello, Don, is that you?" said Burton, pleased. "Didn't know you were on this particular racket. Thought you'd likely get a cushy job watching the quartermaster's stores or something."

Carew took no notice of the slur.

THE FIRST CANADIAN DIVISION ON SALISBURY PLAIN.

"Say, Harry," he said, "did you notice that it was old Simpson who turned us out again? We're the only fellows of his platoon on to-night. He's been sore with us ever since we celebrated his achievements with that gem of verse. Don't think he liked us tidying his kit for him that day either. But we really ought to do something to assert ourselves and express our mild disapproval of this extra guard business."

"What time is it now?" asked Burton.

"Half - past eleven—about."

"Well, look here; Simpson's in the guard tent now, and you bet he's gone to sleep and left the corporal to look after the reliefs. I'll go and yell there's suspicious characters lurking around the tank—you're a blamed, suspicious character, Don—and make him turn out and investigate. Then you can follow on about 4.30 on our next guard. It'll keep him busy, anyway."

"Sure, go ahead," approved Carew, and added, as the other was moving off, "there's a bit of a muddy pond with a path leading straight to it, at the foot of the slope, just south of the tank. Be careful no one falls into it."

Burton chortled and proceeded to turn out the sergeant. Carew followed and listened with joy to the noisy altercation in the tent, then ran back to his own beat as the tent-flap was thrown back and the sergeant came out, tunic unbuttoned, and rubbing his eyes. He waited behind the tank for ten minutes until he heard a splash and a curse, then came round the corner and yelled "Halt!"

He heard Burton choking with laughter in the background.

The dim figure in the pond took no notice, splashing heavily towards the edge, and Carew shouted again, clicking the bolt of his rifle suggestively.

"Don't you move till I find out who you are," ordered Carew, as the splashing ceased. "What are you doing in our pond?"

"I'm your sergeant, you fool," spluttered the unfortunate Simpson, who had staggered down the slippery path and fallen headlong into the pool. "Come and give me a hand out of here. I'll get Burton sure over this job."

"Beg pardon, sergeant. Didn't recognise you," said Carew brightly. "Don't be hard on a man doing his duty, sergeant."

He came gingerly down the slope and held out a hand to the unhappy non-com., who scrambled up on the slippery edge. Burton came running by above the pool, making a great deal of commotion.

"Halt!" shouted Carew again.

"That you, sentry?" called Harry. "Did you see Sergeant Simpson? He was chasing a spy down here, and I believe he's been done in."

The sergeant stood in helpless wrath. Then—"You two fellers better be careful. Get back on your beats now," he said, and pounded off towards the tent.

The two fell on each other's necks and rejoiced exceedingly.

"Nice work," commented Harry. "Our pond is a good pond."

"Better not do it next time, though," remarked Don. "he's got it in for us."

And, indeed, retribution was swift upon them

The two were relieved shortly after the excitement, and managed to obtain some sleep during their four hours off duty. Turned out again at 4 a.m., they filled pipes to mitigate that particular Salisbury Plain just-before-dawn feeling, and lighting up together were neatly caught by the officer of the guard and Simpson.

The officer, new to his work, eyed them severely

"Have these men good characters, sergeant?" he asked

The sergeant, a step behind, could hardly restrain his unqualified approval at the turn of affairs.

"Well, hardly, sir," he replied. "They make more trouble than all the rest of the company together. They've been warned about this smoking before."

"What's your name, you?" asked the lieutenant, pointing at Carew."

"Carew, sir."

"Caruso?" repeated the officer, querulously. The non-com. giggled.

"No—Carew—sir," said Don, quelling an almost uncontrollable impulse to jump on the sergeant's face.

"Bring out the next relief, sergeant, and take these men to the guard-tent. They'll go before the colonel in the morning." He moved off.

"Now I should have to sing that last sentence," muttered Harry.

"We got off guard, anyway," said Don, optimistically.

. . . . .

"What luck?" asked Burton, as Carew came out of the orderly room and picked up his cap.

"Four days' pay, four days' C.B.!" replied the other. "How did you make out?"

"Got six days of each," complained Harry. "Simpson said I was insubordinate and used bad language to him, the liar. Wouldn't that jar you now? Something must be done, Don."

"Thumbs down!" remarked Carew, and the two strolled off to their tent.

Frenzied yells broke out from the rear of the canteen, and the two men in the tent sat up and listened.

"Was that first post went just now?" asked Burton.

"Sure—one more damn defaulters' call to answer to-night. D'you know why they're making all that fuss over there, Harry?"

"No, unless it was you started it just now, you old devil. What were you saying to that old whisky-soak, Harris?"

Carew chuckled happily to himself as the row outside quietened down.

"I just pointed out to him some of the natural advantages of England, and Salisbury Plain in particular," he answered.

"Come on, out with it!" cried Burton, exasperated, seizing him by the shoulders.

"Harry," replied Carew, "the first duty of a soldier—Help! Ouch! Well then, listen! You remember that lecture we had yesterday—about taking advantage of the configuration of the country, hills and formations, or words to that effect?"

"Get on," said Burton.

"Well, I took that very much to heart, Harry, because I—I repeat, I—wish to be a good soldier, so that when I get old I can take down the tarnished sabre and the blood-stained uniform from the wall, and show them to the golden-haired grandchildren prattling round my ——"

"Help!" groaned Harry.

"Trouble is, there's no poetry in you," said Don, with resignation. "Anyway, coming out from that lecture I looked towards the canteen"—("You bet," remarked Harry)—"to see if I could see you," continued the other, "and noticed that it'd been erected just on the brow of a fairly steep but smooth declivity. The canteen tent, as you know, Harry, faces towards us and the level ground—behind the tent there is some twenty feet of level, just enough for the wagons that bear the luscious casks, in the contents of which you delight so much, then the slope down to the valley——"

"O Lord!" remarked Burton.

"These casks," resumed Carew, "are unloaded and piled at the back of the tent, with one solitary and unfortunate sentry to guard 'em. Do you begin to get me, Harry?"

"Elucidate some more," said Burton

Carew sighed and continued.

'A determined man," he went on, "or say, four determined men, full of the joy of life and anticipation of unlimited beer, might easily persuade the guard to busy himself elsewhere, abstract a barrel from just inside the tent, roll it to the edge of the slope and let it run, and be back to their tents establishing an alibi within the space of thirty seconds. I suggested this to Harris, who happens to be the temporary guard and latest complaining victim of Simpson's irregularity, and I fear the suggestion badly twisted the upright character of an otherwise trustworthy man. Never be tempted, Harry. Harris improved on the suggestion by organising a demonstration in the front of the canteen, while his gang got busy at the back. That was the row you heard."

The defaulters' call sounded, and the two men got up. "Oh, that damn 'double up.'" groaned Burton as they plodded through the mud towards the provost-sergeant's tent.

"But that's real good, Don, and I'll recommend you for the D.S.O." he added. "But let's hear it all. Where does Simp. come in?"

"Wait till we're back in the tent," said Don, lining up for the brief roll-call.

FLOODS AMONG THE TENTS ON SALISBURY PLAIN.

As they stepped back into their home a few minutes later, Harris stuck his head round the tent-flap.

"Don," he called.

Then, as Carew came closer, "We got that barrel out all right, and Micky's located it, down in the valley. There's five of us and you two. Let's go down now. We've got a mess-tin down there."

Carew took charge of the situation and issued his orders.

"Listen," he said. "You fellows have got nearly an hour to make yourselves beastly drunk. When you hear Lights Out you beat it back to camp by roundabout ways. Don't stay a minute later. Don't let the beggars stay, Harris. Burton, you go down now with 'em and stay till they're all gone, and then come back and find Simpson. Tell him that I, with some more bad characters, am down in the valley with a stolen beer barrel and that we're blind drunk. Tell him you're sore with me, and explain exactly where we are. You can't go with him and show him the way, remember, because you're a defaulter and can't leave the lines. Watch him start to bring off a fine coup all by himself, and then come and tell me, and he'll never resist a free drink."

Harry chuckled, and the two men stepped from the tent and separated, Harris ahead and Burton keeping in sight as well as possible.

The sergeant, for whose benefit all this deep-laid scheme had been evolved, came by on his way to the mess, and stopped Harry.

"You're not allowed to leave the lines, you know," he said; "where's that smart pal of yours?"

Burton improved the shining hour.

"Carew?" he asked. "Lot I care where the beggar's gone. He's wandering about somewhere. I've got no use for him anyway."

"What's the trouble?" inquired Simpson. "You two fellers been scrapping? Well, remember what I tell you—come and let me know if he's gone outside the lines and get your own back"—and he went off laughing.

Burton continued his way, rejoicing.

He could see the Y.M.C.A. tent half a mile away, the windows of the canvas erection shining brightly, and he headed towards it through the dim white lines of tents, tripping and cursing occasionally over the ropes and pegs that held them. He came to the vacant space of trodden ground between battalion lines, and broke off to the right towards the valley, seeing Harris's unmistakable shuffle ahead of him as the latter passed the ray of light escaping from a thrown back tent flap.

Burton loved the life on Salisbury Plain, though to most of the Canadians it was abomination. Wet and full of discomforts, as it was, he felt hard as nails, and enjoyed to the full the vague pranks his chum Carew and himself managed to perpetrate. There was a quaint madness in the air, too, that night, like some strange moonlit summer's night, that made anything possible.

Harris joined him as he started to descend the hill

"Over to the right here, Harry," he muttered. "Say, what's that partner of yours up to? He don't give us much time."

"Do you like Simpson?" asked Harry.

"No, I'd like to see the beggar smashed," replied the other. "He don't know his job anyway. He had no [illegible] putting me in that sentry job to-night, I'm not for guard. Just wanted to give the other fellow a rest—greased him up a bit, I guess."

They crossed a rough track on the side of the hill, and going carefully down the slope, heard five minutes later the clank of a mess-tin being cautiously manipulated.

"Lord, you've eyes like a cat," whispered Harry admiringly. "Go ahead and tell those fellows, or they'll be beating it."

Harris called to the others in a low voice, allaying their suspicions The barrel lay tilted up neatly on its side, looking lonely and deserted, but as the two came up four shadows came from the darkness and joined them, silently proffering a mess-tin.

Harris drank and passed it to Burton, who explained the time limit and their intentions regarding their superior officer. The men agreed, regretfully deciding that the end justified the means, even though the latter entailed the abandonment of a perfectly good beer-barrel half-full of its natural contents.

Let's get as comfortable as possible," remarked Harris, and they sat round, smoking and relating the usual anecdotes of their lives—and loves—one of the number occasionally acting as scout and making a reconnaissance in the direction of the camp.

"D'you hear about Milroy there?" asked a man. "He's only just out of the guard-room—got eight days, didn't you, old son?"

Milroy, a tall man with a bored expression, grunted assent, and requested the speaker to confine himself to his own experiences.

The irrepressible continued. "Milroy was down to one of these dump villages on picket duty, guarding the station road, and managed to steal some kind of lubrication—got pretty well oiled up. About 1 o'clock in the morning a car come along with a couple of brass hats, and Milroy stopped 'em—said they wasn't allowed to pass. They raised a row and Mil got irritated."

"Just wanted to write a letter to my girl," said the subject aggrieved. "Wanted to borrow a headlight so I could see to write"

"We knew it wasn't quite right," put in another man, "but we couldn't persuade him different, so we allowed he'd have to write his letter. But, anyway, you didn't ought to've pulled your bayonet on 'em, Mil," he reproved.

The first man continued: "He made 'em back the car across the road and kept 'em waiting while he sat in the hedge under the light of their old lamp and wrote a letter to his girl at home, reading out the bits that he liked best to 'em."

"They didn't like old Mil asking 'em how to spell words," remarked the other man, seriously.

"Called me a damned undisciplined Colonial," said Milroy regretfully. "Then the relief come along and I got arrested and eight days. I never knew they was in a hurry. Them kind is always in a hurry."

Somebody handed him the replenished mess-tin, and it went the rounds.

Burton stood up. "Time to get back, fellows," he said, and started on his way back to the camp as the others disappeared silently into the darkness.

"Lights Out" was sounded as Harry came opposite the sergeant's mess, stepping in front of Simpson as the latter emerged a minute later.

"Hullo, you again," said the sergeant, who radiated a strong smell of whisky, "What are you doing?"

"Look here, sergeant, I want to speak to you a minute," Harry said, and hesitated. "No, I don't think I'll bother you though." and started off.

"Hold on!" cried Simpson, "you'd better tell me now what it is."

"Well," blurted out Harry, hanging his head, "Carew and some of the others grabbed a cask of beer from the canteen tent and rolled it down the hill, and they're sitting round it soaking now!"

"Ah!" commented the sergeant, "you weren't invited, eh?"

Burton made no reply.

"Whereabouts are they?"

The other raised his head with a desperate air.

"Go down the hill to the track," he described, "along the track, till you're opposite the canteen tent, and then straight down the hill below you. Five minutes . . . . Told him I'd get even with him," he added inconsequentially. Burton was an artistic liar.

"You come on and show me. No—you're a defaulter, aren't you? You go back to your tent at once and don't say anything about this till you're asked. Sure that direction's right?"

"Sure," replied Harry.

The sergeant turned and looked at his fellow non-coms. crowding from the mess-tent, then decided he'd see the job through by himself.

"Get on back now—right away!" he ordered, and started off down the hill.

Burton waltzed back to the tent, doubled up with laughter, and gave the glad tidings to Carew.

"We'll give him nearly an hour to get settled," remarked Don calmly, and explained his plan to his chum. They waited, smoking in the dark till Harry grew impatient, and the piano-thumping from the officers' mess ceased, Carew pulling on his boots.

"Come on, Harry," he said, "you're required here if you feel like it."

"Well, I guess," replied the other, and they moved out into the mud towards the mess tent

"Old Dixon I want," whispered Don, referring to their company commander, "keep your eye open for him. Want him to fall over us."

The officers came out and dispersed towards their quarters, Captain Dixon a little apart, and Carew came forward in front of him, holding Burton's arm and talking loudly.

"'C' company did it," he said excitedly, "they're all down there now, drinking up that stolen beer Bet Dixon would be sore if he knew his own, pet company Burton accepted his cue nobly.

"Yes," he said, "it rolled straight down the hill behind the canteen tent into the valley. They found it easy, Simpson, too Wouldn't the provost make a score if he could round 'em up Serve 'em right if they did get caught, drunken swine!"

They passed on, noting the officer make an irresolute step towards them as they faded into the shadows.

Captain Dixon considered things. There had been an unholy row at the canteen that evening, he remembered, but surely, Sergeant Simpson couldn't be implicated. But he'd heard the name unmistakably. Wishing he'd stopped the two men, he called to one of his subalterns, and told him of the conversation he had overheard. He hated to take advantage of his men by a careless confidence, but this was too serious to be overlooked.

"Let's go down and see, sir, anyway," said the lieutenant. "Don't feel a bit like sleeping—just the night for a stroll, too, Let's be the uninvited guests at the party," he continued eagerly.

The night had cleared, there was plenty of light, and the prospect of a stroll with some excitement at the end of it pleased the two men, though the elder officer was much perturbed by the idea of "C" company being the criminals.

"Rather a roast if we catch some of Watson's men," he said hopefully, and the subaltern giggled.

"Behind the canteen, that fellow said."

They made their way to the canteen tent and walked round it and to the edge of the hill.

A flash of light showed far away and down. "Lord," said the subaltern, "there is some one there," and the two officers started laboriously down the slope in the direction of the betraying gleam

. . . .

Simpson felt very pleased with himself as he found the track and started along it, making as little noise as possible. He hated Carew, with the unreasoning dislike that an uneducated man so frequently has for the socially-superior subordinate with whom he is brought in daily contact, and he was overjoyed at the thought of squaring up the matter of the pond, which he laid instinctively at Carew's door.

The night was clear and light, and he picked his way carefully along the side of the hill, turning to the left, and going straight down the slope he saw the top of the canteen tent above him, a darker mass against the sky. He crept on quietly down the hill, ears and eyes alert for the sound of voices or the dull glow of a pipe.

As he reached the foot of the slope a gleam, a little to his left, drew his eye, and he picked up a mess-tin dropped by one of the men, a moment later stumbling against the barrel. Disgusted at finding no one lying in drunken stupor beside it, he mechanically attempted to lift the end of the cask, noting with pleasure that it still contained much liquid. Flashing his electric torch, he found the bunghole, and tilted the cask to fill the mess-tin, feeling that life still had compensations.

He had not been abstemious at the mess that night, and should have known better than to mix beer and whisky, but life is short, and, anyway, he was a disappointed man. . . . .

He crooked his elbow again, feeling that it would be sinful to waste such an opportunity. He'd probably catch Carew coming Simpson sat down by the cask, flinging an arm affectionately across it . .

He was disturbed by a flash in his eyes, and tried to pull himself up.

"You' under 'resht, C'rew," he muttered thickly.

back. . . . .

"Disgusting exhibition!" snapped Dixon, "my own sergeant, too. Go up and fetch a guard, Morris," he added to the subaltern. "Better bring a stretcher."

The listeners on the hillside bolted wildly back to their tent, arriving just in time to be turned out again to form part of the relief expedition that finally deposited Simpson in the guardroom

They returned joyfully through the lines.

"Something attempted, something done ——" chanted Carew.

"Has earned a night's repose," carolled Burton, attempting harmony.

"D'you suppose nobody else has?" enquired the sentry. "Go to bed!"

Rifleman W. Holmes (203742), 11th Bn., Rifle Brigade, of Peterborough, Ont., is now at "A" Company, No. 10 Convalescent Depôt, B.E.F., France. He left his home town on October 8, 1914, reaching England on the 17th, and enlisted on November 2, 1914, in the 2/5 Bn. of the Essex Regt. Rifleman Holmes says that his former foreman in Canada is now Cpl. J. Wood, No. 2 Officers' Mess, C.M.G. Depôt, Seaford.

STORIES OF THE WAR.

Many Canadians serving with Imperial units on sea, on land and in the air, as well as in the O.M.F.C., have good stories to tell. The Editor will be glad to consider and pay for such articles as are suitable. In view of early relaxation of censorship restrictions articles should be sent in without delay.

ON TREK THROUGH THE CAUCASUS.

Winnipeg Officer's March with Ill-fated Baku Force.

The travel difficulties which originally beset the small British force which was sent as a "forlorn hope" to occupy Baku (to protect the famous oil wells of that place), and which, as the result of the looked-for assistance of the Armenians not being forthcoming, was subsequently almost annihilated by the Turks, are told in a letter from a Canadian officer to his brother in Egypt.

The officer in question is Lt. R. S. Horsfield (Winnipeg), of the 39th Company, Machine Gun Corps, who prior to going to Baku was in the Mesopotamia Expeditionary Force. His brother, Capt. Roderick Horsfield, also of Winnipeg, is serving in Egypt with the Light Railway Branch of the Royal Engineers.

Lt. Horsfield's letter, dated August 11, says in part:—"I have been 'on trek' for the last three weeks, during which time I guess our column covered nearly 300 miles. At present we are having a well-earned rest up in the hills, preparatory to continuing the journey for another 170 odd miles. We have had to negotiate some very difficult passes through the mountains, and the roads we traversed were appalling. I walked most of the way every day in order to give my horse the maximum amount of rest. We have all had a very arduous time, only being able to snatch a few hours' rest each day. The horses and mules have 'stuck it' fine, considering the strenuous climbing of long hills and the fairly heavy loads.

CHRISTMAS AT A BACKWOODS STORE.

"The country is very bleak and barren and very mountainous. We are now stationed at a point nearly 7,000 feet up—higher than any point touched by the Canadian Pacific through the Rockies or Selkirks—from which a good view of the surrounding country can be obtained and a glimpse of a small town in the valley, partially hidden by tall poplars and other green trees. Small mountain torrents are numerous, and it is splendid to be able to get good spring water instead of the muddy 'Mesopot.' waters. In the valleys there is plenty of cultivated land, and all kinds of cereals seem to thrive well. Fruits of various kinds are obtainable locally, but at most extortionate prices—eggs and honey also, but these luxuries are so scarce that they do not go far when a whole army has to be fed."

Speaking of the commissariat, the writer says:—"Our supplies are nearly all obtained through local purchase, owing to the great length of our lines of communication. . . . You will be unlikely to receive any news of me during the winter months, as we shall be snowbound and cut off from the world."

A month or two after the above letter was penned the small British force at Baku was compelled to retreat, but as the subsequent casualty lists do not contain the name of Lt. Horsfield, it is presumed he is still alive.

The first Allied officer to reach Turkish soil after the signing of the Turkish Armistice was Capt. Henry Wiser, of Prescott, Ont.

At the Tower Bridge Police Court last week a detective said the waylaying, assaulting and robbery of Canadian soldiers was a nightly occurrence in the neighbourhood of Blackfriars and Waterloo Road. Officers in plain clothes had been put on special duty and the ordinary police patrol had been doubled.

Will anyone possessing these copies please communicate with Lieut. Col. J. MacRae-Gilstrap, Ballimore, Tignabruaich, Argyll?

CHRISTMAS CELEBRATIONS.

Y.M.C.A. Arrangements: At the Beaver Hut.

LONDON, December 28.

Under the Canadian Y.M.C.A.'s Christmas programme, the Beaver Hut will specialise in catering for the men on leave from England, France, Belgium and Germany. Here, briefly, is what it will offer its guests on Christmas Day:—

7.30-8.—Carols in dormitories.
8-10.—Breakfast.
10.30.—Religious service in theatre. Parties guided to various churches.
11-12.—Exhibition of billiards.
12-2.—Turkey dinner.
2-3.30.—Theatre: Wilby Lunn Company.
3.30-4.30.—Visits to private houses.
5-7. Supper.
7.30.—Christmas tree and games.
7.45.—Theatre: Vaudeville Company.

The carols will be sung to the accompaniment of xylophones and orchestral music from the balcony over the dormitories. Music will be provided throughout the hut all day and evening by the regular Beaver Hut orchestra and others.

The billiard match will be between two of England's foremost exponents of the game.

Five hundred men will prepare for the turkey in the dining-room. As the seating capacity of the dining-room is little better than 200, two sittings will be necessary. Only men on leave are to be entertained at dinner. Should fewer than the full accommodation gather in the hut and other centres, a final morning round-up along the Strand and Trafalgar Square will discover the last lucky men. The feast will have a "cabaret" accompaniment, for entertainers of divers accomplishments will punctuate the courses.

Unlike last Christmas in the Little Theatre, the predecessor of Beaver Hut, when the day was as Canadian as possible, this one will be for all men of the Allied Forces on leave, without discrimination.

Private Hospitality.

For many boys their visits to private homes will be the feature of the day. The International Y.M.C.A. Hospitality League, which cultivates this work energetically on behalf of all the Allied Y.M.C.A.s operating in London, has placed at the disposal of the Canadian "Y." a list of 300 hostesses, while it is confidently asserted by the Social Officer of the Beaver Hut that numbers mean nothing, since every man who desires to enjoy home entertainment will find his wish gratified. The hostesses or their representatives will come to the hut in the afternoon, meet their guests, and personally conduct them to their homes. This means, in most cases, another turkey dinner and a happy, sociable, musical evening with refined and hospitable people who are as fond of so entertaining as they are truly anxious to demonstrate to the "Colonials" how kind the English can be.

The evening in the hut will be as jolly as it will be free and easy. The old games will be played, pleasant feminine companionship will be available, and Christmassy features will be provided. It is part of the plan that the Hut will play Santa Claus to every man who sleeps in it the night before Christmas.

Needless to say, the hut will be artistically decorated for the occasion. This work has been undertaken by the splendid Women Volunteer Force, who will see to it that Christmas thoughts are thrust upon their guests by means of holly, evergreen (mistletoe, of course), maple leaves, bunting, flags, etc.

At Victoria Station the men from France will be given as warm a welcome as the limited Y.M.C.A. accommodation there will permit. A social and dance will be the evening programme.

"Father Christmas" Whose Magic Touched Children in Canada.

Quite the biggest and most successful social gathering ever held under the auspices of the London Pay Office took place on December 19 at the Queen's Hall, Langham Place, when a Christmas entertainment was given to the members of the staff and their friends.

There was a full and varied programme, lasting from 3 p.m. to 10.30, and calculated to satisfy the varied tastes of the three or four thousand guests. To begin with, there were selections by the Canadian Military Choir, and at four o'clock Brig.-Gen. J. G. Ross, C.M.G., Paymaster-General, offered a hearty welcome to the guests.

The huge Christmas Tree (provided by Gen. McDougal) was laden with gifts not only for the children of members of the staff in London, but also for every child (of members of the staff) who is in Canada. The agreeable duty of impersonating Father Christmas fell to Pte. D. G. Thomas. Refreshments (provided by the Canadian Y.M.C.A.) were served at five o'clock, and an hour later the evening entertainment—dancing, variety show by the Millbank Minstrels, and a fancy-dress competition—was commenced.

The patronesses were Mrs. J. G. Ross and Mrs. J. L. Regan. The whole affair cost a large sum of money, but the bulk of this was provided through the generosity of the manager of Lloyd's Bank, the London managers of the Bank of Montreal, Canadian Bank of Commerce, Royal Bank of Canada, and the Dominion Bank, and of Mr. Dudley Oliver.

On Wednesday of last week about twenty Canadian V.A.D.s from No. 2 London General Hospital, Chelsea, had Christmas dinner at the Overseas Ladies' Club, St. James's Square.

A LETTER FROM CANADA.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

MONTREAL, December 6.

The reconstruction period is already beginning to emphasise one point, and that is the growing tendency to invest the Dominion Government with more powers than the Provincial Legislatures. It is becoming abundantly clear that most of the problems arising from demobilisation will have to be directed and solved by Ottawa, with the assistance of the Provincial Governments.

In regard to labour, for instance, the establishment of a national system of employment agencies, controlled by Dominion and Provincial authorities, was decided upon by the recent conference of Provincial Premiers held at Ottawa. It was decided that clearing houses should be established at Ottawa and at Winnipeg. There is already a feeling of apprehension that if very comprehensive measures for absorbing the discharged soldiers are not evolved at an early date, there will be a considerable amount of distress. Returning soldiers are discovering that when they get into mufti, the glamour which surrounded them in khaki has a tendency to disappear.

In this same connection another matter which threatens to demand Federal intervention and assistance is that of technical education. While education remains under the jurisdiction of Provincial Legislatures, there is, nevertheless, a strong feeling in favour of the Federal Government granting financial aid to technical institutions. At the recent conference of Premiers it was contended that the present would be an opportune time for the Federal Government to come to a decision on this matter. At the same conference it was also suggested that there should be co-operation between Dominion and Provincial Governments in regard to the construction and improvement of highways. All these proposals would seem to indicate that the old National Policy may yet become a stronger one, and if the British North America Act stands in the way, then the necessary amendments will have to be sought.

Waiting for the "Boys."

Relatives and families of soldiers returning from England have had to exhibit extended patience in regard to waiting for and welcoming their boys. For some reason there has been a conspiracy between the military authorities and the railways to keep the relatives in the dark as to what hour the trains may be expected, with the result that in the first days of winter women and children have been stanuing in the great railway terminals from 8 p.m. until after midnight, and have even then gone home with the information that the train may be in "early to-morrow." The Halifax Morning Chronicle points out that when the Mauretania came in to New York, the people knew what units were aboard and at what time they would arrive. The Chronicle suggests that Canada might follow this practice. As a matter of fact, the authorities are now beginning to respond in Montreal. It has just been announced that an officer will be kept on duty at the depôt to answer telephone enquiries as to the time of arrival of trains.

Building Operations.

As in England, so in Canada, building operations have been suspended during the war, and now that peace has come, it appears that the building trade is rather nervous about making a start, as it is so far uncertain what attitude labour is going to adopt, also whether prices will go down. According to the statement of the vice-president of the Builders' Exchange here, labour is already rather cheaper. The Government gave a promise at the recent Building Trades' Congress in Ottawa that various public works will be proceeded with as early as possible, even though the cost should be a little higher than was the case when contracts were started before the war. The Federal Government has just announced that a fund of $25,000,000 will be available by way of loan to the Provincial Governments for the carrying out of housing schemes either through municipalities or otherwise. Thousands of soldiers' homes have been disbanded during the war, their wives and families have lived in rooms or gone elsewhere, and it is expected that there will be some demand for small dwellings. Whether the thousands of munition workers who came into the cities from the country will go back to rural life remains to be seen.

UPPER CANADA COLLEGE BOYS' DINNER.

It is proposed to hold in London, towards the end of January, 1919, a dinner of Old U.C.C. Boys now in Europe. Will all Old Boys who wish to attend kindly send their names and addresses at once to the Hon. Secretary of the London Branch of the Old U.C.C. Boys' Association, 17, Victoria Street, S.W.1, who will furnish full particulars as to place and hour of the dinner? It is hoped that all Old Boys will make an effort to attend. Dr. Parkin and Mr. Jackson will probably both be present.

TWO DIVISIONS TO BE DEMOBILISED.

Important Decisions—55,000 to Return by End of January.

IN a statement made by Sir Edward Kemp, Minister, Overseas Military Forces of Canada, several important decisions are announced on matters incidental to the cessation of hostilities.

While the British Press contains very considerable criticism of the delay in the demobilisation of the British Army, the people of Canada should find great cause for satisfaction in the fact that the present plans of the Canadian Overseas Minister provide for the return of no less than 55,000 Canadian soldiers to Canada by the end of January. These are being drawn from various branches of the Service in France and in the British Isles as officers and men can be spared pending the conclusion of peace. Of the 20,000 to be returned in January, 17,500 will come from France.

After February 1, states Sir Edward Kemp, the rate of return to Canada will reach approximately 30,000 per month, of which the larger proportion will be from France.

It is understood that the War Office has agreed to the demobilisation of two Divisions of the Canadian Corps at an early date, and it is hoped that the return of one of these Divisions to Canada will begin very early in February.

BREAKING IN A TRAIL AFTER A HEAVY SNOWFALL IN CANADA.

The Ministry announces the appointment of the Overseas Disposal Board organised to dispose of stores as same become surplus to military requirement. Certain materials of war are to be returned to Canada upon demobilisation, the remainder being sold here. Already good progress is reported in carrying on the activities of this enterprise. The membership of the Board includes Brigadier-General D. M. Hogarth, C.M.G., D.S.O., Quartermaster-General; Col. K. C. Folger, D.S.O., Director of Ordnance Services; Lt.-Col. T. Gibson, D.S.O., Ministry, O.M.F.C.; and Mr. D. R. McClelland, Ministry, O.M.F.C.

The Return of Cadets.

After extended negotiations with the Imperial Air Ministry on the subject of other ranks drawn from the Overseas Military Forces of Canada who had been recommended for commissions and despatched to the Royal Air Force Schools of Instruction, but who had not time to qualify as officers, Sir Edward Kemp states that these cadets will now be returned to concentration camps and demobilised as cadets. The same policy applies to other ranks from the Canadian Forces who were despatched to units of the Imperial Army for commissions, but who did not have the opportunity of continuing the course of instruction. As has already been announced, cadets from units in the Canadian Corps awaiting courses in England when the armistice was signed are being returned to Canada as cadets, and are receiving a credit of $100 at the Canadian Officers' Repayment Stores with which to purchase uniform. This disposal of the cadet question is a recognition of the services rendered by these other ranks in the field which resulted in their being recommended for commissions.

Acting Ranks

The question of acting rank of officers and other ranks has also had the consideration of Sir Edward Kemp and the Overseas Military Council. The decision is that all those holding acting rank prior to November 11 will retain same on discharge.

Other important problems under consideration at the Overseas Ministry at present include the question of discharge pay and return of soldiers' dependents to Canada.

General Mewburn Favours Increased Discharge Pay.

Speaking at Toronto, Brig.-General Mewburn, Minister of Militia, stated that during the war 611,741 men had enlisted in Canada, and 465,984 of these were volunteers. The organisation of 258 infantry battalions had been authorised, and most of them had been recruited up to strength. There were also a number of drafts giving units which were sent as reinforcements. Now, however, only 50 battalions were in existence.

Approximately 100,000 fighting troops would remain in France until March.

The Minister (according to the Times correspondent) said that he favoured increasing the period of pay after discharge from three to six months.

To British Columbia via the Panama Canal.

The fine Canadian Pacific liners Empress of Russia and Empress of Asia, which were taken over by the Imperial Government during the war, and transferred from the Pacific to the Atlantic, will shortly be returned to their own services.

It is proposed (as already announced in Canada) to transport a contingent of B.C. soldiers direct from this side to British Columbia, viâ the Panama Canal, in the Empress of Asia, whilst the Empress of Russia, which is due to sail from Liverpool to Hong Kong on January 2, will take a limited number of first-class passengers to that port.

V.C. FOR HUSBAND OF CANADIAN LADY.

Clergyman C.O. Who Was Eleven Times a Casualty.

The London Gazette supplement of December 14 announced the award of the Victoria Cross to

Capt. (Actg. Lt.-Col.) Bernard William Vann, M.C., late 1/8 Bn., attached 1/8 Bn., Notts and Derby R. (T F.)

For most conspicuous bravery, devotion to duty and fine leadership during the attack at Bellenglise and Lehaucourt on September 29, 1918.

He led his battalion with great skill across the Canal du Nord through a very thick fog and under heavy fire from field and machine guns.

On reaching the high ground above Bellenglise the whole attack was held up by fire of all descriptions from the front and right flank.

Realising that everything depended on the advance going forward with the barrage, Lt.-Col. Vann rushed up to the firing line and with the greatest gallantry led the line forward. By his prompt action and absolute contempt for danger the whole situation was changed, the men were encouraged and the line swept forward.

Later, he rushed a field-gun single-handed and knocked out three of the detachment. The success of the day was in no small degree due to the splendid gallantry and fine leadership displayed by this officer.

Lt.-Col. Vann, who had on all occasions set the highest example of valour, was killed near Ramicourt on October 3 when leading his battalion in attack.

Lt.-Col. (Rev.) B. W. Vann was married in December, 1917, to Miss Doris Beck, of Port Arthur, niece of Mrs. R. M. Dennistoun, of Winnipeg. The deceased officer was at the outbreak of war chaplain and assistant master at Wellingborough School, having previously (following the completion of his education at Jesus College, Cambridge) for two years been a country curate. He applied for an army chaplaincy, but, impatient at the delay in achieving his object, joined the Sherwood Foresters in August, 1914.

A Remarkable Career.

From that moment (writes a correspondent in the Times) he began a career of adventure and splendour that has seldom been excelled :—

No less than 11 times was he returned a casualty. At last he fell, but a few days before the armistice was signed, leading his battalion into the attack. The war is rich enough in stories transcending the imagination of story-tellers, but the plain tale of how a young English clergyman rose in a few months after joining the Army as a combatant to the command of his battalion is one that deserves to be remembered. Army Chaplains have won the Victoria Cross in this war, but never before has there been a priest who won it as the commanding officer of an infantry battalion.

His was no case of setting aside an old vocation and forgetting it in the new adventure. All the time the men who revered and loved him as a fearless leader knew him, and loved him no less, as a spiritual father. Never was he happier than when the moment served for him to minister to the men whom he commanded ; always in his baggage he carried a portable altar and the sacred vessels, and his greatest joy was to plead the Great Sacrifice and to give his men Communion.

Another Times correspondent says :–

It was his extraordinary courage and tenacity which will be remembered by all who knew him ; where danger was Bernard Vann must inevitably be. Vann's physical strength and his prowess at football [he was also a 'Varsity hockey blue] were a byword in his brigade. . . . His death (near Ramicourt on October 3) was typical of his life. A difficult operation had to be carried out at a few hours' notice in face of strong opposition. Heavy machine-gun fire held up a portion of the line, and there, as a matter of course, was Bernard Vann, leading and encouraging his men—to be killed instantaneously by a sniper's bullet at the moment of victory. He had been wounded seven or eight times, and had been awarded the Military Cross and Bar and the Croix de Guerre with Palm.

Mrs. Vann, who is in delicate health, is at present residing at Cirencester.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTES IN ENGLAND.

The Work of Mrs. Alfred Watt.

Mrs. Alfred Watt, M.A., came to England from Victoria, B.C., in 1913, and shortly after the outbreak of war started to lecture on increasing and conserving the food supply. She advocated the starting of the Canadian Women's Institutes as a means of organising the villages in food production. After a year of propaganda she was able, through the opportunity given by the Agricultural Organisation Society, to start the first Women's Institute in Llanfairpwll, Anglesey.

There are now about 800 Women's Institutes in England and Wales. There are eight regular organisers at work, and about forty voluntary county organisers under the Board of Agriculture, with Mrs. Watt as Chief Organiser. There is a Women's Institute Section of the Women's Branch of the Board of Agriculture, consisting of the Hon. Mrs. Alfred Lyttelton, Lady Denman and Mrs. Harris. There are Women's Institutes in every county save Lancashire, Cheshire, Cumberland and Carmarthenshire. There are county federations uniting the Women's Institutes in twenty counties. Village industries have been started in hundreds of villages, notably in Sussex, Northamptonshire, Worcestershire, Leicestershire, Kent and Dorset, including home industries of every sort—soft toys and basket-making being especially well established. The Women's Institutes filled a definite War need, and are now taking their rightful place as a force in rural reconstruction.

Mrs. Watt says that she has met everywhere the greatest kindness and hospitality, and that she has seen the dawn of Empire in the villages of England. It has been a wonderful experience, and she feels now that there is a sisterhood of country women throughout the Empire through the Women's Institutes here and in the Dominion.

Lady Isabel Margerson writes in "The First Women's Institute School" (compiled by Mrs. Watt and Miss Nest Lloyd, and published at 3s. 6d.): "Mrs. Watt's gifts have been lavishly spent in building Women's Institutes, and they will always bear in Great Britain the mark of her genius and vision. She has cemented the already strong link that binds the women of the Empire together, and in years to come we shall remember with gratitude the debt that we owe her."

The Flowing Tide of Pelmanism.

10,000 ENROLMENTS IN A MONTH!

"PEACE, PELMANISM AND PROSPERITY."

The coming of Peace has given a tremendous impetus to the Pelman movement.

Within a single month ten thousand men and women have enrolled for a Pelman Course!

"Peace, Pelmanism, and Prosperity" is, in effect, the national watchword of the day. Thousands who have hitherto been prevented from taking it up are now hastening to begin their study of Pelmanism, which, during the strenuous war years, has proved of such enormous help to business and professional success.

Many big firms are enrolling their employees en masse: one famous business house has just enrolled 165 members of its staff.

Every enrolment is made with a definite aim. To gain a bigger salary or a better position; to increase efficiency, to economise time and work; to develop more ability; to broaden experience and to make learning easy,—whatever the object may be, Pelmanism never fails to prove its value. There is no man or woman, in fact, who has conscientiously studied "the little grey books" without deriving benefit; the most popular phase being exemplified by the hundreds who have reported 100 per cent., 200 per cent., and even 300 per cent. increases of salary as a direct consequence of Pelmanising.

The evidence for Pelmanism is freely open to everyone to examine, and will be sent to any reader who applies to-day to the address given below.

SALARY DOUBLED IN THREE MONTHS.

REMARKABLE LETTERS.

There is only one way of judging Pelmanism, and that is by results. In the records of the Institute there are many thousands of letters reporting the most remarkable "benefits" ever recorded; benefits as substantial and so direct that they speak more plainly than volumes of argument could do. A few extracts are given hereunder from some of these letters.

From Bristol a Pelmanist writes:

"After taking up Pelmanism for about three months I was offered a very high post in the firm in which I am employed. This advancement, which doubled my salary (which was not inconsiderable before), I attribute entirely to Pelmanism."

The foregoing is typical of, literally, hundreds of letters, some of which tell of incomes trebled and even quadrupled as a result of Pelmanism. These letters are not asked for; they are sent of the writers' free will. Pelmanists are only too ready to acknowledge the vast good they have derived from the Course.

Here is another letter from a journalist, who had only got as far as Lesson 4 when he wrote:

"Already I feel a definite change in my mentality, a stirring and stretching in the mind. I cannot praise too highly the perfectly natural method of progression. There is no trick or quackery about it, and for the return your System gives it seems to me nonsensically cheap at the fees you charge."

WORTH A HUNDRED TIMES THE PRICE.

Many business men have remarked that the Course, to them, would be cheap at ten, twenty, or one hundred times the price. One man, a solicitor, said that a single lesson of the Course was worth £100. The cost, in short, is infinitesimal as compared with results, and small though the fee is, it may be paid by instalments if desired. Cost is no obstacle to anyone becoming a Pelmanist.

Here is another letter—short and sweet—from a busy accountant:

"Since becoming a Pelmanist I have benefited materially, having been promoted twice in twelve months, with 50 per cent. financial increase."

Large numbers of medical men have taken the Pelman Course, and many of them recommend their patients and friends to do the same. Higher praise from such a cautious and conscientious body of professional men it would be impossible to gain. Here is a letter from one:

"I cannot be sufficiently thankful that I took a Pelman Course. . . . I attribute my success in a large measure to the application of Pelman principles. The study was done in the spare time left to me by a large industrial practice."

Another letter, also from a medical man:

"I took the Pelman Course because my practice was not in a satisfactory condition, and I could not discover the cause. Your lessons enabled me to discover the weak points and correct them, with most satisfactory results. Your Course has proved to be a splendid investment for me. My chief regret is that I did not take it at the beginning."

"RESULTS ARE WONDERFUL."

Another Pelmanist expresses himself thus:

"The results are wonderful. I used to wonder (before taking up the Pelman Course) if there was any possible exaggeration, but honestly no pen can express one tittle of the value the Course really is. What I have gained up to the present could never be called costly even if it had cost me £50."

It may be remarked that this gentleman had only worked through two lessons when he wrote the foregoing. Comment would be superfluous.

One of the most interesting letters received by the Pelman Institute during recent months contains the following very frank admissions:

"I admit having read your announcements for some ten years, and yet I was not (to my eternal regret be it admitted) persuaded to commence your Course until I noticed your consistent advertising in The Times. . . . I do not see how anyone can study the Pelman lessons seriously and not gain thereby —reaping a reward which, besides its definite and tangible advantage, also brings with it developments which have no parallel in money values.

"To those of my acquaintance who ask my opinion of the Pelman training, I have said, and shall continue to say: Take it—follow instructions carefully—and if at the end of the Course you do not admit having gained something good—right out of proportion to its cost—I will personally refund your outlay."

Such a letter from a business man surely shows that Pelmanism is at least as good as—if not better than—it claims. And that is the opinion of many students. The following extract from a Pelmanist's letter has previously been published, but will bear repetition. In the course of a very warm tribute to the system he said:

"I used to think the claims made for Pelmanism were fantastic and impossible; now I consider them to be understatements of the truth."

CONSIDER THESE POINTS.

There is no parallel to the amazing success of Pelmanism amongst all classes; and every month, every week, its success and popularity increase.

It is perfectly simple and easy to master, takes but very little time, and can be studied anywhere. Being taught entirely by correspondence, it does not matter where you live. Many successful Pelmanists took up the Course when living overseas in remote corners of the Empire.

It has now been adopted by over 400,000 men and women, and no thorough student of the Course has ever yet failed to secure "results."

* * * * * *

Full particulars of the Pelman Course are given in "Mind and Memory," which also contains a complete descriptive Synopsis of the twelve lessons. A copy of this interesting booklet, together with a full reprint of "Truth's" famous Report on the work of the Pelman Institute, and particulars showing how you can secure the complete Course for one-third less than the usual fee, may be obtained, gratis and post free, by any reader of "Canada" who applies to the Pelman Institute, 21, Pelman House, Bloomsbury Street, London, W.C.1.

A WARM WELCOME HOME.

The first train on the Canadian Government Railways after the arrival at Halifax of 6,000 troops on the Olympic was sent off in 15 minutes, and in the space of 12 hours 11 trains left for Quebec and Montreal.

One hundred Canadian officers who disembarked from the American liner Pannonia at Portland, Maine, had a very warm reception (says the Times). Enormous crowds were at the station when they left for Montreal, and each officer was presented with a bouquet of American beauty roses.

ARTHUR RUCK, Galleries 4, Berkeley Street, Piccadilly, London, W.

THE GREAT PEACE CHRISTMAS

THE Greatest War has ended, appropriately enough, in time for us all to celebrate the Greatest Christmas. "Peace on earth, goodwill towards men!" This is the season's note. It is in all men's minds.

At a time like this, when the world is celebrating such a record Festival, Sir Arthur Pearson begs to suggest that a Peace Offering—a Christmas Peace Offering should be made to men who may not see the joy to which every face to-day bears witness—the heroic soldiers and sailors blinded in the War.

These gallant fellows have learned—and are learning—at St. Dunstan's to overcome the handicap of blindness. Many of them are boys from the land of the Maple Leaf. Numbers of you who read will have sons or relatives from the great country overseas who were about due for service in France, when the Armistice happily put an end to their risk of a similar fate.

To these in particular—and to the great numbers of Canadians in general, whose compatriots have made the penultimate sacrifice for Freedom, Sir Arthur Pearson now appeals for support of the fund for the After-Care of these brave men.

In the growing relief and abiding joy—now little more than a month old—which the Great Peace has brought, in peculiar abundance, to the first-named—and in the general rejoicing of all Canadians at the Old Empire's liberation from the greatest menace that ever faced it—a combined Peace-and-Thank-Offering to these men would, it is suggested, be the most suitable method of marking the greatness of the Occasion.

"Peace on earth—goodwill towards men!" Peace once more fills our world. Will you not show goodwill towards these men who have given so much to secure it?

Donations should be addressed to Sir Arthur Pearson, Bart., St. Dunstan's, Regents Park, London, N.W.1.

"I expect to pass through this world but once. If, therefore, there is any good thing which I can do, or any kindness I can show my fellow-man, let me do it now! Let me not defer it, nor neglect it,—for I shall not pass this way again!"

CANADA'S OVERSEAS MILITARY FORCES.

OFFICERS arriving in London on leave without having made provision for accommodation should apply to 23, Carlton House Terrace, Pall Mall, immediately on arrival in town.

All warrant officers, N.C.Os. and men on leave remaining in London for a period of over six hours must report at either No. 3, Southampton Street, Strand, or at 46, Grosvenor Gardens, near Victoria Station, for the purpose of having their passes viséd. Any soldier who does not conform to this regulation will be immediately returned to his unit.

The registered telegraphic address of the Military Dependents' Branch, O.M.F.C., British Columbia House, 1, Regent Street, London, S.W.1, is "Mildepcan, Piccy, London." All Canadian officers and men with dependents in this country should make a note of this telegraphic address.

Pay Accounts of "Other Ranks."

In order to facilitate the preparation of pay accounts prior to demobilisation each soldier will be furnished by his Paymaster with an "Agreement of Account" form showing his balance at a certain specified date. If the soldier is satisfied that the balance stated is correct, he should sign and return the form to his Paymaster. If any doubt exists as to its accuracy, the soldier should submit his objection to his Paymaster, who will investigate the matter.

Disposal of Surplus Baggage.

The Routine Order respecting the disposal of surplus baggage (published in last week's Canada) is cancelled, and the following (No. 5072) substituted :—Any officer or other rank having surplus baggage now stored in the custody of the Officer i/c Estates and Legal Services Branch can have it delivered to him, or sent to any address in the United Kingdom or in Canada, free of charge, on notifying the officer concerned, at 133, Oxford Street, London, W.1, of the address to which it should be delivered.

Notes on Officers.

Lt. P. W. Johnson, E. Ont., has ceased to be employed as Area Anti-Gas Officer, Witley.

Lt. C. St. C. Stayner, 26th Bn. and R.A.F., of Halifax, and Lt. A. D. Clarke, R.A.F., of Rothesay, N.B., have returned to Canada.

Lt. E. B. Haffner, Sask. and R.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Haffner, Gertrude Avenue, Winnipeg (and formerly C.P.R. land agent in Winnipeg), leaves for Canada in a day or two. Lt. Haffner was the first officer to join the 78th Bn. on its organisation, and came overseas as second-in-command of the 232nd. Whilst on service in France he was attached to the 5th Corps, Third Army, and returned to England last April to join the R.A.F. He had almost completed his pilot's course when the armistice was signed. His brother, Lt. Harry J. Haffner, 8th Field Co., Engineers, who left Victoria with the 48th Bn., was killed in action on May 30, 1916.

Secondings.—Lt. Leacock, C.A.S.C. (officer under Contracts Branch).

Resignations.—Nursing Sisters J. M. Bennett and S. B. McKee, C.A.M.C. (in Canada).

General McDonald Returning to Canada.

Brig.-Gen. Harold F. McDonald, C.M.G., D.S.O., of Winnipeg, B.G.G.S. at London Headquarters, will shortly vacate that position, as he has been called to Canada to fill an important post under the Militia Department. Next to General Turner, V.C., no officer is better known or more popular with all ranks in England than General McDonald, whose rapid rise from the rank of subaltern to brigadier-general has been due solely to ability and pluck

The gallant officer, who carries his left sleeve empty as the result of losing an arm during the Somme operations in 1916, whilst brigade major of the First Brigade, left Winnipeg with the First Contingent. He then held a lieutenancy in the 79th Cameron Highlanders (16th Bn.), and was among the numerous officers who were wounded at the Second Battle of Ypres. On that occasion he nearly lost his eyesight. It was during a dangerous reconnaissance of the enemy lines under heavy fire on September 2, 1916 (accompanied only by his "batman"), that a shell splinter carried off his arm, but he refused to allow the stretcher-bearers to remove him until he had reported the result of his reconnaissance to headquarters

Gen. McDonald is the youngest son of the late Archibald McDonald, chief factor of the Hudson's Bay Co. at Fort Qu'Appelle, and brother of Mr. H. H. McDonald, a well-known Western banker and financier. It was for succouring Gen. McDonald at Ypres, in April, 1915, that Capt. (now Major) Scrimger, C.A.M.C. was awarded the Victoria Cross.

LADY ROBERTS' FIELD GLASS FUND.

To the Editor of CANADA.

SIR,—May I, through the hospitality of your columns, ask all officers and others who have received glasses or telescopes on loan through my Fund, to send them back to me now for return to their owners. All instruments lent through my Fund bear the letters N.S.L. (National Service League) followed by a letter and a number. I should be glad if officers and others returning glasses would enclose in the case a note of acknowledgment for the owner.

I wish to record my gratitude not only to the public for the munificent loan of 30,000 glasses, but also to the Press for the valued help which it has given this undertaking.

The address for glasses and correspondence is The Manager, Lady Roberts' Field Glass Fund, 64, Victoria Street, S.W.1.—Yours faithfully,

ROBERTS

SOME GRIEVANCES.

To the Editor of CANADA.

SIR,—As a First Division man I beg to add my grouse to those appearing in your issue of last week.

The following points are of vital interest to many other members of the O.M.F.C., and although I am quoting my own case in this letter the facts apply to practically all of us. Can you arouse interest in the right quarter to obtain action which will help us out of our difficulties?

The following are my points:—

(a) A long leave to those who desire it before their return to Canada.

(b) An increase to the present inadequate London subsistence allowance.

(c) Free transportation to all dependents to Canada.

(d) Something definite regarding the gratuity to be paid on discharge.

In the event of nothing being done with regard to (c) I shall return to this country upon obtaining my discharge instead of taking my wife and two sisters to Canada.—Yours truly,

FIRST DIVISION.

OFFICERS' GRATUITY ON DISCHARGE

To the Editor of CANADA.

SIR,—I have been told that the Canadian scheme is to give officers three months' pay as a gratuity on discharge, irrespective of length of service or date of commission in the Field.

There is a very strong feeling among officers here that such a scheme is obviously unfair. It is generally felt that a fairer scheme would be a plan along the lines of the Imperial Government scheme (which is determined on the basis of service).

If some such plan is not adopted, and Canadian officers receive less than Imperial officers, it will undoubtedly lead to great dissatisfaction among all Canadian officers in France, especially among those who came to France early in the war, and have been for a long time out of touch with their civil occupations.

Canada is read with much interest in practically all officers' messes in France, and it is felt that your publication is the best available medium to bring the above matter before the Government and public.—Yours faithfully,

France. SAPPER.

PLEA FOR THE MIDDLE-AGED BUSINESS MAN.

To the Editor of CANADA.

SIR,—Is the Canadian Government prepared to offer any financial assistance to married, middle-aged business men who are not desirous of taking up their claim of 160 acres of land, but who, having sacrificed their business to enlist for active service, would like to get a fresh start in the business they have previously "made good" at, but lack the necessary finances?

I am a Vancouver citizen, 37 years of age, married, with a family, and disposed of my business at some considerable loss in order to enlist in the C.F.A. three years ago, and have now two and a half years' active service.—Yours sincerely,

France. "CASUALTY."

THE MAN IN THE RANKS

To the Editor of CANADA.

DEAR SIR,—In a recent copy of your excellent paper I read a letter from an officer asking that a gratuity in addition to the three months' post discharge pay be paid to Canadian soldiers, which prompts me to state the case of the man in the ranks.

Surely, if a gratuity is necessary to an officer to reinstate him in civilian life it is even more necessary to the man in the ranks, who will apparently only receive $100 on discharge above his pay, whether he has been away from home three months or three years. The British Tommy is to receive a sum of money for each month of active service in addition to a gratuity. Surely this is the only satisfactory system, for for each month we have been away from business, college or home, our business careers and homes have suffered accordingly.

I believe our Government intends to do its best for the returning soldier, but so far it appears that only the man who will go back to the farm will be helped. In the city we want a chance to make good, build up a career and build up a home, and we want our Government to remember that a break of a few years overseas in a young fellow's life is a handicap to success unless Canada helps us more than is apparent at present.—Yours, etc.,

France. W. H. B.

CANADIAN RED CROSS IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM.

Col. H. W. Blaylock, C.B.E., Chief Commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross Society, and Messrs. Cassels and Cambie, London War Committee, have returned from an extended trip to France and Belgium. They visited Corps Headquarters in company with Capt. D. J. Murphy, and spent considerable time in the various towns which have been taken from the Germans by the Canadian Corps.

On all sides they were struck by the devastation and ruin in the North of France and the pitiable plight of the refugees trudging along the roads back to their ruined homes.

As a result of the trip recommendations have been made to Canada for temporary extension of the Society's efforts among these people.

From all quarters nothing but praise was heard of the way the Society's work had been carried on during the recent advance. In many cases Canadian Red Cross lorries were in French towns with food and clothing for the sick inhabitants before the Boche had actually left.

COMPANY MEETINGS.

NATIONAL BANK OF SCOTLAND, LIMITED.

The annual general meeting of the proprietors of the National Bank of Scotland, Limited, was held on 19th inst. in the Bank's head office.

His Grace the Duke of Montrose, K.T., Governor, in moving the adoption of the report, referred to the happy termination of the war, and to the reconstruction period now at hand, when credit must be liberally provided and capital and labour work amicably together. He mentioned that for the first time in the Bank's history the deposits had exceeded £30,000,000, and that the note circulation showed an increase of £913,000 on the year, the total now being £3,167,000, compared with £844,000 before the war. Cash loans at call and short notice, Treasury Bills, and War Loans amounted to over £25,000,000, or 72 per cent. of the total liabilities to the public. All depreciation on the Bank's investments had been met and £100,000 had again been placed to the Reserve Fund, which now amounts to £900,000. With the greatly increased liabilities, the Directors felt that the large profits being earned at present should be used as far as possible in further strengthening the Bank's position. To provide increased facilities in connection with foreign exchange and all other classes of overseas business a specially equipped Colonial and Foreign Department is being opened at the Glasgow office. Since the outbreak of war 482 members of the staff had been released for service with his Majesty's Forces, of whom 76 had been killed or were missing.

In referring to the agreement entered into with Lloyds Bank, his Grace stated that the assent of 3,231 proprietors, representing £953,914, or 95 per cent. of the stock, had been received, and the Directors are convinced that, while the Bank will continue to be administered in all respects as before, the union will prove to be in the best interests of all concerned. In accordance with the agreement, Mr. Philip Ernest Noble and Mr. Wilfred S. de Winton, Directors of Lloyds Bank, have joined the Board, which is represented on Lloyds Board by Sir George Younger, Bart., and Mr. Charles Ker, C.A Two vacancies in the Extraordinary Board were filled by the election of the Marquess of Ailsa and Sir Alfred Ewing, K.C.B., Principal and Vice-Chancellor of the University of Edinburgh.

The report was unanimously adopted.

The dividend of 16 per cent. will be paid as usual by two equal instalments in January and July next.

LONDON-AMERICAN MARITIME TRADING COMPANY.

Earl Wemyss, presiding at the meeting of the London-American Maritime Trading Co., Ltd., held last Thursday, said the Government had promised to release the ships as quickly as they could. They were relying upon that promise, and he was told that as an earnest of the Government bona-fides they had recently released oil tankers. That was something on account, but he could not help thinking it might be some time before the main body of shipping was released. If anything could be done to secure priority of release for this company's ships it would be done. But when the ships were released he did not suppose that they would have absolute freedom for freights and that they would not be in any way controlled. He did not know that it was even desirable they should be absolutely free, but he was sure that British shipping would not be put into a worse position than that of neutrals and other countries, and that therefore they might take it that they would have better conditions in the future than in the past

He expressed approval of the cancelling of the agreement with the Rio de Janeiro Light and Power Company for a time charter, which, he said, had been a disadvantageous one. Next, with regard to the debentures, they had placed with the trustee for the debenture holders a sufficient sum to pay off the balance of the debentures, which would accordingly be redeemed at the next drawing in April. As regarded the position of the reserves, it would be seen that the reserve of £20,000 had disappeared, having gone in part settlement of the arrangement with the Rio de Janeiro Light and Power Company. The reserve for contingencies was £64,083, which would meet any possible claim for excess profits duty. The special reserve remained at £89,037. It would be seen from the report that there was a trading profit of £41,875, as compared with £21,012. They were paying the preference dividend in full and 10 per cent. on the ordinary shares. He hoped the shareholders would consider this satisfactory under the circumstances.

They had purchased the Thompson Steam Shipping Company on the same terms as they purchased the Leander Company, which had been of such inestimable benefit to the shareholders. They started their career four years ago with ten ships; they had had twelve sunk, and had at present ten ships; the debentures and preliminary expenses had been paid off, and about 69 per cent. had been distributed to the shareholders.

CANADIANS AND FRENCH LOAN.

The French Liberation Loan has been favourably received (says the Montreal correspondent of the Morning Post), in view of the expectation that Canadian subscriptions will be spent in Canada in purchases by the French Government. The Finance Minister and the Royal and Union Banks were among the first subscribers. The Bank of Montreal has taken one million francs, and the Sun Life Insurance Company two million.

UNION BANK OF CANADA.

Mr. John Wilson, manager of the Union Bank of Canada in London, gave a dinner to the London staff of the Bank at the Holborn Restaurant on December 16.

The invited guests numbered 120, and included Sir Harry McGowan, K.B.E., Sir James McKechnie, Sir J. Gordon Hairne, Sir Robert Nevison, Col. the Hon. Sydney Peel, Col. Guy St. Aubyn, Mr. Ben Bailey, Col. H. W. Blaylock, O.B.E., Col. Claude Bryan, Sir John Ferguson, Sir Pearce Guy, Major Hanson, Major Hume Blake, and Mr. Frank Young.

Mr. F. W. Ashe, assistant-general manager of the Bank, who is on a visit to England, replied to the toast of the Bank. Several members of the staff contributed to the musical programme.

Banking and Finance.

NOTES ON INVESTMENTS.

The Passing of 1918.

Elsewhere Canada summarises the principal events of the past year, many of which, of course, have had an important bearing upon the financial world, where business has necessarily remained subjective to the continued restrictions imposed by the Treasury. Here it is only necessary to refer en passant to the great part the Dominion has played in financing the war, only recently emphasised by the brilliant success of the Victory Loan. One of the most welcome features of the year now drawing to its end has been the very substantial recovery in the values of Canadian securities, as set out below in our usual comparative table. It is difficult and dangerous to prophesy, but all the available data seem to justify Canadians in their confidence that they will be able to hold their own in the new era now commencing. Pending, however, a complete return to normal conditions in the financial world, and the advent of the new investment standard, prices—especially for fixed interest bearing securities—must remain in a state of flux, and the effect of this is seen in the irregular movements in Government, Provincial and Municipal securities. But it is eminently gratifying to find that many issues have in 1918 passed their end-July, 1914, mean quotations, notably C.P.R., Canadian Bank of Commerce, Hudson's Bays, Dominion Steel—now nearly three times their pre-war quotation—and Canadian General Electric. The Railways have been dominated by the continued rise in expenses, and the nationalisation developments, and after early weakness have recovered on the hopes engendered from the Government's relief measures in the shape of higher rates, the recovery in several cases running into double figures. One of the most important developments in the Banking world was the amalgamation of the Bank of British North America with the Bank of Montreal, and another the absorption by the Royal Bank of Canada of the Northern Crown Bank, a distinctly Western institution. Much interest was aroused by the decision—announced in the latter part of the year—of the Bank of Montreal to open a branch in the French capital. In Banking law the outstanding feature was the support by the House of Lords of the Court of Appeal's judgment in favour of the appellants in Banbury v. Bank of Montreal, in which it was definitely decided "that a Bank owed no duty to its customers to advise as to investments, that the branch manager had no authority to bind the bank—the matter at issue in this particular case—and that the action was within Lord Tenterden's Act, and was therefore not maintainable against the Bank." In connection with new issues the London Money Market has remained practically closed to Canada, and the only appeal was that of the Province of Saskatchewan, which successfully floated a 5½ per cent. Loan here. One of the uncomfortable developments was Prince Albert's default, and the delay in dealing with this painful incident has caused some adverse comment in financial circles in London.

Ontario after the War—WATER POWER.

The whole industrial success of Ontario may be said to depend upon the development of its water power.

The water power of Ontario is cheapened and made generally available by Government control and operation, and nearly every city and town in Ontario has already been provided with hydro-electric power both for lighting and manufacturing purposes.

The importance of this phase of development may be realised from the fact that Ontario to-day has 16,000 factories depending upon water power, with an annual output amounting to $579,000,000.

The enormous reserve of Ontario's water power may be realised from the fact that, of the many millions of horse-power available, only about 10 per cent. has, up to now, been brought under control.

FROM EAST TO WEST

ONTARIO PROVINCE.

OTTAWA.—Mr. C. H. Cahan, K.C., will resign the post of Director of Public Safety on January 1.

——The number of soldiers already placed in civil occupations after having graduated in industrial courses under the Soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment Department is 1,347. There are now 6,076 returned men undergoing training.

TORONTO.—The Hon. Dr. H. J. Cody, Provincial Minister of Education, has outlined a scheme for the development of technical and industrial education in the Province. He indicated that schools would be built at Brantford, Peterboro and in the St. Catharines, Welland, and Thorold districts.

Sixty-five out of 72 teachers in the Catholic separate schools of this city threaten to strike unless they receive an immediate increase of salaries.

——Graduates and undergraduates of the University of Toronto have decided that a memorial shall be established, commemorating the part taken by the University in the war, and also the provision of scholarships for returned soldiers or the sons of those killed.

——At a meeting of the British Seamen's and Firemen's Union 3,000 people endorsed a resolution declaring Germans undesirable immigrants.

QUEBEC PROVINCE.

QUEBEC.—By a decision of Justice Lemieux, the Quebec Government has a right to collect a tax on all successions, even on legacies made outside of the Province by residents of this Province.

——A rich asbestos mine has been discovered at Lake Frontier, Montmagny County, near the American border, near the tracks of the Quebec Central Railway.

Mr. Arthur Amos has been appointed a member of the Dominion Power Board. He is chief engineer of the hydraulic service of Quebec, and one of the important problems facing the Government is the best method of developing the St. Lawrence River for power purposes.

A BOB-SLEIGH SLIDE.

MONTREAL.—The report of the Dominion Commercial Travellers' Association at the annual meeting showed a membership of 8,536, of whom 286 joined the Colours.

——An impressive service at which memorial tablets were unveiled in memory of Capt. G. Chatton Stephens and his infant son was held at the Church of the Messiah.

——The late Mr. Morley Donaldson, former vice-president and general manager of the G.T.P. Railway, left estate valued at $74,154.

When you get back to Canada see that "CANADA" is sied regularly to your local reading room or club.

NOVA SCOTIA.

HALIFAX.—Lieut.-Governor Grant formally presented Mrs. James Croak, of New Aberdeen, with the Victoria Cross won by her late son, Private John Bernard Croak, of the 13th Canadian Bn., on August 8, 1918.

——Capt. B. F. Hayes, of the White Star R.M.S. Olympic, has been presented with a silver salver by the city of Halifax and with a loving-cup by the Board of Trade. Captain Hayes described how the Olympic cut the U 103 in two some months ago.

——The Canadian Club has elected Dean Llwyd president, Dr. E. Blackaddar and Dr. E. Blackadman vice-presidents, Mr. L. O. Forsyth secretary, and Mr. F. O. Robertson treasurer.

——At the close of the Liberal Conference in this Province, all differences were composed. The Hon. G. H. Murray (the Premier), the Hon. W. S. Fielding, and Senator Power were elected honorary presidents.

SYDNEY.—The Duke of Devonshire formally opened the new headquarters of the G.W.V.A. here. He was given a very cordial public reception on his first visit to the city.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

FREDERICTON.—The will of Hon. A. R. McClelan, a former Lt.-Governor of this Province, bequeathing $150,000 to various charities, has been upheld in the Courts.

MONCTON.—The City Council has given a grant of $300 and $50 per month to the local Great War Veterans' Association until it is established on a self-supporting basis.

MANITOBA PROVINCE.

WINNIPEG.—The board of directors of Wesley College are asking for an added endowment of $400,000. Mr. B. H. Ashdown, chairman of the board, has given $100,000.

—The local Canadian Club gave a luncheon to Lt.-Col. John Pringle. Mr. R. W. Craig has been elected president of the club for the ensuing year.

—A number of farms in the Swan River valley have changed hands at good prices. J. Barker, of Kenville, has sold his improved half-section for $19,500, and J. Stavast purchased a half-section for $15,000.

——The Neepawa Board of Trade has been organised with Mr. H. L. Wethey president, Mr. W. E. N. King vice-president, and Mr. F. B. Ralph secretary.

SASKATCHEWAN.

REGINA.—Mr. W. G. Yule, of Winnipeg, has arrived in Regina to assume his duties as manager of the Royal Bank here, succeeding Mr. A. B. Weatherby, who goes to Vancouver.

——In order to supplement the Provincial revenues, a Bill providing for additional taxations of corporations has been given a first reading in the Legislature. Banks, insurance, trust and express companies are particularly affected.

——Premiums taken out in Saskatchewan for hail insurance during the past season will come close to the figure of last year, $1,800,000. Of the companies that have reported this year to date the ratio of losses is about 20 per cent., as compared with 70 per cent. last year and 76 per cent. in 1917.

——Assistance to the extent of $25,000 will be given by the Regina Winter Fair Board to the city to erect the proposed new wing to the grandstand at the exhibition grounds.

——Preliminary estimates give an estimated cost of $1,620,000 for a gas producer power plant to generate 9,000 kilowatts of power from the lignite coal beds at Estevan, with which it is proposed to supply the cities of Moose Jaw, Regina and Weyburn and intervening towns on that stretch of 180 miles with light and power.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

N.B.—All letters asking for information or advice must contain an enquiry coupon from the current issue of "Canada," except when the enquirer is an annual subscriber.

Detailed replies by letter are not made except to annual subscribers. Non-subscribers desiring detailed or exhaustive replies by letter must enclose a P.O. for 5s., which will cover three questions.

Copies should be kept of questions, and these should be numbered when more than one is asked.

Enquiries regarding investment matters should be marked "Financial" on the left-hand top corner of envelope.

The fullest particulars of special investment opportunities in Canada mentioned from time to time in the column headed "Investment Notes and Opportunities" are supplied on request to readers who are annual subscribers.

J. W. J. (Seaford).—The whole question is now being considered by the authorities.

A Constant Reader (Halifax, Yorks.).—As you did not serve in France you will not be entitled to the 1915 Star.

M. J. L. (C.F.C., Catford).—The question of discharges in this country is under consideration, and for the present applications will under no circumstances be considered.

G. D. T. (Sheffield).—The question of transfers cannot at present be considered, as the Canadian Air Force has not yet received establishment.

A. H. C. (B.E.F., France).—We are endeavouring to secure some reliable information on the subject from the Imperial Military authorities.

E. F. P. (R.A.F., Upavon).—Write to Mr. C. F. Bailey, Khaki University of Canada, c/o Ontario Government Offices, 163, Strand, London, W.C.2.

Canadian Captain (Birmingham). — (1) Apply to Col. K. C. Folger, Q.M.G.'s Department, O.M.F.C., Argyll House, Regent Street, London, W.1. (2) No hospital deductions are made.

J. W. O. (Fort Augustus, Scotland).—The demobilisation of Canadians serving in the Imperial Forces is a matter of which we have no knowledge. It comes under the jurisdiction of the Imperial authorities. Write to the Department of Demobilisation and Resettlement, 8, Richmond Terrace, Whitehall, London, S.W.1.

Saskatchewan (B.E.F., France). — The O.M.F.C. authorities have asked for the recall of all Canadian officers seconded to the Imperial Army, provided such officers can be spared. Such officers will then automatically come under the O.M.F.C. demobilisation scheme. You will then presumably be returned to Canada at an early date.

Gunner Q. (Kinmel Park).—The Order in Council governing the granting of the post-discharge gratuity (on discharge in Canada) originally applied to all ranks who had served continuously for six months (any part thereof having been performed Overseas); but in November, 1917, it was semi-officially stated that a bonus (according to length of service) would also be paid to men who had not left Canada. We have never heard of the $10 (Prince of Wales') grant you mention

S. L. G. (Ward 4).—Obviously you are not a regular reader, else you would not refer as "an officers' only concern" to the only newspaper which has always given the full rank and file casualty lists. If the horse-shoers deserve extra pay as artificers, what pay do the front line men deserve as Hun killers? Mere money cannot pay you or anyone who has played a real man's part in this war—so why try to discriminate in dollars and cents between services rendered? Your ward mate who is so badly wounded will receive a pension—inadequate for his suffering and mutilation—but here, again, mere money cannot recompense. He has made a greater sacrifice than yourself and many others—though a less sacrifice than those who will not return.

FROM EAST TO WEST.

SASKATCHEWAN (Continued from page 451)

SASKATOON.—At the opening of the University of Saskatchewan last month 60 returned soldiers commenced vocational training classes there. The majority of these are interested in a farm motor course.

——The biggest real estate deal here for a long time was the sale by the Saskatchewan Investment and Trust Company, Limited, who sold the Helgerson block, corner of Second Avenue and 22nd Street, directly across the street from the Bank of Montreal, to Barries', Limited, for $50,000 cash. The property has a frontage of 50 feet on Second Avenue and 140 feet on 22nd Street. The price was $1,000 cash per foot frontage. It is the intention of the purchasers to erect a large modern store building on the property.

MOOSE JAW.—The departmental estimated and actual revenue and expenditure for the city for the eight months ending August 31 shows that the actual expenditure was a trifle less than the estimated expenditure, and that the actual revenue was slightly in excess of the estimated total. The actual net expenditure was $196,631, and the actual net revenue, $120,449.

ALBERTA PROVINCE.

EDMONTON.—During October the city tax collector received $1,400,000 in taxes. Over $2,000,000 is required this year.

——Beavers have taken possession of Gaetz Lake, near Red Deer, and have cut down a large number of trees to build houses and provide winter food.

CALGARY.—The Provincial Government has supplied funds for the purpose of providing pensions to needy mothers in this city.

——During August and September only 4,436 cattle of all kinds were shipped from the yards here to the United States, of which number 1,430 were fat dry cows and 2,976 steers.

* *

Lt. Travers Williams-Taylor (son of Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, general manager of the Bank of Montreal), who recently arrived in London from Cairo, after being released by the Turks, is visiting relations in England before returning to Montreal early next month.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

VICTORIA.—At a conference of representatives of this Province in the Dominion Parliament it was decided to recommend that provision should be made to give definite authority to each Province with regard to returned soldier problem with full power to act, the opinion being expressed that it was desirable that there should be the fullest co-operation between returned men and the Government.

VANCOUVER.—Fire has destroyed the wire and nail manufacturing plant of the Morrison Steel and Wire Company; loss, $150,000.

Mr. Joseph Martin, K.C., announces that he has entered into a new legal partnership with Mr. Geo. H. Cowan. The new firm will be known as Cowan, Martin, Grant, Dixie, and Gurd.

——The late Mr. F. N. Trites, one of the most widely known real estate men in British Columbia, died at Agassiz. In 1909 his company sold 660 acres of land in Point Grey to the Provincial Government for $2,614,000.

——The output of news print paper by British Columbia mills in 1917 was 75,833 tons, compared with 65,229 tons for the year previous. In 1917, 3,170 tons of wrapping paper were made; also 43,644 tons of sulphide pulp and 65,620 tons of ground wood pulp. The output of sulphide pulp in 1916 was 14,389 tons.

PRINCE RUPERT.—Tobacco has been successfully grown at Terrace, 80 miles east of here in the Kitsumgalum Valley. The quality is said to be equal to the tobacco grown in the southern part of the Province. There was a large crop of strawberries and bush fruits at Terrace this summer, and shipments were made to Edmonton and other points on the prairie along the G.T.P. for the first time.

JOHN GILLOTT & SON, Lancaster Works, Barnsley,

Make a Specialite of COAL-CUTTING MACHINERY; MACHINES FOR COAL HOLING; MACHINES FOR FIRECLAY HOLING, HARD OR SOFT; MACHINES TO TAKE OUT A PRICKING BETWEEN TWO COALS. The only machines in successful operation and giving profitable results.

Will cut from 20 yards per hour in hardest Coal or Fireclays. Is made almost wholly of Steel. Amount of work guaranteed. Is lighter, more portable, durable and compact, and will do more and better work than any other machine. 20,100 yards holed in 1,726 hours in six months in a 28 in. seam of Coal, including all stoppages, and producing 12,500 tons of Coal. We had 17 of our machines at work at the Colliery where this was done.

INSPECTIONS MADE WITH VIEW TO WORKING MACHINERY AND APPROXIMATE RESULTS GIVEN. ASK FOR CIRCULAR "B."
